Dr. Fosdick declared that "we can get consciences decencies on the, no-God basis, but we cannot get Christ—not His character, not His Stamina, doing what He did, loving as He loved, facing Gethsemane and the cross as He faced them, not His goodness without God! That requires the outlook on life and the faiths about life that create morale."

He asked "When was it ever simple to lead the good life." "Think of the world out there from which we came, and to which we return. How continously it raises its bid for wrong-doing, often gets perilously near our price, sometimes reaches it!"

The message of the great religion Dr. Fosdick defined as "resources from beyond life, reserves of available strength for life, forgiveness of the past, inner reinforcement for the present, hope for the future. This constitutes realistic dealing with the difficult task of goodness," he stated.

KENTUCKY DERBY, 1938 version, furnished another sod blow to "The Talent", for the favorites were left for behind with dust in their eyes by nags whose names were hardly mentioned in the pre-race prognostications. Names make news and Fighting Fox, Bull Lea and Menow, made news for days before the race as the probable three first under the wire. Fighting Fox was on odds-on favorite and just to be sure the wise ones put a couple of dollars or more on his nose, because he was a son of Gallant Fox, worthy sire of not so worthy sons. Long Shot take-a-chancers spread their money outside the hot favorites and as a result some betters copped some nice money. Lawrin, almost overlooked in the betting, won easily; Dauber, also lightly thought of and barely mentioned by the wise scribes of the sporting pages, came in a good second and Can't Wait beat the Sure Things by coming in third. Weather good, track fast and winner nets about fifty thousand dollars; losers grass over a million smackers, and that's money in any language. Uncle Sam's sporting scribes sure have been toking it on the chin lately, in all branches of sport — perhaps there was so much money wagered on Fighting Fox, Bull Lea, Menow and The Chief that the horses just naturally were overloaded by carrying too much coin and decided to give the bookies a benefit. Thus another Yankee Derby has been run and racing authorities can busy themselves figuring where the smell comes from, if any.

BILL CHILDS AND HIS BLIND MULE have been picturesque figures on the southern landscape for the past twenty years, according to Believe-It-or-Not Ripley. Bill Childs, not to be confused with Bill Childs, radio's gift to the ladies in the N. B. C. Minstrels, has walked the highways and byways of Georgia for the past twenty years leading a blind mule. Bill's work, the book says, is rich. Bill's chief claim to fame is the fact that he has never in his lifetime slept in a bed.

DR. ROY DAFOE, OF MADOC AND CALLANDER, is being immortalized in type by the Saturday Evening Post, a masterful job of writing, the history of "The Little Doc" being done by Frazier Hunt, who spent some days in Belleville last winter on his way to Madoc and Callander to gather material for his story of the foster father of the Dionne quintuplets. Frazier Hunt's story brings out in strong relief the courage and self-sacrifice of The Little Doc in burying himself in such a humdrum futureless place as Callander. He certainly brought a lot of babies into the world to supply the lumber camps of Northern Ontario later with big husky habitants, and many's a night he left his warm bed at two o'clock in the morning and drove twenty or thirty miles with the mercury flirting with the lowest degrees in the mail order thermometers to give medical services for which he might never receive a nickle. He was even called to North Bay, the metropolis of the district, twelve miles away, one night, by a Toronto reporter who found a poor bush farmer wandering about the streets trying to find a doctor who would go out to his place and help his wife through her trouble. No doctor was to be had in North Bay according to Frazier Hunt's story, and "The Little Doc" had to take up other white men's burden and with the assistance of the Toronto reporter turned in a masterly maternity job. Callander was the last place in the world where a doctor could hope that anything unusual or advantageous might happen to him but that goes to show you never can tell, and one below zero morning Lady Luck knocked on Dr. Dafoe's door and he answered as usual, "yes, sure I'll go." The world knows Dr. Roy Dafoe, Physician Extraordinary to the famous five Dionne sisters, and the whole world flocks to his door even though it was in the wilderness yesterday and not far from the wilderness today. Much has been written of the doctor who saved the Dionne quintuplets but no finer story of his life, and sacrifice will ever be written than that of Frazier Hunt's.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

ONE CAUSE OF THE SO-CALLED CHRONIC APPENDIX SYMPTOMS

Most physicians agree that in cases of acute appendicitis—increased temperature and pulse rate, increase in white corpuscles of blood, tightening of the abdominal muscles—operation should be performed, and the earlier the better.

In cases of chronic appendicitis however there is not the same agreement as to operation, unfortunately. In many physicians have had cases where no improvement followed operation and some cases appeared definitely worse.

Many physicians are of the opinion that these attacks or "chronic appendicitis" are due to adhesions, that is the raw surface of two adjoining parts of the intestine have grown together, causing a narrowing of the intestine and a "pull" on the nerves of the region. The opening of the abdomen to correct this condition has not always given results, as new adhesions apparently form, and even if no adhesions form the symptoms continue.

What may be the explanation of many cases of this so-called chronic appendicitis—constant pain in appendix region—is given by Dr. W. A. Bigelow, Brandon, Manitoba, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, who states that the pain, colic, dragging, and other symptoms are due to fibrous bands —present at birth—which have fastened the last part of the small intestine and first part of the large intestine together instead of allowing them to remain free from one another as in the normal individual.

Dr. Bigelow reports the results of removing these bands in a series of cases of so-called "chronic appendix".

A questionnaire was sent out in January, 1937, to only those on whom the removal of these bands had been done elsewhere, previous to our operation for the same reason. Sixty-seven of the patients included in this report had received any relief whatever from the removal of the appendix itself. Only one question was asked. Only one patient completely relieved of your one-sided pain since removing these bands?" One hundred and forty-seven answers were received from a total number of 161, the number 136 reported cured and 11 reported not cured."

near the mouth of Canton river.

(The planes, according to Chinese advices, also surprised five Japanese bombers near Canton and brought down two of them. They were said to have made two raids on Sanchi Island.)

Reason For Bombing

A Japanese naval spokesman said Amoy University had been bombed because Chinese had built strong defence works on the university grounds. He said Amoy was being attacked because it was a centre of anti-Japanese activity as well as an important port of entry for Chinese munitions and supplies. He ascertained also that 30,000 Formosans who lived in Amoy had been "oppressed and maltreated by the Chinese."

Foreign military observers were incessantly doubtful that the Amoy attack was a preliminary to a south China offensive, because the Chinese are well prepared while the Japanese would have to use a large expeditionary force. About 30,000 Chinese troops were said to be at Amoy.

Seeking Base

It was believed likely the Japanese merely are seeking a base for intensified air attacks on the Canton railway in an effort to cut off Chinese military supplies.

Japanese naval guns continued to shell Chinese shore positions, supporting a landing party which a Japanese spokesman said was "strong enough to capture Amoy as well as some other places."

Japanese said they had captured the eastern half of Amoy Island and that fighting was in progress in the city, on the western half. Much of the city was said to be in flames.

A Japanese naval spokesman said every effort was being made to safeguard foreigners and foreign property. Amoy has a population of 300,000 and is one of China's finest harbors.

JAPAN'S DOWNFALL

A discussion of radio broadcasting also featured the swiftly-moving proceedings of the day's work.

Attacks on the foreign policy of Great Britain or other friendly nations will not be permitted on the network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Prime Minister Mackenzie King indicated.

Earlier Opposition made his statement while the House was considering the Corporation's broadcasting and overhauling the general act relating to radio in Canada. During the discussion, Dr. A. Church (Con. Toronto-Broadview) protested against radio attacks on foreign policy by "a man named Perkins in Winnipeg" and others "of his kind."

Address Requested

(In the course of testimony before the radio committee of the House of Commons, a request was made by Hon. Earl Lawson (Con. Vancouver North) that the address of a tabled.)

Some of the topics covered in radio broadcasts could not be touched by members in the House, the Toronto member said, because of the gravity of the international situation. He objected to attacks on British foreign policies and the upholding of Pan-Americanism. Canada today was in the same position as 100 years ago, dependent not on the Monroe doctrine but the British army and navy.

Sympathy In Sympathy

The Prime Minister said he was "very much in sympathy" with the Toronto members.

"I think at the present time when we are not discussing the actions of another parliament, being very careful not to mention another parliament, I, in practice should be following the precedent, the Prime Minister continued.

These were critical times. Even in ordinary times, the Canadian parliament would not criticize the parliament of another section of the empire. It was not for the Canadian parliament to say whether the Liberal, Conservative or Labor in power in Britain were right or wrong or interfere in the domestic affairs of another part of the empire.

"I do not think," he said, "one country should try to become critics of another parliament in another part of the world, particularly in times like these."

It will be an occasion long to be remembered by those who gave and by he who received. Unmarked by any vicious brilliance, true expression and honest, human sincerity, the complimentary, farewell banquet tendered Mr. Illsey by the citizens of Belleville and attended by the city's leading men in all walks of daily life and the professions, served only to express that regret at the loss of one so unfailing in service, but also rejoicing in good fortune of promotion and further shining success.

C. A. Cameron, Chairman.

"For it will be success that attends our departing friend from now on. We cannot conceive of our friend and counselor not attaining still greater pinnacle for which he may reach through the new possibilities which lie before him," prophesied Mr. C. A. Cameron, K.C., M.P., the chairman of the evening.

It was not an evening, an occasion of sadness and the loss of one who has found such a warm place in Belleville hearts, but rather one of rejoicing, too, in the good fortune of one who could so ably represent himself in a farther and perhaps more important field, further reminded the chairman.

Scanning the head table at which so many of the city's financial and business leaders were seated with other business men of Hamilton, Kingston, Trenton, Prince Edward County and Trading County, Cameron called attention to the crowded dining hall. Mr. Cameron called all "Friends of Gene Illsey!"

"Your very presence here indicates your feeling toward our guest of honor.

"It is only natural as we gather here to pay our respects and tribute to him that we go back to the time many of us first met Mr. Illsey," Mr. Cameron continued.

"Perhaps it was in 1929 that I first became acquainted with our honored guest. In that year two important banks formed an amalgamation, the Standard Bank and the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Almost coincident, an announcement was also made locally of the retirement of the late John Elliott.

Some Conjecture.

"We of Belleville here had to conjecture what type of man would be appointed to replace this valuable manager and the choice was left for the city and the district's interests. Owing to the peculiarities of the position, it was known that there was but one man in the service who could step in and fill this appointment to the satisfaction of the many with whom that bank and the previous one had traded. There was a large, confident clientele to deal after with the amalgamation.

"The name of E. V. Illsey meant nothing to me or some of the rest of us when it was first proposed, but we found, on investigation, that the name was well known in the city. He was remembered as a Standard Bank ledger keeper, then accountant. We were also informed that when Mr. Illsey came to us we would be getting one of the best bankers in the country. We found soon that all that had been said about him was true, because shortly after he did come here few of us who did not share in his confidence and advice.

Accepted Many Jobs.

"Mr. Illsey came and took up his life in Belleville, soon distinguishing himself by his acceptance of the did in this community, which he many jobs that seemingly were waiting for him to fill. He became interested in Rotary, in church work, in boys' work—many of us can cite personal instances of the loss which will be felt at the severance of this work in the city among the younger people.

"A month ago we were shocked to learn of his pending transfer. Many would have preferred to slip away quietly without having any fuss made over him, but many of us felt that it was necessary for us to have him say farewell in public.

"It has been well said this evening by Randy Burrows that the evening was not one for address, and to my mind it is but one of rejoicing in the good fortune that has come to our friend; a sense of thankfulness that we have been able to know him and work with him. That we are able to congratulate him on his ability which has won him promotion at head office and sent him to one of the largest banks in the Bank of Commerce system. We should take pride that we are able to send to Seattle a man who is a representative of the best in the citizenship, one who will reflect honor in the public life of any community. We are but a small group of the many who would be here if it were found it impossible through circumstances," added Mr. Cameron.

Many Telegrams.

At this point the chairman read letters and telegrams from those who had expressed their regret.

Mr. Arscott, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto, expressed his best wishes on the future success of Mr. Illsey.

Stuart Lees, Hamilton, who wired: "Extreme regret at non-attendance. Belleville losing great citizen. Miss him in Hamilton. Expect soon to see his name added to Roosevelt's select family. The financial pulse of the U.S.A. will soon be rightful."

Col. W. N. Ponton, Belleville, who wired: "Will certainly be with my fellow citizens in the spirit of goodwill and Godspeed to the parting guest. In this case farewell will certainly mean a great deal more for Mr. Illsey's welfare and his future career while we always watch with friendly pride. He is a pillar and column and a good right hand, and a hearty worthy of our best in Canada or out of it."

From Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, Brigadier, Canada: "Congratulations and best wishes for your future in Seattle, Mr. Illsey. We all trust you will be happy in your work."

Dr. Percy B. MacFarlane, Hamilton: "We have had the experience and are very glad good bye to Mr. Illsey after a few years' sojourn in our city and realize what a loss it is to those who have been associated with him. He has a unique ability to make for himself a place in the community and a friend for any length of time. We are pleased that he has received a much deserved promotion, but we regret that he is going out of Canada even for a few years. We will always have the hope that he will at some future time return to Hamilton where there is a very large place for him in the way of business, social and social that he made while here."

Messages From U.S.

From Isaac Black, New Britain, Conn.: "Wish you success this whole evening, and extend my best wishes for your future success and happiness."

From Hon. F. C. Hewburn, K.C., Hamilton: "Mr. Illsey has a wonderful personality, and has the ability of endearing himself with everyone with whom he comes in contact, and it is evident that he has made himself felt in Belleville as he made himself felt in Hamilton when he was here. We all admire a good citizen. I wish to join with Belleville in wishing Godspeed in his new activity."

From Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, who expressed regret at being unable to attend owing to the session of the Synod of the Diocese which was in session at the time, and from Col. E. A. Geen, for the same reason.

C. B. Parsons, of the American Hardware Corporation, New Britain, who extended his best wishes upon the success of Mr. Illsey in his new field.

From J. M. Hartwick of Quinte Milk Products, Wellington, Prince Edward County.

From Geo. T. Kimball of the American Hardware Corporation, New Britain, who joined in the expression of good will.

From Wing Commander A. E. Godfrey of the R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, from Dr. D. H. Ackerill, and others who all joined in expressions of loss felt at the departure of Mr. Illsey.

Among those introduced from the head table by Mr. Cameron were: Mr. James Leeming, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto; A. Sharpe, manager of the Brighton branch; Mr. Patterson of the Picton branch; Mr. Cook, manager of one of the Kingston branches; Mr. Scott, manager of the Trenton branch; H. T. S. Malcolmson, general manager of the T. & S. Trading Company, Kingston; Mr. Brown of the bank inspection staff, Toronto; Col. Hodgins, manager of one of the Kingston branches; Mr. R. H. Hunter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto bank, and Mr. Dredge of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Official Welcome Extended.

Mayor Bone, in extending his official courtesy on behalf of the city of Belleville, paid tribute to Mr. Illsey, as man Charles Cameron was "dared" to speak about taxes on this occasion.

But the mayor, marking his address with a touch of humor, also spoke from the common amenities of the occasion, and paid tribute to the worth of the departing bank manager, Mr. and Mrs. Illsey described as "a tower of strength, not only to the Bank of Commerce in this city, but to a host of Belleville people who will miss the manager greatly from a good citizen.

"People of this city have enjoyed the fruits of Mr. Illsey's wisdom and careful judgment over a period of years and have learned to appreciate Gene. 'Over the years which were to come,' said the mayor, 'I anticipate as a tower of strength, not only to the Bank of Commerce in this city, but to a host of Belleville people who will miss the manager greatly from a good citizen.

"On behalf of the city which I am proud to call my home, I extend the best wishes, and the hope that in your new sphere in Seattle you may be greater opportunities afforded. We are sorry to lose you in Belleville again and it will be a happy occasion to meet you again, Mr. Illsey. In the meantime I will point to say auf wiedersehen, 'til we meet again', than the common good-bye."

Warden Larkin Heard.

Warden Henry Larkin, representing the County of Hastings, declared that the county's close association with Mr. Illsey during the years past had given it the knowledge that in all circumstances the manager was "pleased most when he was able to work for the county's benefit. He has led us through many trying times," declared the warden. Congratulations in the success of the appointment and best wishes for future success were offered by Warden Larkin.

Mr. G. H. Stokes representing the Belleville Country Club, and speaking on behalf of the city golfers expressed some of the loss that would be felt with the removal of such a "good" golfer as Mr. Illsey.

"We'll miss Gene up there at the Country Club. Those are days we have played with him know that when he shot be nearly one shot straight down the fairway. But there were times when he did in the 'rough'. When he did it started to whistle, took the right club and then fairly shamed it out again right to the green. Whether in the rough or the fairway he always managed to get along.

"We wish Mr. Illsey and Mrs. Illsey and family every success in their new field. Godspeed, good luck and come back soon," added Mr. Stokes.

Speaks For Cheese Industry.

On behalf of the Belleville Cheese Board and all those connected with the cheese industry locally, Mr. W. R. McCreary expressed some of the loss that would be felt by this branch of local industry with the removal of Mr. Illsey.

"Many of you can little know or appreciate what "dependence the cheese industry has placed in Mr. Illsey, unless you were directly industry. With an annual turn over here of some four million dollars in this industry Mr. Illsey rendered a noble service to this agricultural trade.

"Integrity, courtesy and graciousness have marked his tenure of office here and has endeared him to the hearts of thousands of the district. He had the genuine advantage of some training of this could not have been possible.

"The bank has now offered a larger field for the exercise of his ability. He will grace this new appointment with fine dignity and constructiveness of purpose. To Mr. Illsey and to his family we can only wish the best of luck. Canada can feel proud to own Mr. Illsey as her own son. And now, sir, may you always feel that the Belleville Cheese Board will be at home always to you."

Mr. James Stewart, assistant general manager of the Bank of Commerce, Toronto, briefly declared he conveyed the best wishes of Mr. Arscott, general manager, and of the impression of regret at inability to attend the complimentary dinner.

"By your expression shown here this evening, the head office of the bank I represent made no mistake when it selected Mr. Illsey as your manager here," complimented Mr. Stewart. "Mr. Illsey has made not only a success of his appointment but has exceeded the hopes of head office in the job."

Mr. Stewart referred to the late Mr. Elliott, former manager, as once holding a job that was "hard to fill," and the same praise was being made, however, in naming Mr. Illsey to this office: we knew he had a big job on his hands and praise for this success have been confirmed by the fact he has been selected head for the Seattle appointment, we have no fear in that he will be good for the job. But we felt we could do a great deal for our neighbors in the south by appointing him there.

Mr. Illsey had a most flattering expression of opinion passed on him here this evening, and his going will be a big loss to Belleville, and that when Mr. Elliott retired. He was a man who had confidence in him and his ability. He has proved that he has been good for his new field he will make as great a success in the position as he has undoubtedly made in Belleville.

Quite Constructive.

"He has the nature of a banker whose abilities are increasingly rare in that he is and has been constructive in his efforts and in community affairs. It has been our duty to express to Mr. Illsey our appreciation of the work he has accomplished here and for the bank in Belleville during the past. We know that Belleville has the same regard for him as we have in head office. His going will put a big gap in us we've not be easily filled. Mr. Jewell, I do not envy you the responsibility of taking over this appointment, but here again we have no hesitation in introducing you as successor to Mr. Illsey. He is also getting a fine successor, and we can only hope that Belleville will extend the same kindness and co-operation that has been given your former manager," declared Mr. Stewart.

Mr. R. D. Arnold, K.C., M.P.P. for West Hastings, in extending his sincere tribute to Mr. Illsey on behalf of his constituents of the riding which he represents asked only for the hope that "good health would favor him in order to continue the good work through which further recognition would be made by the electors of this riding. Again I ask no further than that the invitation on the sign at the west city limits be followed, that you "Come Again Belleville", he added.

Representing many former friends and business associates in Hamilton, Mr. H. T. Malcolmson, general manager of the T. & S. Railway of Hamilton, and close friend of Mr. Illsey, brought best wishes also from the Hamilton Club. Mr. Herbert Pairman, Commissioner of Industries for that city.

Will Do the Work.

"Mr. Illsey is going south where sound financiers are evidently needed. And we have no doubt that he will be as successful there as he was in Hamilton and has been in Belleville" complimented Mr. Malcolmson.

"We can only wish him Godspeed. What has been Hamilton's loss has been Belleville's gain, and now what is Belleville's loss is Seattle's gain. We even entertain the hope that he may come back to us in Hamilton some day."

Mr. Bert Boyce, past president of the Belleville Rotary Club and past president of the Belleville Board of Commerce, speaking on behalf of these local organizations joined in the tributes expressed by previous speakers.

"No matter how distressing the circumstance, Inve always seems to have been good gain, and now what is Belleville's loss is Seattle's gain. We even entertain the hope that he may come back to us in Hamilton some day."

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. George Rowbotham, Belleville, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter Hilda, to Mr. Farley Sharpe of Wooler, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ned Sharpe, the marriage to take place early in June. m11-1t

Miss Nettie Mouck is spending two weeks in Sudbury the guest of her nephew, Mr. Harry Mouck, and Mrs. Mouck.

Mrs. C. A. Cameron entertained at a dinner at the Quinte's Hotel last evening in honor of Mrs. E. V. Tilley.

The Women of the Mouse, Belleville Chapter 435, motored to Peterborough for their district meeting held in that city yesterday. A happy welcome was accorded the visitors. Mrs. Robertson, President of the Ontario Association, and Mrs. Hungerford, Secretary, both of London, Ont., were the principal speakers of the day. The afternoon session adjourned at 5 o'clock, following the business a delicious banquet was served by the co-workers of Peterborough. The business of the Order was then resumed at 8 o'clock. Following the business session all enjoyed and the return journey to Belleville brought to a close a very happy day to those privileged to enjoy. Mrs. Ritch of the Belleville Chapter, was the bedspread donated by one of the Peterborough co-workers.

The name of Miss Margaret Carefoot of Belleville appeared in yesterday's Globe and Mail in the list of those winning scholarships at Queen's University. Miss Carefoot has won a scholarship in Arts valued at fifty dollars. Miss Carefoot is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. M. Carefoot, 218 Dufferin Avenue.

Weddings

KIDD—SIMPSON

Trenton, May 11 (Special)—The wedding took place at the bride's parents' home on Dundas street, Mear yesterday afternoon when Pauline Warren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Percy Simpson, Trenton, was joined in holy matrimony to John Edward Kidd, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. John Norman Kidd, of Trenton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George A. Campbell, minister of Grace United Church. The bride's sister, Miss Arabelle Simpson, acted as bridesmaid. The best man was Frank Bowerman, R.C.A.F. At a reception after the ceremony Mrs. and Mrs. John Kidd and Mrs. J. A. Simpson received. They were assisted by Misses Audrey Powers, Trenton, and Rose and Ella Kidd, Bowling, Mr. and Mrs. Kidd left by motor for Quebec and their honeymoon.

"Y" JOTTINGS

Thirteen local boys will attempt their fifth and final test in the Intermediate section of the Y.M.C.A. test in the Belleville Y.M.C.A. Swimming Tests in the Belleville Y pool next evening under the direction of Instructor Fred Hicken. The contestants are examined through the various stages of Canadian swimming tests and this evening are given their final examination to which the parents and general public are invited to attend.

The next step in their swimming activities starts in the "Life Saving Program" which culminates the aquatic swimming education.

Those trying the test tonight, will be—Ross Clare, Bill Pigden, Alan Argue, Wesley Johnson, Gordon Gardner, John Bradley, Bob Holland, Stanley Hagar, Blake Kerr, Gordon Griffin, Art Griffin, Jim McCaw and Marson Richardson. The public is cordially invited to witness the tests in the "Y" pool.

Two of the three opening Kiddy settings were postponed on account of rain on Tuesday evening, with the "Bat Busters" winning 14 to 3 over the Bluebirds in an abbreviated five innings game. Bill Wax called by Umpire Jack Bateman on account of rain, however. Tonight in the Juvenile series the Cubs meet the West Ends at Q.A.S. while at Q.V.S. the War Birds clash with the Lucky Strikes.

Mr. Hicken announced today that in the Juvenile series, with its lengthy schedule, all games postponed on account of rain will be played as four point games at the next meeting of the two clubs concerned. This decision was with the approval of the majority of the team captains and will be adopted this season.

Mrs. W. H. Finkle Re-elected Pres. Home and School Club

Queen Alexandra School Club Holds Annual Meeting

DELIGHTFUL CONCERT

At the annual meeting of the Home and School Club of Queen Alexandra School held yesterday afternoon, Mrs. W. H. Finkle was re-elected president. Mr. W. O. Anderson, principal of the school, who presided for the election and installed the officers, congratulated the club on its activities of the past year and the type of program given. He expressed good wishes for the continued success of the club. The list of officers presented by the chairman of the nominating committee, Miss Ivy Dickens, and adopted follows:

President—Mrs. W. H. Finkle.

First Vice-President—Mrs. R. Morden.

Second Vice-President—Mrs. S. D. Hagerman.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. S. J. Hibbard.

Corresponding—Mrs. R. Gibson.

Press Secretary—Mrs. C. E. Meyers.

Treasurer—Mrs. B. Beavis.

Pianist—Mrs. H. Hunter.

Auditors—Mrs. Mackenzie, Mrs. Hamilton.

Financial Convener—Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson.

Program Convener—Mrs. B. C. Baker.

Staff Representative—Miss MacPherson.

Executive—Mrs. R. Weller, Mrs. Wilson Bird, Mrs. H. Smith, Mrs. C. A. Cleaver.

Delightful Concert

The business part of the program was preceded by a delightful concert by children of the school and followed the singing of "O Canada" with Mrs. Ross Hunter presiding at the piano.

The welcome of the school was extended by Miss Dickens who explained that the program was designed to give everyone a glimpse of the work done in the school. An exhibit was on display at the back of the auditorium and all were invited to inspect it.

The first number was "A Peep into Fairyland" and was splendidly presented by the little ones from Miss Lochhart's class taught at Q.A.S. In a lovely fairyland scene of blossoms and greenery Princess Spring and her court, as Puck annually choosing a mortal for a day, to take the place of his long lost sister escorta Marion to the fairy haunts. A mischievous Snowman intent on dastroying the beauty of Spring is discovered by the court and driven off in quick and soon Marion awakes again in her nursery. The children gave a very engaging characterization and presented a pretty picture in their white organdies, the principal parts were taken by:

Marion—Elspeth Wishart.

Mother—Marilyn Sefton.

Puck—Harry Abbott.

Snowman—Barbara Jean Houston.

Princess Spring—Mary Lou Wishart.

Amusing Skit

Miss Barbara Anne Michael contributed an amusing chapter from the life of Mrs. Wiggs, entitled "Mrs. Wiggs and her Sunday School Class."

In "Safety First" by Miss McGuire's class, Princess Safety First, (Audrey Correll) and Witch Carelessness (Marion McKenna) clothed peasers-by who followed their edicts. At first it looked as though those of careless habits would outnumber their opponents but the teachings of Safety First prevailed. The presentation was very natural and interesting.

A boys' and girls' chorus singing "How is the Month of Maying", "Come Lassie and Lads" and the "Early One Morning" showed remarkable talent. The sweet voices of the children blended perfectly and reflected careful coaching by Miss Helen Fraser. Miss Phyllis Clemency was accompanist.

In a "Health play by Miss Hubbard on Good Health practices battle poor health observances and demonstrate Overweight (Carolyn Morden) and Underweight (Margaret Taylor) who can be as healthy as Normal Weight (Phyllis Trudale).

Dutch Dance

A Dutch dance by Joan Read, Victoria Ketcheson, Betty Holmes and Helen Davidson in quaint costumes, was an interesting part of the program.

Concluding the afternoon's entertainment was Fantasy, "Three Wishes" was given by Muriel Bird, Beryl Reid and Mary Martin. Granted three wishes, the simple folk waste them all in idle pleasures and are as ever when riches were within their grasp. But, undaunted they decide that this might be the better way after all. The three wishes can be had and they do. The proved themselves gifted performers and interpreted their parts with real understanding.

Mrs. Finkle expressed appreciation to the teachers and children responsible for the very fine program.

Mrs. Ralph Morden read the minutes of the last meeting and Mrs. S. Hagerman the financial statement. The club has received donations during the year and the Home and School Charter.

During the business meeting the minutes were read by Mrs. Ralph Morden and the financial statement presented by Mrs. S. D. Hagerman.

Following the election of officers, Mrs. Finkle sincerely thanked the officers and members for their splendid work during the past year and with them, looked forward to another year of success.

The prize for attendance was won by Miss MacPherson's room.

At the conclusion of the meeting the members inspected the fine display of classroom projects and work, writing and collections, attractively placed at the entrance to the Hall.

CANNIFTON W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of Canniflon W. M. S. was held in the Sunday School room with the president, Mrs. Chas. Mills, in charge of the devotional.

All joined in singing hymn 258 which was followed by prayer by Mrs. Merrick and Mrs. Black.

The program was then taken by Mrs. S. Bird and Mrs. Harry Brenton.

Hymn 15 was sung and a reading by Mrs. H. Empson was given.

Mrs. Gerald Brenton then gave a chapter from the Study Book. Mrs. Harford Twiddy and Mrs. Chas. Mills sang a duet. Mrs. H. Empson recited the poem, "Giving."

All joined in singing hymn 393. Mrs. S. Bird closed the meeting with prayer.

Economic conditions in Czechoslovakia greatly improved last year with many lines of activities approaching the 1929 level.

Hospital Administrator Asks Cooperation of All Citizens

Gordon Friesen, Special Speaker at Kiwanis Luncheon

LARGE ATTENDANCE

A cordial invitation was extended to the Kiwanis Service Club to visit the hospital on Hospital Day, Thursday next by Gordon Friesen, hospital administrator of the Belleville General Hospital, who was guest speaker at the luncheon and who in a brief, concise and entertaining way gave the members an insight into the workings of a modern hospital. Mr. Friesen has taken a special course in this line of work and is most conversant with his subject and the duties involved and can impart to his listeners a word description of this fascinating work. The speaker extended an invitation to all in the community to boost the community hospital and to give cooperation to the Board of Management and the staff.

Seeks Cooperation

"We are looking to the active service clubs such as we, for help, not necessarily financially but co-operatively" said Mr. Friesen after being introduced by Mackenzie Robertson, Chairman of the Board of Management. "We invite constructive criticism" said the speaker, "and only with your help can we put the hospital in the place that it deserved in the community as we feel the hospital is the most important institution next to the Church, in the community. A mule cannot pull when he's kicking and he cannot do others he pulls so let's all pull together and make your community hospital the best in the province."

In introducing the speaker of the day, Mr. Robertson stated that he believed the hospital Board has secured the services of one of the best administrators in the country as he came highly recommended and had worked under one of the best administrators in Canada. The speaker pointed out that the hospital was owned by the W. C. A. and not by the city as was generally supposed, and that the Board was very anxious to make of the hospital a fine institution in every respect. He also extended an invitation for any and all to visit the hospital at any time and especially on Thursday which is being celebrated nationally as "Hospital Day." At that time the whole institution will be open and guides will be on hand to explain in detail the workings of the institution.

Functions Outlined

Continuing Mr. Friesen said: It is my intention today to give you a general idea of the functions of your Community Hospital. In the first place at the head of the hospital organization we have the governing body. The members of the Board of Governors are appointed by the Women's Christian Association as they are the owners of the hospital. The duties and responsibilities of the governing body are defined as follows by the American Hospital Association:

To determine the policy of the institution with relation to community needs.

To see that proper professional standards are maintained in the work of the sick.

To coordinate the professional interests of the staffs, with the administrative, financial and community needs.

To direct the administrative personnel of the hospital in order to secure the best possible service.

To provide adequate financing, such as by securing donations to come and so to enforcing business-like methods of expenditure.

The governing body must always be regarded as the supreme authority in the hospital, to which the Director, the Medical Staff, the nursing staff and all other organizations are directly or indirectly responsible. The governing body delegates the actual administration of the hospital to the chief executive officer, the Superintendent, who is responsible to the governing body alone. The Administrator is actually the liason officer between the governing body and the different parts of the organization. It is his duty to see that policies laid down are followed. This plan of organization is generally accepted all over Canada and the United States. The chief executive officer obviously delegates certain duties to the different department heads who in turn delegate the work to the employees in the departments.

Trained Heads for Depts.

The Director or Administrator cannot be expected to have the special training necessary for the detailed management of any of these departments, and it is for that reason, that the responsibility is delegated to trained heads working under him. He should however have sufficient knowledge of each to allow him to supervise and know that the department is efficiently managed. The organization is divided up as follows:

Administration — Accounting and Business.

Professional Service — Medical and Surgical Service; Pharmacy; Radiology; Pathology; Surgery; Medical Records and Library; Nursing Service and Education.

Property — House-keeping; Laundry; Plant Operation; Maintenance of Buildings and Grounds.

Dietary.

Nurses' Residence.

Now I should like to give you a picture of the average day at the Belleville General Hospital.

8 operations, 1 delivery, 8 X-ray examinations, 10 admissions, 10 discharges, 510 meals served, 2 1-2 tons of coal used, 450 pieces of laundry, 90 lbs. meat, 90 to 100 quarts of milk.

Kiwanian appreciation for the address was expressed by Biddie Dickson.

The meeting was presided over by Eddie Logan, immediate past president of the club with "Dick" Hennessy as song leader and Ross Oliver as assistant-sirius. It was announced that the Belleville Club had again won the attendance shield for the district for the month of April and President Albert Boynton through Eddie Logan expressed his thanks for the wonderful cooperation that was being given by Frank Hamilton, secretary on the campaign now being carried on by the club, while George Lee explained that the all team was ready for action and a fine season is anticipated. James Barnes also told of the progress made in the Kiwanis Boys' Band and hoped that the members would assist in supporting the band on the two nights on which games are scheduled. The visitors to the club were warmly welcomed by the chairman.

BABY'S CRY IS NOT ALWAYS TEMPER

DISTINGUISH between your baby's cry of pain and cry of temper. When it's pain you'll want Baby's Own Tablets at once. Mrs. May Mundy, of Toronto, finds they work every time:

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

1—Several weeks ago a very dear woman friend visited in my home. She, a woman approximately forty years of age, was accompanied by a man friend approximately fifty-five years of age. I am a girl in my early twenties. Now, I, knowing I know very well, introduced her escort to me, and I especially noted that he made no gesture to offer his hand to me, so quite naturally, I did not offer mine. Should I have to my escort, I am certain that I should have had to offer my hand to her. Who is correct? 2—Please tell me also whether it is the woman's place to speak first, when two friends meet on the street? I believe it is the man's place to lift his hat or tip his hat, but my mother insists that the woman should be the first one to bow of recognition. Is she correct? 3—You have, in your mother an excellent guide on the subject of woman's etiquette . . . for, in both cases, your mother is correct. Use your judgment.

H.

1—The usual casual introduction of a man to a woman, the woman does not offer to shake hands. However, if she wishes to shake hands, it is she who offers her hand to him. The man merely bows, and this man apparently knew this . . . he waits for a woman to offer her hand to him, to shake.

2—It is the woman's privilege to bow first. The "seconding" of your acknowledgment.

3—It is the woman's privilege to bow first, as the hostess usually is therefore she is the one who bows first. As a matter of fact, usually especially with people who know each other well, the acknowledgment is an acquaintance is simultaneous. If there is any doubt about the recognition, the woman bows first.

Announcing Approaching Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am to be married this summer. Should I have a party in my home in honor of my approaching marriage with a party in your home announcing my approaching marriage with a party in my home announcing my approaching marriage and my parents announce it?

2—How soon before the marriage should the announcement be made?

Patricia

1—It would be thoroughly proper to have a party in your home announcing your approaching marriage with a party in your home announcing your approaching marriage and that there might be many reasons why you would like to do this, even though your parents do not be taken place there.

2—There is no regulation about this . . . It depends entirely on your own preference and convenience.

Business Woman's Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly advise me as to the correct way for an unmarried business woman to sign a letter to her name on impersonal business matters.

H.

An unmarried woman executive in a firm would sign her name to business letters like this:

(Miss) Mary Warburton

She may, if she chooses, have her position . . . Secretary, for instance . . . typed underneath her signature. But she does not put (Miss) sign a formal name in parentheses, but she needn't tell my customers how dreadful they look in their hats and suggest something different, and other critiques their children coming into the store on skates, and she'll tell some old dowager of a woman not to have a second piece of pastry because it's fat enough already. I've suggested that she doesn't come into the store, but she says she gets a thrill out of it.

Unfortunate

Your wife has never heard that grand old platitude that more flies are caught with sugar than with vinegar, and if we still worked motions as in our grandmother's day, I'd suggest you present her with one displaying that sentiment.

Tell her that she's ruining your business with her frankness, and that she remains away from the tea room. Doubtless we'd all get a thrill out of expressing ourselves about modern hats, but sensible people don't rush in with a greater expression than the angels.

Claims He Loves Her, But is Un-

Genuine affection is hard to discuss, but if you continue to bachor doubts, better watch your step and wait.

More Flies Caught With Molasses Than Vinegar

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I had a very successfully confectionery and tea room until about two years ago when I was married. My wife is a very pretty and attractive woman—but she has the most unfortunate habit of telling people exactly what she thinks of them, whether her advice is solicited or not.

Some I know women's hats are crazily unbecoming as well as ugly, but she needn't tell my customers how dreadful they look in their hats and suggest something different, and other critiques their children coming into the store on skates, and she'll tell some old dowager of a woman not to have a second piece of pastry because it's fat enough already. I've suggested that she doesn't come into the store, but she says she gets a thrill out of it.

Unfortunate

Your wife has never heard that grand old platitude that more flies are caught with sugar than with vinegar, and if we still worked motions as in our grandmother's day, I'd suggest you present her with one displaying that sentiment.

Claims He Loves Her, But is Un-

faithful

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband claims he loves me, but he is unfaithful to me whenever he gets a chance. I have never done anything to cause this, and I'm getting sick and tired of it. I don't want to break up my home, but I feel if he continues to be untrue to me I shall have to do so.

He is very popular and has his conduct brings, because all the friends and neighbors know of his infidelities. I've tried being him in a nice way that he is hurting me, but I've tried every other way to keep his affection. He promises, but never behaves any better.

Connie

When a wife finds herself in the situation you describe, she has got to make some leading question to herself, questions that no one else can answer. Do you get more happiness out of sharing your husband with someone else than you get out of you broke up your home and left him?

NERVOUS?

Do you feel so nervous you want to scream? Are you cross and irritable? Do you sound like a nagging wife?

If that is your condition, you need LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND. It often helps nervous condition by relieving periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how it helps in "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has distinction on the system, thus helping the discomforts from the functional disturbances peculiar to women.

Would Like to Send Girl's Mother Flowers

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are not engaged but I believe we're headed that way. Her mother has a birthday in a few weeks and I would like to send her some flowers, if it won't be the proper thing to do.

Hopeful

It would be very courteous and tactful for you to send some flowers to the young lady's mother on her birthday. It's good action as a way to get on the right side of the mothers, who none is headed that way.

Does She Love Me or My Money?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

It seems to me, after twenty-one years of single-blessedness, that I have at last met the girl of my dreams. But I'm harboring doubts as to whether she loves me or my money. Then again, it may be because I'm not the type of well-meaning friends who are trying to part us, as in their eyes she is not worthy of me.

What's the best way to ascertain her true feelings in regard to me?

None-too-Sure

Does she try to make you spend money? Does she suggest going to expensive restaurants, when you take her to dinner? Does she insinuate that she prefers 'orchestra seats at the theatre rather than the movies? These are so many material straws, which show how the wind blows. . .

Do her eyes brighten when you come? Can she tell your footsteps?

"Did you say Paradol?"

"Oh, yes, I always use Paradol and you know that I do not miss many engagements."

Relief comes quickly and lasts longer when you use Paradol and you feel fine. No disagreeable after effects, no interference with digestion. Paradol is new, up-to-date—different. Try for any kind of pain and you will appreciate it.

AT THE BELLE

"Jezebel"

In 1936 Bette Davis received the Motion Picture Academy Award for the best screen performance of the year, she modestly conceded in addition that a star can receive. She also said that it was "dangerous." And now, in 1938, it has very much as though she will again be nominated for her performance in "Jezebel", the drama of the South screen until Friday, matinee daily.

Quoting Ed Sullivan, movie columnist, "Jezebel" is the story of Bette Davis, in 'Jezebel' is a good girl who makes the mistake of being —she's terrific." Sullivan is only one of the country's leading critics who have nominated Bette as their candidate for the honor.

She plays the part of Julie, a completely spoiled and self-centered young socialite of the southern city. She is given the same name as the notorious wicked woman of Biblical lore from whom she defies all the traditions of the place and age. She dances, she mocks, she toys with men's hearts, and her greatest pleasure lies in having men fight over her. Bette's portrayal is said to be magnificent by all the previewers, and the screen public knows that no actress is quite so capable at playing heartless flirts as the dynamic Miss Davis. With her in the cast are George Brent, Henry Fonda, Margaret Lindsay, Fay Bainter, Donald Crisp, Richard Cromwell and a host of many famous players. William Tyler is responsible for the notable direction.

JUSTICE HOLDS AGREEMENT GOOD

Will Not Allow it to be Set Aside by Evidence

"You people have been very foolish to get into this law suit. It is perfectly absurd to call it a complicated affair as a good bookkeeper could straighten it out in at least two days." Mr. Justice Godfrey today told the principals in the twenty-hour action now being heard in the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court in session in Belleville.

"This is the type of case that shows the necessity of putting agreements in writing. I am going to hold that this written agreement produced is good and will not allow it to be set aside by evidence. You cannot change by parol a written agreement," continued His Lordship.

The cross-examination of the defendant, Ivey, took place this afternoon and the decision in the matter is not looked for until late this afternoon.

The defendant Ivey and the plaintiff, Inwood, entered into an agreement contract it was stated whereby the defendant was to endeavor to secure the purchase of cedar poles and act as salesman while the plaintiff was to assist in securing and shipping the poles both men to share profits on a fifty cent basis.

The defendant claimed that plaintiff misrepresented the number of poles available for sale, and this was his agreement. Plaintiff claims no breach of contract and wants his share of the profits.

The materials for $1000 was offered by defendant against plaintiff's failure to supply the number of poles guaranteed by him.

The first witness appeared for the plaintiff, while Charles A. Thompson took the witness stand.

Undergoing a grilling examination for three hours his evidence in-Inwood, plaintiff told the court of incidents leading up to and subsequent to the formation of the contract. He had met defendant in the early part of 1937 and on the invitation to "get together and make money" had entered into partnership.

"I told the defendant I could get 1,000 poles if he would finance the scheme as I had no money to put into it," he stated.

He had refused to sign a promissory note for $500 when he had agreed a joint one with defendant to cover cheques issued by the latter. There followed an oral agreement between them, he told the court.

No Profits Received

Witness had not received any part of the profits of the partnership, and had been refused an accounting by defendant after the demanding one on several occasions. He had not received any share of the profits until a late date because he knew defendant's cheques were being returned and he did not wish to draw money that could go back into the account, to help finance the business.

Later discussing a share of the profits, $100 to be exact, defendant had told him that "it was impossible for him to pay it as it was an agreement as it was all onesided."

"He offered me $200 at one time but I refused and asked for an accounting. He told me to give him the $200 I would have to take less later on. I told him he would hear from my solicitor," he informed the court.

He had furnished all transportation, horse and cutter in the winter and his own automobile in the spring witness stated.

"On one occasion it cost me fifteen dollars to get my horse and cutter," he added.

Asked by the Bench as to the approximate number of poles purchased witness stated "he thought in the vicinity of 5,000." He also assisted in 'scaling' them all," he stated.

Statements Corroborated

Mrs. Alfred Inwood, wife of plaintiff Linwood, two of the nine witnesses called on resumption of proceedings after luncheon recess, corroborated plaintiff's statements as per agreed negotiations before and during the signing of contract. Albert Crooks, Percy Reynolds, Leitze and Russell Aide testified to the sale of poles to the defendant.

Edward White, called to the stand by Mr. Nourse, stated that he had given plaintiff a receipt for five dollars but had received no money. "I did it to help him out, providing it did not get Mr. Ivey in trouble," witness stated he told plaintiff.

A. E. Ivey, called to the stand yesterday afternoon by Mr. Payne told the court that "it was distinctly understood that the number of poles purchased was to be in the neighborhood of 1,000. Plaintiff had told him prior to the contract that he had paid deposits on the poles and could guarantee 800 more. "While I agreed to finance initial payments Inwood knew that he would be able to assist in the financing," defendant told the court. Monies derived from the business would be used in part financing. It was agreed prior to the signing of contract, witness added.

Defendant claimed that they contracted several people and purchased poles but these were not among the 800 poles Inwood contacted nor those to whom he claimed he had paid a deposit for poles. "We had apparently gone into a new district and it was evident, that we could purchase more poles than I could finance," he said.

"They discussed a new verbal agreement," it was brought out in evidence, "on their return."

Would Have Money

"Inwood told me he would have at a later date considerable money from the Morgan Lumber Co. of Toronto from which he was purchasing agent," witness testified. Late decision resulted in the decision that if I returned to Port Dover and secured further finances for a while longer the business could be made a success. Inwood would endeavour to secure his commission from the lumber company to help with the final payments. He further agreed to lose profits, if any, in the business, Inwoods' duties were to help scale the poles arrange for truck and transports and take charge of loading poles," witness stated.

Witness admitted signing the "contract" with plaintiff, and being in the homes of Wanamaker and John Inwood. He had told plaintiff that his ability to finance the scheme would be fully taken up in the purchase of 1,000 poles already they run to large sizes. "Prices for poles ran from $3 upwards as high as seven and eight dollars each," witness declared.

Considerable discussion took place at this point between the Bench and counsel regarding the correct interpretation of the words 'more or less' as appearing in the contract. "A lumber contract is a gamblers contract," Mr. Nourse contended. "The words 'more or less' as implied mean an unlimited quantity."

"In a purely mercantile or business sense, the words mean a little above or below the quantity stipulated," argued His Lordship.

WEGRESS, BEING TOO LARGE, ESCAPES JAIL

Evansville, Ind., May 11 (AP)—Mrs. Emma McGlocklin, octogenarian was ordered into the Knox County officers' automobile for a trip to jail on charges of illegal possession of liquor.

"I can't get in," she protested.

But she was shoved in before the deputies could stop her.

Then the door was closed and the automobile moved. Now the woman sits free, in the next sheriff's office, while the engine is cooled.

GOLF FACTS

NUMBER 9

Golfers seem to be specialists at heart. Most of them insist upon developing their skill with certain clubs for some reason or other. Perhaps this trend is due to the early success of these players, have with some clubs.

For example, you can do exceptionally well with a No. 8 iron when it comes to hitting the ball and having it land on the green with little or no roll. Getting along so well with this club in one spot soon leads you to try it for longer distances, or trickier lies. The result is that you use the iron for shots that should be played with a No. 5, 6 or 7 iron. And in using the more lofted club for too much distance you are actually changing your swing to suit this abnormal practice.

The change makes your swing worse, never better. It is all right to have confidence in certain clubs but it is not right to let this confidence lead to bad practices. You should try to play all clubs equally well and you will be able to when you learn that such a result depends on what success you have with your swing as a whole.

Work on the fundamentals of your swing and you will have no need to fear some of the spots on the course which are forever proving too much of an obstacle for you.

Goodwin Rosen Making Good

Toronto Born Outfielder With Brooklyn Now Hitting .368

Chicago, May 11—(CP)— Amid increasing signs that Brooklyn Dodgers may yet dispose of Van Lingle Mungo, their fireball pitcher, it seemed a dead cinch today that Manager Burleigh Grimes would adopt as soon part with his eye teeth as loose Goodwin Rosen his Toronto-born outfielder.

Rolling Bolly's team appear to be fighting in the lower National League brackets but "Goody" is one Dodger definitely making progress. A while back he was just another player, dropping in and out of the lineup but now he's no "hot" that Grimes finds it difficult to return him to the bench.

Today, as the Brooklyns move into Chicago after a St. Louis stand, Rosen shows a neat .368 batting average, best in the league after Ducky Medwick of St. Louis who, with .417 is quite a hitter to rank behind.

Yesterday the young Jewish centre fielder, termed the best defensive outfielder on the Dodgers, checked in with three hits in five trips, and for a string to eight successive knocks before being rolled out in the fourth inning.

Giants Breezing Along with Four and One Half Game Lead By Virtue of Five to One Win

Jo-Jo Moore Proves to be Most Versatile Member of League

SENATORS WIN

Increase Their Lead in American Loop to One Full Game

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

After a good pitching staff and a couple of good sluggers down in the "clean-up" spot, one of the most valuable assets a ball club can have is a good lead-off man. And there you have another reason for the success of New York Giants, who are breezing along with a 4½ game lead in the National League.

In Joe Moore, the Giants have an outfielder who is about as adept at getting on base and stirring up trouble as anyone in the circuit. He's hitting a cool .356 now with 31 hits and 16 bases-on-balls and Jim Ripple, Mel Ott and Hank Leiber down in the "meat" of the lineup can't help but brought him home.

He provided the hitting thunder yesterday and Harry Gumbert was equally successful on the pitching mound as the Giants whipped the second-place Chicago Cubs for the second time 5-1.

Jo-Jo made four hits, twice when he was leading off. He opened the game with a single and before the inning was over the Giants had three runs and Bill Lee, Chicago's starting flinger, was taking a shower. Moore drove in another tally when the Giants completed their scoring off Charley Root in the sixth.

Double Plays Help

Gumbert, marking up his fourth victory in five starts, limited the Cubs to five singles although he narrowly escaped trouble in the first two innings with the aid of Giant double plays.

Brooklyn Dodgers also found the value of good lead-off hitting as they belted over St. Louis Cardinals, 3-0, opponents of the league leaders 18-2. Goody Rosen, the Toronto boy recently promoted to the No. 1 spot, connected with three hits, two in five attempts, scored one run and drove in one as he boosted his average to .368. At that his hitting was overshadowed by Ernie Koy, who made two singles and two doubles in five times up.

Senators Increase Lead

Although Washington's Senators increased their American League lead to a full game by defeating St. Louis Browns 5-4 and Cincinnati Reds belted over the Phillies 7-3, these games might as well have been called ties like four others were from the front-office viewpoint. Only about 3,000 customers turned out at Washington and 1,133 at Cincinnati. The St. Louis attendance was 1,610.

The Senators just did damage to streak's third winning streak to ten, straight, scoring three runs to win after two were out in the eighth. The Reds saved up their victory with a three-run seventh as

DUGAS OF ROYALS CARRYING TEAM WITH HIS HITTING

"Hard Luck Harry" of Baseball Making Great Comeback

ILL ALL WINTER

By The Associated Press

Gus Dugas, one of the real "hard luck Harrys" of baseball is on the way back and he's crusading Montreal Royals along with him.

Dugas' hitting had a lot to do with the Royals 8-4 win over Jersey City Giants yesterday for their fourth straight. The funny part is last fall no one thought he'd ever play ball much less top flight baseball, again.

When he lost three teeth and developed a lung in a crushing Montgomery midway through last season the ball players gave up on Leftty as they call him at home in Tuscville, Conn. But Leftty had gone through this before. He broke a leg with the Pirates in 1934, an accident which helped cost him a berth to Cincinnati, so a little thing like a collapsed lung wasn't going to lodge him back.

He got in shape during the winter playing baseball in all of all things, and reported 14 pounds over regular playing weight. Monday he made it three straight hits, added a home run that broke a 4-4 tie in the ninth. Yesterday in the league's only game he belted out other homer and added two doubles to lead the Montreals to a victory with ease, can now look at a ball player the same way. It has had time, for two days now the engagements between the Royals and the fading Jersey City Giants have been the only games. Bad weather halted Newark at Toronto, Syracuse at Rochester and Baltimore at Buffalo, yesterday.

EDMONTON GRADS ARE STILL WINNING

Defend World Title Against Chicago All-Stars in First Game

Edmonton, May 11 (CP)—Edmonton Grads were off to a good start today in their first 1938 defence of the Underwood Challenge Trophy and the International Women's Basketball Championship they have held since 1923.

Grads stayed off a gallant closing rally of Chicago All-Stars here last night to win 46-33 in the first game of the best-of-five series. They play again tomorrow night, the third game Saturday and the others, if necessary, on dates to be decided later.

Seven points behind at the start of the fourth quarter because of a slow start, the Chicagoans twice fought to within a point of Grads at 32-31 and 34-33 but Grads closed with a rush to win.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Harry Gumbert, Giants—Turned Cubs with five hits, all singles, and clouted two himself in 5-1 defeat of Chicagoans.

Dusty Cooke, Reds—Got four hits, two of them doubles, and batted in trips to plate to lead way in 7-3 trimming of Phillies.

Ernie Koy and Luke Hamlin, Dodgers—Koy banged out two doubles and two singles, while Hamlin turned back Cardinals, 10-2, on seven hits.

New York, May 11 —(AP)—There's been a growing suspicion lately that the National League has not even a fair one during the winter and supplied its boys with a hopped-up ball.

They are supposed to have taken some of the rabbit out of the official pellet and to have made things easier for their pitchers by adding a strand to the latex. Yet all the evidence has been to the contrary. The batters have been knocking home-runs like they never knocked them before, and such a veteran flinger as Carl Hubbell of the Giants has complained that the ball is coming back at him so fast he doesn't have a decent opportunity to duck. King Carl already has been cracked on the ankle by a sharply hit ball, and his teammate Hal Schumacher caught one in the groin the other day. Hub says it's the fastest thing he's faced since 1929, and Manager Bill Terry of the Giants caught on so quick that he's dropped his old bunting game and ordered his lads to sock the apple.

Up until two days ago the National League rivals in total home-runs were the Cubs and Giants and Chicago Cubs are ahead of them all in this, leading the league with seven—they have accounted for approximately 40 per cent of all the circuit's four-baggers.

Ford Frick, President of the National League, was asked if something hadn't possibly made a mistake about the ball's voltage. He declined to be quizzed about it as the next one. "All I can figure is that pitchers are a new bunch of sluggers this year," he ventured. "They do look like the same mound corps don't they? But I guess they're just hitting better—or maybe our pitchers aren't so good.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

Just when we thought we had the Bay of Quinte League ship steaming into clear water and fine sailing, one of the crew fell overboard and now we have only fifteen sailors aboard. Belleville, Picton and Napanee. Yesterday the B. of Q. A.F. "Flyers" announced that it would be impossible to sponsor baseball at the Air Station this year, at least not in the O.B.A. Equipment for two teams has already been purchased and inter-unit baseball will be carried on during 1938, with hopes of the R.C.A.F. getting into outside competitive baseball another year. After an established league a little more firmly, we hope to be able to engage in several exhibition games and thereby test our relative strength on the diamond," assured Tommy Lawrence as he was greeted the forced Flyers' move yesterday.

Although the remaining three clubs of the Bay of Quinte loop regret the move made by the Flyers, Belleville will benefit somewhat from the Flyers' withdrawal from the league as players at the Air Force, desirous of playing baseball will be available for the Belleville and Bay of Quinte moguls immediately contacted. Ollie Stevens, sports director at the Kingston Locomotive Company A.C., says he would like age sought early into the Bay of Quinte League today and invited the Flyers to join the circuit to assume the vacancy left by the R.C.A.F. The local ball management feel the decision of the Flyers is a mourning in disguise, although it will cost more to include Kingston. "We'll be able to pick up a couple of good players at the Air Force to bolster our team," commented chairman Clapp today.

Some years ago the C.L.C.A.C. of Kingston boasted of a strong intermediate ball club, and Belleville Players as Lonnie Purvis, Dickie Spoor and several others. They've played with the Ponies. If Kingston is accepted into the Bay of Quinte, they will have to arrange with the Flyers' allotted schedule, namely that club will have to open the season on Victoria Day. In the meantime the local Intermediates will practice tri-weekly, swinging into action this evening at the Fair Grounds.

Before leaving the matter we feel the fans should know that Napanee Lions Tommy Lawrence endeavoured to his utmost to have baseball placed on the R.C.A.F. sports agenda for the season but difficulties over which he had no control prevented matters. In the meantime Tommy is championing inter-unit ball in hopes that the Flyers may some day be to baseball what they are to hockey.

"Tip" Turmon, well known Tweed athlete, is soon to take up residence in Belleville. "Tip" is being moved into Belleville through the Bank of Montreal, with whom he is employed. The news of Turmon's migration from Tweed is one we city schools should be met with acknowledgement. He excelled at hockey, baseball, softball and tennis, having been one of Tweed's outstanding players for some years. Tweed's loss is Belleville's gain. At the time he left, Ernie Tammen, former M.P. for this district, was coaching Tweed with the champion Point Anne squad in 1937.

While on the subject of softball we understand the National Grocers' entry into the local softball league has a strong looking staff, including George Jenkinson, "Freddie Jo-Jo" Vaill, a newcomer who possesses plenty of speed and Gordon Robeson, former Queen's basketball Roundsman, whose early season efforts off the hilltop have been highly commendable. Just what they are going to use for backstop is a problem. Jenkinson is labouring on the hilltop. With the softball season rapidly approaching the various local clubs are becoming slightly jittery, although nothing has as yet been done. Manager Janeane entry since they affiliated. It would be a good starter runs season so beware of Napanee youse softballers

Do you remember when Lefty Grove threw with Baltimore in the International Baseball League and Toronto Maple Leafs won with three hits and blanked them 1-0? Toronto 16 years ago today, Grove went to Philadelphia Athletics for a reported $100,000 in 1925 and nine years later was traded to Boston Red Sox.

Local wrestling promoters banged up on us this morning all thrilled and excited. We've signed Scotty McDougall to meet Count Zarnoff here Friday night," they panted. Count Zarnoff walked out on the last assignment, we believe he will keep this engagement, thereby assuring the local wrestling clientele of a bout. Scotty missed last week. Zarnoff, the bald barrel-chested White Russian, wrestled his way into the finals of the local tourney two weeks ago and many are anxious to see him versus the perennial Scotty McDougall.

Two local trundlers Les Shiels and Dr. Cumming, won the doubles in the recent bowling tournament held at Peterboro. They rolled a combined score of 1071, incidentally the Deacon of Sports Writers' team, representing Recreation Alleys and Belleville placed third in the Central Ontario tourney. The scores hung up by Shiels and Cameron are exceptionally fine.

"Scub" Barrett ran his junior ballsters pell-mell at the Fair Grounds last night, the Kiwanis Kubs being supplemented by a couple of Kids from Napanee. Scub is still one jump ahead of the rest of the kids here, but there is still plenty of time for more. They practice again (Thursday).

COUNT ZARYNOFF SURE TO APPEAR

Excellent Card Arranged For Wrestling Show at Arena

There may be such a thing as one of the grunt and grab fraternity not having any emotions in the ring, but if Count Zarnyoff, White Russky grappler, he who has as much stomach on his cranium as a cue ball, and is as slippery as last week's salary, is any criterion, then the genus of the grimacial pastime are at least a little bit human.

For with almost tears in his eyes, the well-built son of the steppes, says uncle to nome of them, made profuse apologies regarding his inability to perform before Belleville rassiln fandom last week, and claims in all sincerity that it was through no fault of his own.

And just to show that the Russian heart is in the same spot and bigger than that of a horse, the clean cut laddie from the land of caviar and vodka stated that when he appears here on Friday night against the dour Scot, MacDougall, the tartans of Bonnie Scotland will cry out in protest at the treatment of their favorite wrestling son.

The Count, who has stated definitely that he will appear here at the Hume Arena is one of the few grunt and groan boys in the business that is a drawing card performance in big is just appearances here when the playdills of the large crowd present. He meets Scotty MacDougall, another favorite of the matches and the outcome should be one of the outstanding bouts of the season.

Custer's last stand may get a modern version in the semi-final when that dusky villain of the mat Chief Lynx, tangles, scowls, stories and holds with the skilled mat wizard of Italia, Mike Dominic. The Chief is always good for a few touches of showmanship, be it good or bad, and if the Italian hero of the local rollers, rumbles is also unorthodox scalping methods then the fireworks will fly. And vice versa.

Otto Von Berg, tosounds like a kick from the Rhine on the Rhine; another Teuton mat artist will meet Scotty McKeown in the preliminary. This should be one of the fastest curtain-raisers of the current season as both boys come here with reputations of being clever fast-moving wrestlers. The spice of the program will be seen in the appearance of Jackie Potter, popular Toronto referee, who will be the third man in the ring.

and he will be sure to pass his EXAMS

SAY to him:—"Son, I know you want a C.C.M. Bicycle. I was going to reward you with one if you passed your midsummer exams. I'm going to be a good sport and buy you one right away so that you'll have all the extra time between now and midsummer to enjoy it. But I'll expect you to prove you are a good sport, too, by studying hard and passing with good results. If you fail you will have to take the bicycle back to the dealer."

The C.C.M. Company and the C.C.M. dealer will back you up in this offer, dad. They will allow you the full price you paid for the C.C.M. if your boy (or your girl) fails to pass at midsummer. (Claim must be made within one week of the announcement of the results, please.) But he will not let you down. When your boy says he will do a thing he will do it.

This year's C.C.M.'s set the pace in style, beauty and easy running. With working parts of specially hardened steel, machined to hairline accuracy, they run with marvelous quietness and smoothness. To pedal a C.C.M. requires little effort, and the free-running C.C.M. Coaster Brake enables a rider to frequently coast long distances without any foot-work.

All models have seamless tubular steel frames; plated or enamelled steel rims; rustless steel spokes; bright parts chromium plated over a 20-year nickel foundation; Dunlop Fort or Imperial Tires; and other C.C.M. features. For quality and value a C.C.M. is still the big bicycle buy of 1938.

DANGER IN THE MIST

By

Martha King Davis

"So, we managed to get along with Lydia, Instituting until the latter part of last summer when—something happened which changed everything. Pat Peter Alcott and I fell in love with each other.

"He was such a dear, Judy—and so nice to Eddy, of course. I soon noticed and became horribly jealous and nasty, for Lydia watched us like a hawk and filled the most exaggerated stories.

"I did not see Peter all winter, and I only heard from him a few times. But I knew Lydia couldn't go on this manner as they had last without a smash, so I asked Dixon Murdock down as a sort of foil. We'd been good friends in town, but I never dreamed he was in love with me.

"However — having him here kept Peter away, and it was easier to have Eliot and Lydia hateful to me about Dix than about Peter. But, as you must have seen, Judy —even that became unbearable, and when Eliot began to take out his spite on Eddy, knowing how much that would hurt me—I felt I couldn't stand it any longer.

"That night Dix tried to make me go away with him. I never would have done that, but I did make up my mind to leave Eliot, Eddy and I would take a room or two here in the village. I would take in washing—do anything rather than live the way things were.

"She terrible to me that night. He was drunk. He taunted me with my 'lovers,' and he took his revolver from the desk and flourished it about, threatening to kill me or us.

"I was frightened—I ran out of the building. Dix was waiting for me but I could hardly speak to him. We came into the house and he went right up to his room, but I stayed down in the library. I was afraid to go to—to—even think of being there when Eliot came in. Of course, he didn't, and even in the house, but it seemed to me I heard all kinds of noises about the house. I sat in a chair, my face peering in at me from the window. I heard someone stealthily moving in the dining-room or pantry. A little before two o'clock I heard someone at the front door I went out into the hall and looked at the screen stood Eddy. I let him in.

"For several days Eddy had not been acting like himself with me. I think he sensed my unhappiness and I felt he was beginning to hate Eliot. I had caught him looking at Eliot several times in a queer way. And he was sassy at times—very hard to offer his felicitations. The evening was spent in music, singing, dancing and social chat, after which a bountiful luncheon was served, with Mrs. Wm. Hall presiding at the bride's table.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Paul's Women's Association for the month of May, was held on Tuesday of last week at the home of Mrs. C. F. Walt, with forty-three members and friends in attendance. Mrs. Hackett, president of the organization, directed the business part of the meeting which included the secretary's report, presented by Mrs. P. Bronson, and the completion of arrangements for attending the anniversary banquet held in Shannonville. Mrs. Arthur Scott and Mrs. R. A. Patterson, appointed delegates, to attend the convention to be held in Pembro on May 19th. At the conclusion of the business session an interesting program was presented under the direction of Mrs. C. F. Linn, opening with the use of a hymn followed by prayer by the president. The Scripture lesson taken from the 1th chapter of St. Mark, was read by Mr. J. L. Good, followed by an address based upon the Scripture by Mrs. Matheson. Mrs. R. W. Bishop contributed a solo, as her second number, and a duet by Mrs. F. N. McKee gave an interesting paper on the subject "Prayer." The meeting was closed by the final musical number on this fine program was a vocal duet by Mrs. Matheson and Mrs. McKee. The meeting closed with a hymn and the Benediction.

Special Mother's Day Services

Mother's Day was fittingly observed in all churches throughout the district of the school section in St. Andrew's special music was offered by the choir under the leadership of Mrs. R. H. Williams and the scholars of the Sunday School took a prominent part in the service, with Mr. Harper Robins, superintendent of the school, reading the Scripture lesson. Short recitations by several of the junior members of the school also were given during the service. In keeping with the message presented by Rev. J. A. Kofford, special music for this service, and three anthems by the choir and a solo by Arthur Duncan. The front of the church was gaily decorated with flowers placed there by members of the congregation in honor of the occasion.

St. Paul's United Church

Special music also featured the services of St. Paul's United church appropriate to Mother's Day in with the special message delivered by Rev. W. J. Scott. A large memorial bouquet was placed on the pulpit by Mrs. Nina Morton in memory of Mrs. Westcott, in honour of their mother and father, the late Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds.

ENO PEPS UP THE WHOLE SYSTEM

People who are half-well, half-sick most of the time only cost. To really live, you must be well. And to be well you should clean at once to rid yourself of constipation, which causes most common troubles.

Drastic purgatives and harsh mineral salts, of which Eno has no trace, aggravate the condition. Eno's "Fruit Salt" regulates, gently, effectively—normally. It tones good and forms no habit.

Life today calls for Eno's "Fruit Salt". If you want to feel like a million, take a dash of Eno in a glass of water morning and night for a few days. No griping, no pain. Eno refreshes, tweezes the stomach, and there isn't an atom of harshness or harm in a carload.

She smiled breathlessly, "I—I think there was someone in my room trying to murder me that night I was hurt across the shoulder. I think he was perhaps frightened away by something. I have hardly dared think about it—it has made me so nervous. I thought my mind was going, but if you have seen strange things—and that happened to Elsie—O-O-O—!"

The electric lamp on the table beside us suddenly went out, leaving us in total darkness.

Stirling

Stirling — A very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hodgson, Stirling, on the occasion of the 30th anniversary of their marriage.

The following address was read by Mrs. Arthur Gordonier and the presentation of gifts was made by Mrs. Percy McGee and Mrs. Lloyd Dafoe.

Stirling Ontario

To Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hodgers.

Dear Louis and Beulie:

We your parents, brothers and sisters and cousins, are gathered here this evening to spend a social hour with you and to extend congratulations and best wishes upon this twenty-fifth anniversary of your wedding day.

As you have lived among us here for nearly all those years we can not help but feel that the pearls chain it, that there are no friends like the old friends and our friends are more precious than gold. We are glad that health and happiness are still yours and it is our wish that God may add many more years to your happy life together. In closing we ask you to accept these gifts of silver and hope that Memory's Lane will be crowded with thoughts of the happy times we have spent together.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers replied in a very gracious manner and thanked their friends for their lovely gifts and kindness.

During the evening, Rev. J. A. Kofford, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, called to offer his felicitations. The evening was spent in music, singing, dancing and social chat, after which a bountiful luncheon was served, with Mrs. Wm. Hall presiding at the bride's table.

The couple received many beautiful and costly gifts, a number of which were presented in a most successful manner, gathering the award of the judges by a small margin over the St. Andrew's team including Mrs. Hackett, Jack Wood and Wm. Dermidy. The speakers on both teams displayed excellent platform ability and humor was cleverly introduced by both sides to add interest. The judges were Mrs. R. Hollins, Mrs. Wm. Wall, Mrs. Alice Calow and Mrs. Fenwick was the outstanding speaker of the evening amassing the greatest number of points.

While the judges were totalling their scores and preparing a report Mr. Scott brought greeting from St. Paul's Church and also congratulated the program committee on the excellent program, as did Rev. J. Kofford of St. Andrew's Church. This part of the program closed with prayer and the young ladies of St. Andrew's Church served luncheon.

THE ANTISEPTIC LINIMENT

Soiled Linen

By MAUDE M. WELCH

Those who wash our soiled linen may learn our deepest secrets.

Della Groves had been taking in washing for 30 years. She was a small, wiry woman, with a pleasant, weather-beaten face and alert black eyes. And she could tell you a lot about the people for whom she washed. Only Della wouldn't.

And, while only a washerwoman, Della was also something of a philanthropist. People for whom she did washing were always giving her things with a sort of noblesse oblige gesture. Old shoes, stockings with runs in them, shapeless hats, faded dresses and moth-eaten coats, kitchen utensils, old magazines and a few ragged books. In fact, the usual sort of thing which people give away to the junk man.

So Della always had an odd assortment of things for which she had no use.

It was only natural in time that down-at-the-heel people should appear at her house, quite as if someone had chalked a mark on her front gate post. And needless to say no one ever went away with so much as a pin she could use out of the motley array of things Della was always carrying.

But the time came when Della's philanthropy failed in a case where help was greatly needed, and certainly received. And for once Della's fertile brain was at a loss.

Melissa was getting married, Melissa was the blond-haired, freckle-faced orphan girl who helped Della with the laundry and Della never trusted anybody to do the washing or ironing because she always took so much pride in her work. But she let Melissa do odd jobs about the place because she was so poor and friendless.

And now Melissa had found a beau and tomorrow she was going to be married. Her boy drove a vegetable truck for a store-in Lemmer and made all of seven dollars a week. The future looked bright enough.

Only Melissa had set her heart on having a real wedding dress. A pretty one lacy and fluffy. It was the one dark cloud in her sky of dreams. She wanted to look like a bride for her soon-to-be young husband.

Della racked her brain all day trying to solve the problem. That afternoon she was ironing while Melissa hovered about her looking as alert as a bright-eyed bird for a crumb, for any job Della might deem her capable.

Della pulled a garment out of the sprinkle-down basket, slipped it over the ironing board, and the rumpled damp cloth under her skilful manipulations of the iron soon resolved itself into a dress of delicate peach-pink organdie trimmed with wide Valenciennes lace.

Melissa watched the dress as if fascinated. It was so beautiful.

Suddenly Della noticed. She replaced an iron on the gas, lifted up another, spat on it to test the heat, then for a moment she held it in mid-air and stared at the dress with puzzled eyes.

"Della," Mrs. Bunch fixed her eyes on her eternally, "how did that dress get in my wash?"

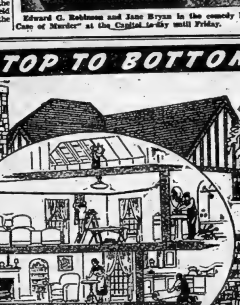
Now many years of washing dirty linen had sharpened Della's wits. Besides she had caught a gleam of something like entreaty in Mr. Bunch's eye, although apparently he had applied equally the soap and stared nonchalantly in front of him.

Della hesitated for only a moment. Then she broke into an apologetic laugh. "Why, I'm so sorry, Mrs. Bunch" she began more to gain time than anything else.

The frown cleared from Mrs. Bunch's pale thin features. She turned and faced her husband. "So a you told the truth after all. It was Della's mistake. And a good thing it was, too."

Then admonishing Della to be more careful about mixing the laundry lists in the future, they drove off leaving Della holding the dress in her hand.

So she made her way to the wash line where Melissa was patiently hanging out.



"Here's your wedding dress, she said,—"a present from Mr. Bunch."

No Wonder You Are Constipated!

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated! Get "bread-and" and "meat-and" foods out of your system. It causes the greatest trouble. It causes the kind of food that is known as the "bulky" group in the bowels. It's this mass that helps a bowel to move.

The common sense thing to do about it, is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast will give you just the bulk you need, and it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal-tonic, Vitamin B1. Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day, drink plenty of water, and Rids will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario, Sold by every grocer.

"I'll declare! As long as I've been washing for Mrs. Burch I've never seen this dress before. Besides, she's been out of town for three weeks. Just got back yesterday, and the maid's been getting up the fresh-laid towels and sheets and Mr. Bunch's things. . . . Looks kinda funny. But I know I haven't got things mixed, I'm always too careful."

Late that afternoon Melissa carried the basket of laundry to the small bedroom which had the pinkish, scared expression of a rabbit.

On the back seat of the car lay the peach pink organdie neatly folded just as Della had placed it in the basket.

"Della," Mrs. Bunch fixed her eyes on her eternally, "how did that dress get in my wash?"

Now many years of washing dirty linen had sharpened Della's wits. Besides she had caught a gleam of something like entreaty in Mr. Bunch's eye, although apparently he had applied equally the soap and stared nonchalantly in front of him.

Della hesitated for only a moment. Then she broke into an apologetic laugh. "Why, I'm so sorry, Mrs. Bunch" she began more to gain time than anything else.

The frown cleared from Mrs. Bunch's pale thin features. She turned and faced her husband. "So a you told the truth after all. It was Della's mistake. And a good thing it was, too."

Then admonishing Della to be more careful about mixing the laundry lists in the future, they drove off leaving Della holding the dress in her hand.

So she made her way to the wash line where Melissa was patiently hanging out.

"Here's your wedding dress, she said,—"a present from Mr. Bunch."

LAY AWAKE IN AGONY WITH NEURITIS

Kruschen Salts Brought Lasting Relief

Ordinary headaches are bad enough, but when you have nothing continued to the awful pains of neuritis in the head, it's pure torture. Read how Kruschen completely banished the pain:—

"I had neuritis in the head and right arm. I suffered untold agony with my head, and I do not know what might have happened had it continued. Everybody knows what a headache is like, but it is as nothing compared with the awful pain of neuritis in the head. I got sleepless nights tossing with pain. I began taking Kruschen Salts, and after some months of the treatment I have effected lasting relief—(Mrs.) L.M.

Neuritis, like rheumatism and sciatica, frequently has its roots in intestinal stasis (delay) — the unsuspected accumulation in the system of harmful waste matter which leads to the formation of excess uric acid.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients of Kruschen assist Nature in the elimination of the crystals through the natural channels.

Mr. and Mrs.—

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating oreakfast and ma said, What shall I order for dinner, Willyum, we haven't had chicken and dumplings for a long while.

Liver and onions contains the same number of words, pop said.

Meaning 3, and ma said, Now Willyum that's absurd, we had liver and onions only 4 days ago.

4 days, yes pop, as long as that, why that's 96 hours, no wonder I feel an almost unconrollable craving for liver and onions, pop said, and ma said, A nice leg of lamb mite be nice.

Liver starts with the same letter, pop said.

And he took a envelope out of his pocket and wrote some numbers on the back and did a arithmetic example, saying, There are 3 thousand seven hundred and 40 minutes in 4 days, why that seems like a lifetime, in fact I understand it's several lifetimes for a butterfly.

Well you're no butterfly, especially when you're eating liver and onions, ma said, How about a nice steak? she said, and pop said, Do you mean a liver steak with golden brown onions on the side, in fact on all sides.

And he wrote down another example saying, 96 thousand and 8 hundred seconds, why I'm a martyr, that's what I am, pop said, I'll tell you what I'll do, I'll stop in at the butchers myself and surprise you, I wont give you the slightest hint what I'm going to order, he said, and ma said, I dont need a hint after I've been hit on the head with a brick fool, O, all rite, I'll order it myself and save you the trouble of everything but cailing it, she said.

Oh good, then I'll be the one to be surprised, pop said.

And he folded up his paper and left for the office looking as if he thought he was grate, which he is.

3rd. Sidney

3rd Sidney — Mother's Day was fittingly observed at Aiken's Church on Sunday morning. Mr. Stanley Spafford, superintendent of the Sabbath School, was in charge of the service. Mr. Edgar Ray led the responsive Scripture reading and prayer was offered by Mr. Fred Westover. A story, "The Seventh Parsonage Fire," was told by Miss Helen Card.

A drama, "Scenes from the Wesley House," was given depicting the home life of the Wesley family, stressing the beauty of character of the mother, Susannah Wesley, and her untiring efforts in teaching her children.

The Pastor, Rev. H. R. Johnson, gave a splendid address, and the choir sang "Mother's Prayers Have Followed Me."

Potted plants and cut-flowers added to the beauty of the service, most of the flowers being placed in memory of departed mothers, and were later taken to the cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Orills spent Mother's Day with Mrs. Orill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, Shannonville.

Mrs. Harley Hubbs spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Kelley.

Mrs. Fred Westover spent Sunday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Chas. Moon, 2nd Line.

"The growth in numbers and influence of unions has been rapid in recent years and it has not always been possible to avoid the errors of inexperience."—Frances Perkins.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, May 11 (CP)—The stock market today was firm to strong in the late action today after early irregularities had shown moderate losses at noon. Trade in the industrials picked up, notably in the utilities, papers and senior oils and some of the beverages. Mining shares were on the side at the close and the western oils slightly lower. Volume was fair at 3503,500 shares for the day.

Senior oils continued weak and the steels and banks were down moderately against net gains for the utilities and in the beverages.

Brazilian recovered part of an early loss of 1 1-2, getting back 1-8 on a report that the Brazilian government had restored order in Brazil following a political revolt. Net gains predominated among the other utilities including Beauharnois, Bell Telephone, International Utilities B and Shawinigan.

Buyers were in the market for Can. Canadian Industrial Alcohol issues with the prices holding steady while net gains were recorded by Walkers, common and Distillers-Seagrams. Canada Steel Dominion Steel B and United Steel were mildly soft spots in the steels while Dominion Textiles registered a gain of 1 3-4 to a new high. Abitibi put in a strong at 1 1/8 and Great Lakes Paper common was firm at 8.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 11—(AP)—After picking its way cautiously in earlier trading, the stock market today got ahead with a bolder stride in late dealings today and gains running to lanes point or more were strous throughout the list.

Near the final hour, many shares were around the best prices of the April-May recovery, having recouped most of the losses suffered in the minor sell-off in the preceding session.

Transactions about 1,000,000 shares.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, May 11—(CP)—Increases of 15 to 25 cents were made in bacon-hog prices at Dominion Stockyards, Toronto, and Stratford today.

Liveweight to Branifeed 29.75; Hull $9.50; London $9.50; Chatham $9.35; Stratford $9.50; Peterborough $9.65.

Dressedweights: Barrie $12.50; Hull $12.75; London $12.75; Kitchener $12.75; Chatham $12.50; Stratford $12.75; Peterborough $12.75.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, May 11—Broth butter and egg prices advanced today in stronger trend. Receipts were 1,922 cases of eggs, 425 boxes of butter and 300 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Sales of spot butter on the Canadian Commodity Exchange were 100 boxes of Quebec seconds, 92 score at 26 1-4c and 200 boxes of Quebec fresh 92 score at 27 1-4. At the close spot butter was quoted 27c bid for Quebec fresh 92 score and 26 1-4c bid for Quebec seconds 38 score. The open spot butter sales were: 92 score to 27 1-4c. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 28c for solids and 28 1-2c for cartons.

The cheese market was 14 3-4c to 15c for No. 1 fresh western colored, the main line arriving.

Of the egg market, graded shipments were selling on spot in used three cases at 23-25½c for A-large, 21 1-2c for A-medium. The demand 19 1-2c to 20c for C, with western storage graded 1-2c higher on all grades except B, which were 1c higher.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford By Financial Service

The market has had so many false starts on the upside, that a sustained rise of at least three or four weeks will be necessary before the Street becomes convinced that a change trend has definitely taken place. New York will again show the way, which is the reason why so much interest is evinced by Canadian investors in President Roosevelt's policies.

The advice that is being generally given is for investors not to be too much disturbed by the anticipated intermediary fluctuations in the expectation that over a moderate period of time the list as a whole will be higher. It should be remembered that while the market as a whole, at current depressed levels, represents unusual buying opportunities, stocks selected particularly for their prospects represent even greater opportunity.

The shares of International Petroleum merit investment consideration. Although it is unlikely that current dividends are being earned, the production is steadily expanding, and the higher crude oil levels is definitely indicated. Primarily a South American producer, the company is benefiting from the proved world demand for petroleum products. A most favorable factor is its sponsorship by Standard Oil of New Jersey. Production for the nine months ended March 1938 was slightly ahead of the like period a year ago.

Declaration of a 50 cent dividend on the common stock of International Petroleum, Limited, June 30th next, continues the indicated $2 annual rate. The March 30 payment of the like amount is believed to have been covered with about 10c per share by the quarter earnings. Production is being maintained at the record rate of 34,000 barrels. Foreign sales of both nickel and copper have held up well, and the company's net profit for 1938 should be continuing its substantial capital expenditures, looking toward the further development of its dominant position in the production of crude oil. Since International should be fairly well sustained during the present period of uncertainty, it should move quickly with restoration of business prosperity. Moreover, it is one of the soundest speculations in the metals producing industry.

Stocks that are expected to feature the trading in the near future among others, such securities as National Steel Car, Canada Steamship preferred and Canadian Vickers common and preferred. The last-named company announced special developments are believed pending that will enhance the book value of the security quite appreciably. Earnings of the company for the current year are understood to be showing satisfactory improvement, with the outlook for further gains promising.

The Ticker Will Be Discontinued by the Cooke Interests Next Month

In Advance

By the [illegible] stock will be very hard to buy, remarked a member of the staff of Bigger and Financial Service today. This individual is in touch with millions of dollars of investment but so far his clients are too timid to buy stocks. Because they are waiting for the stock market to manifest itself by a further active days in the market will do more than anything else, I believe, to help restore confidence and improve sentiment," concluded our friend.

Livestock

Toronto, May 11 (CP) — Cattle trade was active on Toronto live stock exchanges today as sales of both cattle and cows advanced 15 to 20 cents. Calves were steady to 4 cents easier while sheep and lambs held around former levels. Hog buying was set by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Tuesday was 200 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 1,200; calves 170, hogs 980, sheep and lambs 310.

Good butcher steers and heifers sold from $6.25 to $6.75 with commoner to $5.25. A few lots of weighty steers brought $5.50 to $7. Butcher cows ranged from $3.75 to $5.50 and canners and cutters from $2.50 to $3.50.

Bulls were steady at $4.25 to $5.25 for good and $4 to $4.25 for bologna. Fed calves traded at $6 to $7.50.

Veal calves made a general top of $8, some reaching $8.50. Most veals sold from $7.50 down.

Previous close on off-truck bacon hogs was $10.

No good lambs were offered. A few medium quality spring lambs brought $9 to $10 cwt. Spring lambs were $5 to $10 each. Sheep ranged from $2 to $5.50 cwt.

Montreal, May 11—Cattle receipts held fairly active during the Montreal Livestock Markets during the week ended Friday's dealings. More than 550 cattle were received for export to Great Britain.

Calves: Common veal ers $3, medium to medium good $6.50.

Hogs: Bacons, fed and watered, $10.50. Selects drew $1 per hog premium with the usual cuts on off grades.

Sheep and lambs: Unquoted.

ONTARIO'S OLDEST ORANGEMANDIES IN 101ST YEAR

Freeman Hart of Peterboro County Had Been 111 Just Two Months

5 CHILDREN SURVIVE

Havelock, May 11—Peterborough county's centenarian, Freeman Hart of Round Lake, Belmont township, who is believed to be the oldest Orangeman in the province, died at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning from an illness during the last two months that was marked by the infirmities of old age and the burden of a century of living.

Mr. Hart celebrated his one hundredth birthday last December when he received the congratulations and good wishes of a host of friends. His days extended into the fifth month beyond the century mark.

Mr. Hart was born at Spring Valley, Brighton township, of Irish and Dutch descent. As a young man he spent five years helping his father who was a carriage-maker, and then moved to the back of the north woods where he spent more than half a century in the lumbering industry in Belmont. In his recollections of that period he used to tell many great drives logs that were floated down the North River to his saw mill on Round Lake.

His friends believed Mr. Hart to be the oldest Orangeman in Ontario. He joined the Castleton L.O.L. No. 1626 when he was 18 years old and never allowed his active membership in the Order to lapse.

Mr. Hart was married more than 75 years ago to Miss Sarah Ann Hall, daughter of Spring Valley, who predeceased him 19 years ago. His immediate family includes him are Mrs. Ida Cooperthwaite of Campbellford; Mrs. Ella Hamilton of Prince George, B.C., John Hart of Belmont, Albert of Lanarkshire, and Smith's Falls, of Havelock. He also had 46 grandchildren and 49 great-grandchildren. His wife, Mrs. Hart, died a member of the Methodist Church, but later of the United Church of Canada.

Freeman Hart was under arms during the Riel rebellion. He used to say that he was a passenger on the first train to leave Toronto on the Grand Trunk Railway, travelling from Colborne to Cobourg. He also had the distinction of the early days of East Peterborough when the present site of Peterborough was only a cedar swamp and the Canadian Pacific Railway was not projected. Old Havelock on the road to Marmora was the first settlement which later came to lose its identity in the growth of the railway village some miles to the south.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon from the family home at Round Lake to the United Church here. Interment will be at Maple Grove cemetery on the Trent Bridge road.

CAMPERS HOLD REUNION AT "Y"

The boys and leaders of Belleville Boys Camp at Moira Lake gathered at the "Y" M. C. A. last evening for a refewing of friendships and to hear the plans of this camp for 1938.

There was joy and hilarity as the boys thoroughly enjoyed some reels from Napanee for the occasion.

Games, showers and a lunch concluded served by the ladies of the Women's Auxiliary to the "Y" filled the evening with fun and pleasure.

Mr. Alec Gordon presided at the piano for community singing and later showed on the screen moving pictures of previous trips and camping experiences of his own. The Fry Boys, favourite with camp duets and Don Grass a piano solo.

There were a number of new campers accepted in the group. Mr. Shortt, Camp Director told of the camp's recreational, handicraft and sleeping accommodations for a successful season and for the increasing number of campers.

BIBLE SOCIETY MAKES PLANS FOR COLLECTION

Members of the Ministerial Association met at Moodie Cottage on Monday to discuss plans in connection with the Bible Society. This is the four hundredth anniversary of the publication of the Bible into English. The Belleville Society has undertaken to raise $300 this year. A special committee was appointed to arrange the method of collecting the amount. All churches are deeply indebted to the Bible Society for its work in providing many translations, for missionary work 700 translations have been made, enabling the churches to carry on work among many nations.

GUNMAN ROBS ATTENDANT

Toronto, May 11 (CP)—While a steady stream of motorists passed the place a gunman forced Irvine Nurse, attendant at a gasoline service station on Davenport Road, to open the cash register today and he escaped with $29.

The bandit ordered Nurse into the car pit while he cleaned out the till and made off. Nurse climbed out of the pit when the bandits car was disappearing.

FASCIST REVOLT

The only brief measure of success the greenshirted head was at the Jaca barracks, which was captured and held briefly. Then a bayonet charge by loyal troops brought about the surrender at that point and the rebellion collapsed.

The War Ministry stated that Filmin Salgado, leader of the Falangists, headed the rising, but that the actual field commander was Belmiro Valdeverde, member of the high command of the party before its dissolution.

Several Nearly Succeeds

The Integralist threat at Guanabara palace nearly succeeded, however, Witnesses said it might have worked had it not been for the cool, quick action of the President himself.

Disguised as soldiers and sailors, the Integralists marched up to the palace gates as the regular relief for the palace guard. The striking guard suspected and was deceived.

But the household staff, realizing what was going on, notified the President shortly after the spurious guard took over.

Vargas summoned aid from the war, navy and police departments. Then, with the fight hardly over, the palace staff, he opened fire on the Integralists. Loyal police forces in their parties quickly arrived and overpowered the rebels.

Integralist leaders were arrested in the palace gardens, abandoning their arms. Among the held aloft of Vargas and the palace staff until troops arrived.

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, May 11—(AP)—A Fascist revolt against the Vitalitarian Government of President Getulio Vargas was quickly crushed today after there was 18 casualties in the streets of the capital and unsuccessful attempts to seize government buildings.

The rebellion was started by the Integralists, Brazilian Fascist organization, outlawed by President Vargas when he proclaimed dictatorship control of Brazil in the coup of 1937.

Assault on Buildings

Assaults were made on the Guanabara presidential palace and other government buildings but the only fighting was reported when sailors supporting was the marine ministry, surrounded the building, stormed them there and forced a quick surrender.

At midweek, Chief of Police Filinto Mueller, speaking for the Vargas government, broadcast a communique asserting the government "absolutely exterminated" the Integralist and the revolt had been suppressed.

Residents lasting 3½ hours spread through the heart of the city before the government gained mastery.

The uprising was so closely concentrated in the heart of the capital that suburbs and outlying districts were unaware of it until dispatches had been ended and Mueller broadcast his report.

Traffic Paralyzed

Traffic for a time was paralyzed when certain streets were closed by shots as palace and the ministry of war but they were predicted.

Rio De Janeiro is a metropolis.

The revolutionaries, whose numbers were estimated at several thousand, to capture the presidential palace by assault, failed and 30 to 50 of them were arrested in the palace gardens.

They also attempted to seize the navy arsenal, located on an island near the palace and the office of the National Telegraph building, in the heart of downtown Rio De Janeiro waterfront.

Police Chief Mueller's fast broadcast report on President Vargas dominated the situation, described the "terrorism" of the Integralists.

postponement will stand."

The Irish Free State executive was entitled to stay in office until the expiration of its term next year, but it was expected to be submitted to the constitution to provide for a new executive and a new executive and officers."

An executive meeting will be held here Friday, when delegates for the federal gathering will be chosen, the party leader said.

"The real reason for the constitutional postponement of the executive meeting is that Earl Rowe (Provincial party leader) is afraid leadership issue will arise." Mr. Wood asserted today. "Earl Rowe is a Toronto block man."

"He knows very well that as such a leadership will be the issue of leadership is found to arise and he is afraid of the strength and power of the man, Aldaba who will come forward."

While the committee's 24-hour ultimatum to Ireland to explain today, the committee will take no further action until Friday, Mr. Wood said.

50 PER CENT. OF SEEDING IS DONE

Farm Work Two to Three Weeks Earlier Than Last Year

Toronto, May 11 (CP)—Nearly 50 percent of spring-grains seeding in Ontario has been completed and farm work is from two to three weeks earlier than has been the case for the past two seasons as a result of favorable weather in April, the Provincial Department of Agriculture reported today.

Eighty-five per cent of spring-seeding was finished by April 30 in Southern Ontario, the department said in its monthly summary of crop conditions. About 80 percent was completed in Western Ontario, 40 per cent in Central, Ontario but only eight per cent in Eastern Ontario and two per cent in Northern Ontario.

Reports indicate the acreage sown to spring grains "will be just slightly smaller this year than in 1937," the department reported. Intended acreage of spring wheat was estimated at 29,000, compared with 94,200 last year; oats 2,233,000 against 2,262,200; barley 1,000,000 compared to 555,900 and mixed grains 883,800, a decrease of 6,200 acres.

Winter Killing Slight

Winter killing of fall wheat was "comparatively slight," averaging 10 percent, but ranging from 5 to 20 percent in the principal districts. Fall rye only county which suffered heavy losses was Simcoe, and here it was considerable acreage was ploughed up and reseeded with not more than 60 per cent of the wheat fields being rated satisfactory."

'Aide of Negus Says He Will Fight His Status Out in Assembly

Geneva, May 12 (AP)—Last hopes of Haile Selassie of blocking an Anglo-French move to recognize Italy's conquest of his Ethiopian empire vanished today as a majority of the delegates of the League of Nations Council declared in favor of recognition.

The Council members' judgment came after a session in which the fallen Ethiopian ruler made a despairing appeal against recognition and demanded that the issue be taken to the whole assembly.

Negus Gile in Silence

The black-garbed Negus sat silent at the council table as the president, Nicolas Titulescu of Latvian foreign minister, summed up:

"Every majority of members feel that despite regrets it is for individual members to decide as they choose."

Proponents of recognition, chief among them Great Britain and France, considered this summation and the preceding declarations left league states free to recognize Italy's king as emperor of Ethiopia.

Ten nations declared in favor of recognition. New Zealand and China were opposed. Soviet Russia and Bolivia took neutral positions although opposed in principle.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Rainwater is the softest water found in nature, but it is not as pure as generally thought. Rainwater is purest when collected at the end of a shower, when much of the impurities of the air have been washed out. It has been found that precipitation is purer in winter than in summer. Moreover convectional currents in summer carry all sorts of dust particles high up in the air. Rain brings down ammonia, nitrates, and ammonia salts. The nitrogen in the nitrates varies from seven hundredths to four tenths of a pound per acre for every inch of rainfall and the ash averages about one pound per acre for each inch.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 12—(CP)—Synopsis: Pressure is high over northwestern districts with a deep and wide-spread low area covering far northwards Canada, and a trough low is centred off the middle Atlantic coast. The weather has been quite cool in eastern Canada with light to moderate showers from the Ottawa Valley eastward to the Maritimes. Light showers have occurred in southeast Saskatchewan though in most districts of the west the weather has been fair with a tendency to higher temperature.

Lake Superior: Moderate northerly winds; fair; cool tonight. Friday, moderate winds; fair and a little higher temperature.

Manitoba: Moderate northerly winds; fair and moderately warm. Friday, fresh south and southwest winds; mostly fair and warm.

Saskatchewan: Fresh or strong southerly to westerly winds; mostly fair and warm today and Friday.

Alberta: Fresh to strong southwest and west winds; mostly fair and warm today and Friday.

United States Navy Intends to Add To Wartime 'Line of Observation'

Washington, May 12—(AP)—The United States navy intends to add to its wartime "line of observation" in the Pacific Ocean a few more islets near Canton and Enderbury Islands, authoritative persons said today in explanation of a bill pending in the House of Representatives.

Canton and Enderbury are claimed by both Great Britain and the United States.

An obscure $25,000 item in measure which the House Naval Affairs Committee approved yesterday involves purchase by the navy of portions of the tiny Pahang group, about 1,000 miles south of Honolulu, informed persons said.

The projected acquisition fits into the navy's plans for a half-circle of island warning stations about Hawaii. The House Bill would authorize $28,761,000 for 43 shore construction projects, the largest in Hawaii, Alaska and the Canal Zone.

Navy officials said the $25,000 item was merely for purchase of "an auxiliary landing field" for seaplanes on patrol duty in and around the 14th naval district.

The projected Pacific "line of observation" would extend southward from Kodiak through Midway and Wake Islands to Pago Pago, American Samoa, informed persons said. Planes operating along this 6,000-mile line in wartime would warn of the approach of any hostile force.

THIRD READING OF DIVORCE BILL ONLY FORMALITY

Important Bill Read Second Time in The Senate Chamber

WIDEN GROUNDS

Ottawa, May 12—(CP)— First measure of the parliamentary session to originate in the Senate, the bill to widen the grounds for divorce in Canada today awaited third reading, usually a formality. Before it becomes law the measure must also pass the House of Commons where, it has been predicted, it will meet strong opposition.

Yesterday, on the report of the report of a committee which amended the legislation after it had been given second reading paved the way for final action. The measure was drafted along the lines of the Liberal divorce bill adopted some months ago in the British parliament.

As it stands now the bill would add cruelty "as interpreted and determined by the High Court of England," desertion for six years, incurable insanity and exceptional moral degeneracy—65 per cent of the husband to the present single grounds for divorce.

By the Canadian Press
Ontario's fruit and vegetable growers still await complete reports at cold-laden sites today, but their pessimism was lightened after a night in which crops suffered only slightly from ground-frost.

What frost there was last night was centred in the London district, where asparagus was ruined, the previous night. Fruit blooms, vegetables and grain suffered slightly but authorities said fruit blossoms had been heavier than usual this spring and the eventual yield loss would be small.

23 at London

All through the province farmers still were being stoked and the weather man and cool temperatures would continue tonight and Friday. London recorded a freezing-point minimum of 22 degrees last night, while the Niagara Peninsula reported temperatures about four degrees higher.

Cloudy skies probably saved the Toronto area from a nipping frost. Meteorologist Marcus Griffiths said. As it was the mercury sank to 38 above.

Sudbury Above Freezing

Sudbury turned in a low mark of 32 degrees during the night and minimums generally were five to eight points above freezing. The Niagara district experienced frost only in low, exposed places.

In the fruit belt, however, growers were worried by the fact the cold was keeping bees from flying. Early apples, which require fertilization by bees, are in danger of crop failure.

Thieves Steal Safe And Car to Carry It Away

Toronto, May 12—(CP)— Safe-crackers who entered the Watrous motor-car showrooms here last night, not only got away with a safe containing about $4,000 and $300 in cash, but they took a car to carry it away.

A radio was also stolen.

BATTALION NOT IN SECTOR

Toronto, May 12—(CP)—The Irish Battalion of the Mackenzie-Papineau battalion in Spain announced today they had received cabled information from their representative at Barcelona that the battalion was not in the vicinity of the Cuevas De Vinromi sector, where reports recently said the battalion had suffered heavy losses.

GRANT NO POWER FOR INVESTIGATION

Quebec Informs Rowell Commission of Its Attitude

By CARL REINKE

Quebec, May 12 (CP)—The Quebec government today told the commission the authority of the federal government to grant to any commission the power to investigate provincial government finances, the Rowell Commission was informed today "in the most emphatic manner" as it opened its Quebec sittings.

"The federal government is no more entitled to examine the financial position of the provinces than the provinces would be to investigate the financial position of the federal government," Ernest Beaulieu, counsel to the provincial government.

Would Mean Supremacy.

"To recognize the jurisdiction of your commission would amount to an acknowledgment that there exists in favor of the federal government a supremacy over the provincial government and certain things due in respect for the members of your commission, this government cannot by so doing. Would fail in its duty."

On behalf of the Quebec government Mr. Beaulieu endorsed the stand taken by Premier Premier Mitchell Hepburn before the commission ten days ago opposing any further centralization of governmental powers.

Powers In Confederation.

As to possible amendments to the British North America Act, he said the position of Quebec was "neither complicated nor ambiguous".

"In the opinion of this province, Confederation was a treaty, voluntarily entered into and it cannot be modified except with the consent of all parties," he contended. "This province intends to fulfill all its obligations thereunder and it expects that others will do the same."

DEFENCE IN CASE OPENS

Toronto, May 12.—(CP)—Defence counsel Robert Irwin, charged with the murder of Mrs. Nora Thornton, February 26, began today after Crown Attorney Arthur Ellis had refused a request that case be taken from the jury on the ground that police included a broken jaw and internal burns.

G. T. Ford and Ross Wilson, appearing for Irwin, argued the Crown had produced nothing but evidence of opportunity and suspicion and that a prima facie case had not been established. Crown Prosecutor W. O. Gibson argued successfully however, that the Court could not take a murder charge from the jury but could only instruct a jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal.

Scene of Indescribable Beauty— Waterfall of More Than 3,000 Feet

New York, May 12—(CP)—Paul Arthur Zahl, research associate of the Explorers Club, Explorers Society, N.Y., today cabled the New York Times from Georgetown, British Guiana, that he has seen a hitherto unrecorded waterfall of not less than 3,000 feet.

He said Art Williams, well-known United States aviator who operates an air service in British Guiana flew him on a flight with the object of soaring over the majestic Kaieteur Falls, which drops 741 feet.

"We discovered a deep river toward which he headed when to our amazement our eyes feasted on the scene of indescribable beauty— a ribbon-like stream dropping as it were, from the clouds 3,500 feet above," he cabled.

"We are flying at 2,200 feet and we moved toward this grand spectacle, coming within a mile, and there before our eyes was the greatest sight ever revealed to us.

"The fall is on a tributary of the Karanaag river in the heart, of Guiana's richest diamond area and is 80 miles northeast of Mount Roraima, Conan Doyle's 'lost world.'

"The river tumbles over a precipice to a ledge about 1,400 feet below, breaking forthlike into two drops, down into the valley below. The entire fall is no less than 3,000 feet, and this is a conservative estimate."

Prior to this discovery another waterfall in British Guiana, Kukenaam, was ranked as the highest of the world's known waterfalls, with a drop of 2,000 feet. The most famous falls, such as the Victoria in Africa and the Niagara are more or less out of their, width and volume than for their height. Victoria falls 343 feet and Niagara 167 feet.

ECKNER FAILS TO OBTAIN HELIUM FROM THE U. S.

Little Hope For Future of Germany's LighterThan-Air Ships

ICKES REFUSES

Washington, May 12—(AP)— Dr. Hugo Eckner held little hope today for the future of Germany's lighter-than-air ships in the view of the apparent failure to obtain helium from the United States.

"There will be no more passenger zeppelin flights between Germany and the veteran president of the zeppelin manufacturing plant said in an interview.

He declined he felt "disappointed and astonished" by the refusal of Interior Secretary Ickes to consent to sale of helium for commercial use.

"It is sad," he said, "that we are held up by the military opinion of other countries, when the United States military authorities have indicated they fear no military developments from the use."

VARGAS INVOKES MILITARY ACTION TO HALT FASCISTS

Revolt Well Planned But Executed Without Co-ordination

TWELVE KILLED

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, May 12—(AP)—Brazil's strong man president, Getulio Vargas, invoked full military and police action today to wipe out the Fascist Greenshirts, whose 3 1-4-hour revolt failed because they did not know the government palace was without a garrison within its walls.

Police, with 500 of the rebels already in jail, "agreed" throughout the city, searched every suspected Fascist's home and found evidence the revolt was well planned but had been executed without coordination.

The rebels made their attack yesterday against President Vargas' palace, the residence of the chief of staff of the army, and other strategic points—but they lacked the one vital piece of information that could have carried them to at least temporary success.

J. Alberta Lins De Barros, who helped defend the President's palace, told about it today.

"I believe the leaders did not

2 TRAPPED MEN SOON RESCUED

Rock Burst in Kirkland Lake Mine Rocks Dishes in Town

Kirkland Lake, Ont., May 12 (CP) —Two men trapped by falling rock in the Sylvanite mine of the Lake Shore Gold Mines here were rescued early today after being imprisoned for several hours.

The men, George Bolan and Peter West, were found to be only slightly injured. West sprained his ankle and Bolan suffered a cut wrist.

When the rock burst occurred last night a third man was reportedly injured but was brought out without difficulty. It took several hours, however, to clear the other two.

Shortly after the rock burst in the mine's history, shook the town of Kirkland Lake, dishes in the cave-in caused ground tremors that toppled merchandise off shelves in stores, rocked houses and upset microphones in the town's radio station.

Prime Minister and Arthur Meighen Pay Tribute to Late Mrs. Herridge

Ottawa, May 12—(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the Senate, today paid tribute to the late Mrs. W. D. Herridge, wife of the former Canadian Minister to Washington and sister of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative party leader.

The Prime Minister's statement follows:

"Throughout Canada and, indeed in other countries as well, there will be feelings of very sincere sorrow at the word of the passing of Mrs. W. D. Herridge.

"The close association with the public life of our country which her husband enjoyed over several years, combined with attributes of character which were everywhere

30 New Aerodromes And Flying Schools All Over Country

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 13—(CP Cable) — Great Britain is to double her first line strength in the air. Under a new expansion scheme announced by Earl Winterton, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, in the House of Commons today she is to have 3,500 first line machines—[illegible] by March, 1940.

The existing scheme, known as "Scheme A," calls for a first line strength of 1,750 first line machines by April, 1939. First line strength does not include reserve, nor does it include the air forces of the Dominions.

Lord Winterton disclosed the government considers important "the possibility of building up war potential in Canada" but did not explain the reference beyond mentioning the air mission now in North America inquiring into the aircraft situation there.

The new scheme will mean the enrolment of another 40,000 officers and men within the next two years. Royal Air Force personnel now numbers 70,000. It will mean the establishment of 30 new airdromes and new flying schools all over the country. It will involve an increase in the size of squadrons. It will mean increased reserves.

TENT CATERPILLARS REPORTED NUMEROUS

"Never in all my experience have I seen tent caterpillars so heavy as they are this spring," declared Harold E. Greaves, Sidney Township farmer, remarking that every country lane and road is marked by an intensification of this crawling worm. Leaves on apple, haw and wild cherry trees have already been stripped of their foliage by the insects.

Advice that the present time is ripe for the riddance of the injurious pest has been given by the local Entomological Bureau. One of the most efficacious way is removing the tents from the limbs in the early morning or late evening and burning the occupants.

An old superstition is that any heavy infestation of the country by these caterpillars means that a war is in the offing. Modern agriculturists, scoffing the idea, however, are busily at work killing the pest.

Obituary

BARTON A. PALMER
(Thurlow)

After a lengthy illness Barton A. Palmer, late address in the 4th Concession of Thurlow Township, passed away at the Belleville General hospital this morning, Thursday, May 12th.

The late Barton Adelbert Palmer, who was in his 56th year, was born in Thurlow Township and resided there practically all his life. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Palmer. Deceased will regret to learn of his death.

Surviving him are his widow, who was Miss Ada Ketcheson, and Mrs. Maud White two sisters, Mrs. Denton Hall on West Hall on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Fred Currie, President was in the chair. Mr. R. A. Elliott, Secretary, who read also on the platform read the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted. The following were asked to take seats on the platform. Reeve of Marmora, W. H. Linn, Reeve of Marmora Township, John A. Bell, George Weal, George Bailey, Dr. Embury, ex-M. P., Dr. Welsh, M. P. P., Wm. Ireland, ex-M. P. P., T. Lancaster ex-M. P. P., Mr. Sanderson and J. Morton. Mr. Elliott in a brief speech welcomed the Liberal-Conservative Association to Marmora, and in the absence of Mr. Moore, Treasurer gave the financial standing of the Association. Mr. Elliott then spoke of the object of the meeting to send delegates to the National Convention to be held in Ottawa on July 5, 6, and 7. Four delegates and four alternates were to be appointed.

Plans Approved

Nominations were then asked for two delegates to represent the Association at Toronto for the Leadership Convention, and it was moved by Mr. W. J. Hill, seconded by Mr. C. H. Buskard, that the Secretary and Treasurer be appointed delegates. Dr. Embury spoke for a few moments and suggested that the riding be divided into four parts, and each division select a delegate and alternate delegate to the National Convention. This plan was approved.

Mr. Denton Massey, M. P., guest speaker then arrived and was given a cordial welcome. Mr. Currie introduced Mr. Massey as a member of Parliament and as a friend of many. Mr. Massey voiced his pleasure in being present and gave a lengthy discussion on conditions in Canada at the present time. He urged his listeners to forget the past, and look to a future that had the possibilities of great things for Canada, whose natural resources were greater than most countries.

Industrialists Reserves Urged

The speaker stressed the fact that it was the duty of our governments to industrialize those resources to effect unemployment. He urged the need of reciprocal trade and obtaining better markets for farm products. Mr. Massey compared the exports of Canada to Great Britain with European countries much smaller than Canada, but whose products were favored by Great Britain owing to the interest taken by their governments in all farm products. Mr. Massey paid tribute to Hon. R. B. Bennett as an outstanding figure and strongly criticized the present government for signing of treaties with the United States and also for inaction during the present session.

Vote of Thanks

At the conclusion of Mr. Massey's speech, Mr. T. P. Lancaster moved a vote of thanks after which short addresses were given by R. D. Arnott, K.C.M.P.P., Dr. Welsh, M. P. P., Dan Hastings, Dr. A. T. Embury, ex-M. P. Hastings-Peterborough, Mr. T. P. Lancaster, ex-M. P. P., Peterborough. The following delegates were appointed to represent the Association at the National Convention in Ottawa, July, Gordon C. Fraser, Burleigh Township, alternate, Dan Lancaster, Marmora; R. A. Elliott, Deloro, alternate, George Thompson, Hewitson Township, Dr. Lumby, Bancroft, alternate; Dr. Rollins, Coe Hill, Fred Currie, Madoc, alternate, James Nickle, Madoc.

JUSTICE GODFREY GIVES JUDGMENT TO THE PLAINTIFF

J. E. Inwood, McArthurs Mills, Wins Suit in Supreme Court

NO COUNTERCLAIM

Stating that the defendant A. B. Ivey, Port Dover, did not realize his legal position, moral obligations and that he "had acted most unreasonably against the plaintiff," R. J. Inwood, McArthurs Mills' resident, Mr. Justice Godfrey in non-jury sitting of the Supreme Court in session, yesterday afternoon awarded judgment for the plaintiff with costs.

His Lordship dismissed a counterclaim for $1,000 entered by defendant against plaintiff with the issuance of the writ and of references to be paid by defendant on a high court scale.

The action arose from an alleged breach of agreement between the principals in that Inwood, plaintiff, claimed his share of the profits arising from a partnership scheme for buying and shipping cedar poles, in which Ivey was to finance the deal with Inwood agreeing to secure, assist to scale and load one thousand cedar poles. Counterclaim for $1,000 was brought by defendant for loss of credit claimed to have resulted in plaintiff's failure to keep his part of the contract.

In reading down his decision, Justice Godfrey declared that the agreement of May, 1935, between the principals was in full force and effect.

The defendant, Ivey will account for all profits made under the agreement, pay one-half of the profits accruing from the sale of poles and pay to the plaintiff that plaintiff did not live up to his part of the agreement in assisting with the transportation of poles" to be deducted from his share of the profits. The personal expenses and $119 bank interest and expenses incurred in financing will be deducted from the profits accruing, he declared. Counsel Charles A. Payne was for the plaintiff and Justice Godfrey

R. A. Nourse, Picton, appeared for his plaintiff.

Agreement Not Cancelled

In his summing up the case, Justice Godfrey stated that he found the first agreement had not been cancelled by the two partners, and he could not accept the evidence offered to set it aside.

Aproximately twelve witnesses were called to give evidence in the case that is believed to be the first litigation and cross-examination of the defendant was completed late in the day with two minor witnesses being called. Justice Godfrey handed down his decision shortly after the afternoon.

Inwood signed a joint note which I took to Port Dover", Ivey testified on the stand yesterday morning. "This was to be given to the bank. After that he refused to carry out his terms of the agreement such as scaling, loading poles".

Witness testified he had sold nine poles carloads of 30 foot poles to Ontario Hydro Commission at profit of $1,000 and that Sales of 30 and 35 foot lengths had also been made.

Witness told court of strained financial conditions. Cheques were issued in the name of Inwood as receive before they were presented at the bank by Mr. Ivey.

He had to secure other help to assist him in scaling when Inwood refused to do so. He only assisted in loading two of the nineteen cars shipped. "The often promised, but never came."

Seen at Siding

"He was seen frequently at the siding, making notes in a memorandum book," Witness said. "But he never assisted in loading".

Witness had to guarantee truck-drivers their wages on several occasions he said.

His Lordship:— "Why didn't you have this new agreement in writing and signed by the parties? Had this been done there would have been no occasion for this lawsuit".

Witness:— "I had confidence in the man."

"I think Inwood entitled to one half profits of the first 1,000 poles sold, and entitled to compensation for assisting in purchase of additional poles, for Ivey did accept his services and was paid wages for them", His Lorship injected at this point.

Witness denied saying to Inwood that $1,500, apiece could be made. "That was impossible," he stated. Inwood had access to statements as his agent, witness said. Inwood intimated that he was going to resort to law to collect money, Ivey said. "I tried to get him to make a settlement. I offered him $350 to settle".

Profit Not High

Witness stated to His Lordship, the total profits on the scheme would be between $600 and $700.

Under cross-examination by plaintiff's counsel, defendant denied saying to plaintiff "Let's get together and make some money" or that 30 ft poles were mentioned.

Thirty-seven hundred poles had been jointly found by himself and plaintiff, witness stated.

He attributed fact that he was only able to purchase one quarter of number of poles as last year to cheques returned while in partnership with Inwood.

Inwood led him to believe that his commissions from the Morgan

Beaches Officials Grateful for Aid By School Children

An estimated $75.00 will be given officers of the newly incorporated Quinte Bay Beaches Association as the result of the last week's combined schools concert held in the Collegiate Auditorium.

"Money was used badly," stated the president of the Beaches Association, Mr. Reg. Moncrieff, this morning who declared further that much of it will be spent immediately upon work on the beach location.

"We enter this season with new hope and new heart, cheered by the knowledge that at last residents of Belleville and members of the city's special clubs have come to realize the need for this beach and the necessary work," stated the president.

Gratitude for the efforts of pupils and teachers of all schools in holding the concert, was expressed also by chairman of the committee in charge of entertainment, Ross Shiver, and fellow members.

Sweden's foreign trade is showing the highest money value since 1920. Nearly 220,000 motorcycle tires are to be planted in County Durham in England.

MRS. J. DOUGHTY SEEKS DAMAGES FROM TOWNSHIP

Peterboro Woman Alleges She Was Injured in Dungannon Twp.

MEDICAL EVIDENCE

With Drs. Herbert Young and J. C. O'Brien, Peterborough medical men and Mrs. Jenny Doughty, Peterborough, chief plaintiff, giving evidence the case of Doughty versus the Township of Dungannon opened late yesterday afternoon at the non-jury sitting of the Supreme Court under Mr. Justice Godfrey.

The action in which Jenny Doughty, her husband W. Percy Doughty, plaintiffs are claiming five thousand dollars, arose from alleged personal injuries and ensuing costs incurred, when the car in which they were riding is alleged to have crashed through a culvert on the Turriff Road in the township of Dungannon on July 16, 1937. Mrs. Peter Mallory, a passenger in the car is also a plaintiff in the case, claiming five hundred dollars for costs incurred following the accident.

Charles A. Payne, K.C., is appearing for the defendants, while Mr. Alex. Elliott, K.C., Peterborough is representing plaintiffs.

Mrs. Doughty, assisted to the stand by her husband and court attendants was the first witness called by her counsel. She testified she had been riding in a car driven by her husband, with herself, her sister and two children and her brother, and her son as passengers along the Turriff Road on July 16th 1937.

The accident had occurred about five o'clock in the afternoon, she stated after the party had left the Bascom cemetery and were on their way back to the home of her brother, John Grunnet, two miles from Coe Hill. They had left the old Hastings Road and had turned on the Turriff Road shortly before the accident occurred.

Strikes Her Head Claim

Riding in the back seat, she remembered striking her head, and going forward over the front seat. "I thought my back was broken" she had said to her husband, as she felt severe pains in her right side lower part of the back. In testimony witness stated she had been taken to the home of Patrick Mallory, where she had been attended by Dr. Anderson of Bancroft. She returned to her home in Peterborough the next day, and was examined by Dr. Herbert Young. She had been forced to stay in bed approximately four months and during that time had been up occasionally; unable to do her housework she had had to engage domestic help at the approximate cost of $187.00. She had been in good health prior to the accident, witness testified, but had had some trouble previously from periodical attacks of sciatica.

Cross-examined by Mr. Payne witness stated that she "did not remember being jolted in the car." She had not paid any attention to the condition of the road because her mind had been on her mother's grave that she had visited prior to the accident. She had not felt any pains in her back or neck previous to the accident, witness told counsel.

In previous examination witness testified that she was subject to spells of "short breath." In her present condition she was unable to perform her household duties.

Dr. Herbert Young, Peterborough, testified that he had attended plaintiff at her home on the day following the accident. From the symptoms he thought there were fractured ribs. First X-ray plates showed no fractures but some deformity of certain vertebrae of the spine. Further plates showed pathology of the 5th, 7th, 9th and 10th dorsal vertebrae. From the plates witness stated he could not say whether the condition was from injury or disease. He had treated plaintiff for sciatica on a previous occasion but had not observed any arthritic symptoms before. "She has some arthritis in her spine due to the accident," witness told the court.

Spasmodic Nature

"Lately plaintiff has been suffering from attacks not asthmatic," witness testified, "these are of a spasmodic nature that cause severe pain." In witness opinion, plaintiff will be bothered with her back for several years, and the disability may be permanent. "She suffers a great deal of pain now," he said, the primary cause of which is the accident.

Under cross-examination witness admitted, that he had not made an examination for focal infection. Subsequent X-ray plates had shown a compressed fracture of one of the vertebrae, but he was of the opinion that an arthritic condition had existed previous to the accident.

Dr. J. C. O'Brien, Peterborough physician, told the court that he had known plaintiff since 1922. She had been subject to chronic asthma in the early years but had shown considerable improvement of late. He had never observed any symptoms of arthritis in the plaintiff. In a study of X-ray photographs he had found a compressed fracture of the seventh dorsal vertebra and a condition in others.

At this point X-ray plates were introduced as evidence and examined by His Lordship.

His Lordship: "Do you think it is possible to have dormant arthritis aggravated by an accident?"

"Yes."

Witness stated here that the present attacks suffered by plaintiff "were entirely different to former ones."

His Lordship: "Then you think her present condition is due to the accident?"

Witness: "Decidedly so."

During the hearing of these witnesses, Dr. G. H. Slookie, Belleville physician was invited to sit at Defence Counsel's table.

Court adjourned at this point to meet today.

CORONATION ONE YEAR AGO

One year ago the British Empire was en fete as Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth were crowned in the coronation. In the midst of a world of alarms this stately religious ceremony was an index of the stability and the dependence upon Providence which are marks of the kingship in Britain. So much of public ceremony today excludes any reference to the Power behind thrones and parliaments and other forms of government, the Inspiration of all that is beautiful and worthwhile in life, whereby a wholesome influence is brought into life with the British coronation ceremony. The ceremonial which placed Their Majesties on the throne of an Empire to which the world looks, brought very clear to the hearts of both monarch and subject the obligation which rests upon everyone for the preservation of the state. It may be difficult at times to live up to these noble inspirations but they must be the guiding principles of the national and the individual life.

In his first year as the crowned monarch King George has more than fulfilled the hopes which the nations of the Empire reposed in him. Even before his coronation he had shown those noble impulses and objects which have dominated and will continue to direct his life as King and man. The King and the Queen have filled a high place in the minds of the people, they have demonstrated the beauty of family life which is so dear to the British race, who thereby live so closely to the ideals of the nation built up through the centuries.

King George holds great promise for the Empire. In the almost year and a half since his accession he has with his counsellors given the Empire the service that only a monarch can give.

In these trying days the stability of the Crown is one of the great bulwarks of peace at large in the world. The British Crown has been tested in the last quarter of a century as it never was before submitted to trials which would have broken down anything less virile and anything not inherent in the political constitution of the British people. In the permanence of the Kingship there is the enduring quality the people require. There are changes, natural to the passage of time and there are movements in commerce and extension of human relations, but they do but mark the fact that is so apparent in the growth of British principles, which are so largely unwritten, that the British constitution is not a hard and fast rule of life, flexible in accord with the highest principles directing national and public life. In that it does not change.

Britishers saw in the recent event of the resignation of a member of the cabinet in a minor office, that, while the government may have been going through a crisis, the Crown was not in the crisis. It endures beyond governments. It is no wonder therefore that the heart of Britisher-dom is strengthened in times of trial and stress, because over the upsetting of governments and political changes, is the ruling principle of the Crown, unchanging.

And that King George, aided by his Queen, has been strengthening the hold and influence of the Crown. He like his noble father and the long line of British sovereigns of recent times has shown that the Crown's hold upon the people is not a mere relic but the living spirit of the best that the people can desire.

As the past year so many of the future years of the crowned life of our monarchs continue to add to the glory of the Crown as an influence which is felt from the highest peer to every worker in the empire.

HORSE STILL IN WAR

The horse is not banished from war. That is the tenor of an article in the New York Times which tells of Spanish, Chinese, Polish, Russian and United States military manoeuvres in which the horse is not at all abolished. General Franco's drive to the sea was helped by the cavalry. The famous First Cavalry of the United States is engaged with planes and scout cars in arid Texas and the rough hills along the Rio Grande. A writer, extolling the battle of the Marne says that with the proper use of cavalry, Germany could have won the battle of the Marne.

It looks as if 'Ned' and 'Mollie' and equines of other names will still play a part in future conflicts.

That which ordinary men are fit for, I am qualified in; and the best of me is diligence.—Shakespeare.

Discontent is the source of all trouble, but also of all progress in individuals. —Auerbach.

DICTATED BUT NOT READ

When Dictator meets Dictator
He calls his army out;
And has his ships and bombing planes
All hovering about,
The populace are drilled and drilled
For weeks and weeks before
To give the semblance of three cheers,
Three cheers and one cheer more.

It is not needful that they think—
Their very thoughts are planned.
They do not have to speak a word,
So they understand
That they must fill the streets and squares
And nearby vacant spaces
With an atmosphere of welcome in
A sea of smiling faces.

We can't excel Dictators
In putting on a show,
The glittering pomp of circuses
Fits in with their ego;
But we by family firesides
Know more of peace at home
Than the geese who cheer Dictators,
Goose-stepping over Rome.

WALL STREET IS THE FINANCIAL HEART OF THE NATION in the land of Uncle Sam and Broadway columnists wander thataway for gossip items of news when things are quiet on the Great White Way, between paydays, or what have you. One L. B. S. Shapiro wanders up and down Broadway, looks into shop windows and people's faces, also lends into night clubs where the night clerks begin to rattle over the cobble stones and gets the low down on late revelers from Park Avenue, Montreal and other places, and records his impressions in the Montreal Gazette. Scribe Shapiro has been mingling with, the Big Shots of Wall Street as an observer and prints the following in his column as the latest lowdown on the Morgans et al and their feud with President Roosevelt whose efforts to reform the Wall Street crowd and methods has not endeared him to the Powers that Be, or, as some think, Prey, (not Pray) in the biggest little canyon in the world situated below by old Trinity Church on lower Broadway facing Wall Street: Here tis:

New York—The industry of manufacturing jokes about Franklin D. Roosevelt is enjoying a boom season. On Wall Street the typewriters are clattering out new and better stories with which to regale the financiers, some of whom find that the morning newspapers do not provide enough reading matter to while away the hours from ten until two.

Only a few weeks ago someone thought up the brilliant idea of presenting the President with a fund of $15,000,000 on condition that he resign. There was nothing subtle about this joke, and it left the perpetrators laughing, as they are now, at the other side of their mouths. Nevertheless, Wall Street has given up trying to blast the gentleman out of the White House by verbal bombshells and has fallen back on the method of attacking him with alarm, but with great guffaws of laughter.

There comes to this desk today a new form of propaganda, anonymously issued by a Wall Street house. It is entitled, "Report on Conditions of the Nation under the New Deal." It makes several estimates as follows:

"Population of the United States—124,000,000; eligible for old age pensions—30,000,000; that leaves to do the work—94,000,000; persons working for the Federal, State and City governments—20,000,000;, that leaves to do the work—74,000,000; ineligible to work under the Child Labor Law—60,000,000; that leaves to do the work—14,000,000; number of unemployed in the nation—13,999,998; that leaves to do the work—2, me and F. D. R. He has gone fishing, and I am getting damned tired."

Little Journey Up Tiger Hill

Past Chigon, which lies at the crest of the Himalayan foothills as you descend from the plain with Darjeeling your destination, and then along a broad and smooth modern highway on which most of the manual labor has been done by sturdy Nepalese women you stride briskly in the stimulating air toward Tiger Hill.

Presently you come into a forest which has almost the aspect of the Amazonian jungle, so thick it is, so impenetrable with its vines and creepers and tendrils, all making a huge jungle of subtropical foliage. Mildness of climate and much moisture, even at the 8,000 feet of altitude with the grandeur of the snow-covered Himalayan range clearly discernible in the distant west, brings about this perfect condition.

Some five miles of a walk full of interest at every rod brings you out upon the crest of Tiger Hill, where—once in a town visits it you never carry to the end of living, you may see mighty Everest itself, though so far away and so big at any time of the day the whole stupendous panorama below you, this vast primeval stretch of forest and valley and hillside with here and there a native hamlet is ample reward for the small exertion of ascending Tiger Hill. The road upon which lies Darjeeling is at the left, the distant peaks of the main Himalayan range towering in supreme majesty in the west, ranging on the boundless scale as if the bounds of space itself. Directly below Tiger Hill you descend through the sub-tropical forest into Sikkim and Bhutan, separated by winding waxy down some hundreds of feet into the high valleys of which Sikkim and Bhutan are the great mountainous buffer states between the countries of Nepal and Bhutan.

You can from Ghoom as you come down the hill is a Swedish-Finnish mission, and it is located at a higher altitude than any other in the world. It has an Eskimo missionary and if you turn off from the hill road for a mile or so you can call on him. It is a welcome truly British in its hospitality awaits you. Kinds of Tiger Hill afterward the proud exhibition of successful contradiction that most daughters believe in and the farmers and in the cities of every State in the Union, spend more for clothes than their mothers do.—New York World Telegram

By Joseph H. Barton, M.D.

Poor Posture (Sitting and Standing) Is One Cause of Arthritis

I speak often of the benefits obtained by a good posture—sitting and standing with head erect, chest out and abdomen drawn in. This does not mean trying to attain the over-erect position which is sometimes seen in military and other parades. This "forced" holding of the erect position not only spoils the appearance but is hard on nerves and muscles because of the tenseness maintained. But the ideal is to be relaxed naturally erect carriage are known because of the disadvantages of the stooped or slouchy carriage.

Two serious things happen to the body with the slouchy attitude. First, the stomach, intestines, and other abdominal organs are forced downward, thus interfering with the digestion of food and the regularity of the movements of the bowel.

Second, the lungs are crowded because the chest cavity is small and the shoulders preventing the needed amounts of air from being inhaled.

One of the results of a poor posture is that the muscles, fascia joints, the ligaments around these joints and the muscles moving these parts are "pulled" out of line. Chancler, Dr. J. E. Goldthwait, Boston, has called this condition poor posture, in causing pain and arthritis in lower back, hips, knees and feet.

That general weakness of the muscles and ligaments which results at times and in other cases there is some infection present (which may be in the teeth or tonsils or the spine (or elsewhere) causes the individual to assume other poor forms of posture (posture) such as stiff neck, poker back, severe limping or the flat-footed walk.

However, aside from general weakness and the presence of infection, there are a great many individuals who have poor posture habits, poor digestion, a lame back, or flat feet because of their overdevelopment of the abdominal muscles which hold in the abdomen. This is the type that sticks out the abdomen and throws the shoulders back in the first thought. Bending forward with knees straight is the best single exercise. Standing and sitting "tall" and "straight" are in maintaining the erect carriage.

FREEDOM OF PRESS

Walter Winchell gets away with his keyhole reporting in a big city, and is well paid for it. The same thing in a small town would get him a punch in the nose. Columnists have always had a free hand, so long as they are able. "Perhaps it is but that I have wanted what I could not have."

There are some things that are tempting to write about others for instance, a day when the weather is fair and the sun is good. She prefers the small towns where she travelled when the first one had three cinemas instead of 61, when the show was small time vaude, and the local newspaper was a neighborhood affair instead of the latest thing in metropolitan dailies. The necessity for seeking bigger audiences in bigger towns and cities, Mrs. Ringling likes to say, all Mrs. Ringling likes to have the big top set up somewhere near a train and nothing to do but fishing in her spare time.

She was working at the needle-work when I saw her—a huge piece for a huge chair. "I have been at it for a year," she said, "and I tell a few stories, but it is a labor of love and of coaxing to get her started. Perhaps she will tell about the time the elephant fell through the ice. It is Fanny, by the way, who made the circus a little more important to give her whole-hearted approval to elephants.

Fanny came to the Ringling circus a good many years ago. She had been a trainer of elephants in Indian variety which makes up programs for the vaudeville theatres of the East. Fanny was the only elephant in the show and was petted by the performers and the big top waiting for the return of the circus. Fanny was the smallest of the three elephants, the two larger ones being her great friends. Somehow the canvas was dropped and Fanny was outside and alone. Fanny lifted up her trunk and trumpeted. Then she started for the big top. Neither Fanny nor Mrs. Ringling hesitated. In fact, it may be said that Mrs. Ringling was the quicker of the two, for she leaped from her horse and was at the door only a second before the elephant smashed it into kindling wood.

Mrs. Ringling laughs as she describes the two men who fainted at the sight and remarks composedly, "I was all right." And then Fanny walked majestically from her usual conversation, for Mrs. Ringling is a notable talker when she refuses to take the credit for any part of her husband's work. Fanny is anything which would make women seem more remarkable than they are. She is less than she should be in the foreground, and Mrs. Ringling must have given her a bit of good advice, she should keep still about it and never claim the credit for what was done or not done as a result of it.

Mrs. Ringling, however, does like to tell of the day when she saved Fanny. That was in Baraboo, Wisconsin, remember, and shows that Mrs. Ringling at least bore no grudge against the Ringling Babe took a trunk. Anyway, Babe stood with the trunk in his hand, looked out over the circus ground, looked at Fanny's track, and lifted her out of the way.

There is one thing that Mrs. Ringling does not like—needle-work and that is to take small boys free into the circus. She will not, as a matter of fact, she used to sit in her car near the main entrance and refuse to let the small boys who had no money with their parents get by. When the performance started, Mrs. Ringling would round up two or three of them and escort them to seats. But one night she found a little fellow in the dressing room wistfully surrounding the gate.

Mrs. Ringling took in the others and sent an older brother home to obtain permission for them to enter the circus. The brother was so long returning that Mrs. Ringling went out to look for him and found every dirty urchin on her knee. When the brother returned he was accompanied by a parent and a policeman—"Up to this time," she says, "I was a kidnapper and he must be paid for his services." Mrs. Ringling talked way out of that difficulty but there was no explanation in that action which might be misunderstood.

Today her great interests are the second and third generations of the circus family, and Georgiana, the big new gorilla. Between times Mrs. Ringling bestows affection upon her own family, around the happy circus days she has had with the circus, every one of which she insists has been happier than the preceding one. Many more of them. —Marjorie Shuler in Christian Science Monitor.

Veteran Journalist Looks Back

Sir Alexander Macintosh who has worked in the Press Gallery of the British House of Commons for 37 years, and who retired two weeks ago, has known every prominent Liberal and Tory leader.

And he wonders what Mr. Gladstone would think of the House today.

He said to a reporter, records the Evening News of London: "What would Gladstone have said if he had lived to see women in the House!

"In his day women visitors were screened behind the grille, and men and women were not allowed to sit together in the public gallery.

"Parliament lost much of its liveliness when the Irish Party left.

"In spite of their obstruction and disorder, they were among the most brilliant members who ever came to Westminster, because of their good humour.

"I well remember the famous fight in the House over Home Rule in 1893, when the scene was so outrageous that spectators in the gallery cheered.

"It began when Joseph Chamberlain lashed the Irish members as an adulation of Gladstone unequalled since the time of Herod.

T. P. O'Connor shouted 'Judas!' at Chamberlain. Then a Tory and a Radical off the front bench furious Irish members rushed across and the fight started.

"A horrified House watched, in 1901, a squad of police march in to carry out bodily twelve members who had been suspended but refused to withdraw.

"On another occasion thirty-six Irish members were suspended—the first they refused to go, but they went when the sergeant-at-arms tapped them on the shoulder.

The Hard-Boiled Shirt

Laundries in England, like plumbers have been severely unnerved by attacks from the wags; but in the latest attack, which has been recently by a correspondent in The Times of London, there was some justice in the fun. He complained that they return the "stiff" shirt with its starch unnecessarily sealed.

It cannot be denied. As the hour of dining approaches, conflict develops up and down the land, and the dining-room tin-openers yield, panic is apt to occur, and happily the man who finds a breach honored in the observance. What is the remedy? Too often the stiff upper lip produces a limp shirt, or if it has been war to the knife, a garment rent in despair.

No doubt there are some who are partisans of soaking the shirt in a pail of Nessus was a boiled one, and who feel that a bullet is better than armor is an anachronism; but to the conventional it is still proper, and to the right standing—and it will be long before the supporters of starch in the shirt give way.

In the circumstances, therefore, the laundries, especially their executives, even those who imagine with the French that "le beau est toujours le difficile," will unite in pleading with the launderers to find a method of starching which will produce a limp shirt, or

Mrs. Charles Ringling

Circus time brings joy to thousands of people throughout the United States, but to none more than Mrs. Charles Ringling. Year after year for the greater part of 47 years has Mrs. Ringling been on the lot with elephants for neighbors, with clowns and trapeze artists and acrobats for friends, and with the band as a constant companion.

No one, however, makes less of these things than Mrs. Ringling. She doesn't understand why people should expect her to make stories out of them. Things have happened, of course, out of them. But why should she be expected to remember? She was born and has been housekeeping in a small town all her life, and cannot suddenly challenged her to sum up the events of her days. That is the reason, no doubt, why she is a contented person. She has always had a home. Perhaps it is but fair also to add, "Perhaps it is but that I have wanted what I could have."

There are some things that she remembers, however, with others for instance, a day when the weather is fair and the sun is good. She prefers the small towns where she travelled when the first one had three cinemas instead of 61, when the show was small time vaude, and the local newspaper was a neighborhood affair instead of the latest thing in metropolitan dailies. The necessity for seeking bigger audiences in bigger towns and cities, Mrs. Ringling likes to say, all Mrs. Ringling likes to have the big top set up somewhere near a train and nothing to do but fishing in her spare time.

On Sunday afternoon Mount Pleasant United Church was abloom with a large assortment of beautiful flowering plants. Mr. James Sharp, superintendent of Mount Pleasant Sunday School, presided, with Miss Vera McAdam at the piano. The programme issued by Ontario Religious Education Council was based on "A Family Day in the Church School with special reference to Susannah Wesley, the mother of John Wesley, whose theme was 'The Spirit of Christ, In the Life of the Home'." All joined in the rendition of a hymn. Misses Lois Weaver and Ruth Rose sang a duet with Mrs. Kenneth Weaver as accompanist. Master Ross Jeffs told the story of the Epworth Parsonage Fire when the home of John Wesley was burned. The offering for the day was gathered by James Hoard and Ralph Jeffs and this goes to help needy Sunday Schools who are working among thousands of boys and girls. Scenes from the Wesley Home were dramatized with Mrs. Roy Thrasher as narrator telling many incidents in the life of John Wesley and his mother. The pageant showed a session of school in the Wesley home a church service with Susannah Wesley, during her husband's absence, and another scene where young John learned his psalms. Mrs. Elwood Johnson took the part of Susannah Wesley with Master Donald Spencer as young Wesley. Seven of John's sisters were impersonated by Misses Gladys Sharp, Gladys Summers, Helen Johnson, Lois McAdam, Marian Johnson, Evelyn Melville and Joyce Johnson and one brother, Jerry Melville. Mrs. John Holmes offered a gracious prayer. Rev. J. E. Beckel briefly addressed the audience, telling of the kindly Christian, noble spirit of Susannah Wesley and picturing her husband as a man who demanded obedience, who was always in debt and who found it hard to get along with people, but despite it all Susannah Wesley never lost her faith in God and she planned her work so systematically that she had time to teach her children. Her elementary schooling and also a great many passages from the Bible. Susannah Wesley was a minister's daughter and her son, John, on May 24th, two hundred years ago, in a little meeting house at Aldersgate Street, London, dedicated his life to God and later became one of the greatest Christian leaders of the world.

"THE HOUSE OF QUALITY"

Misses Ruth Rose and Lois Weaver sang a duet with Mrs. K. Weaver as accompanist. Miss Rose gave an interesting paper on "The Indians" telling of accomplishments of James Evans who wrote the Cree Syllabic and the poems of E. Pauline Johnson, Indian poetess. Miss Vera McAdam and Mr. John Coggins sang a duet with Miss Frances McKeown as organist. Miss Marion Rose recited a poem, "What I Call Living." Mr. Norman Hunt rendered a guitar solo and Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" by James Whitcomb Riley. Rev. J. E. Beckel briefly addressed the audience and Mr. John Coggins staged a song game. At the close the Young People of Bethel served a delicious lunch to the guests and all enjoyed a social half hour. Votes of thanks were reciprocated and the Bethel Young People will not resume their midweek services until Fall.

Weddings

MAUND—YOUNG

Great interest in North Bay was centred about the wedding of Kathleen Lenore Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Young, North Bay, and Frederic Walton Maund, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Maund, North Bay, which took place quietly in Carlton Street United Church, Toronto, Saturday, May 7.

The church was lovely with spring flowers for the occasion. Rev. J. D. Parks officiated, and during the signing of the register Miss Stretton sang a solo.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. A. K. Kember, Toronto, and William Maund, North Bay, brother of the groom, was best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was stunning in a street-length gown in powder blue shade, fashioned with a flared skirt and with bodice pleated in navy. Her accessories were navy blue and she wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Kember chose a grey suit with which she wore red accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the roof garden of the Royal Park Plaza Hotel where Mrs. Young received, dressed in navy sheer material. She wore a large navy straw hat with white facing and a corsage of gardenias. The groom's mother also received. Her lovely gown was of nightfall blue chiffon, with a corsage of lilies-of-the-valley. She wore a white baku hat with blue flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Maund left later for a motor trip to the United States. For travelling, the bride donned a two-piece tailored suit in powder blue shade with which she wore robin red accessories.

They will reside in Sudbury.

Besides the parents of the bride and groom, those from North Bay attending the wedding were Miss Patricia Maund and William Maund, sister and brother of the groom, Fred Maund, Mrs. George Walton and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Brown, Belleville were also present at the marriage.

VIVIAN—GARRISON

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Carnifton parsonage, on Wednesday, May 11th, when Miss Verna Izabella Garrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Garrison of Bancroft, became the bride of Gordon Thomas Vivian of Thurlow Township.

At three o'clock the bride and groom with their attendants, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Weese, took their places under an arch of pink and white, banked with potted ferns, where the ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate relatives by the Rev. W. R. Merrick.

The youthful bride looked charming in a beautiful gown of Wenese Blue triple sheer and large picture hat, with navy accessories, and white fox fur. She carried a beautiful bouquet of Sweetheart roses, carnations and bouvardias. Her attendant, Mrs. Weese, wore a pretty dress of rose beige sheer crepe and navy accessories, and Silver fox fur and corsage of Sweetheart roses.

The young couple left for a tour through the Eastern States and New York city, the bride travelling in a dress of navy and white figured crepe, with navy accessories.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful travelling case, to the attendants, silver compact, and gold tie clasp and collar pin. Mr. and Mrs. Vivian will reside in Toronto.

GIRL GUIDES TO RALLY IN CITY

Two Hundred Girls to Take Part in Programme

Two hundred Girl Guides representing Belleville, Point Anne, Frankford, Campbellford, Picton, Trenton and Stirling companies will be in the city on Saturday afternoon for the first annual District Rally. Belleville will be represented by three companies of Girl Guides, one of Rangers and two Brownie Packs, and the On-tario School for the Deaf Company.

The Rally takes place at the Armouries at three o'clock in the afternoon and the R.C.A.F. band will be in attendance through the kind permission of Wing Commander Godfrey.

An interesting program has been arranged including the March Past, Brownie Pow Wow, Spanish Dance and Costume dance by the O.S.D. Company, Exhibition of Home Work and Relay Games, Scangers Round and Flag Drill.

The Rally to which friends and parents are invited will give a comprehensive idea of the work taken up by the Guides and Brownies during the year.

It's Happened Before

By MARTIE RAMSON

I hope my friend, Moe Robbins, will forgive me for this, but the urge to write this story overshadows all consequences.

Moe was, still is, for that matter, a darn good clothing salesman; in fact, one of the best in the business. But Moe was very reticent in proclaiming his virtues as a salesman. He preferred to tell how many winners he picked in the day's races and how the handicappers, who get paid for picking winners are "all wet." Moe, like all men, are better bet for pastime, never delved into the history of a horse, but played hunches and jockeys.

Two weeks before the closing of the Santa Anita race track, Moe, who did not believe in working Saturdays, suggested to his wife that they go to the races.

Now, Sarah Robbins didn't know any more about race horses than I know about Einstein's Theory of Relativity, but, never having seen a race horse or a horse race, she availed herself of the opportunity.

They arrived at the track without any mishaps, and, of course, immediately purchased a program making a lot of notations along the margins which Sarah did not understand nor was she interested.

After some consideration, Moe bought a two dollar ticket on Pickwick to win, saying to Sarah, "The clockers don't give him a chance, but I'm betting him on the nose."

"What nare, Moe," she said. "You do as you think best. They're not any smarter than you are." After which she kept wondering who the "clockers" were, and what Moe meant by playing on the horse's nose.

Well, believe it or not Pickwick won the race and Moe collected nine dollars and eighty cents.

"So you see Sarah" he was saying, "you've got to use your head when you play the horses. You can't just take your money and throw it away on a horse because some handicapper tells you it's going to win. But why gets paid for what he thinks not for what he knows."

"I guess may be that's right, Moe," replied Sarah indifferently.

Moe studied the second or third, the second being a maiden and the third a three furlong race.

By this time Sarah was becoming more enthusiastic. Before the start of the second race she remarked to Moe: "Number four horse sure looks better than the rest," and her pulse quickened as number four came down the stretch in front of the others to win the race. Moe left her before the race started, to get a "bite."

Moe bet a six dollar combination in the fourth race for Tony, explaining to Sarah that he was betting the horse to come in first, second and third. Sarah looked at him as if to ask how a horse can come in first, second and third in one race, but Moe evidently sensed what was on her mind, hastened to make the situation clear to her.

Mr. Tony ran a close fifth which lowered Moe's standard as a horse player in Sarah's estimation. But the bottom dropped out of her esteem for his ability when he bet off twenty dollars in the fifth and sixth races. He was sure, however, that he knew who was going to win the last race.

"Sarah," he said, "I'm going to bet ten dollars on Evening Star. The horse is three to one. In other words, Sarah, this race with put me even."

"I hope so, Moe," was all the comment she made.

As there was a wait of some twenty-five minutes between races they decided to look the horses over in the paddock as they came out.

Moe couldn't help admiring his choice, Evening Star, while Sarah thought that Playmate was a "gorgeous looking creature."

Yes, Sarah," said Moe, "but only fools bet on twenty to one shots, and that's what they are of-fering on Playmate, so you know how much of a chance he has."

While Sarah was admiring the horse, she was still wondering whom Moe meant by "they."

"Sarah" Moe said, "I'll meet you at the rail where we have been standing. I'm going over to buy a ticket on Evening Star," to which Sarah said nothing.

It was a great race and even Sarah tried to cheer Moe's selection home, but Evening Star ran a poor second to Playmate.

Poor Moe was afraid to talk about the race to Sarah, for if there was anything he hated, it was to hear someone tell him, "I told you so."

We'll sighed. "Let's go home. Guess I'm not so good as I thought I was."

"Yes, guess ye can go now," replied Sarah, and as they started back from the rail she asked, "Moe, what do I do with this."

Poor Moe! His vanity was crushed as she showed him a win ticket for five dollars on Playmate.

"Where, where" he stammered, "did you get this?"

"Why, Moe, I was standing right behind you when you bought your ticket."

"In health matters my advice is... safety first."

Horse Shortage

Weyburn, Sask. —(CP)—It was tough sledding on the J. H. Newtough farm in this southeastern Saskatchewan district this spring. Instead of having 23 horses, only six survived a hard winter and of these only three could be worked. Six were killed by a train, nine others died from spinal meningitis and one ran away.

BRITTLE NAILS ARE PROTECTED BY A NEW WAXY PREPARATION

By JULIET SHELBY
Central Press Writer on Beauty

RENEE ART last is an innovation that will be welcomed by all of you that long for strong, well-groomed nails. It is no long drawn out series of treatments that you will as likely as not give up or forget before you have ever gotten the nails of your desire. Quite the reverse. It can be done with only a few minutes tacked on to the time you are accustomed to take when you give yourself a manicure or have one at a beauty shop. And you can get the same treatment either at your own hands or those of your favorite manicurist.

It is a new waxy base that is applied before the nail polish. This preparation has been known in Hollywood for sometime, but only in the last month has the rest of the world known about the wonderful results that it has had.

The protective wax in the base helps to prevent splitting and cracking of the nail. It forms a hard, even coating, encouraging the nail to grow out without breaking. So it is a real joy if you are one of the ones who have to bang a typewriter for a living or do lots of work around the house.

If you are giving yourself a home manicure you proceed in the usual way. After you have removed your old polish, cleaned your nails with warm water, a nail brush and soap, shaped your nails with your emery board, pushed back your cuticle and removed the dry dead skin, you are ready to put on the wax. The only thing to think of when you apply the base, is to cover the nail tips and leave a narrow line bare all around the base and sides of the nail. That's so you will be sure to cover the edges of the undercoat when you come to put on the polish.

Maureen O'Sullivan
Her hands are always lovely

Easy to Apply

This preparation whips over the nail as easily as polish does. Let it dry and then put on your polish. It doesn't take long to dry, and there is no feeling of sitting around all day impatiently waiting for your nails to dry.

Because of the hard surface the undercoat provides, polish wear is improved. It acts as a polish foundation, filling up any ridges or unevenness in the nails so that polish will flow on smoothly and adhere evenly. And it doesn't streak.

You can wear as many coats of polish over the base as you wish, but it is a very good idea to put on at least two. If your nails are long enough, put a little of the base under the nail as well.

When polish requires, repairing, simply put another coat over the first, and your base can be left on indefinitely. Regular lubricant polish remover takes it off.

This little aid will make your manicure last with you day in and day out. It will be a life-saver to those or you who have thin, brittle nails.

New Recipes Help Cook Keep Cookie Jar Filled

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Molded Tomato Salad on Lettuce
Peas Cookies
Tea

I have spoken many times in this column about keeping the cookie jar filled. I suppose one reason I think this is important is because I am busy and making a batch of cookies while I bake a little time helps me out so many times. I make a simple cookie or serve fresh or stewed fruit with cookie for dessert, or just the cookies alone. I think that is the dessert habit as mine has, cookies are a big help, and I am giving you an unusual recipe that I know you will like to try.

Today's Recipe

MINCEMEAT BROWNIES — One cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup melted butter or margarine, one cup light brown sugar, one egg, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup mincemeat. Nutmeats may be added, a quarter of a cup being sufficient. Grease a shallow eight-inch pan. Line with waxed paper and grease it. Sift flour, measure and resift, to sifter, add baking powder and salt as each is measured. Melt butter and measure, return to saucepan, stir in brown sugar gradually, mixing it in well. Add unbeaten egg and beat vigorously. Add vanilla and mincemeat. Sift in dry ingredients. Mix well. Turn into prepared pan, bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, about 40 minutes. Turn out on a wire rack, remove waxed paper; sprinkle with powdered sugar and when cold, cut in squares.

ORANGE MARMALADE ROLLS—Two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one egg, two tablespoons sugar, one cup milk, one-fourth cup melted butter or margarine, orange marmalade or other jam. Grease muffin pans, melting butter in one of the pans. This will make about 18 muffins, depending on their size. Sift flour, measure and return to sifter. Add baking powder and salt as they are measured. Beat egg, add sugar, milk and melted fat. Beat together well. Add dry ingredients all at once, stir just enough to mix. Turn into muffin pans, filling them two-third full, put a small spoonful of orange marmalade in each muffin and bake in an oven 425 degrees until nicely browned and baked through, from 20 to 25 minutes. Strawberry jam, or any thick jam may be used instead of the orange marmalade.

Sticky Cinnamon Buns

Two cups scalded milk, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-fourth cup sugar, one cake compressed yeast, one-fourth cup lukewarm water, flour (about six cups), one-fourth cup softened butter, brown sugar, cinnamon, raisins or currants. Cool milk to lukewarm, add salt, sugar and yeast cake which has been dissolved in the warm water. Add flour to make a soft dough and knead thoroughly until it is smooth and won't even tell their age to the census taker; they must be nearly thirty."

Roll into a sheet one-fourth inch thick, spread liberally with butter, brown sugar, and cinnamon. Add currants or raisins and roll as for jelly roll. Cut into slices and place close together in a greased pan which has been sprinkled with brown sugar. Let rise until light and then bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees Fahrenheit, for 20 minutes.

Practically Nothing

By LILLIAN OAKLEY

When I left Ted Rayburn in New York in the spring I had been practically eating out of my hand. So when the president of the Drama club in our little summer colony told me Ted was coming down to put on "The Loves of Lady Isobel" for the club, I knew that I could have any part of the play that I wanted.

His train got in at five in the morning, but I was waiting. Before he got through raving about how beautiful I was to get up practically in the middle of the night to come down to him, I told him I wanted the part of Lady Isobel in the play.

But instead of saying "Okay. Love of My Life," as I expected him to, he pulled out a note book and showed me the list of the cast. Not one of the members of our colony and how much each had contributed to the Drama club. And because the fathers of Edith Grand and Evelyn Stroud had given the most, Edith and Evelyn would have to be Lady Isobel.

"Your show's a flop right now," I told him. "Those two girls you've picked are absolutely positively the last so old roles I'll ever play."

"Even at that extreme age," Ted said, "they may be able to creep out on the stage and mumble a few words. And for gosh sake, beautiful, remember the boss did it and don't frighten me about it."

For a minute I felt as if I just wouldn't be in anything so solid as this play was going to be. But when our Drama club puts on a show people come from miles around. Last summer one of the big New York producers was in the audience, and after the play he walked up and gave the leading lady a big contract. I couldn't afford not to be in it. But it certainly burned me up to see talent and beauty all snubbed for a few paltry dollars.

After dinner we met at the boat house and the committee helped Ted assign the parts. All but Lady Isobel's, and they left it up to Edith and Evelyn to decide which one of them would be Lady Isobel. The part they gave me was perfectly asinine—a mere little flirt in white organdie and blue ribbons. It made me sick, I threw my bow for art in the lake basket when I read it.

The only thing that made life bearable was the way Edith and Evelyn acted. First one and then the other would get Ted off in a corner and tell him why she should be Lady Isobel. He kept giving me the S.O.S. sign. But it wasn't my day to get sissy from using too many good turns so I just left him to stew in his own juice.

"Fret 'em back, beautiful, and I'll give you the part so quick it'll make your head swim." Ted told me after our third attempt at rehearsing without knowing which one was Lady Isobel.

"Cross your heart and hope to die if you don't." And I made him do it. It looked almost impossible for me to get rid of both of those girls, but you never can tell.

Just when I thought we were going to have to give the play up or make Lady Isobel a twin, the committee came to our house to dinner.

It's the first time I ever did get an inspiration from starring at the table, but Doctor Bradley mistakes for talent. So I just never told about the time he had the two richest women in the congregation wanted the same pew. The board and committee were about to spill up over it when Doctor Bradley settled the whole thing without any trouble.

As soon as we got up from the table I excused myself and went over to see Edith. Then I went and had a little visit with Evelyn. I enjoyed myself at both places.

Ted was late that night. The minute he came on the stage Edith rushed over and handed him her script for Lady Isobel.

"Awfully sorry to disappoint you, Ted," she said, "but we have unexpected guests and I won't be able to work up such a big part. Give it to Evelyn and let me be in the chorus."

Everybody looked at Evelyn. She didn't look happy—just sort of upset.

"I'm terribly sorry, Ted," she said, "but my aunt is very ill, and mother said at dinner that I mustn't accept such an important role for we might be called away at any time."

Ted looked positively goofy. If I hadn't walked right up and taken the part o' Lady Isobel out of his hand I don't know what would have happened. But I swung right into being Lady Isobel and we had a grand rehearsal.

"What'd you do to those two girls?" Ted demanded as soon as we started home. "You did something. When I saw them this morning they were both still dead set on being Lady Isobel."

"It's Lesson Number Three in my Modern Psychology," I told him. "You visualize yourself being what you want to be and you're it. I see myself as Lady Isobel. I am Lady Isobel."

"Baloney," he scoffed, "you did something. I hope I get out of town without having my throat cut."

But what I'd done was practically nothing. I just told Edith that Ted was going to suggest at the next rehearsal that she and Evelyn settle for the part of Lady Isobel by letting the oldest one have it. Then I told Evelyn the same thing.

AT THE BELLE

"Jesebel"

No young actress of the screen seems to be quite so excellent in the portrayal of strong, self-conscious, hot-tempered (and sometimes even nasty) girl, as Bette Davis, the sad blonde Warner Bros. star.

She brought the most striking of her characterizations yesterday at the Belle Theatre where she appeared in "Jesebel", colorful drama of the old Deep South, the locale being New Orleans of the early 1850's, a decade before the Civil War.

The audience which saw yesterday's first local presentation of "Jesebel", pronounced it even more exciting than her recent "Marked Woman" or "Dangerous" for which she won the 1936 Academy award, or even her celebrated "Of Human Bondage" with Leslie Howard.

She plays the part of Julie, a cosmopolitan spoiled and self-centered young socialite of the Southern city. She is given the same name as the notorious wicked woman of Biblical lore because she defies all the traditions of the place and age. She drinks, she smokes, she toys with men's hearts, and her greatest pleasure lies in having men fight over her. She sends away the man she loves because of a silly whim. Next she proceeds to break the heart and spirit of another dashing cavalier, Ike. He ends in a duel fought over her. When her former beau marries another woman, she starts all her old charm to win him away from his wife. That's the kind of a gal "Jesebel" is. And that's the kind of acting Bette Davis excels in.

In "Jesebel", which will be repeated again tonight and Friday matinee and evening, George Brent and Henry Fonda play opposite Miss Davis. Also in the cast are Margaret Lindsay, Fay Bainter, Donald Crisp, Richard Cromwell and many other noted players.

Radio's Charlie McCarthy

Radio's No. 1 laugh team Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy are appearing on the same program in a clever and side-splitting comedy "Pure Feud", also Carl Hoff and his Knights of Melody in a smart musical revue featuring Minor and Root, famous dancers.

Grandma Cruel To Children

Brutally Beats Them When She Loses Her Temper

By VIRGINIA LEE

A BRUTAL grandmother who beats her daughter's small children when they are left in her care is the subject of a letter in today's mail. She offers to take care of the youngsters, and then when they do something they shouldn't she picks them up and strikes them repeatedly, then throws them away from her.

The letter this woman's daughter-in-law wrote is too long to print, and it would do no good to do so. When these little children were abused she says she ran from her mother-in-law's house, as she could not bear to see it. Shouldn't a woman in her fifties be able to better control her temper, and question, and sooner or later will not the children grow to hate her? Her own children still talk of the whippings they used to get when they were small.

Yes, it is too bad that a woman your mother-in-law's age has no self-control. That is something one should learn in early childhood, but so few of us have adequate control over our emotions. Could not have interfered and saved your children from such brutal treatment, which might be permanently injured, you know. If their parents know of it, surely they will not leave the babies in her care, even if they are hopelessly weakened and the grandmother's feelings are hurt, it would be much better than to have the little body so maimed, to say nothing of the nervous strain and, hence the tots' most feel when their grandmother loses her temper so completely.

Unashamed Kids

I do not wonder that you feel you could do nothing helpful to this woman when she treats children so, but that should not be. The only way we can help such people is to try to find out what makes them act that way with us. Were her people cruel to her? Or was she spoiled and allowed to have her own way always if she had a fit of temper? At any rate, the only thing to do is to talk to her when she is calm, try to find out from her why she has these uncontrollable bursts of temper, and quietly and gently point out what to do to the children. Maybe you could get her interested in some of the books of advice on parents' problems with their children, and offer her to read them. Tell her that experts say you never should punish a child while you are angry, and never for things in which you want his co-operation. Maybe you could, by sympathy and gentleness, win her to mend her ways.

Black Lipstick Latest In Cosmetic Circles

It Is Licorice in Stick but Your Favorite Color When Applied to Mouth

Applying new black lipstick with pencil-like cover.

By LISBETH

FASHIONS IN cosmetics are just as changeable and interesting as fashions in clothes. Women have come a long way in this direction since the days when any modest flush on her cheeks was considered a blush.

Vivid lipsticks have been the vogue for some time, but heretofore they have not emulated finger nails and taken on all the colors of the rainbow. Recently, however, a cosmetic firm has launched a black lipstick that promises to be very popular. Yes, this lipstick is black as licorice in your fingers—but it goes to a ram red on your lips, so don't worry. Black lips would hardly be alluring we fear.

This lipstick made with this change in coloring is practically indelible. It comes in various popular shades—"66 it is always black in the stick form.

The case is a new swivel arrangement—as tricky as the stick itself.

Another firm is offering a bath box that is delightful and would make an excellent personal shower present for a bride-to-be. The box which contains the cosmetics is delightful and will stand the dampness of the bathroom without wilting. It holds a powder, sachet, shower oil, bath oil talcum, cold cologne and small cake of fine soap.

Equally suitable for a shower or wedding gift for the bride is this same firm's sachets put up in different sizes and beautifully fashioned of satin or taffeta to perfume the clothes. There are sachets for the bureau drawers and for the travel bag, and there are perfumed bags to hold all the powder and cologne.

FLATTERING TOUCHES OF WHITE TRIM FROCKS

By Central Press

FLATTERING touches of white, especially at the throat, are becoming to women who are no longer girls, and who wear what is known as "women's sizes". They are being used extensively on this type of frock.

This slim, one-piece frock is designed in larger sizes, and is made of a gaily floral printed rayon crepe for a slenderizing effect. Short puffed sleeves and attractive touches of white at the square neck are the smart fashion points, and there are pleats in the front of the skirt to give sufficient width for comfortable walking.

Toys Any Toddlers May Have

Tiny Tot Finds Pots and Pans Splendid Plaything

TOYS ANY TODDLER NNN
By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

THE TODDLER need not be rich in order to have toys. He can have them in the poorest home; they are all around him.

He likes to fill and empty and carry things about in a small basket, box, pan or pail. The pans and lids of the kitchen are also precious toys for the baby. The toddler likes to pull about cardboard boxes by a double string; to push tiny objects found on the floor through a slit in the top of an empty coffee can. Pins are safer there than in his stomach.

Any old can makes big blocks out of inexpensive wood, say, two by four, or four by four. Scores of these blocks should be two or four times as long as wide—even longer. Some small boards or blocks can have a hook in the end of one and an eye in the end of another for the child to fasten together in a train and be dragged with a string. Well if the lower front edges are smoothed off, in order to slide better. Save the wrapping cord for him and he will learn to fasten all sorts of things together crudely.

Big spools or button molds can be got at a tailor shop for mounting on a big board or box. This box or wheels or castors may be good to keep his small playthings in. Out of such material an older child can make a thing wagon for his toddler.

When food arrives in containers let the toddler move it around, and place it in all sorts of piles. Carefully open them for him. Containers of the tot can have them afterwards. Also he likes to leaf through magazines and look at the pictures. As soon as he can handle unsharpened scissors he can cut out pictures from old magazines and paste them on paper. Or old magazines make a cheap scrap book. You can make the paste from flour and water. Also library paste is inexpensive.

Kindergarten Training

A lead pencil is dangerous, but the tot can have kindergarten crayons—fine, hard ones. Also get the colored odes, for a few cents. Save the wrapping paper for him to draw and scribble on. The back of wall paper remnants is also excellent.

With a strong spoon he can have fun scratching up the ground or sand in the back yard. Out of doors, or standing on a strong box by the kitchen sink, he can pour water into milk bottles. With a ten-cent box of colored dominoes he can have a deal of fun. Encourage him to fit them into the box. He may like to build with them and put them in rows.

Expensive Glasses Needless

Pgysician Tells Why Cheap 'Specs' Aid Middle-Aged

EXPENSIVE GLASSES
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A WOMAN writes me to ask whether inexpensive glasses, costing about a dollar, will harm her and her husband's eyes. They are both about 48 years old, and say that she feels she cannot afford expensive glasses and bought these at a department store.

This is a very interesting and important question. It is unfortunate that the economic situation has forced it upon us. But, as it does I think a sensible reply is that to those people whose eyes are becoming blurred on account of age, no harm will come from the use of the inexpensive glasses. The eye disability of old age is entirely different from that of younger people and does not necessarily need such careful examination and fitting.

Presbyopia, or hardening of the lens with age, results in an inability to do close reading or close work of any kind. It is simply the fact that the lens of the eye no longer is elastic and can not be made to focus on near objects. As time goes on, strongand stronger glasses are needed, but there is no reason why these glasses need cost a great deal of money and, in fact, I am quite convinced that any glasses which allow a person in this condition to read and do close work, will do no harm. An indication of this is the fact that old people who have misjudged their glasses often borrow the glasses of about the same age and even after using them for an hour or two, do not have a headache or evidence of eye strain.

Expensive Frames Unnecessary

There is certainly no reason why expensive frames need be used for these glasses because they usually have to be discarded within a few months, until the eyes finally get set at about the age of 55. In view of the economic problem involved here, I really believe in every community some disinterested person or organization should offer to collect the old lenses that people from the age of 46 on are discarding, so that they may be used by others who are too comfortable enough in this world's goods to procure proper ones.

FOXBORO W. M. S. and GUILD

A joint meeting of the two societies was held in the Presbyterian church Tuesday, May 10. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Will Woods was in the chair for the first part of the meeting, while Mrs. George McCullough conducting the latter part. A hymn was sung. Scripture lesson was given by Mrs. (Rev.) MacDonald and prayer offered by Rev. Mr. MacDonald. The roll call, answered by a verse of Scripture with the word „Master", in it, was also given. Readings were given by Mrs. Lake and Mrs. MacDonald. A Biblical contest on "Mothers of the Bible" was very interesting and was won by Mrs. MacDonald. A reading by Miss Bell and a lovely duet by Ann and Isabel McCullough were much enjoyed. Mrs. Woods gave a splendid paper on "What is Worth While." The offering was taken by Bruce and Helen MacDonald. A hymn was sung and Rev. Mr. MacDonald closed the meeting with prayer.

WALLBRIDGE W. I.

The Institute met at the home of Mrs. J. Chisholm on April 27th with a good attendance. The topic for the program was "Temperance" and Mrs. (Rev.) Johnston conducted the meeting in the absence of the appointed members of the W. C. T. U., Belleville, to help with the program. Mrs. J. Moore sang a solo "Not a Sparrow Falleth," and Mrs. McGuire gave a very instructive paper on Temperance.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Moore and Mrs. McGuire. "Thank You" letters were read from Mrs. B. Ketchenson, for flower and cards, and from Mrs. F. Tucker for a letter of sympathy. The election of officers was conducted by Mrs. (Rev.) Johnston and are as follows:

President — Mrs. Jas. Sine.
1st. Vice Pres. — Mrs. S. Nicholson.
2nd.
Secretary — Mrs. Will Woods.
Treasurer — Mrs. W. Wickson.
Pianist — Mrs. E. Lane.
Directors — Mesdames C. Ketchenson, Holmes, Chisholm, Wade and O. A. Ketchenson.
Aud. Director — Mrs. H. Jeffery.
Relief Committee — Mrs. H. B. Johnston, Mrs. G. Nicholson, Mrs. W. Noble.

CHAPTER 18

Judy Goes to Town

We all knew that Parker thought the case just about tucked up. "Nothing to it," he said. "Old husband—love with another man—shoots her husband. It's done every day. Her fingerprints do for suicide, but—as is also quite usual—leaves one ghoul error."

"They meet Barnes out that night; in fact, I guess Barnes witnessed the most of it, but he promises Mrs. Caldwell to keep his mouth shut. Then his New England conscience gets the better of him and he tells her he feels he must tell the sheriff all he knows.

"There's that revolver in the table drawer in the room. She meets her lover that night. They invoke Barnes to the pantry. He probably never knew what hit him. She hides the revolver in the library—doubtless planning to do something else with it later. Hmm-ph—if all cases were as easy as this!"

But the sheriff made no move to arrest Norma Caldwell.

I was rather down in the mouth that morning, still blaming myself for finding that old revolver, and I couldn't understand why the sheriff seemed so glad that I did find it.

"The very piece I'd been hunting for," he chuckled. "Plus my M.O. a little sooner just made for it. All I need now are a few more pieces and the case is all tied up."

Slowly the picture began to emerge. Judy Bixby had been in her room all that night—anything might happen to you, I warned you about hunting for that revolver. Gosh—if I'd known you were intending—"

"Oh, Mac! Wasn't it queer about the lights? We were petrified—I'm sure, for we were just talking about that unknown person. Then we thought just the bulb in the hall light had burned out, but when we couldn't light the others—if it hadn't been for my flash I'd never have gotten back to my room."

The electrician said—looked as though the wire ha' been cut."

"Cut?"

"Yes—another mystery. I with your promise to keep out of this from now on, Judy. I don't like it. I don't like it at all."

He was more serious than I had ever seen him.

"I don't like it either," I said, "but I wouldn't think of deserting Norma Caldwell now. She is such a darling, Mac. I don't blame all the men for falling in love with her. If I were Peter I'd carry her straight off in my boat and hide her on a forsaken isle. Mac—it really does come back to me—I've been reading Edgar Allan Bidy, and it she thinks it possible—"

He gazed away at his pipe for a long moment without speaking. "Do you know, Judy—I'm going to take this unknown person pretty seriously, and I can't connect him with Mrs. Caldwell. I can't connect murders promiscuously. If the silver had been taken—if it were taken—Was the face you saw at library window anything to do with the one we saw in that room over the garage?"

But I could not answer that question. The apparition had been elusive.

"Mrs. Caldwell believes it was a person in her room, trying to kill her that night as she was wounded by Barnes."

"And Eddy never would have done that. I think we'd better have another talk with the sheriff."

We never got a chance to do that, for on the way the sheriff a minute that afternoon and he was in a great hurry. "Got to go to Boston," he said. "May be gone a couple days. Aaiin't a helper of mine—young Harry—to keep an eye open around here, and of course Bixby will be around on the job, though he thinks everything is all settled now. Gosh—I wish 'twas! But I ain't lettin' you off, Judy. You do all the snoopin' you can and tell me when I get back."

"There's an unknown person," I began, but he glanced at his watch called a cheery "So long" and hurried away.

Things settled down a bit that day, even the few reporters who persisted in hanging about looked rather disconsolate. Not nearly enough doing to suit their taste, I'm sure. Wilson was an old fossil. Why didn't he get on with the case? A light-mouthed old fool."

But I saw Parker giving two of them a ride to the city, and I felt well knew the next morning's paper would be full of startling accusations against Norma Caldwell.

Poor Mrs. Caldwell had had to keep in her room most of the time to evade the cameras. I discovered one precious youth sitting patiently up in a tree with his kodak levelled toward the front bedroom windows. I went in the house and got an axe, and casually walking over to the tree, I began chopping.

"Hey—look here! What are you doing?" he yelled down.

I paid no attention but kept swinging the axe.

There was a great shuffling about, and I soon saw two legs slowly sliding down.

I walked back to the house and I expect that idiot never knew that I was chopping down that tree with the butt of the axe!

It was my afternoon and evening off, but I had no intention of taking advantage of it, especially after the sheriff's admonition.

However, I did decide to go in town and do a few personal errands and try and get in touch with Mary Ann Hadley.

So about four I went down to the dock and hailed the little launch—Captain Jones was just about hourly service from all the docks along the Point both ways. It was glorious on the water and it did seem awfully good to get away from the house. I passed close to a beautiful yacht where they were serving afternoon tea on deck; the women in their gay flowery frocks and the men in white suits. Then, as we drifted into the harbor-town, there in contrast—was a tugboat fishing vessel from which men were working fast unloading huge buckets of mackerel. It was fascinating to watch them.

I went up the board walk of the narrow street on to the main thoroughfare. I lingered for some time in the interesting little shops, and then I went on up the hill to the hotel.

I found the Hadleys in the telephone directory and called Mary Ann.

Oh, of course—nothing would do—Mary Ann would jump in her car that instant and drive in for me. No—it wouldn't take a minute! Useless to protest.

I waited for her on the wide hotel verandas.

The young people scattered about looked bored to distraction and I breathed a little sigh of thankfulness that I was one of them.

Such a thrilling life hidden away under my cruise sport rig! I was a maid in white apron and cap—in love with a chauffeur!

Someone behind me exclaimed—"Judith!" and the voice wasn't Mary Ann Hadley's!

CHAPTER 19

Judith Is Shocked

That voice wasn't Mary Ann Hadley's high soprano—not by a long shot!

"Dad Marsden—you old hooey! Come—I was glad to see him!

But when he announced that he had come to take me home I was shocked and stubbornly, "No use, Dad—I'm going to stick this thing through."

"Not in all those murders, you fussy child! This Mrs. Caldwell—why, the papers all say she shot her husband!"

"I know," I smiled. "They're wrong—Norma Caldwell didn't shoot her husband any more than I did. Oh, Dad—it's a horrible mess and no one knows the solution yet. They've never gotten back to my room."

The electrician said—looked as though the wire ha' been cut."

"Cut?"

"Yes—another mystery. I with your promise to keep out of this from now on, Judy. I don't like it. I don't like it at all."

He was more serious than I had ever seen him.

"I don't like it either," I said, "but I wouldn't think of deserting Norma Caldwell now. She is such a darling, Mac. I don't blame all the men for falling in love with her. There was a great shuffling about, and I soon saw two legs slowly sliding down.

I walked back to the house and I expect that idiot never knew that I was chopping down that tree with the butt of the axe!

"Nonsense!" Miss Lydia said, but she looked pale and shaken.

"I saw the veranda, Judy," exclaimed Mrs. Caldwell. "It was almost dusk. I heard the boat stop at the dock and then I saw a figure coming up the path. Suddenly I ran down the steps, and Mac came running around the house. He picked you up and brought you in here. What made you faint—what frightened you?"

"I shook my head. "I don't know. I heard steps behind me—some-one grasped my shoulders, felt hands at my throat."

"Fingers—wriggly fingers," nodded Miss Lydia. "I don't wonder—this place is a nightmare."

"I didn't see anyone behind you, Judy, but, of course—it was almost dark. Did you see anyone, Mac?"

"No. I heard the boat at the dock, and I thought I might be late, so I started down to meet her. Gosh—I wish I'd started sooner!"

"I'm all right now," I said getting up and going toward the hall. "I'm sorry I frightened you. I guess Miss Caldwell is right about my nerves."

Mac and I went out to the kitchen. He put his arms around me, and oh—how good it was just to cuddle tight against his shoulder!

"Judy—Judy!" he murmured into my hair, "You'll be the death of me, child! I'm going to lock you in your room nights. I thought you said you were just going into town to do a few errands and right back?"

"I—met a girl I used to know, and we—I stayed for dinner. It got later than I thought. Oh, Mac— it wasn't my nerves!"

"I know, darling. I could swear I heard something in the juniper bushes. I'm not going to bed for night until I find out who is prowling around this place."

"I almost said—'Dad thinks—' but caught myself just in time. "I've been thinking—it's someone in league with Grace Linnell—it's a big scheme—"

Mac drew a deep breath. "Yes. I'm beginning to think it is a scheme. Looks as though we were all to be frightened away. Miss Lydia is up in her room, declares it's the only safe place where she feels safe. I hope she doesn't hear of this for if she does, she'll leave—sure as blazes. Yes, sir—I'm going to keep an eye out tonight."

"I hate to have you, Mac," then —as the full significance broke over me—"Please—please don't! I know something dreadful will happen to you!"

"Would you—care a lot, Judy?"

All the tenderness went out of me. "I—I'd just—die!" and fell into convulsive sobbing.

Mrs. Norma Caldwell found us when she came into the kitchen. I guess she wasn't greatly surprised, for she gave us the sweetest, most understanding smile.

No, she didn't think it was my nerves, either. "The three of us were ready to recognize that unknown person.

I told her what Dad had said about Grace Linnell — only of course before—Mac—I had to give it as my own supposition.

"Let's think that through," she frowned. "Grace Linnell wants Mr. Rex gives her money, promising to will her more if she will keep his secret. Probably she knows the amount she is to get and needs it most terribly just at this time. Yes, doubtless there's a man mixed up in it—Grace is a bad girl."

The ladies of Wallbridge United Church met at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Johnston for their May meeting. Group 2 assisted Mrs. Johnston in serving dinner to twenty-five.

The missionary service was in charge of the president and was opened with a hymn and the Lord's Prayer. "The Church and World Peace" was the theme for this service. Members, Mrs. Shoe, J. Hinchliffe, J. Latta, F. Shorey, R. Hinchliffe, gave appropriate Scripture readings showing that justice, inter-racial understanding, right-ousness and the world-wide Christian Church are the foundations on which can be built lasting peace. Prayer for peace by Mrs. J. Chisholm; a poem on "Peace" by Mrs. E. Massey and a story by Mrs. L. Ketchenon were given. Mrs. W. Johnston read a very interesting letter which she had received from her aunt, Mrs. A. Donaldson who is a missionary in China. Mrs. Lane gave a reading on "Opium." Final arrangements were made for observing the fiftieth anniversary of the society on the last of the month. A short business meeting of the W. A. was conducted by the president, Mrs. Radgley, in which Mrs. J. Chisholm and Mrs. J. Johnston were appointed delegates to the convention in Pembore. Mrs. John Hinchcliffe closed with prayer.

India is to have five new sugar factories and many existing ones are to be expanded.

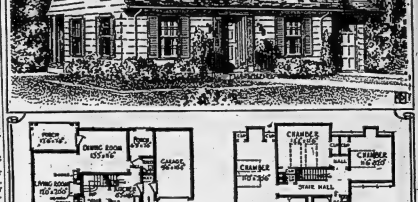
During Committee consideration of the bill, introduced by Senator Lendrum McKenna (Con., Winnipeg) that which would have prevented divorce petitions being entertained until after three years from the date of the marriage was struck out.



Discuss Constitutionality

Discussion of the committee report yesterday centred on the constitutionality of various clauses of the bill. Opposition leader Meighen led an attack on the measure of Sir Allen Aylesworth (Lib. Nort.) York) that same clauses were unconstitutional. Sir Allen had directed his attack at clauses treating of the legitimacy of children, provision for the children of divorced couples and nullity of marriages.

Mr. Meighen said the British North America Act vested the Dominion with specific authority to

Sixth Straight Win of Year Scored by Melton of Giants Number 1 Elbower of League

Defeats St. Louis Cards 5-3 in Hurling Duel With Weiland

YANKS ON TOP

Win Over Cleveland And Senators Losing to Detroit Helps

(By Sid Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Meet the 1938 Yanks. He not only has the temperament, he even looks like one, this Cliff Melton of the Giants' sophomore southpaw who's standing National League batters on their ears.

He's built on the general proportions of Lefty Grove, six-footish about six-feet-and straight up from his shoe 12's, and his mane distinctly resembles one part of outdoor-sized ears, but he can pitch.

Cliff showed it in his league debut, a 12's, and his mane distinctly resembles one part of outdoor-sized ears, but he can pitch.

Cliff showed it in his league debut, a 12-inning affair against the Cardinals which he finally won, 4-3, with an unbeaten run of six straight. He's one of the chief reasons Bill Terry's Giants are rocketing an early season runaway of the National League race what with Chicago Cubs showing signs of coming apart at the seams.

And, with the Yankees in first place in the American League pennant parade, as the result of their 4-1 win over Cleveland Indians yesterday, the situation looks as though things are on the way toward the third straight championship monopoly of old New York, despite the fact the calendar shows only May 13.

Cards New Screwballs

It took a lot of scrubbing to whip the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday, but Melton had it and the Giants won, 5-3 for their fifth in a row. Cliff was given a hot fight by Lefty Bob Weiland, but he kept breezing 'em in, and finally his mates showed two runs across in the ninth to get the game on ice and drop the Gas-House gang into seventh place.

The Yankees, meanding, gained their seventh straight win and their strength of their extra-base power and a fine nine-hit pitching effort by young Charlie Chandler. Tommy Henrich and Red Rolfe whacked homers in the Yanks' first inning and that was good for 19 bases.

Since Washington Senators were having their seven-game streak rulined 4-1 by Vernon Kennedy and the rest of Detroit Tigers, the Yanks pulled themselves out in front by a two percentage point lead and the Nats dropped to second.

Lefty Grove made it five in a row and tossed Boston Red Sox to a 4-2 decision over Chicago White Sox, thereby boosting Boston Red Sox into a third-place deadlock with Cleveland.

Van Mauge Hot

The Cubs came apart with a bang as Van Lingle Mungo got back to the wars with his fireball, a neat curve and control, and in the first game of the year, 7-0, for the Dodgers in Ebbets Field. It stood out since he whitewashed these same Cubs back in September of 1936, and raised the Brooklyns to sixth place.

St. Louis Browns, buried in the American League cellar, worked a triple play and went on to a 9-4 edge over Connie Mack's fumbling Athletics, who only made five errors.

Boston Bees-Cincinnati Reds and Philadelphia Phillies game last out to cold weather.

SPEEDY GERMAN WILL SHOW WARES

Otto Van Berg Meets Bonnie Scott in Main Preliminary

A varied program of the modern and scientific methods of wrestling has been arranged for the Rumo Arena on Friday night including grappling of the lighter and more agile class as well as the bulky, pachyderms the calibre of Scotty McDougall, the methodical Scot, who meets Count Zarynoff, the Russian of nodding acquaintance.

In the lighter class Otto VanBerg the speedy German grappler, meets Scotty McKewan, a newcomer to local wrestling circles in the curtain-raiser. These men weigh in around the 190 pound mark, thus assuring speed with their strenuous and pugnacious efforts. Also in the semi-final bout, however, two old favourites, Chief Lynx and Mike Dominic will "test" each others' wrestling prowess.

Emerging a metropolitan atmosphere, the main bout of the night, bringing together Count Zarynoff and Scotty McDougall, two world-renowned grapplers, is the outstanding event in the local wrestling circles as a local main attraction in the years. With the latter being eliminated as a local main attraction in the ring with the Count, Zarynoff is elevated and assumed a return bout in Belleville when he defeated Ward Marvel or the Canadian champion, John Katan, who is undefeated in a Belleville ring.

Zarynoff won his only appearance in a local ring in a most impressive manner a fortnight ago and won for himself the respect and admiration of the wrestling clientele, while McDougall has always commanded the respect and good wishes of local wrestling fans, he will face his toughest opponent yet when he meets Zaryneff on Friday night.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, May 12 (AP)—Yankee slugging has (Cleveland) been blasted for fair. . . . The Reddicks have won only two of their last 25 games. . . . Because that Ruth "can build" . . . Some correspondent missed his paper . . . Simon Bussell: "The Dodgers are just one big, unhappy family" . . . Between the pitcher, were the latest to square off . . . Cliff Melton's southpaw whistled himself between them, took a toe-hold, and there was no fight that day. . . .

Arch Ward, Chicago Sports editor, who got the idea of the annual game between the professional and college all-stars . . . Since he became a popper, Joe Cronin has been hitting .400 to get him out of his blues were for extra bases . . . seems as though he should be peddling around the cigars. . . .

Jigger Statz, veteran Los Angeles outfielder, hasn't bought more than three new bats in all his days in baseball. He always carves out a big hole in the palm of the glove and then he is ready to go to work . . . When someone chides him on old glove, Jigger says it, cuts out the hole and makes a new one for himself . . . And don't think they used to consider Jigger one of the niftiest fielders in the biz back in his day with the then Oh-so-Daffy Dodgers. . . . Fielding is supposed to be good. Al Schacht, the baseball clown, has added a comedy-fielding chauffeur and valet. . . . Omigosh!

GEORGE S. LYON, GRAND OLD MAN OF GOLF, IS DEAD

Started Game at 38 And Referred to Golf as "Tipcat"

WON MANY HONORS

Held Dominion Amateur Title in Seven Different Years

Toronto, May 12—(CP)— George Seymour Lyon, 74, jokingly referred to golf as "tipcat" when he took his first contact with the game but who later became known as Canada's grand old man of golf is dead.

The man who never touched a club until he was 38 but who won the Canadian Amateur Championship for the first of eight times in 1896, two years after he first held a club, died here yesterday. He was 79.

An all-round athlete, Lyon's sports left even cricket, when he had his first golf "pointer" in 1896. On his way by golf course while returning home from a cricket game he was invited by a friend to "take a swing" at the ball and then Lyon jokingly called the game "tipcat."

"That was to show my contempt for it," he said.

But he took the swing and "the next thing I knew I had played three holes—and I was hooked. It didn't play again that year, but he joined a Toronto club in 1897. The next year after he won the Dominion Amateur title and repeated in 1900, 1902, 1905, 1906, 1908, 1913 and 1914.

Born Near Oshawa

Lyon, born at Richmond, near Ottawa, moved to the United States Amateur title but he reached the final in 1901 in conjunction with the St. Louis World Fair. Lyon's batting record in Canadian cricket still stands. He established the mark—238 runs, not-out—in 1894. A crack tennis and baseball player and swimmer, he confined his athletic activities to golf and competition for 27 years. For years in the golfing world Lyon was the only thing I haven't done is play polo."

Sam Good Golfer

He married Annette Avery Martin, who predeceased him in 1931. His two sons, George and Fred, were also established golfers, Fred, who died of war wounds in 1925, reaching the Canadian Amateur semi-final three times. Lyon once defeated Fred in the final for the club championship.

Lyon was a familiar figure at the International Golf Club at Islington, which he entered in 1923, among Great Britain, Canada and the United States. He was always well to the front in these contests, and his performance last year included several scores in the high 70's and the low 80's.

NINE SWIMMERS GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Pass Beginners Test And Ready to Take "Life Saving" Award

Nine local swimmers, all pupils of the Y.M.C.A., passed their tests and final test in the Canadian Y.M.C.A. swimming awards, intermediate level, in the waters of the Y pool last evening before a capacity gallery. The "Y" pool was especially equipped with "splash curtains" and seating capacity for the comfort of the parents and public who attended the meet.

The class was under the supervision of Physical Instructor Fred Hitchen and last night completed the test of the five stages of proficiency between a "beginner" and preparation for the special "life saving" award, that follows in the post-graduation test of eight laps in the pool. Those successful in passing last night's final test were Stan Wiggins, Blake Kerr, Ross Clare, Sid Figden, Johnnie Bradley, Marshall Hitchon, Neil Weller, Bob Holland, and Gordon Griffin. Instructor Hitchen's "life saving" classes will commence immediately and to date include fourteen boy applicants and a number of young lady members of the "Y". All trying the life saving finals last night have previously attained their five stages of proficiency award for intermediate level.

The tests last night included treading water, endurance ability, correct swimming strokes, proficiency in diving and endurance in the water. The initial test included surface dives in deep water from a platform, a 50 yard back stroke using frog kick, a 100 yard crawl stroke using trudgeon kick with inactive feet only being used to propel the swimmer and the completion of 440 yards, or 17 times the length of the "Y" pool. The swimmer's test of the evening was provided when each contestant was required to jump into the pool fully clothed and remove outer clothing including shoes, within 30 seconds of striking the water.

The test and their results were warmly received by the gallery that packed the Y pool and, with the "Y" board, upward of 190 spectators filled the gallery and, when unravelled at the splendid efforts of the contestants, the task of picking the winner was difficult for the teen-aged contestants, but all to receive their awards from Instructor Hicken at the next meet.

MEOLA EASES UP AND BEARS SCORE 5 RUNS TO WIN

Going Into Ninth Toronto Had Four Run Lead And Appeared Safe

RED WINGS WIN TWO

Rochester Climbs to Top of Second Division With Victories

Take the word of International League pitchers who have faced them, those Newark Bears are mighty tough members of opposing hurling brigades.

If things aren't bad enough for pitchers, what with lively balls and short fences, the Bears are making it tougher for those elbowers who hold by the time-honored customs of "easing up" with the big boats.

Mike Meola, Toronto Maple Leafs right handed hurler had that out yesterday. Mike was holding a 7-3 lead over the Bears in the fourth and half of the ninth when the big blowoff came.

Before Manager Dan Howley could signal to the bullpen for help, the Bears Manuel Mesta for five runs that won the ball game, 8-7. It is an old, Newark custom. The Bears have rallied to win four games this season with last minute power.

It was the Bears' third straight win and increased their lead over the second place Rochester Bisons to 4½ games. The Bisons had their game with Buffalo Bisons at Memorial Oricles postponed because of cold weather. It was the fourth number of the first division, Jersey City, Toronto and Montreal Royals, scheduled game with Montreal as part of a previous postponement.

The Bears also dropped them into sixth place as the Rochester Red Wings Jersey City Skeeters and the second division with a double over Syracuse Chiefs, 5-4 and 7-6.

TONY GALENTO IS READY FOR BOUT

Unwittingly The Cause of Quarrel Between The Two Jacobs

By Gayle Talbot
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, May 12—(AP)—It looks as though Tony Galento, who said he would be have his beer and be permitted to bite in climbing was born to be a fighter. Ring seems to go right for Tony especially when he's mad, and when he's mad, and when he expects to knock out Natie Mann tomorrow night.

He not just managed to get himself reinstated by the State Boxing Commission and get a fight start making an honest living for his family again, but he has made himself the unwitting cause of war between big manager, Joe Jacobs, and his young protege, Lou Nova.

"Something's always happenin' to me," the beer drinker from Orange mourned after Joe and Mike had their verbal clash yesterday in the Boxing Commission office. "I got kicked out of school because I bit the principal. I got in trouble with the law because I let them hittin' somebody's face. I got kicked out of the army.

"Cher, Joe's sore at me now because I signed a contract for this fight. They wouldn't let me. I told 'em they was goin' to reinstate Joe as manager, so I signed with him and it. Joe says I made a 'scratch man' outa him, whatever that means.

"Besides, these guys here are always tryin' to tell me I gotta fight Nova. They're afraid I'll knock him fair, only except maybe I get sore and bite a little."

May Arrange Playoff Between Two Leagues

Ottawa, May 12 (CP)—President L. V. O'Brien of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association said last night he had received an invitation from the Ontario Baseball Association to attend a meeting between officials of the two organizations and arrange an Ontario baseball playoff at the end of the season.

The invitation came through Secretary W. J. Snyder of Hamilton, whose organization has had difficulties with the Canadian Amateur body for fourteen years.

O'Brien said he would accept the invitation of the O.B.A. and cooperate to the fullest to arrange an Ontario playoff.

"There is too little sound business sense employed in administering the nation's affairs," Governor Barton.

"Practically every step toward so-"Society is laying more and more burdens on the shoulders of government, and will continue to lay them."—Bruce Barton.

"National progress and national prosperity are being held back chiefly because of selfishness on the part of a few."—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"In Great Britain since the armistice we have increased our buying accommodations by 50 per cent."—Sir Josiah Stamp.

NOTHING else drives away that tired, old look and steps up a man's appearance so quickly and easily as a Gillette wake-up shave. It stimulates and refreshes the skin as it removes the toughest stubble right at the base line. That's because the Gillette blade is precision-made for the Gillette Razor. For the cleanest, longest lasting shave you can buy, insist on Blue Gillette Blades—5 for 25c, 10 for 50c.

Between the Lines

CALLING 'EM

with Ken J. Colling

Remember away back last December when the hockey moguls of the Central Ontario district were all agog over the prospects of regaining an O.H.A. grouping? One day their group had a meeting and within only a few hours some club would kick over the traces with the result meetings being held with abandon and sports writers as well as the general public were in general confusion. Well, about the same conditions prevail in the Ontario Baseball League these days. First it took considerable effort to influence Picton into the loop, then the Belleville entry seemed anything but certain. Finally these two up a compact league was seemingly assured of matters looked as a matter of fact too rosy. There's something wrong here, we had too easy a time organizing this league," commented Willie Gibbard after Tuesday night's meeting and his words carried much truth as next day the C.O.B.L. abandoned the loop. The latest reports from along the Bay of Quinte bring fine tidings over, are to the effect that the Kingston C.L.C. will affiliate under the Gibbard club loop and giving the Belleville sport fans total conventional baseball for opening game as in years past.

With the weather most suitable and ideal for baseball weather, the local intermediate ballsters tried to practice last night. The second was supplemented by the appearance of a few veterans and it behooves the local baseball executive to take notice of the fact that

New York, May 12 (AP)—Stocks ambled over a bit rougher terrain in today's market and most leaders failed to make headway.

A few oils, aircraft, steels and rails managed to inch forward, but they did so on a small turnover. Fractional losses were in the majority near the final hour. Transfers were about 500,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, May 12—(CP)—Despite spotty weakness the Toronto Stock market showed a degree of fairly firm front today and at the close the indices showed little variation from the previous close. In Gold Lake Shore was heavy, appearently on the news of a rock slide in the mine and Wright-Hargreaves was in active demand at a slightly better price. Brazilian was inclined to recovery from Wednesday's sell-off on news of raiding in the Brazilian Capital. Volume was fair around the 600,000 share mark.

Brazilian Traction registered a slight recovery from yesterday's sell-off and other Utilities were steady along with the Steels, Foods, and Beverages. Trade in the Base Metals was dull on narrow price adjustments. Western Oils including Calgary-Edmonton, Calmont, Merland, Commonwealth and Royalite posted moderate losses.

Lake Shore dropped to 48 1-2 but recovered slightly to show a loss of about a point. Wright-Hargreaves finished a few cents up. Bone and Britain were down fractions and moderate losses were boarded by O'Brien, Sylvanite, Siscoe, Dominion Textile, Leitch, Perron, Kerr-Addison, and Preston.

Changes in the Base Metals involved minor losses for Noranda, International Nickel, Smelters, Base, and Walle-Amslet and a drop of about 25 cents for Ventures. Canadian Malartic and Pato of 5 cents and other silvers were steady.

Livestock

Toronto, May 12 (CP)— Cattle prices were generally a shade lower in slow trading on the Toronto Livestock Market today. Hogs settled steady and calves held to about previous levels. Sheep or lambs were offered.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch at Canadian Car, 230, calves 180, hogs 460.

Butcher steers and heifers sold at $5.25 to $6.00. Good cows were $4.10 to $4.50 with common and canners from $2.50 to $3.50. A few butcher bulls reached $4.75.

The calf supply was generally common to medium quality, prices ranging from $4 to $5.50. Some good calves brought $7.50 to $8.

Off-truck bacon hogs closed at $10.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford by Canadian Car's Agency

The market has been unable to maintain a sustained rise for a few days, fluctuating irregularly from time to time but they do not cause any undue excitement and no public following is attracted. On the other hand, no urgent liquidation is evident in the situation and from a technical standpoint there is ground for encouragement.

Canadian Car & Foundry

Canadian Car & Foundry Company is rapidly getting itself into a position to earn worthwhile profits over a period of the next few years. The amount of business booked is said to be in the neighborhood of $18,000,000 and more is on the way. Since the Governments at Ottawa as well as Great Britain, France and other nations are likely to continue to do business, especially airplanes in quantity for some time to come Canadian Car's future is probably still trend upward this year and next.

WED. NIGHT'S RAIN REMOVES THREAT OF LIGHT FROST

A good rain which pelted over this district late last night forestalled the threat of a killing frost and the consequent loss of thousands of dollars worth of production in outside vegetable truck gardens.

Commencing shortly after eleven o'clock, the rain fell over a wide section on the crest of advancingly lowering temperatures which gave promise of a severe frost. It completely ponds with the sharp drop to 32 level, leaving a chilling gave in the weather suddenly occurred.

rainfall, however, dispelled the atmospheric tension and ended the night's vigil being observed by many orchardists.

Following the brief downpour a gradual rise in temperature was noted, though early in the morning the descent to near freezing levels was again recorded.

"That rain saved this section thousands of dollars," stated Wm. Reiser, prominent Thurlow farmer. If it hadn't we would have had for this morning the ruined garden crops over the whole area."

D. D. G. M. PAYS OFFICIAL VISIT TO MOTHER LODGE

Rt. Wor. Bro. R. D. Adams Speaks on "Philosophy of Life"

MANY ATTEND

Outwardly and visibly demonstrating his subject with the employment of a jar containing various sized stones, Wor. Bro. R. D. Adams, D. D. G. M. of the Prince Edward District, returned to "is mother lodge, Eureka Lodge No. 383, A. F. & A. M., G. R. C." last evening in the Masonic Temple speaking upon the subject of "A Philosophy of Life"

"Are you shaking up or rattling down?" asked Rt. Wor. Bro. Adams as he carefully shook a large glass jar of various sized stones, while putting his question to one of the largest delegations of Masons throughout the Quinte district, which visited their D. D. G. M.'s own Eureka Lodge last evening. "You will notice no matter how much I shake this jar but the big stones come to the top, while the little insignificant ones drop nearer the bottom. This holds good in the matter of humans also and no matter how much you shake the jar or glass of life, the "big ones" always come to the top.

"This little jar in my hand is a picture of what is going on continuously in the world. The people are the stones and the world shaking up, big people, little people, smart ones, dull, philosophers, fools, honest and dishonest, industrious, discouraged, jaded, cynical, selfish, unselfish, and all the rest, but the same law that shakes down the little sands in this jar is surely acting consciously or unconsciously upon every one of us in the jar of life. As we change in our lives, we automatically change our place in the world's position, whether we shake up or rattle down. Regardless as to your avocation in life we are all governed by the same laws, are the man, who oils the machinery or the industrialist of a large concern. If we fail to grow, we are a rattler and soon will be left in the life's picture," continued the speaker, as he injected several well chosen studies to the worlds bring his thoughts to the cage illustration.

Boosted Too Fast

"There again is the failure of most of our "charity", our uplift campaigns and institutions, they try to raise people rather than sometimes boost a man faster than he can grow himself. Even "charities" back to a resounding thud. This is all there is to Masonry, to Christianity, to our civilization as applied Christianity—helping others to grow bigger, that God's grow higher, ready to "shake up, not down and out", concluded Rt. Wor. Bro. Adams.

Rt. Wor. Bro. J. O. Herity, presented on behalf of the brethren of the evening on behalf of Eureka Lodge, personally added his gratitude for an inspiring address on the "Philosophy of Masonry."

"Eureka Lodge is proud of her representative in Grand Lodge and rightly so after we have been favorded such an illuminating discourse as this evening," added Rt. Wor. Bro. Herity. The speaker was introduced by Wor. Bro. J. Keith, Deputy his official visit to Masonic Lodge degree work in the first degree was exemplified by the lodge officers before the inspecting eyes of the district D. D. When responding to the toast to the visitors, Rt. Wor. Bro. E. J. Marleton, not only had the work of Wor. Bro. P. Geen, Master of Eureka Lodge, and the other lodge officers for their capable degree work. Wor. Bro. Geen occupied the chair during the banquet hour and introduced the evening's program. That included half a dozen Wor. Bro. Brooker, accompanied by Bro. Lennox, and other selections and recitations by Bro. Art Snare.

Kindly Police Officer Aids Poor Lad to Repair His Bicycle

A sad-faced little urchin approached the police station today clutching firmly a bent and twisted front wheel of a bicycle.

Mister Policeman how can I get my wheel fixed? You see it was my dad's a widow and I haven't the money to take it to a repair shop. It was buried in an accident and I can't ride my bicycle any more', the little fellow explained. And the sad-broken little fellow as he looked pleading at Desk Sergeant Arthur Hollow.

"Let's see your wheel, sonny", replied the Sergeant, with a smile as he shake his head with doubt as to his ability to mend the twisted and broken piece of metal.

After examining the damaged wheel for a few minutes the Sergeant eagerly on, Sergeant Booth with a friendly pat on the little fellow's head added—"You leave this wheel with me and I'll see that it's fixed". The last this morning the Sergeant Booth having personally repaired the wheel spokes and had straightened the bent steel rim.

"The hard part of this job will be to get those spokes back where I found them," jocularly remarked the Sergeant as the reporter left.

Capps Mine Produces $25,473 During April

Capps Gold Mines, Charlotte, N.C., reports production for April at 925-672 made up of 8187 tons in bullion, $41 in silver and about $5,700 in concentrates comparing with production of 813.161 in March. April returns were from 8187 tons of mill and Common. Mill recovery was 97.5 per cent. Mill head value was $2.50 per ton. Concentrate production was 1,000 pounds.

Transportation Association.

"You are not suggesting if this bill goes through the trucks will be put out of business?" asked Dr. A. M. Young (Lib., Saskatoon.)

"I think it will be a serious threat to the common carrier," Mr. Dunn replied. "It is a measure primarily directed against the carrier.

In Ontario alone there are 75,000 trucks representing an investment of more than $150,000,000, he said. There are 200,000 persons employed and the investment is $400,000,000, he added.

This was supplied mainly by private individuals who have put their money into the venture. For them, everything was at stake.

"Railway freight rates in the Transport Bill "is a reversion to the principle of rates to transport competition," Mr. Pallon said.

"Such a change in principle would enable a carrier to make a special rate with a shipper, which might be below the statutory rate."

MAYOR BONE RAPS 2 GOVERNMENTS

Says Gov't. Concerned With Politics And Job Seeking

Gananoque, Ont., May 12 (CP)—The charge that Provincial and Federal governments in Canada are concerned chiefly with politics and job seeking was made in an address here tonight by Mayor Jamieson Bone of Belleville.

Addressing the Service Club here Mayor Bone declared bulldog and allied trades had been taxed out of existence, and that Canada was taxed out of their homes and municipalities faced bankruptcy by default.

Just the greatest and most crushing tax on the Canadian people today is the apathy, innocence and indifference of the people to our Provincial and Federal Governments, he said.

Bancroft Nepheline Deposits Interest Mining Companies

Last week's issue of the Bancroft Times notes that the nepheline deposits east of Bancroft as much in the limelight recently, are causing considerable interest among mining men in the United States and Canada, recently.

"During the past week, Gold and Metal Exploration Company of Toronto, have had several drills at work in the district prospecting and optioning properties, and sampling the same. Sample have been sent to the Consolidated Feldspar Corporation, New Jersey, and from the tests the ore was found very promising. In fact, so much so that R. W. Lawson, general manager of the Company and Mr. McHugh secretary-treasurer was in town last week making a visit to several of the properties under option. As a result of this visit, it is expected that work will be started shortly on the properties a short distance from the town," the Bancroft paper notes.

"Options have been taken on the W. J. Mahoney property, the Cooney property and some others east of the town. During the past week we understand that Mr. Mahoney and Geo. McDonald's farm have been optioned by the same company.

"Last Fall the Canadian Nepheline Company purchased the mineral rights on the Dr. Thomson's farm just outside the village limits, and Toronto parties have optioned the Crown lands here been staked. Nepheline is being mined extensively in the glass industry and from what we can learn, there is a big future for the deposits here now. Mining men tell us there is sufficient ore in Bancroft Dominion Township to supply the world," the Times adds.

brother was serving at Prime Minister of Canada. Soon after her marriage she accompanied her husband to Washington and was a guest of the United States capitol's most distinguished residence during the absence in the ministerial mansion.

Mrs. Herridge was in Montreal General Hospital here about five weeks ago. Medical reports since then had given to her friends in New Brunswick and favorable and hopes had been held for her recovery.

However, her condition suddenly became critical last night. She sank quietly.

The marriage of Mildred Marjorie Bennett, to Wilfrid Bennett Herridge on April 14, 1931, was an interesting event in the life of the Canadian capital. It took place six weeks before Mr. Herridge, a prominent figure in Canadian diplomacy, proceeded to Washington as Canada's first diplomatic envoy and minister plenipotentiary. Mr. Herridge served in that capacity until October, 1935.

Mr. Herridge's first wife, who was Rose Isabel Hall, died in 1925.

Always Called Mildred

Throughout Ottawa's administration, Mrs. Herridge's bride of six weeks ago was merely "Mildred"—the Christian name of the woman who had captured the heart of the man who claimed her acquaintance.

Few persons who had ever known to the Canadian people as Mildred Herridge, not because she had forgotten the chatelaine of a household whose head was her distinguished brother-in-law, Dr. W. H. Bennett, but because of her natural modesty and friendliness. She never forgot those whom she had met; her memory for names and faces was a gift peculiar only to those who know how to treasure friendships.

Prior to her marriage in 1931 she had been her brother's hostess and confidante of her brother, Mr. Bennett.

Role of Hostess

After her marriage to Hon. W. D. Herridge, Minister to the United States at the Canadian Legation in Washington, to which position he had been appointed, brother-in-law's popularity was immediately established and the departure of the Herridges from the Canadian capital was a matter of regret. In April, 1932, her son, William, was born.

Returning to Ottawa, she took her place in the social life of the city as the wife of a prominent Ottawa Valley resident.

Widely Read

Mrs. Herridge was widely read and widely travelled. She knew the world from Canada's Pacific coast to the farm lands of New Brunswick and from London to Cairo. She had also collected extensively in Europe her last visit being to Germany last summer. She was also deeply interested in recuperating at Red Neuheim, in the Black Forest.

Previous to that trip, she and

Canada's first telegraph line—connecting Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Hamilton and Toronto—was completed in 1847. Before this, even the most urgent messages were either carried by mounted messenger or entrusted to stage or boat.

In November of the same year, the Canada Life issued its first policy to a resident of Ontario—the first policy issued by a Canadian life insurance company.

Since that time the company is proud to have shared in the development of the province. The savings of its policyholders which have been invested in Ontario continue to assist in providing employment for thousands, and in supporting almost every branch of agriculture and industry.

Minister's summary simply passed on Filboni assurances of Italiasie's plea that the question be carried to the assembly.

The Negus' aides said they would fight out his exact status in the September session of the Assembly.

New Zealand Bitter

Bitterest opposition to recognition came from New Zealand. The delegate, W. J. Jordan, said "this is a return to the laws of the jungle."

The Dominion's spokesman, who is High Commissioner to Britain here in London, opened his speech by saying: "We consider this case a little different from Brutes." He called the Anglo-French plan "a basis for discussion which contains possibilities which are a fundamental part of the League."

Haile Selassie, too ill to speak, sat at the Assembly table with his wife his representative, Ato Lawrence Taezaz, read his speech.

The Ethiopian cause had come to try to get Ethiopia out of this body of nations," Taezaz read in a low voice.

Had Farcical Right to Claim

The statement that the exiled Emperor said Ethiopia held not only legal but moral rights as an independent state and that Italy had by no means completed conquest of the country.

"I am sorry I do not find myself able to recommend the Hoare-Laval plan which has given me hospitality, and France, to whom Ethiopia owed its original membership in the League," the statement continued.

"Members of the League, this is a reign of fear. The states that are members of the League are next in one for himself. They are tearing up treaties of non-aggression, the League of Nations covenant and the Brand-Kellogg Pact.

"Since the contagion of aggression has spread throughout the world, states have permitted international morale to vanish. May God forgive them."

Expresses Sorrow

The statement expressed Haile Selassie's "sorrow to see the most powerful state in the world which has never ceased to affirm its attachment to the covenant desert in its sorrow."

Georges Bonnet, French Foreign Minister, spoke after the Emperor's statement was completed.

"Gentlemen, what we can," said Bonnet, shaking his head emphatically at the Negus, who sat with his aides at the table.

He said all members of the council were "sorrowful" about Ethiopia which "must be taken."

"Gentlemen, Emperor Haile Selassie increases our emotion," he said.

The Negus had entered the League building by a back door to avoid the crowd, which had gathered. He took his place in the 15th seat in the council table—the place formerly occupied by the Italian delegate—and listened without display of emotion to the French translation of his speech made by Vincent Mallet, League political Secretary.

Declaring his move to seek recognition of Italy's conquest, Lord Halifax declared it was the duty of France and Great Britain "to protect the world from the scourge of war" and that it was "the duties to attempt successful international appeasement on the high ideals for which the League stood."

After outlining the reasons for the Anglo-French plan of his government, the Foreign Secretary said:

"The British government hope the members of the council share their opinion that the question of recognition of Italy's position in Ethiopia is a question which each member of the League must decide for itself in the light of its own situation and its own obligations."

Lord Halifax declared Italians that his followers still hold a large part of Ethiopia.

"Whatever the government's information," he said, "is that Italy has virtually completed conquest with no centre of organized resistance capable of reversing Italian control."

"Ethiopia continues to climb her Calvary," Viscount Cecil of Chelwood declared through the droning voice of Theaze. "Her martyrdom has been spared her. I address a most earnest appeal to the Negus.

"If it is true that the Ethiopian people can expect no aid from the League, I appeal to the nations amidst you as a living symbol of a united victory. Women and men and women are following the drama being played today at Geneva. Whatever the future of the League of Nations and my country are at stake.

"It is inadmissible to sacrifice a sacrosanct state for the benefit of one or several other powers. Only the assembly can decide cases of aggression. The Negus invoked the doctrine of the former United States Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson, announced after Japan's conquest of Manchuria that territory acquired by force should not be recognized.

Arriving reinforcements saved the palace and the attackers capitulated.

COLD RECEPTION AWAITS SELASSIE

Geneva, May 11—(AP)—A cold reception awaited Haile Selassie of Ethiopia today at Geneva where Great Britain and France passed their plans through the League of Nations council to make peace with his Italian conquerors.

With the exiled emperor on his way from London to make a personal fight, his adherents fought for delay with complicated questions of procedure. Ethiopian delegates indicated that if Great Britain and France finally win freedom to recognize Italy's conquest, Haile Selassie will appeal to the world court at The Hague. British and French spokesmen, however, called that a "post mortem of little worth."

China's plea for aid against Japan was another pressing problem which seemed to have been settled late last night but now is likely to be brought up again. British spokesmen said the matter might have to be reopened, inasmuch as the Chinese delegate, Wellington Koo, was not satisfied with previous British promises of credits for munitions.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to go to school this morning and me and pop was leaving the house at the same time and our cook Nora was standing on the front steps with soap and water and a scrubbing brush, and some man stopped going by and says, Looks a little hard on the back, doesn't it? and pop said Well to tell you the truth I dont envy her the job, but as far as I know she has never complained of lumbago and by gollies maybe that's just why.

But the point is, have we any moral rite to subject any human being in our employ a woman especially, to such menial and degrading postures in these modern times when there is a long handled mop made for every conceivable purpose, and as practically no additional expense? the man said.

I mean, when you come to think of it, have we really the moral rite? he said, and pop said, What you put it that way, the only gentlemanly answer seems to be no.

I'm glad to hear you say so, have one of my cards, the man said.

And he handed pop a card and pop looked at it, saying, F. Elwood Lutz. Representing Marvel Model Mops. By golies, well in that case you certainly must know what you're talking about. It must be pretty tuff on a man in your position, out in all kinds of weather at the mercy of the elements, he said, and the man said, It's no bed of roses, believe me.

You owe it to your family to be careful, pop said. Now my line is insurance, and I specialize in policies protecting you against the hazards of sickness due to exposure, pop said. Come around any time with a couple of mops, I'll be glad to hand with a couple of policies at very attractive rates, and maybe we can make a deal to our mutual benefit, here's one of my cards, what do you say? he said.

I'll think it over, the man said, and quick walked away as if he had thought it over already, the last thing I heard being Nora saying, Go on with your mops, there's nothing like a good old fashion scrubbing brush.

GUARDS ARE NOTICEABLE BY THEIR ABSENCE

In sharp contrast to the public appearance of Reichstatthalter Hitler and Premier Mussolini is this scene of Dictator Josef Stalin (foreground) of the Soviet, who is shown with other members of the Soviet government on the way to the Red Square for the big May Day demonstration. In background is the gateway to the Kremlin Palace, also without a visible guard. In the group behind Stalin are M. Shkiryatov, A. Mikoyan, M. Kralinin, A. Andreev, V. Molotov, N. Yezhov and L. Kaganovich.

TWO DICTATORS MEET FOR FRIENDLY DISCUSSIONS

Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany; King Victor Emmanuel of Italy; Count Ciano of Italy, left to right, review the guard of honor which paraded in honor of the German Fuehrer's visit to Rome. The meeting produced a mutual declaration of eternal friendship between the two dictators and their people and a declaration by Hitler that the Brenner Pass frontier shall be forever sacred and inviolate.

COMBAT RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is often caused by uric acid in the blood. This blood impurity should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and excess uric acid remains, it irritates the muscles and joints causing aching pains. Plan to help prevent rheumatism by keeping your kidneys in good condition. Take regularly Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite kidney remedy.

No More Piles

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles. It is inadequate circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why ointment and suppositories do not give more than temporary relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles can not be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who early in his professional life made many tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeds

CHURCHMEN OF 30 NATIONS AT UNION

Scholars Leave Quietly as Walls Threaten to Collapse

130 PROTESTANT DENOMINATIONS ARE REPRESENTED

Draft of Constitution is Drawn up And Approved

SIGNED AT UTRECHT

Council Meeting Will Take Place Every 5 Years — Canada Represented

Utrecht, The Netherlands, May 13—(AP)—One historic church document aimed at the most far-reaching union of Christian churches since the reformation emerged today from a world conference of churchmen representing 130 Protestant denominations.

The document is the draft of a constitution, approved unanimously by 75 delegates from 30 nations, including Canada, for the first world council of churches in history.

It will be submitted at once to all participating churches by the Archbishop of York.

Union of Fellowship

An accompanying letter will ask the churches to unite in the organization for "the fellowship of churches which accept our Lord Jesus Christ as God and Saviour" and send delegates to the proposed council meeting.

FILE FROM ROOM ONE BY ONE DOWN NARROW STAIRWAY

Workmen Hurriedly Prop Building to Save Collapse of Structure

NO EXCITEMENT

Lady Principal And School Trustee Direct Operations

Vittoria, Ont., May 13 (CP) — Eighty-three pupils escaped safely from the old red school house in this village twenty-five miles south of Brantford today when one of the walls settled and the building threatened to collapse.

The east wall of the school, built in 1859, began to settle and cracks appeared in the wall. School trustee Thomas Pope directed the pupils to leave the building quietly and 43 filed out, one by one, down a narrow stairway from the second floor while 40 more made their way out from the ground floor classes.

Propped Up Wall

After the children were all out safely workmen hurried with beams and boards to the side of the east wall which had settled several inches. In the girls' cloakroom on the second floor the floor was an inch or two away from the wall and huge cracks appeared. The ceiling was immediately closed.

When the children's attention was first caught by the appearance of long cracks in the plaster of the walls some of them exclaimed in fright. Miss Jessie Marsh, the school principal, quieted them. She said she was not alarmed and felt they were safe for the time being.

Plan to Erect U. S. Radio Station Antidote to 'Isms' in S. America

Washington, May 13—(AP)—The House of Representatives Naval Committee made public reports today showing President Roosevelt had approved construction of a proposed United States government radio station designed in part as an "antidote" for Fascist and Communist broadcasts to South America.

Chairman Vinson (Dem.-Georgia) said the committee would begin public hearings Monday on a bill to authorize the high-power station. A Senate subcommittee headed by Representative Celler suggested an appropriation of $700,000 to erect the station, the Navy Department estimated it would cost $1,500,000. The Department also said the annual maintenance would cost $160,000 instead of $100,000, as Celler figured.

The station would be operated under a cooperative arrangement between the Navy and Interior Departments, both of which have approved the proposal.

Representative Celler (Dem.-New York), author of the House Legislation, suggested the station be powerful enough to transmit programs to all parts of the world. It would be used primarily, however, for high-frequency broadcasts of "good-will" programs to all countries in the Pan-American union.

Although Celler suggested an appropriation of $700,000 to erect the station, the Navy Department estimated it would cost $1,500,000. The Department also said the annual maintenance would cost $160,000 instead of $100,000, as Celler figured.

START LOS ANGELES-WARSAW FLIGHT

Five Polish airmen are shown in front of the aeroplane in which they are attempting to fly the 18,500 miles from Los Angeles to Poland by way of South America. They plan to go to Mexico City, to Natal, Brazil, across the South Atlantic to Africa, and then to Warsaw. Left to right: Jerzy Krasowski, Major Waclaw Gebhard, chief of the flight; Jan Barwick, test pilot; and Zdzgnew Wysokierski, pilot. They started after a delay for fog at 12.15 noon today.

France to Give British Rulers Welcome According to Tradition

Paris, May 13—(AP)—France will give King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain a far different reception from the welcome Chancellor Hitler received this month in Rome.

There will be no shirting modern Italian, Swastika flags and Fascist symbols when the King and Queen come to Paris June 28 to pay their first state visit abroad.

Instead, traditions of monarchy and democracy have been maintained in the preparations for the royal visit.

The sovereign's four-day stay will centre around the Foreign Ministry on the Quay D'Orsay facing the river Seine, where they will occupy the same apartments in which King George V and Queen Mary lived on their visit in 1914.

When Their Majesties leave July 1 by train and boat for London, France will have done everything to offer them a pleasant visit—and to impress on the world that France and Great Britain are better friends than ever.

BACK TO THE LAND IS URGED TO BRING SOCIAL JUSTICE

Proposal Made For Decentralization of Industry in Quebec

PROPOSAL AT INQUIRY

By CARL REINKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, May 13 — A proposal for a "daring economic readaptation" consisting of a back-to-the-land movement and decentralization of industry was presented today before the Rowell Commission to assure the masses of Quebec population a greater degree of social justice and restore the family to its natural place in Franco-Canadian society.

Creation of Fraternity

Industrialization disorganized the Franco-Canadian family, by drawing peasants to the cities and creating the proletariat with its moral and intense social problems, according to the Société Saint-Jean-Baptiste de Montreal. It established the solution of those problems was to be found in the "natural organizer of the population, and especially the family, not through social legislation.

"The protection and stability of the family imply a wise policy of agricultural expansion to the full extent that land and labor permit, immediate permit, completed by a prudent and daring industrial policy, but recognizing to the fullest possible decree small and average-sized industries," the society suggested.

Soil-Loving Tendencies

Such a policy should be based on the natural soil-loving tendencies of the Quebec people, and on the actual needs of Franco-Canadian family, "to open a vast program of initiative, diversify production, to multiply opportunities for work, to restore to the population the taste of autonomy and progress."

If the Province entered into method to render a service to Quebec which would benefit all Canada, "as not by centralizing administration of social legislation but by giving full play to the principle of coloration" as the society had in mind.

"Decentralization is imperative precisely in order to allow the province of Quebec to develop its social policy in the direction of its specific needs, and to keep pace with its traditions," the Societe continued.

SLIDE GRADUALLY CRUSHES OUT LIFE OF MINE ENGINEER

Main Fear of J. H. McAdam That He Had Lost Arm or Hand

RESCUE WORK SLOW

Geraldton, Ont., May 13—(CP)—John Harold McAdam's main fear while a slide gradually crushed out his life in Little Long Lac Gold Mines was apparently that he had lost an arm or hand.

Rescue workers told of snatches of conversation they had with the 22-year-old Ottawa youth yesterday before they burrowed to where he was entombed and found him dead.

McAdam expressed fear his hand

THREE DEAD FROM FUMES IN TANK

Workers Asphyxiated in Sediment Tank at Moose Jaw

Moose Jaw, Sask., May 13—(CP)—Toll of dead from asphyxiation in a sedimentation tank at the sewage disposal plant stood at three today, William Munro, 80, died in hospital late last night.

An inquest into deaths of Henry Clarke, 48, and A. J. Warren, 42, adjourned last night after the jury viewed the bodies. Coroner Dr. J. M. Hourigan presided.

George Paul, 65, was in hospital and reported in fair condition. All three men, affected by the fumes yesterday morning, were married.

Clarke is the father of nine children.

Warren, overcome by the fumes, was noticed in the tank by Clarke, who informed the plant chief, William K. F. Durrant, and the latter telephoned for a doctor, while Clarke returned to the tank to get Warren.

When Durrant reached the tank he found Warren, Clarke, Paul and Munro all inside. Fire department officials, summoned, and working with gas helmets, carried out the men, but Clarke was dead. Warren died three hours later in hospital.

Fire department members of the fire department were affected by the fumes, Chief J. Hinman and Bert Quinn receiving medical attention.

WESLEY LAVENDER WELLINGTON, HURT WHEN HIT BY CAR

Allegedly Dashed Out From Behind Parked Car Into Path of Machine

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Hurled to the pavement near the Lakeview Hotel, Wellington, after being struck by an automobile said to have been driven by a man named MacDonald of Whitby, Wesley Lavender seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lavender, Lakeshore road, was rushed to Picton Hospital late yesterday afternoon suffering from severe head and facial lacerations and a possible fractured skull.

Young Lavender with several of his school mates had just left the school premises and of the latter dashed across the street to the hotel where an auction sale was in progress. Parked automobiles lined both sides of the street at this point.

George Carver, Sr., an eyewitness of the accident, who is employed in the office of the Lakeview Hotel, stated that the youth had suddenly dashed from between two parked cars directly in front of the oncoming automobile. The right hand fender of the car struck the boy hurling him to the pavement. Mr. Carver, a short time later left his private vehicle within a few yards of the scene and assisted Mr. Carver and his son to the hospital.

Gerry Smith and a man named McLennon picked up the injured boy and rushed him to the office of Dr. R. M. Saries, a short distance up Wellington street, where he was given medical attention, later being rushed to the hospital.

Latest reports from the hospital last night revealed the fact that the boy was resting comfortably, and for the present was out of danger.

POLISH FLIERS ON WAY TO WARSAW

Delayed by Fog And First Stop Will be Mexico City

Los Angeles, May 13—(AP)—Delayed more than two hours by an early morning fog, five Polish fliers took off in their American monoplane at 1.15 E.D.T. today on the first leg of a 16,500 mile flight to Warsaw.

First stop is Mexico City, 1,620 miles distant. They expect to remain there overnight, then continue non-stop to Panama City in the Canal Zone.

Their course is down the west coast of South America through Peru and Chile, across the continent to Argentina and northward to Natal, Brazil.

From Brazil, they will fly 1,600 miles across the south Atlantic to Dakar, French West Africa, and complete the remainder of the journey by easy stages.

TERRIFIC STORM LASHES ALBERTA

Wind Reaches Velocity of 100 M. P. Hour One Time

Edmonton, May 13 (CP)—Widespread havoc to telephone and telegraph lines and extensive property damage in towns was caused by a 70-to-100-mile windstorm that swept Alberta yesterday.

The gale lasted less than fifteen minutes at each point but the thunder and lightning combined with dust, hail, rain and snow led many old-time residents to describe it as the worst in their memory.

Mrs. H. E. Owen, government meteorologist in Edmonton, said it was the most terrific windstorm ever recorded here.

Many escaped injury by narrow margins. One person was known to have been hurt. Mrs. Christina Sigmund was taken to hospital with cuts suffered when wind blew out a plate-glass window of an Edmonton drug store.

TONS EXPLOSIVE DROPPED BY JAPS

Chinese Defences Levelled on Wide Front by In-vader

Shanghai, May 13—(AP)—Japanese warplanes loosed many tons of explosives today on the central China front in an effort to speed the advance of a drive which outflanks boring steadily toward the Lunghai railway from the north and south.

Reports that the bombardments was Suhsien, 45 miles south of Suchow on the Tientsin-Pukow railway, where Chinese defenses line three smashing raids.

Further in the west Japanese warplanes levelled the Chinese defences at Yungcheng, enabling Japanese troops to capture the city and placing them in a position to advance on Yangshan, Lunghai railway station 30 miles to the north.

Japanese Near Lunghai

On the north, the deepest-penetrating Japanese column was only three miles from the Lunghai, threatening to sever it at Shihchen, 63 miles east of Suchow.

Indicative of the Japanese confidence that the fighting soon will be carried direct to the Suchow area was a warning to foreigners to vacate.

Marshall Tsai, Japanese envoy to China, sent a letter to all foreign ambassadors and ministers urging all foreign nationals be evacuated from points along the Lunghai, Tientsin-Pukow and Peiping-Hankow railways.

22 Queen's Professors Oppose Fascist Gathering

Kingston, Ont., May 13—(CP)—Disapproval of the proposed National Fascist convention, postponed to be held in Kingston June 30, was expressed by 22 members of Queen's University staff in a letter published today by the Kingston Whig-Standard.

The letter said:

"The undersigned members of the staff of Queen's University, though all fully conscious of the value of free speech, would be grateful for an opportunity of publicly registering their regret that Kingston should celebrate the year of its centenary by entertaining the first Fascist convention.

"The city has a long and fine British tradition which it would be fortunate to mar by hospitality towards elements which are attempting to take advantage of Kingston's historic traditions for their own purposes.

"Kingston business men are notified in their letters that the prospect of publicity like that which has already done so much damage to the good name of Quebec Province in Canadian city. We feel that all patriotic Canadians are opposed to this convention and that residents of Kingston are very anxious to exercise diligence in this matter.

"We wish to repeat that this is no question of suppressing freedom of speech; it's a question of declining the freedom against suddlock laws and other more violent and anti-democratic procedures.

Toronto Clerk Held Up

Toronto, May 13.—(CP)— Mrs. Ethel Hartgewarter, clerk in a bakery store at Bloor Street and Lansdowne Ave., was held up today by an armed gunman for the third time. The thief escaped with $54 from the cash register.

The man entered the store, shoved the gun at the clerk and told her to keep quiet and hand over the money, Mrs. Bridgewater, saying it was the third time she had been held up, confessed "I was just as nervous as the first time."

Cheese Producers Association Under Fire in House of Commons

Ottawa, May 13—(CP)— Money spent by the Cheese Producers Association for marketing, stood out of no use to the dairy industry of Canada, T. L. Church (Con. Lanark) told the House of Commons yesterday. He declared the money might better be spent on production in Canada. The government already had good marketing agencies abroad.

Marketing of Canadian Cheese in the Old Country depended on its quality and its availability in quantities to meet demands, he said. "I 60 years Ile Eastern Ontario Dairy Association served the industry well in improving production and quality. But its grant of $1,500 a year had been withdrawn."

Cooperation between the Ontario Agriculture Department and the Federal Department had not been of the best in the interests of the cheese industry.

The Ontario government had permitted organization of the Cheese Producers Association which collected a fee on the production to finance its activities and received a $5,000 annual grant from the government.

Collected $32,000 Claim

In 1937 the Cheese Producers Association had collected $38,000, Mr. Thompson said, and so far as what was spent for markets abroad, "not one dollar of was of any use to the industry."

R. M. Warren (Lib. Renfrew North) protested the annual levy of a cent to prevent farmers cooperating in the sale of their own products. "Farmers were making their contribution to the organization of cheese and the export pounds of cheese produced.

The Renfrew North member accused Mr. Thompson of trying to prevent this cooperative movement as a selling organization which he believed was a step in the right direction.

The House, in committee, was considering an item of $50,000 for marketing services administration in the estimates of the agricultural department. The item carried.

Netherlands is Determined To Preserve Her Neutrality

By J. C. STARK
Associated Press Foreign Staff
The Hague, The Netherlands, May 13—(AP)—The land of the chunking wooden shoes and creaking windmills sees straws in the wind these days.

But if war does come, she wants to fight on the water, under the sea and building up the great dyke system which keeps out the sea for her 8,000,000 people, is her first freedom.

Just as during the Great War, The Netherlands is determined to preserve her neutrality at all costs.

She prefer to call our policy of independence a high official close to the Foreign Ministry put it.

"We take sides with none of the belligerents," the official spokesman told the writer, who is on a tour of the land of winding canals.

He thought no country in Europe really wanted war and that "the fact that war has been so near several times in recent years is proof the people generally want peace."

Agreement Favorable Sign

"The Anglo-Italian agreement was seen as a favorable sign for peaceful settlement of European problems, and the official viewed also with favor the recent move to recognize the Ethiopian question as a re-altiate step, in accord with The Netherlands own proposal several months ago to the Oslo convention states economically linked Norway, Sweden, Finland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Denmark and Luxembourg.)

Czechoslovakia he believed to be the most imminent source of danger now. But he held strong hopes for a peaceful solution of the Sudeten German clamor for more political rights.

Emphasizing that he spoke unofficially on this point, the informant said The Netherlands is considering the Austrian annexation, uniting German people in a natural development. The same person, he pointed out, might apply also to the German speaking minority in Czechoslovakia.

The colonial question might be solved by return to Germany of Togoland and the Cameroon, and establishment of some form of joint control over part of the French Congo, he believed.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Humidity and comfort: We all know that warm, dry air dries up the mucous membranes and is unpleasant while very moist air interferes with evaporation and causes oppression and lassitude. What is the best degree of humidity has not been determined. Moderate humidity may be anything from 30 to 70 per cent. when the temperature is high. Some people can not tell the difference between 40 and 60 per cent. humidity when the room temperature is moderate. The humidity from the health standpoint probably lies between 40 and 60 per cent., depending upon temperature and circulation, for stagnant air, no matter how pure, is not stimulating.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 13—(CP)—Synopsis: A deep disturbance, centred over the Northwest Territories, has a trough line extending southward across Manitoba and the Dakotas to Iowa where a warning of a shallow low covers the lower Mackenzie Valley with high pressure in the region of the Great Lakes and the barometer continues high on the Pacific coast. The weather has been unusually cool over Eastern Canada with showers in many districts. High winds have prevailed over the Prairie Provinces with light to moderate showers in many parts of the west.

Lake Superior—Fair today, followed by strong southerly winds tonight with showers over west portion. Saturday, strong winds, shifting to northerly cloudy with occasional showers.

Manitoba—Strong winds, shifting to northwest; cloudy with scattered showers; cooler tonight. Saturday, strong northerly winds partly cloudy and comparatively cool.

Saskatchewan and Alberta — Strong northwest and west winds; mostly fair and comparatively cool today and Saturday.

BERT ZEBEDEE IS GIVEN CONTRACT

Garbage Collection Tenders Give Council Busy Time

After the city council at a special session on Thursday evening had accepted the tender of F. Daley for the collection of garbage for the coming year in this city at a price of $3,500, this being the lowest tender, the successful contractor informed the members that he would be unable to accept as he had already received other work and that left the council back where they started from. Going into regular session again the tender of Bert Zebedee was accepted at a price of $4,400 with certain reservations, pending a report of the City Engineer of the feasibility of the corporation collecting the garbage with horse-drawn vehicles. This suggestion was made by the Chairman of Public Works, Alderman Glencoe Thompson. In the event of the corporation collector of garbage will carry on for another month under the terms of his old contract in case of need. The motion was one of short duration as there was no other business to transact. The members of the council have wrestled with the problem of garbage collection for three meetings, but have refrained from the merits or demerits of the various tenders laid before them were discussed in open council nor the number of tenders that were committed for consideration. Alderman Cushing was the chairman of the committee of the whole and after the recommendations were passed the council passed into the usual order of business and adjourned. Mr. Daley then appeared before the members informally in the committee room and they being informed that he would not be able to accept the contract, the council was again convened and the tender of Zebedee accepted at the above figure of $4,100. This was the second lowest tender submitted.

Ontario Diocese Reports Are Presented at Kingston Meeting

Clerical members of the Executive Committee of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario which met this week at Kingston include Rev. G. O. Wright, Belleville; Rev. Ven. Archdeacon Beamish, Kingston; the lay members are Judge E. McLean, Picton; Mr. H. Jones, Kingston; Mr. A. A. Stokes, Belleville.

There are 44 missionary and thirty-six parish associations with a total membership of 1200.

The financial statement in the finances of the diocese of Ontario for the year ending December 31st, from the consolidated fund income was still the most important thing in the number of defaults on provincial and municipal funds.

The diocesan investments were slightly increased from four to four and a half per cent. Only one bond has shown a large reduction in overdrafts. In the past five years the consolidated fund has been increased new contributions of $7,864 and the Synod was warned that the time was fast approaching when the rest account would fall 100,000 largely because by the old scheme of amortization, no profits can be realized at maturity of any bond purchased below par.

Dean W. W. Craig gave the report on the Church Records Act. Total receipts for the year were $5,904.11, and total disbursements was 2,077 with 14 branches, a decrease in the number of branches. Junior and Little Helpers branches, but an increase in membership and contributions by the girls.

Statistical returns from the parishes and missions in the Diocese of Ontario for 1937 show improvement over the year 1936, it was stated by Rev. S. E. Harrington statistician.

Apart from the change is but slight, it is, nevertheless, important, because these changed conditions throughout the diocese are much the same today as they were a year ago," said Rural Dean Beamish, "and in this case they are just as difficult, yet the number of contributors increased by 1,015, and the financial returns improved by $4,564."

Commenting on the report which was adopted, Rev. Mr. Harrington said it would appear from the report that the clergy need to exercise more personal supervision, spiritual and otherwise, over their parishes and missions. Also, they should have more personal contact with their parishioners, and attention themselves more energetically to the work of the Sunday schools. The laity should also take a greater interest in the problems of the parish, and missions.

Obituary

JOSEPH MacBRIDE
Kingston

Kingston, May 13—A resident of Kingston for seventy years passed away on Tuesday, in the person of Joseph MacBride of 563 Princess Street. He was in his 92nd year and was born in Kingston Township, Bath Road.

Deceased was organizer of United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Local 240. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Marshall Houghton; Mrs. Florence Larkin, Toronto; Mrs. George Irwin, Detroit; two sons, James of Toronto, and Joseph at home; one sister, Mrs. Joshua Cliff, Kingston and six brothers, James and Charles, Rochester; William and Thomas, Syracuse; Ralph H., Belleville and John of Kingston.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock to Princess Street, United Church. Members of the Carpenters' Union attended in a body. Interment was made in Cataraqui cemetery.

RICHARD MICHAEL BERRY

The funeral of the late Richard Michael Berry of Seattle, Wash., took place this morning from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Martin Wood, 9 Gordon Street, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. Collins. Interment was in St. James Cemetery, Father Collins also officiating at the graveside rites.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Peter Cole, William J. Smith, Alex Wilms, A. Gunsolus, Robert Slavin and Frank Walsh.

Police Blotter

Returning to his parked automobile, left on Catherine street yesterday afternoon, Mr. G. N. Morris, R.R. 3, Belleville, was surprised to find the vehicle to have been robbed. An automobile radio horn, motor rug and twelve spanners were stolen from the vehicle during Mr. Morris' absence.

A resident at 13 St. Paul street reported the theft of a copper tub used as a garbage container. "The best part of the matter is the fact that the thieves stole the garbage, tub and all, thus saving garbage collector some effort," remarked police officials today.

Peterboro police reported the theft of a 1936 model Pontiac sedan, bearing Ontario license plates number 285-N-3, last night.

Provincial Police and Game Wardens were active last night checking the reported transportation of illegal furs throughout eastern Ontario. Although the authorities carried out an all night vigil along highways No. 2 and No. 7, no signs of the transportation of furs have been in evidence, police admitted today.

'OPEN HOUSE' AT LOCAL HOSPITAL MOST INTERESTING

Hundreds Visit Institution And Taken on Tour of Inspection

MOCK OPERATION

National Hospital Day was observed in the city yesterday when Belleville General Hospital held "Open House" permitting hundreds of citizens to gain an intimate view of daily life at this institution, which caters for over three thousand patients annually. Some of the visitors had been previous patients, others had visited it only as callers; a few had never been in the hospital before. There were young and old, including a few small children who made the rounds in the afternoon was the visit by an infant. To all the tour of inspection arranged by officials was the most educative and instructive, providing a broader aspect of the vital part the institution plays in the daily round of life of the wide community it serves.

Entrance Inviting

Work of beautifying the grounds recently completed, made the entrance to the hospital very inviting and inside, the attractive finish to walls and woodwork gave it a very austere look, which so often is associated with a hospital. Guests yesterday were welcomed by Mr. G. A. Pilcher, administrator and manager of the Hospital and by Miss Hilda Collier, acting Director of the School of Nursing. Members of the Alumnae acted as guides, taking groups of about a dozen around the hospital at a time.

Mysterious undertakings of the X-ray department were no longer quite so mysterious, after the first few minutes of the tour which began with an inspection of the X-ray room and an interesting talk by Mr. Williams, technician in the department. Mr. Williams explained in detail the value of X-ray, the methods by which such pictures are obtained of bones and organs, also a demonstration of simple steps in X-ray work.

From this department visitors were guided to the offices on the floor below of the Chest Clinic of the Provincial Department of Health under Dr. Brearley. The secretary, Mrs. Mounck, explained that this Clinic serves the district from Port Hope to Casanonge, and north to Madoc. It enlists 1 free. Centres are visited twice a year and the Clinic is held in Belleville once a month.

Pharmacy Visited

The Pharmacy, a new department of the hospital, is in charge of Mr. Ross Thrasher, and Miss Ida Flores the method of preparation for prescriptions. The various equipment for the well planned pharmacy was completed in Belleville and it is stocked with all necessary requirements.

Next on this floor was found the efficient laundry where fifteen thousand pieces of soiled linen are laundered every week. Visitors watched the progress of articles through the various machines until they were stacked, gleaming white, ready for use. Demonstrations of various tests are on this floor and also, one of the most interesting rooms in the whole institution, the kitchens. Here Miss Burke, dietitian at the hospital, explained the tempingly arranged sample trays, for patients on a "no salt" diet, "soft" diet and "full tray". Five hundred meals a day are prepared by the staff.

The party then ascended to the second floor where, of special interest to the ladies, was found the shoe use and method of use were explained by Miss Youmans.

Miss Youmans, supervisor of the operating room, showed the visitors the various stages of what happens in the operating room, most simple like the donning of masks, by the clock, and don special caps, masks and aprons. The operating room, the scene of many an exciting scene and a "mock" operation in progress gave some idea of what happens when the doctor decides to operate. The instruments used, the major operations, the method of blood transfusions, and the manner in which the patient is put on, were some of the demonstrations in the operating room. A very nonchalant young lad was the "patient" for the cast.

Maternity and Interest Wards Seen

The third floor, the maternity ward, and the nursery were visited, Miss Rogers, supervisor, telling charge of the spectators at this point. Visits to the wards on the main floor concluded the day's tour.

As the visitors passed through the building they glimpsed the attractive rooms where patients were being cared for, and they were impressed by the way in which everything possible is arranged for the comfort and convenience of the sick.

Members of the Alumnae Association who acted as guides to the parties on tour returned them again to the main offices from which the work of the hospital is efficiently directed, the spacious waiting room, and the well appointed Board Room, also on the first floor were inspected by the guests. In the waiting room, the travelling library supplied and serviced by the Ranger Cadets of the city is an added pleasure for the sick.

The interest and enthusiasm shown by the many visitors made the first "Open House" of the hospital a complete success.

ATTEMPTED THEFT CHARGE HEARD

Magistrate Reserves Judgment After Evidence is Taken

Charged with unlawfully breaking and entering certain rooms in the Belleville Collegiate and attempting to steal therefrom, Robert Gannon, Corbyville youth, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court. Gannon elected summary trial before His Worship and at the conclusion Judgment was reserved until Monday owing to the sudden departure from the court of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., who conducted the prosecution, who was called to the present sittings of the Supreme Court, now in session at the Court House.

Gannon entered a plea of not guilty and asked Mr. Donnan by did not desire the services of counsel. After being cautioned he was facing a serious charge.

Provincial Constable Fred Izard who investigated the matter in question and apprehended the accused, who had been in custody for some time. "When I arrested the accused he was found in possession of a number of skeleton keys, two of which were stolen from the Collegiate," testified witness. "Have you any letter giving authority to sell saw those keys fit the school doors?" asked Gannon in cross examination. Constable Izard replied in the affirmative.

F. C. MacLaurin, principal of the B.C.I.V.S., a number of the teaching staff and three pupils testified stating they had seen the accused in the school on several occasions, one student adding he saw Gannon leave a class room through an open window during examination period. Mr. MacLaurin added he had cautioned the accused regarding his presence around the school" and had requested him to keep away from the premises.

"Why did you request the accused to stay away from school?" asked Mr. Donnan. "He was a disturbing element, the cause of various thefts around the school," replied Mr. MacLaurin.

"I went to the school on May 5 to inform Mr. Ferguson that my brother was not returning to school this year," testified Gannon in defence as he denied being in any of the class rooms.

"I do not think you gave a good account of your presence around the school," Crown Attorney Donnan stated in this matter until Mr. Donnan and School Section of the O.R.A. which met in Toronto last month.

Mrs. Harrison moved a vote of thanks, seconded by Mrs. Hurst, for the fine report and to the enterlainers for the interesting evening's program. After the singing of "God Save the King" refreshments were served.

Pupils Give Program At Home, School Club

At the regular monthly meeting of the King George Home and School Club held in the school, a splendid program by a number of pupils was given, and under the able manner in which the children performed was a credit to their teacher and themselves.

After the completion of business, six boys from Miss Boyle's class, Jack Jones, Ronald Sullivan, Paul Taylor, Donald Cain, Garfield Little and Billy Thrasher were heard in a number of choruses, given in a finished style by the youthful singers. Miss Dorothy Boyle acted as accompanist. A tap dance by Joyce Fraser, a recitation by Norma Smith and a solo dance by Joyce were re-lightful features of the evening's entertainment.

Mrs. Hurst gave an excellent report of the convention of the Home and School Association of O.R.A. which met in Toronto last month.

Mrs. Harrison moved a vote of thanks, seconded by Mrs. Hurst, for the fine report and to the entertainers for the interesting evening's program. After the singing of "God Save the King" refreshments were served.

Nurses' Alumnae Association Entertains Graduating Class

Annual Dinner Held With 'Mac' Robertson as Special Speaker

TOAST TO CLASS

Members of the Alumnae Association of Belleville General Hospital at their annual dinner held in the Queens Hotel last evening honored the 1938 graduates of the hospital's School of Nursing, the seventeen young ladies, who on Friday night will receive their graduation diplomas and become full fledged members of the great profession of nursing.

The dining room of the hotel, its long table adorned with flowers and tall ivory tapers, presented a lovely picture attended by the charming members of the Alumnae and their guests, about seventy being present. Throughout the dinner hour, music by Geo Allan, pianist and Leslie Lemour, violinist, was greatly enjoyed and the community singing at the conclusion of dinner was most enthusiastic, under the leadership of Mr. G. A. Fraser, administrator of Belleville General Hospital.

The toast of His Majesty the King was of special significance since this day marked the first anniversary of his coronation, and "God Save the King" was sung in his honor.

President Presides

Miss Marguerite Fitzgerald, President of the Belleville General Hospital Alumnae Association, who acted as chairman, brought greetings from that organization to the guests, particularly to the graduating class. Congratulations were extended to each member together with an invitation to join the ranks of the Alumnae and with earnest hopes for their success and progress in life's work.

The toast to the graduating class was proposed by Miss H. Stacey who, in an aptly planned address, wished—that the rise of those new nurses to their profession might be as marked as the graduations of a medicine glass into their mouths be unsullied as distilled water; as smooth as the blandest medicine a physician can prescribe; and that their success might not be allayed with ill luck nor tincured with regret and that if fickle fortune refused to smile they would find a soothing solution in the love of a good man, or failing this, that they would co-operate with the other graduates in making their vision of the ideal nurse come true.

Miss Florence Shepherd, replying for the class of 1938, expressed sincere thanks and appreciation for the interest shown in such a tangible and lovely way. It was the desire of the graduating class to become members of the Alumnae Association and to be loyal, true and faithful to it.

Mrs. D. Cleland contributed two delightful solos which were sincerely appreciated by the guests.

Chairman of Board Reads

Miss Marion Macfarlane presented the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Macrenne Robertson, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Hospital who after a witty and entertaining introduction, turned the thoughts of those present to a more serious vein, the words left a deep impression not only on the young ladies who are about to be graduated into their chosen profession and into the fuller realization of their responsibility but on those who had attained a definite place in their calling and in their community life.

Mr. Robertson discussed present day problems, other countries and the political trends being followed, and how the citizens in general are being affected in these lands, picturing such situations as exist outside the Empire. Mr. Robertson urged his hearers to consider carefully the social attractions and other forms of government as outlined by ardent exponents and to contrast them with our democratic state, for which our forefathers fought, for freedom of government and religion might prevail.

The speaker, in a most interesting manner dwelt on conditions in Mexico, where the Church has been prohibited from carrying out its work, where poverty exists in a marked form, and where unfair methods, such as the seizing of four million dollars of oil belonging to American companies prevail. In South American countries where revolutionary leaders are constantly usurping power, banking branches

RHEUMATIC PAIN AGES YOU

Many a man has been the picture of health until Rheumatic trouble attacked him!

A painful sight to see him looking years older than he really is. But in most cases this is unnecessary. What causes Rheumatic twinges? Damp, Cold? No. The weather only aggravates what is already there. The cause of Rheumatic ailments: Neuritis, Lumbago, Sciatica, is often Uric Acid in your system. Uric Acid forms crystals—hard, sharp, very painful. Uric Acid is caused by congested waste matter that poisons your body. And within that poisoned body is a sluggish liver.

Now Fynnon Salt helps stimulate the liver. The combination of Sodium, Potassium and the elements of Lithium in Fynnon Salt works through your system to clear out poisons and help dissolve Uric Acid crystals. With the cause of the trouble removed you are soon fit again. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt, 75c at all druggists'.

Versatile Writer

Joyce Hamblyn, 8, of Oshawa, Ont., has amazed authorities by demonstrating that she can write with both hands simultaneously, either forward, backward or upside down. Two samples of the versatile writer's handwriting are shown ABOVE.

of the Dominion are unable to do business and Fascism is threatening. In Spain, bitter strife is rending the country as differences are settled by bullets rather than ballots. In Russia, the present form of government has come into power by election but by force and there is still one definite way by which the government settles arguments and that is by making it impossible for dissenters ever to argue or think again.

Don't be Misled in Advice

The speaker described Germany's manner of silencing dissent, "without bloodshed". The subsequent vote showed that ninety-eight percent were in favour of the new regime, but it is well known that many voted not as their hearts desired but as fear dictated. The people entered into the election under the idea that way they would perhaps lose the chance of ever voting again.

While these things seem far away from the Dominion and one's own community, it is a fact that in the larger cities of Canada, organizations, with ideals similar to those of European centres, flourish. Their followers would pull down all forms of government and build one up with a leader whose word would be law whether the majority favoured it or not.

There is a danger facing the people of Canada today, the danger of being misled by sympathizers of such movements. Imperfect the present form of government may be in some respects, but it still maintains the ideals of freedom and personal liberty for which our forefathers fought in the far-off days of the Magna Charta. Lack of knowledge of other forms of government and too easy acceptance of our heritage may have made us fail to treasure the privileges of democracy and freedom of worship as we should. But these things must be kept firmly in mind if the dangers that have swept other lands are to be kept from this nation.

Appreciation of Mr. Robertson's splendid address was expressed by Miss Edith Wright and the very delightful evening was closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

CHOIR ASSISTS IN SYNOD SERVICE

Stirling Group Included in Massed Choir Presentation

Stirling—The meeting of Synod of the Diocese of Ontario of the Church of England being held this week in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, opened its sessions with a special service conducted by Right Rev. Bishop Clark of the Ontario Diocese and special music provided by a massed choir of nearly three hundred choristers from parish choirs in all parts of Central Ontario. Representing St. John's Parish of Stirling at Synod are Rev. A. S. McConnell, rector of the parish and Dr. H. H. Alger and Mr. J. B. Belshaw. Among those of the local choir who assisted in the musical part of the opening service were Mrs. (Dr. F. Ellis, Miss Alice Calow, Miss Turner, Mrs. H. Smith, Mrs. A. S. McConnell and Messrs. Keele Gregory, Fred Houskin, George Wallace and Howard Morrow. Those absent, all members of St. John's choir left Stirling on Tuesday afternoon and returned after the service in the evening. The music during the large congregation filling close to three hundred was in keeping with the impressive service which marked the opening of this Synod's annual gathering when clergymen and laymen from all parishes of the Ontario Diocese meet to transact a general survey of church's progress and add constructive measures for its future activities. The Stirling singers were honored in being privileged to take part in such important function of the church life.

FAIRWEATHER HITS AT COOPERATION

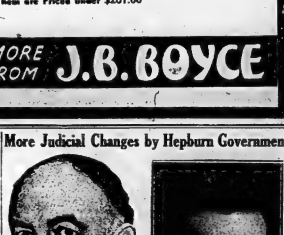
Is Questioned Before Committee of Senate on Rail Question

Ottawa, May 12—(CP)— S. W. Fairweather, Director of the Bureau of Economics of the Canadian National Railways, continuing evidence before the Senate special committee on the railway condition of Canada today, said no account was taken of provincial boundaries in railway accounting because no good purpose would be served by it.

Senator J. P. Beaubien (Con. Montreal) asked Mr. Fairweather what reason justified the Quebec legislature granting a charter to a C.P.R. subsidiary to build a line into the Rouyn district while Mr. Fairweather yesterday described as an economic crime." Other Senators objected it was unfair to ask the witness about what might have been in the minds of the legislature.

Heavy Traffic

He told Senator Beaubien it was not true most of the Rouyn traffic moved through Toronto by way of Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway. More than half of it went over the National Transcontinental by way of Harvey Junction (north of Quebec).



"Here I am," he said, "the Director of the Bureau of Economics of the C.N.R. and a member of the joint co-operative committee. I recited to sit down with the C.P.R. and work out co-operative economy by eliminating duplication. Then at the same time I am engaged in a knock-down and drag-out fight to protect the interests of the C.N.R. from an unwarranted invasion of the C.P.R. by the C.P.R. If that is not the antithesis of the spirit of co-operation, I don't understand it."

Senator C. C. Beaubien (Con. Montreal) asked Mr. Fairweather what reason justified the Quebec legislature granting a charter to a C.P.R. subsidiary to build a line into the Rouyn district while Mr. Fairweather yesterday described as an economic crime." Other Senators objected it was unfair to ask the witness about what might have been in the minds of the legislature.

MR. E. V. ILLSEY HONORED

Mr. E. V. Illsey, who for nine years has been a prominent figure in the business and social and church life of Belleville is leaving the post of the local manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce to become manager of the Seattle (Wash.) office of that bank, one of the most important of the positions in banking on the North American Continent. As banker he has been brought into close touch with every interest in Belleville and district. He was moved to Belleville after a very successful managership at Hamilton and assumed the local post at the important time when the Standard Bank was taken over by the Canadian Bank of Commerce. This imposed a heavy burden which he successfully carried. So highly held is he in the head office that to him has come the reward of the Seattle post. In his banking relations, Mr. Illsey by his engaging personality and his interest in those with whom he was brought into contact has won for himself no small place in the life of this district, all this in a few short years.

His fine social qualities, his enthusiasm and his strong sense of duty brought him of course into other relations. Mention of his loyalty to his church, St. Andrew's, which he served in so many ways in an official capacity, and also as a teacher of a group of boys and youths and as member of the choir, serves to bring to attention how devoted he was to the cause of religion.

In local affairs he made one of the finest contributions it is possible for a man to make. His "broad thinking and expansive policies" as a past president and director of the Chamber of Commerce were referred to at the farewell banquet tendered him on Tuesday evening and will not be forgotten. As a Rotarian he has served in the truest Rotarian philanthropic cast of the term.

Possessing a practical and keen mind and yet enough of the ideal to make his work far-reaching and permanent, Mr. Illsey leaves the city accompanied by the best wishes of Belleville and district, his associates in the banking business here and by the many friends he has made. These friendships will be lasting as those he formed in Hamilton, proof of which was given in the presence of so many friends from that city the other evening, who had come to do him honor. All know that his thoroughness of devotion to duty in his chosen profession, his active interest in others and in the work of the church and of youth, will bring him in his new field an opportunity of a rich harvest of work well done, a sense of duty fulfilled and pleasure in working with and for others satisfied.

Mr. Clarence L. Jewell, who succeeds Mr. Illsey here as manager, has come highly recommended after an extensive experience as manager of local branches and as an inspector, which latter post he has been filling for a time before his appointment to Belleville. Mr. Jewell was born in Quebec City. He has been manager of the branches at Sault Ste. Marie, (West End branch), Madoc, Lindsay, Niagara Falls, and Guelph. In 1937 he was transferred from Guelph to the head office of the bank in Toronto as an inspector. He has been cordially welcomed to this city and in him the city of Belleville has a fine accession to its business and social life.

LITTLE BITS OF PAPER

Many a small piece of wrapping paper, a cigarette package, or other covering is wittlessly thrown away as the pedestrian walks along the finest boulevards and lawns in this city as in other cities. If there is any shrubbery near the walk, or in the middle of the lawn or near the dwelling, or on the boundaries between properties these pieces of paper or small packages will find their lodging place there.

Who has not seen not only children but adults throw deliberately these discards not upon the road, but thrown them in any direction, mostly on private property and walk on nonchalantly.

These pieces of paper and empty small packages make lawns look disgraceful and hedges worse than that. To remove these means effort. Why should the family that lives in the house have to act as assistant garbage collectors because others won't take care of these annoying pieces and boxes and such like? At any rate there is no reason they should be thrown on the lawns or boulevards.

The whole cause is a case of disregard rights of others, of which there is considerable to be noted today. Many persons act as if there is no authority over them, particularly in these small things. If there were flagrant disregard of the rights of others in very important matters someone would hale them to the place where they could be cured of their self-assertiveness and selfishness but as pieces of paper and empty boxes are "little things", they "get away with it."

While children can be taught discipline in such matters, it is more difficult to treat their elders. The child just needs discipline, but the adult needs to be made ashamed of his carelessness.

Citizens cannot but wonder what the adult offender in this regard thinks if he sees small pieces of paper and wrappers, or small cardboard boxes on his own lawn and caught in his shrubbery.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

They said the house held ghosts. We used to pass
With hurried steps along the lonely road
Whereon it stood, scarce turning as we strode,
Frightened by all that tangle of tall grass.
A desolate place it was, it seemed, alas!
As if we heard strange sounds in that abode
Built in the era of another mode,
An ancient house with panes of shattered glass.

Yes! it was haunted. Yet one lived there still,—
An aged lady, sadly now alone,
Hidden behind her hedge and walls of stone,
Unmindful of the winds upon the hill.
The house was haunted; not by ghosts in truth,
But by the dreams and memories of her youth.

HORSE TRADING WOULD SEEM TO BE A LOST ART, but here's a story out of the South which seems to disprove that assumption. At a tourist camp outside of Nashville, Tennessee, recently 500 itinerant Irish horse traders were gathered. Mule traders, for these Hibernian gypsies deal in mule flesh, travelling around from one mule market to another. This occupies their winters. In the summer they live at tourist camps and see the world. Once a year on May 1, they gather just outside of Nashville for the purpose of burying their dead, accumulated during the winter. According to the news report several of the clan died during the year and the bodies were shipped to an undertaker at Nashville to await the coming of the various sections of the clan. Six bodies were deposited in Mt. Cavalry cemetery with appropriate ceremonies, and then, over a wee drop, life was resumed where it was interrupted. It is said that these funeral meetings have been going on for the past fifty years and no one knows how they started.

WITH INCREASE OF TAXATION IN ENGLAND as outlined by the budget recently brought down in the House of Commons some American journalists are already muttering, unfortunately or what have you, hence New York Post cabled Fleet Street reporters to arrange interviews via transatlantic telephone with various classes picked casually on the street. Result, in brief, follows:

A London van driver said he made five pounds ($25.) a week, married man, no children. His income tax amounts to three pounds a year ($15.) Told that if he lived in New York and made twice as much he would have no income tax to pay, he replied "Thank you, I'm quite satisfied. I like it better here." Asked why he considered the tax fair the van driver replied: "Because it puts the burden on the broad shoulders of those most able to pay. We've got to keep the old flag flying, you know."

x x x

A London printer said that the new taxes would cost him about ten pounds ($50.) a year more. "If that's the price of peace I think it is a good investment for me and perhaps for the world", said he.

Other interviews with workers revealed the same feeling that the increased taxes were worth while as on investment against war.

Exercise and Play For Overgrown Delicate Children

I have spoken before of the number of recruits who were rejected for war service because the chest was too small. Practically every one of these young fellows, on questioning, stated that they had never played games because their parents were afraid they would get hurt.

When parents see that their children are not as others, underweight, tall for their age, round or drooping shoulders, it is only natural that they are unduly alarmed at the thought of games or vigorous exercise. The result is that these youngsters do not get any exercise, and proper development at this 'growing' age is exactly what the body, including heart and lungs greatly needs.

"There are children who show pallor, excessive growth, muscular weakness, fatigue—sitting and standing. There are rapid fatigue, palpitation of the heart, stitches in the side, stomach ache, headache, dizziness and fainting spells."

Dr. F. P. Meyer, in Oriental Journal of Internal Medicine, reviews briefly the general lack of education by exercise (10 deep breds of the body, and the high frequency rate of chronic exercise when completely healthy children. The pulse remains fast in one-third to one-fifth children for longer than five minutes, sometimes for an hour. The blood pressure differs from normal for it also remains high for more than five minutes. Also the heart beat and blood pressure increase instead of fall. Other symptoms—show insufficiently of circulation and inability to react properly to exercise.

Upright posture — sitting and standing straight—is a study in those children. Signs of fatigue come sooner than in normal children. Backache, dizziness, and even fainting fits may occur.

Dr. Meyer suggests that as these children are nearing puberty, the circulation may improve only to equal to the demands made upon it.

However the treatment recommends is "invigoration of the body by gymnastics and sport, especially by breathing exercises."

The point then for parents is to have these slender, gangling, pale, overgrown children attend a gymnasium where exercise and group games are supervised. Long romping runs only strengthen the circulation by calling on the heart and lungs for more blood, but develop self reliance in these delicate children.

SAVE THE SPAWN

Charlie While, well-known angler and sportsman, who probably knows more about the habits of bass and pike than any other man in Elgin County, tells the Express reporter that he has done more than his share to save the fish in Lake Erie, the Detroit River and the rivers ruined by pollution. Charlie tells us there is a simple way to do it, too. Instead of building fishways, and restricting fishing tugs taking more than a certain number of fish, and trying to prohibit fishing altogether during the spawning season, he would prevent, at present, the fish go to the gravel beds to spawn and the gill nets would have a good chance to get at a catch. Then, in order not to lighten the load of the fishermen, the surplus fish are put in cold storage for future sales. That millions of whitefish are drowned in this way, far more than any fish hatchery could ever do in years, is true, Mr. While contends that figuratively, fishermen are killing the goose while it lays the golden eggs. Leave the fish alone during the spawning season and there will be plenty to catch at other seasons of the year.

Outer Air Defense Planned by U. S.

Legislation is before the United States' Congress to provide for a vast seaplane fleet to cover the Pacific for about 5,800 miles north and south. With the main base at Pearl Harbor, other bases, under naval plans, would be established as shown ABOVE. The northernmost would be at Kodiac and Dutch Harbor, off Alaska. To the south, 1,600 miles from Dutch Harbor, would be another with a third at Wake Island, another 1,200 miles from Wake and a final one at Pago Pago, 700 miles further on.

Cleveland Facing Relief Crisis

With nearly one-quarter of the entire population of 1,200,000 on full or partial relief, Cleveland is facing a serious crisis following the shortage of funds. It is feared that services there may occur if outside help is not obtained for the relief recipients, many of whom have been on scanty rations for several days. Emergency relief stations have been established in an attempt to cope with the long lines of relief-seekers. ABOVE is shown one of these stations distributing potatoes.

Trouble in Store for Golf

The grand old game of golf originated as a kind of solitare-shinty. It was invented by dour and thrifty Scotch shepherds knocking pebbles around with their crooks to while away the time while tending their flocks.

The first sign of decadence appeared when townsmen and fourlomers began to play, thereby making a certain amount of conversation an inevitable concomitant, and destroying the original idea of the game. Insidiously the social element intruded itself and golf had degenerated into a gentlemen's game and had become a symbol for the landed gentry and the leisure class. Then, by devious and illegitimate stages, golf developed itself, like the two-hours-for-lunch period, as an invidious lever of the credo of American business.

Before long there was a well-defined tradition that no big business deal should be conceived or closed save across the luncheon table or between the first and 19th holes. Institutions of every kind, formations of syndicates, selections of candidates for high offices, and deals of like nature, all were perfected elsewhere, were viewed with suspicion.

It should have been clear then that golf was done for; but the final degradation was yet to come. It remained for the Wisconsin Industrial commission to plunge golf legally in the calamity of big business—along with General Motors, Standard Oil, Big Steel "and the movies—and thereby seal its doom.

Under recently promulgated orders of the commission, all caddies must be registered with its offices. They cannot be under 16 years of age; and, if under 18, cannot work more than 54 hours a week. If injured in pursuit of their professional duties, caddies are entitled to industrial compensation. Presumably, they are eligible for unemployment insurance and old age pensions.

Since golf is now classed as business, the next of course be regulated. Before long few may expect to play the U.S.G.A. living hours at play, and the federal trade commission limiting production to 18 holes per day. Combinations in restraint of free competition, such as the handicap will be forbidden. For all courses will be arbitrarily rated par 72. All scores will be fixed in triplicate, after one hour's unsupervised heavy labor, and sent by registered mail to the subject for excess deficit taxes.

Golf has only itself to blame. It should have read the handwriting on the wall decades ago.

The Blackboard Honor Roll

Mrs. Dealy was a thorough soul with original ideas. She gave us History with drama and gestures. Arithmetic was presented with meticulous exactness. Nature Study geography struck us with brilliant exposition and still more dramatic. Grammar was given adequate place, and Spelling was loud, long and practically painful. Mother Dealy's readers and the Bible were equally popular fare.

One blackboard always had a Roll of Honor which she printed in the diligent upon it. We never knew when that Roll would change either, since it often did with the swiftness and amaze of mountain lightning. Sometimes it was that Dealy's habit to leave her rocker to attend to some domestic duty or to change the hose outside from brah to bush. Then, dramatically, her small head would bob up at a window or through the front-door curtain! In a moment she would rush to the Roll of Honor, grasp a chalk-piece in her right hand with ferocious determination, sweep out some luckless name with a flourish and substitute them, more deliberately and with pauses in the listening, establish the name of some lucky pupil who had chanced to be waiting the while by the window-bobbing or curtain-parting.

Then "break-up" used to receive a bouquet of flowers at the end of the week, and the occasion of merit. Only once or twice was this signal honor clutched in my honest young hand. It came through the speed with which I hurried to Mother Dealy's room to meet under mother's delighted nose! —From "Izzy Springtime," by JULIAN DANA. (New York: Macmillan.)

Canada's Six Seasons

Commercial flying in Northern Canada has run into its annual spring grounding. It is the season of ice break-up, and although there are no signs to the untutored eye, the natural winter landing fields of frozen lake and river are now too weak to bear safely the weight of loaded planes. Scores of pilots in the hinterland are therefore going to be isolated from the outside world for the next month or more, depending upon the thickness of the ice in the various parts of the mineral area.

This fact again calls attention to the curious climate of Canada's north country, an oddity that is not widely known. It has six seasons, as the Indians name them. There is freeze-up (spring), break-up (summer), the time-of-falling-leaves (autumn), freeze-up (winter), and break-up.

There are no common seasonal equivalents to "freeze-up" and "break-up" but they played an important part in the Indian life in the north that plans had always to be made with them in mind. This was because travel and hunting, dependent upon ice or water conditions, had to be suspended during these so-called intervening seasons.

Nor is the situation very much different today. Great though the contribution of the airplane has been to the north, it has yet found no way to surmount the difficulties of the "freeze-up" and the "break-up" when ice or water conditions, had to be suspended during these so-called intervening seasons.

Modern Rules for Father

From the literature on the subject it might reasonably be supposed that the father alone, to be "successful" with his children, would have to possess the following attributes: (1) Plenty of money. This is useful in building up what is known as the children's self-respect, and it also comes in handy for their night-club entertaining. (2) An infinite willingness to laugh off, as mere pranks of charming peculiarities, any unpardonable behaviour indulged in by the offspring. (3) A knack of being at once "a pal" and a revolting word has it, but of getting out of the way when any fun is on foot. (4) A willingness to absorb quietly such punishment as having a thumbtack accidentally left in his chair by "The Governor," "Colonel" or "Pater." (5) A determination to keep quiet about his own athletic prowess and to refrain from, and under no circumstances to bore the younger generation either with anecdotes or exhortations of More money.—New York Herald Tribune

IF APPEAL WON DUNGANNON TWP. MUST PAY $4,200

After Hearing Case, Justice Godfrey Dismisses Action

LENGTHY EVIDENCE

Expressing the opinion that W. P. Doughty, husband of the chief plaintiff and driver of the car that plunged into a culvert on the Turriff Road, Dungannon Township, last July incurring injuries to two people, could have avoided the accident by more careful driving, Mr. Justice Godfrey in non-jury sitting of the Supreme Court yesterday dismissed without costs an action for five thousand dollars brought by W. P. and Jenny Doughty, Petersboro, and Minnie Malloy, Dungannon, against the Township of Dungannon, Hastings County.

In the case now forming an appeal, however, His Lordship assessed damages at three thousand dollars in the case of Jenny Doughty, chief plaintiff, seven hundred dollars for W. P. Doughty and five hundred dollars for Minnie Malloy for costs incurred through the accident.

The action arose from injuries received by Jenny Doughty and Minnie Malloy and costs suffered by W. P. Doughty when the car in which they were riding plunged into an open culvert on the Turriff Road, Dungannon Township, on July 18th last year.

Alex. Elliott, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff with CHAS. A. PAYNE, K.C. representing the defendant.

Sums up Case

In his summation of the case Justice Godfrey expressed further opinion that the actual cause of the accident had originated in the removal of the pole covering from the culvert by a third party, as evidenced in the dual wheel tracks of a truck near the culvert. "Doughty, the driver of the car, seeing the roadway in good condition before approaching the culvert had speeded his machine to twelve miles per hour, an unsafe rate of speed on roads of this nature and condition," said His Lordship, "I think he did not notice the culvert because he was not driving carefully enough and he could have stopped the car within eighteen feet of the scene of the accident, the distance between the top of grade in the road and the culvert."

"There is no doubt from the evidence submitted," continued His Lordship, "that the removal of the poles from the culvert was made by those in charge of a truck in difficulties. They had taken the loose poles to extricate the truck, and had not put them back. If the poles had been left in the position the Township had intended them to be left, the accident would not have occurred. Interference by a third party was another cause of the accident."

Evidence of chief plaintiff and two Peterborough physicians, Drs. Herbert Young and J. C. O'Brien was taken when the case opened on Wednesday evening. Resuming yesterday morning, several witnesses were called by counsel before Justice Godfrey handed down his decision late yesterday afternoon.

"The Turriff road had not been in good condition," Patrick Malloy, pathmaster for this district, and the first witness called upon resumption of the hearing yesterday morning, testified.

"The culvert is situated about twenty five feet east of a sharp gradient on this road about three quarters of a mile from where it joins the old Hastings Road," he said.

The culvert was constructed of two cross pieces about five feet apart upon which were placed several poles from 4" to 5" in diameter. There extended about 24 to 30 inches beyond the cross pieces, upon which the poles were laid loosely. He thought the culvert had been built about four years ago. Previous to that a few logs thrown in the culvert acted as a bridge.

Could Have Weighted Ends

"The poles would sometimes pile up ahead of the wheels of trucks or cars," witness stated, "and on other occasions the ends would lift up if struck at the other end by a wheel."

His Lordship—"As pathmaster, would you say the culvert was properly constructed?"

Witness—"The ends should have been weighted down."

He had built similar culverts at a cost of $2.00, witness declared. "It wouldn't have cost over $1 to place poles at the ends to keep the culvert poles in place." He testified to crossing the culvert after the accident. "Five or six poles were lying in the ditch," he said.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Payne, witness testified that the road was almost impassable all year with the exception of the summer month. "The first car came through this year last Thursday," he told the court.

His Lordship—"Then the road is nothing more than a trail." Other culverts on the road were built the same way but had been covered with sand. Witness recalled seeing a truck w'ccankrks east of the culvert, but did not know whether they were fresh.

Arthur Phillips, corroborated Malloy's evidence regarding culvert construction. He had seen the poles "pile up" at times when driving over it.

Kicked Back in Place

He had often "kicked poles" back into place, and on many occasions all the poles had been out of place when he crossed the culvert. He had crossed the culvert two days before the accident and had noticed several poles out of position and some in the ditch. Construction company trucks used the road extensively, witness said.

Other culverts were not in this condition, witness told defending counsel during cross-examination.

Thomas McGarthy, Department of Highways road engineer, stated he had gone over the ground after the accident and had noticed a "suspicious culvert". The poles were not secured and were a little above the level of the road. Poles would probably cant up but were more liable to pile up if struck by wheels outside of crosspieces.

"It was the worst culvert in that piece of road," witness said.

"A driver would not be liable to see it if not looking for it, due to gradient of the road." A diagram showing angle of gradient and position of culvert as here submitted to the bench.

"The road is rough, but surfaced coming up the grade is in fair shape," he said.

His Lordship—"This road is one that must be driven with great deal of care."

Plaintiff's Husband Heard

W. P. Doughty, Peterboro, husband of Jenny Doughty, testified to driving on the Turriff Road on the day of the accident. It was the first time he had driven on it. It was a 'trifle rough' in places, and in these spots he had travelled from 7 to 8 miles an hour.

"The grade near the culvert was in good shape and we travelled between 12 and 15 miles per hour along it," witness said.

His first intimation of the wrecked culvert came, when he got out and the car went down in the culvert. He stopped his car 6 feet north of the culvert. He arranged his wife and Mrs. Malloy on the ground then examined the culvert. "Nor'h of the crosspiece, appeared to be marks of a dual-wheeled truck," he said. "The crosspieces were intact while the poles were in a ditch at the side of the road."

Witness, with Malloy and Young raised the culvert that night. "It was in the same condition. Pit we crawled through in the car," he said.

The hood of his car obstructed his view when approaching the culvert, witness told the court. Witness corroborated his wife's evidence with regard to her condition. "She is in pretty bad shape. Her health is not good whatever."

Bills Admitted

Witness stated Dr. Young's bill was $300 on which $25.00 had been paid. Bills including x-ray and medicine amounting to $53 were here admitted as evidence.

Under cross-examination witness stated that all poles were off the culvert and were lying in the ditch. It looked as though someone had thrown them there. There were weeklmarks north of the crosspiece, slightly east of the culvert.

Witness testified to bringing constable Young and a Mr. Neville to culvert later that night. Neville had stated that platform of culvert was intact two days previous to the accident.

Peter Malloy, husband of Mrs. Minnie Malloy, plaintiff, stated his wife lay on the ground after the accident. She was treated by Dr. Anderson at the home of Patrick Malloy. "She had been unable to do anything for 6 weeks, and had pains in her back all the time."

"Her condition is very poorly and she is unable to attend this trial," he said.

"She is unable to ride in a car for any distance because of pain in her back. Outside help had to be called. She was unable to do her work and had been handicapped in other ways," witness stated.

Witness had travelled Turriff Road before and found it "a little rough." Quite a bit of traffic had gone over it during the summer months.

Plaintiff's counsel rested the case at this point.

Reeve of Twp. Testifies

J. L. Churcher, Reeve of Dungannon testified, that his township owed $4,895 in various bills. Plaintiff's counsel demanded auditors reports of township for past 6 years, which were admitted as evidence. The collection, investment grants and other amounts pertaining to the finances of the township were quoted by counsel.

The main travelled road from Turriff to Dungannon, by Jan's Corners and the 4th concession road, witness told counsel.

His Lordship—"Shouldn't the township have spared those poles down on the culvert? A little precaution could have fixed it."

Reeve Churcher stated that the road was little used, and the funds for road purposes were all channelled on the more travelled roads.

Plaintiff's counsel contended here that the culvert in question had been covered with sand, but washed out 2 years ago and had not been replaced since.

Township had asked government to fix this road in 1936, witness stated.

Plaintiff's counsel here brought out that the Township of Dungannon had over $12,000 in special grants to spend on township roads.

His Lordship—"It is the duty of a township like yours to have someone look over these places. I have a great deal of sympathy with you. You can't expect to make things too smooth."

Constable Heard

Constable Earl Young of Harcroft noticed tracks of dual wheels of trucks to east and north of culvert when he visited it with Malloy and Neville after the accident.

His Lordship—"Were these marks fresh?"

"Yes. The rails, several of which were broken were thrown in the ditch."

"Had any cars passed over culvert after the accident?"

"Yes. About three."

Witness stated Neville had said the culvert was all right the day before. Doughty and Malloy stood near when Neville made the statement.

Witness stated he measured distance from top of grade to culvert, approximately 16 paces or 50 feet.

Witness admitted under cross-examination that he wrote letter to Doughty suggesting he forward claim to the Reeve of Dungannon as soon as possible.

Examined Plaintiff

Dr. G. H. Stobie, testified that he had examined Jenny Doughty on April 15th, 1938, and found her suffering severe pain causing limitation of breathing. There were no asthmatic symptoms. Patient was X-rayed on July 26, 1937, which showed no evidence of fracture of ribs or spine, according to Peterboro hospital radiologist. Witness agreed with this reading. Lateral views were taken on August 11th, 1937, that showed tipping of some vertebrae and erosion of another, showing an arthritic condition that had existed for years.

Witness did not agree with former physician testimony of existence of a compressed fracture. Erosion could not have been caused by accident because it is protected by bony walls of the vertebrae. Questioned by His Lordship witness stated arthritis was a progressive disease—and that plaintiff had suffered severe pain.

Kind Generally Used

Simeon Fox, former county road superintendent, told court, that the log type of culvert was generally used in roads not travelled very much. He regarded them as satisfactory for this line. He stated that he walked from 40 to 45 feet east of culvert, and had poles been out, he could have seen it.

James Moore, Reeve of Elzevir, chairman Road Committee of Hastings County, stated that the loose pole type of culvert construction was common throughout his township. He had not inspected the Turriff Road.

Mac Martin, Dungannon road foreman, testified that he was not familiar with road but poles were in place when he went over it on July 10th.

The defence rested at this point.

Little known, little abdited, the Cirio forest in Lower California stands unique in the plant realm. Has no true branches like ordinary trees, no true leaves, and no real wood in its structure. Botanists classify it simply as a "desert dweller."

Weddings

WIGGINS—INSLEY

A quiet wedding took place at ten o'clock on Thursday morning, May 12th, at 16 Bridgeway Street, Belleville, Ont., Rev. J. D. P. Knox officiating, when Mr. Frank John Wiggins, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wiggins of Picton, and great-nephew of Mr. Knox, was married to Alida May Insley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Insley of Salmon Point. The young couple were attended by Miss Ruby Wiggins and Mr. W. D. Dixon, son of the late Rev. S. P. Dixon. After the ceremony the wedding party motored to the Radio Cafe where a sumptuous repast was served. The happy couple will reside in Picton.—(Picton and Stirling papers please copy.).

19 Candidates Presented At Royal Court

London, May 13.—(CP Cable)—On the anniversary of the Coronation, nineteen Canadian women last night curtsied to Their Majesties in the second Royal Court of the season.

The King, wearing the dress uniform of Colonel-in-Chief of the Coldstream Guards, and the Queen robed in white satin with the ballroom of Buckingham Palace. Several hundred British and Dominion women were presented.

The Queen was gowned in gold lame, bracaded with a floral design and embroidered with clusters of diamente and gold sequins. Her train was of gorgeous Indian embroidery. Beside her Orders, Her Majesty wore diamond and ruby tiaras, necklace and bracelets.

The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, with the Princess Royal and Princess Alice, the Earl of Harewood, attended.

Increase Shown In V. O. N. Work

Citizens of Belleville are becoming better acquainted with the service the Victorian Order of Nurses provides for medical, surgical and communicable cases requiring part-time nursing care according to the statistics presented in the report of Miss Bessie Soutar, at the regular May meeting of the Committee. When every resident realizes that such service is available—willy-nilly on an hourly basis, 10c.V.,O.,N., will have realized one of its aims in the city.

The report showed that in March there were 581 visits paid to 169 patients and in April 580 visits to 178 patients. For the first four months last year there were 213 visits listed as communicable cases, 408 as medical and surgical, while for a similar period this year there was an increase of 488, the communicable being 317 and medical and surgical 697. This shows a growth in this branch of the work. Since January 150 patients have received 2215 visits an increase of 113 patients and 354 visits over last year, indicating a very heavy winter's work for the nurses in charge season.

At the meeting this week presided over by Mr. H. B. Peiterly president of the Committee, Miss Webster gave an excellent report of the V.O.N. convention she attended in Ottawa. The day of meeting has been changed to the third Monday in the month which is more convenient to the majority of the committee members. That day will be held on June the fourth when citizens who are unable to donate to the annual campaign can make their contribution to the work. This helps defray the expense of the service to those who are able to pay only a small portion of the fee.

New Chopped Foods Prove A Great Boon to Mothers

There Comes a Time When Babies Outgrow Strained Foods.

Properly strained fruits and vegetables are essential in the diet of a young baby in order to build a sturdy frame, strong muscles and sound teeth. But there comes a time, as the baby grows older when foods of a coarse nature are required, yet at the same time baby is not yet ready for the solid foods enjoyed by adults.

This intermediate period has now been very successfully bridged by commercially canned chopped foods for juniors, which are obtainable in quite a number of appetizing varieties and combinations to provide the older baby with the valuable vitamins and mineral salts so essential to proper growth and development.

In the preparation of chopped foods for juniors scientific methods assure the correct coarseness and the product is just sufficiently seasoned for the child to relish, commercial canners see that only the highest quality fruits and vegetables are used, and the special canning process preserves the vitamins and minerals also. Precautionarily, due to lack of facilities, home prepared fruits and vegetables lose a very large portion of their vitamins and mineral salts.

Chopped Foods for Juniors are usually fed to the child from one to four years of age, but it is always recommended that your doctor be closely consulted as to when to change from strained foods.

Mothers all over the country will welcome the new product, because it will be of material assistance to them in solving one of the serious problems of child feeding. What mother has not encountered difficulty in child feeding between the ages of twelve months and three or four years? With such appetizing varieties as Vegetable Soup, Carrots, Beets, Apricots, Peaches, Pears, Prunes, Spinach, etc., available in chopped form it is a very easy matter to tempt the appetite of the modern child. Chopped fruits are served cold just as they come from the can. Chopped vegetables are heated in a double-boiler and may be diluted with milk or water as desired. Chopped Foods for Juniors do not require any further cooking as the commercial canning process has already taken care of this.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Planned Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Good Attitude of Youth of Today Only a Pose

Some modern young people are less afraid of smallpox than they are of being considered sentimental. They have cultivated a hard brittle exterior, which precludes so many really attractive things.

Good manners—aren't they a bit old-fashioned? Green experience, inch, someone is bound to demand an ell. Fortunately, this pose is not true of all, but your devil-may-care boy or girl is apt to think the latitude smart.

In view of the pose, it's highly interesting to see the opinion of an outstanding person as actress Lillian Gish, who counsels:

Keep sentimentalness if you want to make the most of modern feminine freedom.

There is real wisdom for you. And no man wishes to domesticate one of these hard-as-nails girls who may rejoice in that particular bluff, but has a way of giving herself away, if she's a worthwhile girl.

Mrs Glah went on to say that women's chief perplexity right now is what to do with their new independence in a confused world. She feels that certain women would find a way out of their difficulties if they held fast to the quality of tenderness, no matter how hard he going becomes.

"Many women active in economic affairs have been criticized for cultivating a hard, forbidding exterior," she added. "This cold outside has been considered by many people a betrayal of the finest feelings and expressions of women throughout the ages."

And do you wonder at the cold exterior when so many women today seem to drift on uncharted seas in rudderless boats?

And each of them seem unable to decide what is happiness or even contentment for them. Likewise the forbidding exterior looms as a refuge to hide the hurt of living in a crazy world.

Others similarly adrift are caught in the trip of economic forces that men or nations seem unable to avert. Why show their feelings to every passerby? Marriage, no longer offers economic security for women. And so long a child from the world when its care must be given over to someone else, this casual guardianship perhaps meaning neglect and bad influences, has made many a woman forego her birthright of motherhood.

There is, of course, no blueprint in the way of solution. We're living in a machine age which kills jobs and grinds hearts and souls. But it's a time to remember that half a loaf is better than no bread. And a sentence from a recent letter comes back to me:

"We can't have everything. To marry at all, I must keep on with my job. But we have each other. And isn't companionship better than loneliness?

Child Seeks Agreeable People

Cheerful Nature is as Important to His as Fine Character

(By LISA GRENELLE)

Tommy, Jim, Laura and Anne would "dish off" the minute they were free to visit "that awful, disreputable Mrs. Green", who was the topic of many a bit of fashion neighborhood gossip.

"How can you go there?" Tommy's mother would demand when he returned home. But Tommy would simply regard the toe of his shoe. Children never answer questions, mother's say.

"You know I'll punish you every time you go over there, Jim, and still you will go," Jim's mother exclaimed time and again. What answer could Jim give?

At Laura's home it would be: "How can you like that awful woman, Laura? Can't you see what she is?" Laura couldn't apparently.

Daddy's Sex Views

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself Anne," her mother would say. But Anne did not seem to be ashamed. She appeared to be thinking about something else.

So busy were these mothers feeling angry humiliated and martyred that they never bothered to discover what it was that Mrs. Green gave children that didn't get at home. It was something so agreeable that they were willing to incur the displeasure of parents, even to the point of punishment, rather than forego a solitary visit.

Adult vices mean...nothing to children one way or the other. At nine, 10 or 11, Tommy, Jim, Laura and Anne certainly did not visit Mrs. Green to watch her "big life insurance salesman", if she really did go around herself. They visited Mrs. Green because Mrs. Green made it very pleasant for them, gave them a warm welcome and made them feel wanted.

Mrs. Green's Method

No adult vice in itself can have either interest or meaning, therefore no attraction for a child, or repulsion, either. Certainly neither Tommy, Jim, Laura nor Anne sought out Mrs. Green because she was a drunkard, a character, but merely because she was nice to children that didn't get it home.

Mrs. Green's society by scolding or punishing them, or by accusing Mrs. Green of vices that mean nothing to the children. They should visit Mrs. Green themselves to find out what it is about her and her place that so attracts the children, then see if they can't cultivate some of that irresistible attractiveness in their own backgardens.

Birth Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

We are a young couple living on a farm and are expecting early in the spring the arrival of our baby. I would like very much to send announcements to our relatives and friends, but feel that we cannot afford to have them engraved. Are correspondence cards worded? Thanking you, I remain,

Mrs. Wonder

2—How soon after the birth of the baby should they be sent?

Cards should be white correspondence cards with writing in black ink be sent.

K.

1—You may be comforted by the fact that it is not as necessary to send engraved cards announcing the birth of your baby. As a matter of fact, it would be more personal and friendly if they were written to relatives and close friends and if your sister-in-law will assume the responsibility of writing these notes, do, by all means, accept her suggestion.

Her note might be worded something like this:

Dear Jennie,

Mary and Tom have asked me to write you the happy news that their son arrived on Tuesday, the twentieth of June, that they are greatly rejoicing in the Allen home. I know that you will be very delighted to get this good news!

We all send our dearest love.

Affectionately,

Jane Allen

2—These notes may be sent as soon after the baby's birth as it is convenient for your sister-in-law to write them.

3—White letter-paper or note-paper (with black ink) is an excellent choice for these notes. Correspondence cards aren't popular nowadays, since their limited size often gives the impression of "cramping".

Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am twenty-three years of age and a divorcee. I am to be married again this summer, and expect to have two bridesmaids and a flower girl. I do not want to have so many attendants, but it seems that I cannot do anything about it. I have been wondering if it would be all right for me to wear a veil with my dress, or isn't that proper? I am to wear a pink lace dress and it is proper will I wear a pink veil if is isn't proper I'll wear a pink hat.

C.

Your taste is sound about not wishing to have so many attendants at your second marriage, for the accepted form is that the bride at her second marriage does not have bridesmaids. She may have a maid or matron of honor. Since you have been married once, you can all decision about the plans for your wedding. I am wondering why you think you are "not about it". I suggest that you decided to abide by good form, and not be persuaded by anyone who wishes to overrun your decisions. A pink lace dress is an appropriate choice for you to wear, and the matching hat is best form.

Trousseau Tea

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—In sending out invitations for a trousseau tea, would it be proper to send them out informally?

2—If the wedding were a garden wedding and the tea, with small reception after, would it be correct for the bride and her attendants to wear floor length gowns, as the groom and his attendant wear black tuxedos?

O.

1—It isn't good form to send printed invitations to a trousseau tea. The invitations may be written on your visiting-cards, like invitations to any other type of tea or you may write notes of invitation.

2—Yes.

GILEAD Y. P. U.

The Gilead Young People held a "Mother's Day Program" in the Church on Monday evening. May 9th, with 78 present and collection amounting to $3.50. The program was opened by Mr. Merrick, followed by a song by the school, "Whistle While You Work." Recitations were given by Barbara Latchford, William Baines, Garnet Latchford, George Clare and Douglas Yorke. A violin selection was given by Wilbur Wannamaker, "The Isle of Capri" and a recitation by Irvin Badgley, and Glen Wratt and Doris Hutchison were given a piano and harmonica duet was contributed by Misses Annie Clare, Mary Hutchison, "Home Sweet Home." A recitation by Charley Badgley, Georgina Huffman and Olive Rose was followed by music by Wilbur Wannamaker and Annie Clare, "The Golden Slippers." Other musical items were a dialogue, "Secret" by five school children; a song "Renfrew Valley" by Misses Annie Clare, Mary Hutchinson, "Red River Valley" accompanied by Wilbur Wannamaker with the guitar and a duet by Misses Olive Rose and Norma Clare, "Happy Mother's Day". A hymn was sung and the program was closed with a prayer by Mr. Ruth. Collection was served by the ladies and a social time was enjoyed.

New Hats and Coiffures Demand Smooth Brows

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

With tresses swept back from the forehead and hats still hanging on halo fashion or perched over one ear, brows must be satin smooth. If a mere phantom of a line appears between the eyes or from temple to temple, our old friend massage cream should come out of the cosmetic cupboard and get into action. Pedal furrows do not get lighter with the years. Unless something is done they are there to stay. They burrow in deeper and deeper as tissues lose tone and firmness.

Avoid hot water at all times. Have the water lukewarm enough to fluff up a rich suds when the face washing is going on. Use cold water finally. It has a favorable action upon blood streams, and blood streams distribute nourishment to every cell. Wrinkled tissues are starving for nourishment.

Second in the massage cream from collar bones to forward hairline. You might as well make a woman-sized job of the business. Include all the cutaneous territory. With the first finger, do little circles along the lines, ironing them smooth. Make hammers of both fingers, thump lightly.

Upon arising every morning, use cold water. It will do a world of good. Follow with an astringent. Let it dry on. Then you are entitled to play with your complexion brush, "war paint" and make yourself pretty.

Watch out for blackheads that appear in the region of the collar bone. There are large there; when distended with sebaceous oil they pick up dirt, sometimes gather it from the inner surfaces of woollen frocks.

When bathing, use strong soap suds and a brush; that practice will soon abolish little pimples. Give the skin surface a frequent dry cleaning with eau de cologne.

Brushing the hair not only removes dandruff from the scalp but it puts on a lovely gloss, enlivens the circulation of the scalp. Many a lon-

Brush the hair strand by strand. Don't crush the bristles over the crown of the head and consider that a brushing. Hold the hair up, brush the strand first on one side then the other. Get the best hair brush you can afford. Excellent ones can be had.

When eyelashes begin to look thin, give them three minutes' attention every night. Friction mineral oil into the roots. Spread it over the surrounding tissue, too if the flesh is beginning to take on fine lines. Skin loves oil of any kind, is the better for its applica-

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 13 (AP)—Stocks today to the rear in today's market, with leaders posting declines of fractions to more than a point at the week.

A little buying came in near the fourth hour and extreme losses were reduced here and there, but definite rallying indications were scarce. Transfers were about 600,000 shares.

The weak metal was unable to generate rallying steam today and leading issues back-tracked for fractions to a point or more.

The ticker tape napped frequently near the fourth hour.

Mild recovery signs were in evidence at the start, but these soon disappeared when profit selling cropped up in utilities which had provided inspiration for the April-May upturn.

On the offside the greater part of the day were consolidated Eskimo, Chrysler, General Motors, J. I. Case, Westinghouse and Eastman Kodak.

Mining shares were favored in the Canadian list. Dome was ahead around ¼ at 5, a point while smaller fractions were gained by McIntyre Porcupine and Lake Shore. Canada 4s were inactive. Canadian funds advanced .01 11-16 of a cent to 84.93.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, May. 13—Heavy trading in Imperial Oil and International Petroleum at slightly higher prices featured the industrial section of the Toronto market today. Other industrial groups were quiet and the index was slightly lower on the day. The mining and western oil sections also lost a little with trading in slow tempo. Fewer than 500,000 shares changed hands in the session.

Senior oils, utilities and building shares displayed moderate strength in slow trading and the buoyancy leaders were responsible for a slightly lower. Action was spotty in the western oils at narrow price fluctiles and the senior base metals were off minor fractions, reflecting moderately lower London prices for metal.

About 5,000 shares of Imperial Oil came out around 18 7-8 but the close was unchanged at 18 3-4. International Petroleum added a half point. The McColl issue also advanced a point. British American Oil recorded a 1-4 point drop.

Base metals were progressively heavy and the seniors, Smelters, Nickel, Noranda and Hudson Bay worked lower by fractions. Wright-Amulet and Sherritt eased off and the close was up for Sudbury Basin and Falconbridge. Eldorado and the other silvers were mainly firm. Lake Shore registered further recovery from Wednesday's sell-off and Dome gained a fraction.

MARKET COMMENT

The list continues to drift aimlessly, any movements that develop being entirely meaningless. Although the opinion generally favors higher prices, few have the courage to back their judgment by purchasing stocks. Sooner or later, however, the natural force that are at work will have their influence and the market will break away from its narrow range of recent months.

The management of Brazilian Traction is to be commended for its prompt statement with reference to developments in Brazil. Press reports of another uprising in that country, combined with cessation of trading in Brazilian Bonds in London temporarily caused considerable uneasiness in the minds of holders of Brazilian Traction and the official reassuring statement by the management prevented many a shareholder from dumping his holdings solely on account of fear.

Earnings of National Breweries are understood to be running at the rate of about $2.00 a share on the common, or slightly under those of last year. Sales of the company have been well maintained but the present lower earnings are attributed to an increase in the payroll which the company has had to meet. The strong financial position of National Breweries warrants the expectation that the $2 annual dividend rate is quite secure.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, May 13—Price continued steady on the local butter and egg market yesterday, with offerings light. Cheese was unchanged. Receipts were 968 cases of eggs, 611 packages of butter and 52 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Trading was quiet on the Canadian Commodity Exchange. Spot butter was quoted at the close at 26½c to 26¾c for Quebec fresh 1st section of the Quebec fresh 2nd score and 27c bid for Quebec secondgrade, the latter a slightly lower on the day. The mining and western oil sections also lost a little with trading in slow tempo. Fewer than 500,000 shares changed hands in the session.

Senior oils, utilities and building shares displayed moderate strength in slow trading and the buoyancy leaders were responsible for a slightly lower. Action was spotty in the western oils at narrow price fluctiles and the senior base metals were off minor fractions, reflecting moderately lower London prices for metal.

About 5,000 shares of Imperial Oil came out around 18 7-8 but the close was unchanged at 18 3-4. International Petroleum added a half point. The McColl issue also advanced a point. British American Oil recorded a 1-4 point drop.

Base metals were progressively heavy and the seniors, Smelters, Nickel, Noranda and Hudson Bay worked lower by fractions. Wright-Amulet and Sherritt eased off and the close was up for Sudbury Basin and Falconbridge. Eldorado and the other silvers were mainly firm. Lake Shore registered further recovery from Wednesday's sell-off and Dome gained a fraction.

280,526 Tons Newsprint Produced in April

Canada Leads With 200,794 Tons

New York, May 13—(CP)—Total production of newsprint in North America in April, 1938, amounted to 280,526 tons, of which 200,794 were produced in Canada, it was announced in a statement released today by the American Print Service Bureau here.

"Total shipments of newsprint for the month were in excess of production and stocks were reduced below March 30 figure. Canadian shipments were in excess and stocks on hand at the end of the month, 174,618.

Canadian mills produced 314,416 tons less in the first four months of 1938 than in the corresponding period of 1937, a decrease of 27 per cent, the report said.

Newfoundland production for April was 21,000 tons, United States production 58,836 tons.

SAYS HE VISITED VERY MANY CHURCHES

Los Angeles, May 13.—(AP)— Don Teel attended church regularly. He has visited more than 100 churches between Los Angeles and Boston, he told police yesterday. From each, he told police and reporters today, he and his partner took small collection funds.

"We worked the churches because they're easy—no one around to poke a gun in your stomach." said the 18-year-old youth. "Sunday night or Monday is the best time, but any day's good for $3 to $15."

Teel was charged with suspicion of burglary. Police claimed they found his fingerprints on the window sill of a burglarized house.

WHITE SLAVERY IS SUSPECTED IN ARREST OF EIGHT

Three Men And Five Women Taken in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

GIRL QUESTIONED

Missing From Her Home in Ontario For Several Weeks

Niagara, Falls, N.Y., May 12—(AP)—Immigration authorities announced today the arrest of three men and five women in an investigation of international traffic in young women."

United States Immigration Inspector C. Austin Folts said the arrests were made in a raid on a Niagara Falls house, after officials questioned an Ontario girl, who had been missing from home for several weeks.

He said Immigration Officers, members of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and a United States Marshal joined in making the arrests.

Mayor Bone Pleased With Appearance of City's Trim Lawns

Taking time out the midst of his numerous duties in his business office this morning, Mayor Bone paid tribute to the efforts of Belleville residents and factory owners, as well as caretakers of public institutions, to create a more beautiful and colorful city through the use of judicious tree and flower planting.

"The city looks beautiful now with its many flower gardens and lawns trimmed and cared for so well. Belleville is beautiful may it be so well handled. This season, the majority of home owners are specially seem to be trying to outdo each other in the beauty and variety of their plots and lawns," complimented the Mayor.

The mayor was very much struck by the efforts of a group of home owners of East Moira Street, who have been working steadily on the lawn space in front of their home bordering the river across from the Greenleaf foundry and plant. That plot which used to be an eyesore is rapidly developing into one of the beauty spots of the city. Much credit should be given those residents for their effort.

"There are still a few places which could be trimmed and cared for a little better, but on the whole Belleville residents have responded splendidly to the call by the Board of Commerce and local service clubs and organizations to 'clean up and dress up' and I am happy to compliment them upon it."

RELIEF WORKERS RETURN

Lakefield, Ont., May 13—(CP)— Nearly 160 relief workers who had been on strike for the past three weeks returned to work on township road projects in this district 10 miles west of Peterboro today. They returned at the prevailing scale of relief, in protest against which the strike was called and a deputation went to Toronto to interview Premier Hepburn.

CASE SETTLED ON JUDGE'S ADVICE

Counsel Agree to Suggestion in Action Re Redemption of Property

Suggestion from Mr. Justice Godfrey Ba..non..jury sitting of the Supreme Court that "this is clearly a case for settlement" brought an action for securing of property brought by Mrs. Greta Dempsey, Amelianburg to an abrupt close early today.

Settlement arrived at between counsel, Justice Godfrey dismissed the action with costs and ordered plaintiffs to pay defendant the sum of $235.55, on or before the 28th day of May.

"Upon such payment, the defendant will convey the said property to the plaintiff as trustee for Mrs. Lucy Pollard, Mrs. Ethel Weatherall, Joseph, Stephen, Doris, Phyllis and Nadine Dempsey, heirs of the late Joseph Dempsey.

The action arose from alleged failure on the part of defendant to fulfil an alleged agreement to convey to plaintiff certain property he had acquired by tax sale for the sum of $297.00

Robert Pringle, of Ponton and Pringle appeared for the defendant with Charles A. Payne, K. C. representing plaintiff.

Following settlement of the case between counsel, His Lordship complimented the defendant on his "willingness to cooperate and evident desire to do the right thing." Addressing counsel, he said "You have shown great wisdom in bringing this case to such a satisfactory close."

Only one witness, Mrs. Greta Dempsey, widow of the late Joseph Dempsey, and plaintiff in the case was called.

Plaintiff testified that she had no knowledge of the fact that the property had been placed for sale for unpaid taxes. Defendant had told her that she could redeem the place for what he got in it, after he had acquired the deed.

"I told me witness said, "All I want is my money back with interest and I'll go home and rest assured that I will get my money."

Witness could secure money from another source to redeem the farm and that defendant had also warned her 'not to let the property get into the hands of landsharks' and that the first opportunity to get the farm, if it was sold, be disposed of."

Witness had made extensive repairs to buildings during the past six years, she testified.

At this point, Mr. Justice Godfrey interjected, "This looks like a clear case for settlement" he said, "and I would recommend that a well-known and highly respected man in his community does not have to take this poor woman's farm from her. He appears to be a decent respectable man, and I do not want to hand down any decision that will place a stigma on defence counsel's client."

Temporary adjournment of court was ordered by His Lordship to enable counsel to consult their clients with regard to a settlement. Upon resumption of court Justice Godfrey handed down his decision.

Sheriff Fluke and Court Shaw which went into hearing this afternoon completed the docket of the sitting.

PRIZES OFFERED FOR BEST FLOWER GARDENS IN CITY

Horticultural Soc. And C. of C. Cooperate to Stimulate Interest in Lawns

THREE CLASSES

Prizes for the beautification of lawns, flower beds and grass plots in homes will be awarded residents of Belleville by the Belleville Horticultural Society working in co-operation with the local Chamber of Commerce, it was announced at a regular meeting of the Society held last evening.

Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the competition for a more beautiful Belleville is being managed by the Horticultural Society in three classes. Prizes of $5.00, $2.00 and $3.00 will be awarded for the best flower beds, lawns or gardens for the first class of homes costing $2500 and under. Same prizes will be offered for homes in the second class of $2500 and under and the same three prizes for the three winners coming in the best kept lawns or gardens in the city.

The only stipulation is that those eligible for the competition be members of either the Chamber of Commerce or the Belleville Horticultural Society.

How extensive the work can be being carried on by the Horticultural Society on the new civic beach east of the city was revealed by the report of Past President David Parliament, Chairman of the Society's Planting Committee. To date, Mr. Farrell reported 46 Lombardy Poplars, 30 Norway Maples, 20 Hemlock, ten Chinese Elms; 36 Soft Maples and 1,000 Scotch and 1,000 small trees, including spruce, hickory, walnut and white birch have also or are in process of being planted, it was stated.

The extension of the planting committee will undertake an extension of the garden on Catherine Street and Isabel. Juniper trees are to be planted on the crest of this little hill, and the rock garden will be carried further down the slope.

A request for the general public of Belleville to join the Society in its program of planting and beautification of the city is made by members who are anxious to secure larger membership. At a meeting of the Executive Committee those who join to a premium of $1.00 per annum and an active part in the work of the Society this coming year.

Radio Owners to Have Difficulty Evading Payment

Ottawa, May 13—(CP)—It will be difficult for radio owners to evade payment of licence fees under legislation now before the House of Commons unless the sharp criticism directed at it in the House yesterday causes some amendments rendering it more lenient.

Transport Minister Howe was under fire because of clauses which would make it possible for police or to obtain search warrants from a justice of peace where he suspected an unlicensed radio was being concealed, and which would give the police the household to prove his innocence.

Led by J. Earl Lawson (Conservative, York South), a number of members of different political leanings argued these clauses were too harsh and that they would create fresh offences, the penalties for which were out of portion.

Mr. Howe said he would reconsider those clauses which presumed that if a radio was owned it was being used and that the onus would be on the owner to prove it was not being used. In practice no prosecutions were started unless the collector was satisfied the unlicensed set was in use.

DEATH OF RECLUSE

farmer, who kept chickens and one cow. He was found dead yesterday on the floor of the ramshackle house where he lived alone for many years. Nearby was a double-barrelled shotgun. The head was punctured by shotgun pellets.

Police and medical examiners who went to the shack, fifteen miles northeast of here, said Waterton had been dead several hours. The body was found by Watt Reid, township tax collector, and Edward Morrison, a neighbor.

May Have Died Wednesday.

It was believed Waterton may have died Wednesday night or early Thursday morning. The chickens, which Waterton customarily released from their pen each morning, were penned up all day yesterday. But what was later discovered when Tax-collector Reid came along and noticed the shack door open, he called and, when there was no reply, looked around the premises before going in and finding the body. He got Morrison and the two phoned police.

Waterton's widow, who lived with their son some distance away, said she last saw her husband Monday when they met in the town. They were on their way to the store. At that time Waterton said her husband carried considerable money, about $150". His purse was empty when the body was found.

Dr. R. R. Frankish, Ontario government medico-legal expert, investigated the case today and Coroner Dr. A. R. Rutherford said an inquest date would be set following A theory Waterton was killed by an intruder was strengthened by the fact his aged farmer had only one arm. It was regarded as doubtful whether he could have fired a shot-gun without shooting off the shot-gun was found within a few feet of the body.

Reports he carried $100 the day before his death were not confirmed. No money was found on his pockets or in the shack by police.

Separated From Wife

Waterton had not lived with his wife and son for some time. They lived on a nearby farm.

Morrison said he last saw Waterton alive Wednesday evening. Waterton was working on a new chicken house about 100 yards from his shack.

When his neighbor did not appear outside his house yesterday Morrison became concerned and decided to investigate. He found the body and called police. Waterton had been dead several hours before the discovery, it was established.

Coroner Dr. A. R. Rutherford of Owen Sound said the body removed to an Owen Sound funeral home. He said the date of the inquest would be decided after Dr. Frankish completed his examination.

Police inquiry was conducted by Provincial Inspector Clen Jordan of Kitchener.

Bobby Feller Beats Gomez In Tidiest Hurling Duel Seen This Season by Score of 3-2

19 Year Old Hurler Allows Only Five Hits And Whiffs Nine

SENATORS ON TOP

Washington Defeats Tigers With Rally in Late Frames

By Sid Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer.

Lou Gehrig's dimples broke through a rueful smile. He had just finished fanning for the second time against Bobby Feller's dipsydols.

"Boy," he said, "anybody's going to be plenty lucky to get a hit off that kid this year."

It didn't matter that rawboned Lou slapped to the plate a few minutes later and blasted one of Bobby's fast balls out of the lot for two runs; nor did it matter much that Bobby, in taking a 3-2 decision from the world champion Yankees yesterday, was lucky in being presented with a pair of unearned runs, which allowed Cleveland Indians to finish on top.

What did matter was that the right-arm rifle from "Iowny" is so far improved over last year that he looks like two other fellows. His fast ball, which they called the hottest thing since Walter Johnson was whistling 'em around American League ears, is still a fancy dido that comes up to the plate with a hop, that might take your chin off if you're standing in close. Added to that is a brand new curve that breaks across the plate like a hot knife slicing through butter.

Curing Nervousness

With that equipment, and given a little more time to cure a youngster's natural nervousness and to eliminate a nasty little habit of getting feverish with runners on base, this 19-year-old Feller feller is going to make the folks forget a lot of "manner" of years gone by.

A lot of the credit, as has been whispered before, goes to rollicking Rollie Hemsley, who, for all his playboyishness, is improving a kid more every time out. Rollie knows American League batters, and, when he's working, is up near the top in handling pitchers.

The next big thing about Bobby's duel with Lefty Gomez however, wasn't so much the fact that he allowed only five hits, fanned nine and walked only three. It was that Joe DiMaggio and belting Bill Dickey, who are great defensive ball players anytime, and greatest "in the clutch," came up just that spot. Each fumbled an easy one in the sixth inning to ruin Gomez's neat record of 18 consecutive set up two of the Tribe's three tallies.

That defeat coupled with the 7-6 beating Washington spattered Senators handed Detroit Tigers, dropped the Yankees out of first place in the American League, after a one-day stay, and boosted the Nats to the top.

Like the American League the National presented a dual-headed curtailed program of two games, with Charley Cohs' "noble experiment" batting order trouncing Brooklyn's 8-6, and Cincinnati Reds blanking Casey Stengel's stinglers 8eq 4-0.

GOLF FACTS

GOLF CLUBS SHOULD HAVE DRIVING-NETS NEAR FIRST TEE

The business man golfer looks for a businesslike set-up in everything he tackles. Why not cater to this by giving him a chance to get the much needed practice shots near the first tee in a driving net?

Some courses have done this and I'm sure that the few shots each player hits in the net help him to play better when he goes out on the course. Most practice grounds are located at quite a distance from the first tee. The thought of having to dig out the practice balls or borrow some from the pro generally proves to be a step that seems too much of a bother so it is seldom done. Time is the one thing that the business man thinks about most. He hasn't time to practice, no matter how much he would like to. But, he will take a few shots while waiting for another foursome to get away from the tee, or he may have to wait for a playing partner to put on some of his clothing.

After all there will be a few minutes which might be used for practice if he could catch it on the run. A driving net near the first tee is the answer. The net should be big enough to allow two or more players to swing at the same time. Even air or eight swings, particularly when made at the ball, will do a world of good for any player.

WRESTLING CARD IS VARIED ONE

When two such well-matched wrestlers as Scotty McDougall and Count Zarynoff both undefeated in a local ring are brought together in a feature bout, the ultimate outcome is not only hard to decide, but which grappler the majority of the gallery will support is hard to determine. Zarynoff appeared locally on one occasion when his clean masterful style of wrestling won for him the respect and admiration of the local wrestling clientele, but when he pits the burly, bare-footed Scotchman, Scotty McDougall, in the main bout of tonight's all-star wrestling show at the Hume Arena, there will be fans cheering for one and the other.

Local promoters added something in the line of class when they signed Otto Vanberg, the German, 185 pound champion, to meet Scotty McKirvan, 180, in the preliminary while in the semi-final two recognized grapplers will meet for the first time when Chief Lynx, the Rama Reserve Indian, tackles will try to floor Mike Dominic, ardent supporter of Il Duce.

EDMONTON GRADS WIN SECOND GAME

Edmonton, May 13—(CP)— Led by Noel MacDonald who scored 19 points, Edmonton Grads defeated Chicago All-Stars 42-26 here last night in the second game of the three-game total home and away series for the Underwood International Women's Basketball Trophy. The tall centre, returning to the form of last year, was one that resulted in ranking her at the top of the individual heap. Individually, tossed 11 points in the first half and added eight more in the second.

Tommy Pedder Wins Canadian Bantam Weightlifting Title

Local Champion to Compete at Cleveland

WINS WITH EASE

Tommy Pedder, Belleville's member of the famous "York Weight Lifting Club," won the Canadian bantamweight championship at the Dominion weight-lifting exhibitions held in Toronto on Wednesday. Pedder not only won the 123 3-4 pound championship with ease, but qualified all competitors in the lightweight or 132 pound class as well. In winning the bantamweight championship of Canada, Pedder qualified to represent the Dominion in the North American weight-lifting championships to be held at Cleveland, Ohio, next week.

Although Pedder successfully lifted greater weights in his recent exhibition of strength given in connection with the annual Belleville Y.M.C.A. physical demonstration, he was not pressed in the Dominion finals. His lifts for the press were 150 pounds, snatch 150 pounds and clean and jerk 215 pounds.

Tommy Pedder, who qualified for the Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim three years ago, trained for the Canadian weight-lifting championships in Belleville during the spring months and was successful on Wednesday in wresting the title. Pedder is a short stocky built lad, who in his youth was at one time given only a few months to live, strenuous physical exercises, however, successfully dispelled Pedder's youthful health impediments, as today he is the picture of health and one of Canada's leading athletes. His many local admirers will join with him in rejoicing at his most recent accomplishment and are wishing him well in his forthcoming attempt in the North American weight-lifting championships at Cleveland.

NEWARK BEARS EXPECT HURLERS FROM BIG LOOPS

Major Leagues Have to Cut Down Playing Strength By May 20th

Comes May 23 and there'll be plenty of reason for joy as well as grief in the International Baseball League.

That's the day when the Major League moguls will have cut down their rosters to the 23 players limit, and the managers of the circuit are keeping an anxious eye fixed in the direction of their parent clubs like a hungry dog waiting day to engage in some wistful waiting contest on Wednesday's menu has caused the postponements of all games. But Bunny Jim Bottomley, the usually genial master-mind of Syracuse Chief's who's been anything but Bunny like himself, had something to make him a little happier. Cincinnati Reds dropped Charley (Red) Barrett in his lap to aid his pitching staff and Bottomley with a cellar club on his hands, is hoping for more of the same later. Barrett, a 22-year-old righthander, won 34 games and lost 12 for Mississippe of the Western Association last yeagrand is considered a year away from the big show.

The Chief Bunny says, as far as seven of the International managers are concerned, with profound regret that President Carleton learned of the inability of the British lawn bowlers to visit Canada again. "Last year a team of British lawn bowlers toured Canada with marked success, the visiting lawn bowlers not only proving stiffy competition, but the tour adding much to the game's spirit. We received notice recently, that due to the inability of some of the English bowlers to leave their respective business, the tour would have to be postponed for at least a year. We hope to have them with us in 1939, however," added Dr. Carleton.

The golfers at the Belleville Golf Club are planning their annual fun opening for May 24th with the club competitions and all of the added inducements. The Belleville course has been extended some 600 yards, according to Francis Carter, bringing the total yardage to well over 6,000 yards for a nine hole course, nearly equal to the total yardage at the Country Club, one of the longest nine hole courses in the province. Golf at local golf clubs has become more popular each successive season as the membership increased membership today.

We are in receipt of our usual gracious allotment of score cards afforded us through Mr. J. O. Dack of the A. G. Spalding Company of Brantford. These score cards are available to the minor clubs in both softball and baseball and may be obtained at this office. Annually the Spalding Company is kind enough to provide these score cards which have become invaluable to the minor clubs throughout the community. Step up those interested, they're free.

We understand "Frenchy" Legris, star hockey player of the R.C.A.F., "Flyers" of last season, is also a baseball player of note. Legris plays around the keystone sack, short or second and is reported to be a standout with the "airmen" in their spring training. With the Flyers out of the Bay of Quinte loop, the local international might be interested in obtaining Legris' services, however. The locals practice tonight.

Do you remember when an all-time pitching record was set by Carl Hubbell, New York Giants ace twirler one year ago today when he whipped Pittsburgh Pirates 1-2 at New York. King Carl eclipsed Rube Marquard's 20 straight set in 1911-12. The lean southpaw's string was broken May 31 when Brooklyn batted him out of the box.

Replacing nearly every color of the rainbow, the local softball clubs will blossom forth in new uniforms when they square off to open the season on May 22nd. Every club in Fvary Bill Todd's loop have purchased new sweaters, of every conceivable combination of colors known to mankind. Some are conservative, while still others are of the more gaudy combination. The newest a colorful picture on the diamond, to say the least. Incidentally there is a movement on foot to make the baseball and softball uniforms more gaudy and attractive to the eye. Incidentally the local softball fraternity is holding its annual tag day on Saturday, the proceeds going towards the improvement of their Coleman Plate diamond.

According to the Picton press, Mayor McKibbon, who must be sports-minded to the tenith degree, is not only President of the Picton club in the Bay of Quinte loop, but hopes to personally suit with the team and may even play, if he gets his perfect attendance on the diamond as he has in the front office.

"What's the matter you don't give me a break in your paper?" Referee Jackie Forbes hurled at us between bouts during last week's wrestling show. "Well, Jackie, the only time you mike the referee is when he does you in an appearance," we replied. "Naw, baby, that's what you think. Why before I even leave the dressing room to referee some bouts, they're down on my trail," shot back Forbes. (Wolves are what are generally referred to as rabid fans.) Well, Jackie is slated to referee tonight's feature bout between Scotty McDougall and Count Zarynoff, the latter a notorious heel, we promised him a suitable if reception. Frankly speaking Forbes is a good referee, but likes to be on his toes tonight, as the winner of the main scrap has been promised an increased purse when he meets either Katan or the Masked Marvel.

Dr. E. A. Carleton, Stirling's lawn bowling champion and President of the Ontario Lawn Bowling Association, today informed us the proposed goodwill tour of a contingent of English lawn bowlers had been cancelled. It was with profound regret that President Carleton learned of the inability of the British lawn bowlers to visit Canada again. "Last year a team of British lawn bowlers toured Canada with marked success, the visiting lawn bowlers not only proving stiffy competition, but the tour adding much to the game's spirit. We received notice recently, that due to the inability of some of the English bowlers to leave their respective business, the tour would have to be postponed for at least a year. We hope to have them with us in 1939, however," added Dr. Carleton.

The golfers at the Belleville Golf Club are planning their annual fun opening for May 24th with the club competitions and all of the added inducements. The Belleville course has been extended some 600 yards, according to Francis Carter, bringing the total yardage to well over 6,000 yards for a nine hole course, nearly equal to the total yardage at the Country Club, one of the longest nine hole courses in the province. Golf at local golf clubs has become more popular each successive season as the membership increased membership today.

We are in receipt of our usual gracious allotment of score cards afforded us through Mr. J. O. Dack of the A. G. Spalding Company of Brantford. These score cards are available to the minor clubs in both softball and baseball and may be obtained at this office. Annually the Spalding Company is kind enough to provide these score cards which have become invaluable to the minor clubs throughout the community. Step up those interested, they're free.

We understand "Frenchy" Legris, star hockey player of the R.C.A.F., "Flyers" of last season, is also a baseball player of note. Legris plays around the keystone sack, short or second and is reported to be a standout with the "airmen" in their spring training. With the Flyers out of the Bay of Quinte loop, the local international might be interested in obtaining Legris' services, however. The locals practice tonight.

DANGER IN THE MIST

By

Martha King Davis

She comes here this summer with the purpose of doing away with Eliza and finding the crime on me. This man is perhaps staying in the neighborhood. He has the idea of terrorizing the whole household, so that no one dares do much investigating.

"This man or Grace shot Eliot that night, knowing that I would be involved. It works very well. Grace knows, how Lydia hates me and she does all she can to influence Lydia's belief that I committed the crime.

"I still think Barnes saw Eddy that night as I did and that he was shielding Eddy. But Grace and this man needed greater proof of my guilt, so they took the revolver from my room and shot Barnes. Or—that was cold-blooded murder! This man did that. No one in our household—not even Grace—could have done it. Besides Grace had her alibi with Lawyer Langford and Lydia."

As she stopped for a moment, Mac said—"It does sound plausible, but I could see that he was not convinced.

She threw out her hands with a little gesture of despair. "But the sheriff does not suspect me, and now they have to plan something else. The frightening of Judy is a forerunner. What will happen next?" Her eyes grew wide with fear. "Oh—I wish the sheriff hadn't gone away! Parker may be all right, but he so thoroughly believes in my guilt. One can't blame him. I can't see myself why the sheriff holds out."

"Because he knows all this you've just been saying!" I cried. "That's why he had to go to Boston—he had to find out something about Miss Linnell and this man. Everything will be cleared up when he gets back."

The fear did not leave her face "But he is to be gone tonight—all tomorrow and, perhaps, tomorrow night. So much can happen in all that time!"

"I am going to get hold of Barry," said Mac. "He and I will guard the place all night, Ii—"

There was a sound outside and the kitchen door opened.

I expect we all jumped, but it was none other than Mr. Barry himself. He looked like a young farmer boy, in his dark blue shirt and khaki trousers. His face was tanned to a deep bronze and he twirled his hat nervously in his brown hands.

"Guess I scared you folks, but I've been listening to your talk and I thought I'd better butt in. The sheriff asked me not to leave the place at night, and I'm afraid he'll be pretty sore at what happened to Miss Atlas," nodding to me, "But I went for a bite to eat and didn't get back quite as quick as I expected. I've combed the place, but I can't find anyone lurking about 'ceptin' your brother, Mrs. Caldwell. That lad seems to be just about everywhere and he's slippery as an eel."

Norma Caldwell let her lip with a troubled little shake of her head. "I can't think what's come over Eddy. He used to be out in the woods a great deal but he came in and stayed in mostly lately. It's because Peter has given him the key to that room over the garage. It's made him utterly irresponsible."

"I tried to get in that room tonight," said Barry, "but the door was locked. Anything special in it?"

"Peter and I got in there this afternoon," said Mrs. Caldwell. "Nothing except old birds and animals that Eddy has collected. There are some stuffed snakes—ugh! It gave me the shivers! I shall ask Peter to have Eddy give back the key—after him that he needs the room. I don't like the idea of Eddy and Barry never seem him so elusive and excitable."

It was arranged that Mac and Barry should stay about the place all night.

I went to my room and a little later, had a knock at my bedroom door. "Here's some tablets," she said, "just to quiet your nerves. I've been taking one or three every night. They're perfectly harmless. You do look done for, Miss Atlas. My family would have a fit."

I suddenly answered. "That's a joke. Dad is at the hotel in town. I had dinner with him. He came to take me home."

Her face clouded. "Of course—you will go."

"No. I told him everything and he is willing I should stay. It was he who suggested Grace Linnell, and I think he's right. Dad is rather a wit about these things. Does on detective yarns. But—it's just as well he doesn't know about tonight. He might change his mind about my staying. Glory—my head aches! Why anyone should want to grab me!"

"I'm sure it was to frighten you into leaving. Oh—I do feel guilty! But I'm mighty glad you're going to stick it, Judy dear."

Well—it was darn lucky for her that I did.

CHAPTER 21

In Eliza's Room

There was one other lucky thing happened that night, I didn't take the sleeping tablets.

Heaven knows—I needed them, with my head aching fit to burst and my nerves in shreds! But—I thought of Mac prowling around the grounds, and believe me! I wanted to hear if anything happened to him, not be doped off in a sound sleep.

I tried to read—tried to forget the feeling of those hands at my throat—tried not to think of all the horrible happenings that somehow seemed to grow more and more sinister.

I didn't want to remember that look of fear in Norma Caldwell's eyes as she asked—"What next?"

What next—indeed! Perhaps Mac.

I couldn't endure that thought. I sat up in bed and listened. What were he and Barry doing? I hoped they would get together and I well knew they wouldn't.

I looked at my watch. It was twelve-thirty. Then—crash! Something fell close by. Oh—what?

I jumped out of bed—now open my door, and ran toward the stairs. Then I heard something else—a shout in Eliza's room. Could it be Eliza?

I went to her door—tried to push it open but there was something against it. "Eliza—Eliza! Let me in!" I called.

There was a hush of steps on the stairs and Mac appeared. "What is it? What was that noise?"

"I don't know. I think it—I can't get this door open—" my words tumbled about incoherently.

Mac put his knee against the door and it easily gave way. He switched on the light. The obstruction was an overturned table.

"Eliza—where are you?"

The blankets were humped up on the bed. I pulled them down, and there was Eliza—her fingers stuffed in her ears—her face like the white of chalk.

"Oh—oh—oh!" she moaned.

It was several minutes before we could get her to speak, and then she could not tell much. She had been awakened by a sound in the room — someone moving about. Then—she could not tell—she had gone right under the blankets.

"I'm going home," she whimpered. "I—I can't stay here. Oh—if I only hadn't told the sheriff!"

"Told the sheriff! What did you tell the sheriff?" asked Mac.

But she would not tell.

Mac went to the window and called Barry.

They talked in the hall. Barry had been at the front of the house and seen nothing. He thought Mac was in our part and so he had been—down in the kitchen.

"I'm positive no one went up the stairs," Mac said decisively.

"Then—then—" Eliza's trembling voice broke in. "Then it must have been Eddy! He—he—he's hiding in the house all the evening. A couple of times I'd receive, we are—I'll tell the world—"

What had Eliza told the sheriff?

I puzzled about that for a long time after I got back to bed. Finally with the resolve to make her tell me the next day but I had no chance to do this for when I got down in the morning Eliza had left. I think no one had breakfast but even Miss Lydia, although she looked as if Eddy had been murdered. "The idea! Eliza says there is some one after her. Who would be after Eliza?"

Who indeed?

It seemed that Miss Lydia had to come into the kitchen, for I simply couldn't cook, but that Miss Lydia was anything but long at it. Fortunately no one was much hungry that morning.

Having her about certainly took all the fun that there was left out of our part of the house. I just could like her, especially when she reiterated her belief in Norma Caldwell's guilt.

But it was noticeable that she was not arrogant, self-possessed Miss Lydia we had known at first. She was shaken now and I was ready to find out that she was frightened.

"You said—you heard something in Eliza's room?"

"Yes, Miss Lydia."

"You know, Judy—you were very nervous last night. You might have imagined anything."

"Yes, Miss Lydia. I suppose that is true."

"You thought someone caught hold of you on the path?"

"Someone did." There was no hesitation in my assertion.

Miss Lydia broke some eggs into a bowl. I saw that her hands were trembling.

"It's queer," she muttered. "The other night I thought I heard someone in my room. I put on my light, but there was no one. However—the lamp and some books and other little things had been taken off the table and placed on the floor." She whirled the eggbeater violently. "I do not walk in my sleep."

"We have all had some strange experiences, Miss Lydia," I said. "We all feel there is an unknown person about the place."

"Lost my rouge." I smiled. "Say —you needn't worry about me — I'm a long-distance dreamer. That makes me think—I'm going to get in a swim this afternoon. Or— am I not allowed to do that, either?"

"Do anything you like in broad daylight, but nights—you listen to me, lady."

AT THE BELLE

"Girl of the Golden West"

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are co-starred in singing roles in "The Girl of the Golden West" which comes to the Belle Saturday, for four glorious days, matinee daily.

In the adaptation of the famous Belasco play, the picture has been enhanced by one of the loveliest musical scores heard on the screen in some time.

Among the numbers that will be forgiven are "Sweethearts", "Who Are We to Say", "Shadows on the Moon", "The Wind in the Trees", "From the Inner Sanctum", "Soldiers of Fortune" and "Marieche", a lavish Spanish festival that includes Madame Rasch's dancers.

Miss Macdonald plays Mary, the orphaned owner of the Polka Saloon. Jack Rance, gambling sheriff, is in love with her but Mary falls in love with Ramerez, romantic bandit whom she believes a young army officer. A jilted sweetheart betrays Ramerez to the Rance but the bandit escapes to Mary's cabin where he is captured. Mary promises to marry Rance if he frees Ramerez and a very ingenious climax reunites the forces.

Contributing outstanding performances in a distinguished supporting cast are Walter Pidgon, Leo Carrillo, Buddy Ebsen, Leonard Penn, Priscilla Lawson, Bob Murphy and Olin Howland.

Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.00. For your perfect enjoyment of "The Girl of the Golden West", we suggest that you see it from the beginning at 2.50, 7.10, and 9.25 p.m.

Belle Davis, Deparis

Belle Davis Ina, the newest and greatest role in "Jezebel" romantic drama of the old south in which her two leading men are Henry Fonda arg George Brent. Also in the cast are Margaret Lindsay, Fay Bainter, Donald Crisp, Richard Cromwell and many other noted players. "Jezebel" will be presented at the Belle for the last times tonight with Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy in a clever and original comedy "Pure Foul" and Carl Hoff and his Knights of Melody in a smart song and dance revue. Two performances will be presented at 7.00 and 9.00.

Revivals Postponed

The policy of revival feature presentation at the Belle each Friday evening, scheduled to start Tonight has been postponed. Watch for announcement of feature attractions to be presented at an early date.

KEEP CATS INDOORS WHILE NESTLINGS FLY

A donation which "will assist the newly organized Belleville Humane Society in its efforts to create better living and working conditions for animals of the city and immediate district has been tendered officers of the organization by a local resident.

The donation was accompanied by a timely request from the animal lover that all house cats be guarded against the possibility of killing birds, the little ones of which will soon be leaving their nests on their initial attempt to fly. A suggestion that the cats be kept indoors during the early hours of the morning was given. Stray cats are responsible for the problem of the humane workers.

CAR IS STOPPED BY LOCAL POLICE

Charge of Reckless Driving Laid Against Toronto Motorist

Evading Napanee and Deseronto police a Toronto motorist was apprehended as he drove his automobile into Belleville early last evening and was taken into custody on charges of reckless driving. The man's name was given as Mr. A. Craig, 28 Willingdon Boulevard, Toronto.

Called by H.T.O. H. Jillings of Napanee, to have driven his car through Napanee at an excessive rate of speed and at the same time running down the said officer and two pedestrians the license plate number of Mr. Craig's car was taken by Constable Jillings and relayed to Belleville as an automobile bearing Ontario licence plates number 3-Z-710. Lying in wait at the eastern entrance to the city, H.T.O. Sam Irvine and City Traffic Officer Doug Ellis were successful in stopping the vehicle bearing the above licence plate number. Mr. Craig was later escorted to Napanee by Motorcycle Patrolman Jillings, where he was reported, charges of reckless driving were preferred against Mr. Craig last night.

will be paid by the City of Belleville for information leading to the apprehension or conviction of any person damaging any city property or interfering with any city lanterns placed on the streets, or adjacent thereto, to mark obstructions of places under repair.

had been torn off when he was plunged 40 feet while at work in the mine and pinned down by timber. Dr. Harold V. Hatch, mine physician, explained severe pain and loss of muscular control might create such a sensation and when the body was recovered this theory was borne out. A gash over one eye was the only external injury but the chest was badly crushed.

Rescuers worked desperately, but necessarily slowly for four hours before reaching McAdam's body. McAdam talked to them at first but responses to their words of encouragement stopped later.

Work Slow

The rescue work was slow and dangerous because the slope in which McAdam was trapped had to be strengthened by timbers and bracing before the men could borrow toward him. They reached another slide would engulf the Queen's University student who worked only three days in the mine, 150 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

J. M. Kilpatrick, mine superintendent, who supervised rescue operations, could say little concerning his part in the task.

"All the men feel the loss of this youngster keenly and our sympathy goes out to his widowed mother but adds that still I can say is that the men had a job of work to do and they did it," he said. "There wasn't anything sensational about the rescue attempt. It was just slow, dogged work and we all wished it could have been faster."

New Bridge Site Thousands Visit

Collins Landing, N.Y., May 13—Visitors from a constantly widening area in the northeastern section of the United States and Canada are being drawn to the construction site of one of the new Thousand Islands International Bridge, checkups by the Thousand Islands Bridge Authority revealed today.

Data compiled at this point last Sunday when 6,000 persons examined the American Channel suspension bridge now nearing completion showed a surprisingly broad geographical range of visitors Authority officials said, indicating an unusual amount of advance interests and familiarity with the project, which it is hoped President Roosevelt will officially open next August 18th.

Included in the crowds who climbed over steel sections and took photographs of the bridge towers and cable were visitors from Maine, Michigan, Vermont, Quebec, Ohio and New York City, along with many from Syracuse and Ontario.

The Authority has for the past several weeks been observing the flow of automobile traffic at the American Channel bridge here, which is one of the five spans that will be included in the 8 1-2 mile path of approaches, connecting roadways and bridges across the scenic Thousand Islands and the St. Lawrence River to Ivy Lea, Ontario, near Brockville.

With first reports from the Canadian side showing a similar intensity of interest, officials of communities on both mainlands of the Thousand Islands region have indicated to the Authority that the new bridge is proving an even greater attraction for visitors from outside areas than they had first expected.

Ma and pop was eating breakfast and I said, Good nite, pop, back at ya, ma.

There may be something in what you say, but I'm inclined to think you're exaggerating, pop said, and I said, No sir, pop, O winnick-ers, imagine a swell day like this and having to go to school.

I can imagine nothing more inviting, with all life ahead of you and a free admission at your back and call, pop said. While I wont go so far as to say that I appreciated it in full value when I was your age, I will say that I'd welcome it with open arms if I had it at my disposal all over again he said, and I said, Well I'd rather be grown up like you and have an office to take my time to go to and then put all around and talk to people and go out and come back whenever I felt like it.

You paint a rosy picture of office life with I fear is a little flattery for, pop said. It's true that if I'm late at the office I have only my own concehence to reprove me, but conscience is the hardest of taskmakers, and if I have no teacher to make me stay after hours, I often have stern necessity, which is just as impossible to disobey, or at least as impractical. The weather seems just as swell to me as it does to you, and I assure you nothing would please me more than to cut loose and go to the ball game, so you see my feelings aren't so different from yours after all, he said.

Well then O, pop, gosh, if we both feel the same why cant we both stay home and go to the ball game together, I mean why cant you take me? I said, and he said, For the same reason that fillosofical remarks, alas, are wasted on the very young, and now you shake a leg and get started before you're late for school again, and I'll get started for the office and we'll both let it go at that.

Wich we did.

Springbrook

Springbrook—The weekly meeting of Springbrook Young People's League was held on Monday evening under the leadership of Dorothy Harding. Missionary convener. The meeting opened with a hymn following by prayer by Mrs. T. McKeown. Scripture readings were given by Helena Ketcheson. A poem "The Glad Song" was read by Mrs. Murray Mason. The business part of the meeting was then conducted by the president Bessie McMullen. Roll Call was well responded to the theme word being "Faith." The word for next week's roll call to be "Dwell." After the singing of another hymn the current events were very ably taken by Evelyn Bailey. Mrs. (Rev.) A. W. Harding then gave a very interesting talk on "Being Kind to Other Races," using the story of the Good Samaritan as reference. Several discussions were dealt with which all enjoyed. After the singing of another hymn several impromptu speeches were given.

An Apple Contest was then staged by the convener and the repealing of the Mizpah Benediction brought the meeting to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Linn and family of Fort Hope, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mumby.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Bateman spent Sunday with Mrs. Carrie Joyce.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Mason and baby of Oshawa, spent Sunday with relatives here.

Miss Hazel Benson of Bethelville, spent the week-end under the parental roof.

Mother's Day Service was observed in the United Church here on Sunday afternoon with a large attendance. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with plants, wild flowers and tulips. The supplied programmes being used. Baptism Service was conducted for Baby Donald Ross Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Mason and Baby Larry Kenneth Forsythe, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Forsythe.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mumby were: Mr. J. Linn, Mr. A. Jordison of Hancroft; Mr. and Mrs. C. Bartlett of Bowmanville; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tweedy and Keith of Minto.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Heath motored to Trenton on Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Prince and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Shortt and Ray, also Miss Hazel Pauley spent Monday evening with Mr. C. Heath of Bethel who has been ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Heath were visitors at Mr. Arthur Morrison's, North concession on Sunday afternoon and called on Mr. Warren Heath at Bethel, who is ill at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Moe Mason spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Ray, Sib. line.

The funeral of the late Martha Danford was held on Sunday afternoon at his father's Home, Blairton Station from there the procession proceeded to Mount Nebo cemetery at Springbrook where burial took place.

The deceased had been in poor health for a number of years and leaves to mourn her loss her husband, son and one sister, besides her parents, Mr. and Mr. Smith of the Shanaad Church, Medoc, had charge of the service. The sympathy of the community goes out to the relatives as they were residents in this community.

Plainfield

Plainfield — The Young People met in the evening meeting for this term in the church on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Everson presided and opened the service with a hymn. The minutes were read by Clinton Emerson. The minister conducted the worship period, choosing the parable of the Prodigal Son. This story was read after a number of questions were asked about it and were discussed and answered by the members of the audience. The service was closed with prayer by Mr. Everson. The following programme was then given: Solo—Reading, "Mother's Love," Verna Pringle; duet, Marion Pringle and Lorraine Outwater, "Looking at the Past"; a reading, Carole Goodfellow, "The Old Man's Comforter"; reading, Marie Hall, "It Isn't the Church, It's You"; solo Mona Hall, "Mother boy's Dream"; reading, Allan Dunning, "I'm Ahead of Jesus"; "Jesus Lover of My Soul." Will Doran and Miss Verda Hodgins; reading, "I Have to Live with Myself"; Vernon Emerson; Harmonica solo, Lloyd Reed; reading, Norman Pennington. "The Best Memory System"; reading by Helen Reed, "Reading the Bottle"; piano instrumental, Miss Irene Hall; reading, Mary Emerson, "Adam Never was a Boy"; a solo, Mrs. Bernice Ross, "Take it to the Name of Jesus With You."

The meeting was closed with a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction, after which refreshments were served.

Mr. and Lufley Everson and family from Lindsay spent the week on dat the parsonage and attended service in the United Church Sunday evening.

Miss Annie Hamilton has had a new roof put on some of her barn buildings.

The rain on Wednesday night relieved the fear of frost so threatening in this district. Farmers were agreeably surprised as much grain and considerable garden stuff is up.

Mr. John Gow and Mr. Frank Garrison have gone north on a tour of tower building.

Weds Commoner, Loses Rights

Wedding of Archduke Albrecht, 46, of the ancient house of Hapsburg, and a commoner, Katherine Ruszkay, 37-year-old country school teacher, at Pannobalma, Hungary. Archduke Albrecht, Hapsburg rights Expulsion of the archduke was announced shortly after the marriage.

It was explained that Archduke Otto, head of the former Hapsburg ruling house, had given his consent by a letter to all members of the Hapsburg line reminding them that if they should marry beneath their rank they automatically would cease to be members of the Imperial house.

West Huntingdon

West Huntingdon— This little hamlet is sure looking fine these lovely spring days. As one views the landscape you realize some of the inspiration that prompted Poet, Sandford, Pierpoint to write that beautiful hymn, "For the beauty of the earth." The farmers have all nearly finished their spring seeding and now their attention is directed to the planting of fields, repainting of fencing, etc.

Sunday was Mother's Day and the churches held special services. The United Church service was held at 10.30 a.m. and the program followed was one prepared by the Ontario Religious Educational Council at Toronto. The theme, "The Spirit of Christ in the Life of the home" with special reference to Susannah Wesley, the mother of John Wesley.

Rev. Mr. Tristram opened the service with an impressive Baptismal service when four infants were baptized. Those were: Gail Doreen Cooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooke; May Eleanor Ann Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wright; Muriel Jean Ashley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ashley.

The responsive Scripture readings and the following program was rendered by Arthur Wilson: Recitation, "To My Mother," by Joan McCurdy; song, "What Would You Have Me to Mother," by Marjorie, Mary and Phyllis Hunsman; story "The Epworth Parsonage Fire," by Mrs. Tristram; responsive prayer by Rev. Mr. Tristram; song, "If You Love Your Mother Meet Her in the Skies," by Irene and Marguerite Elliott with guitar accompaniment by Theresa Mother Her; song by Mrs. W. J. Pichett and Mrs. Phillis Moorcroft; address, "Mother" by Rev. Mr. Tristram; song, "Mother Dear God Bless Her," by Rev. Mr. Tristram. Mrs. Georgia Pringle presided over the music for the service.

There was a large congregation present at St. Andrew's Church in the afternoon. The choir rendered an anthem and was assisted by Mr. Arthur Duncan of Stirling, who sang a solo. Rev. Mr. Kolfend gave an excellent Mother's Day address. A number of visitors were present.

Personals

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson on Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Asa Rose, Bethel of Carmel; Misses Olive and Georgia Sutherland of Consecon.

Mrs. J. J. Wilson of Stirling, was the guest of Mrs. Sandy McCurdy on Tuesday.

Mrs. Holden of Belleville and Miss Verda Fox of Sydenham are guests this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James McGowan.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Haggarty and Margie, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lockhart of Ivanhoe.

Miss Flossie Humphrey and Mr. Wm. Perry of Consecon were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy.

The Young People's Union of the United Church held a very interesting meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott on Friday evening. During the worship period a comment was read by Mr. Charles Moran. The president, Mr. Keith Bray, presided over the business. It was decided that the Y.P.U. contribute $5 to the M. and M. Fund.

It was decided the next meeting should bring the activities of the Young People's Union to a close, the losing side to provide a wiener roast at the church yard.

Rev. Mr. Tristram gave an interesting talk of his experiences while visiting in the Maiden Fields of Northern Ontario. A discussion followed this address and Mr. Tristram answered many interesting questions. The Millell girl gave a piano selection and Mrs. Elliott served lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Enerson and Louis were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Good of Thomasburg.

Mrs. Chester Sills conducted the election and installation of officers for the Women's Institute at Marmora on Tuesday evening.

PERMISSION REFUSED

Toronto, May 12 — (CP)—W. H. Price, past President of the Ontario Conservative Association, today informed R. C. Wood, secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association, that action that he would not be allowed to address the Ontario executive meeting tomorrow.

Awaits Court-Martial

Charged with stealing U.S secret army documents, Serg. Samuel Edgeman, stationed at the San Francisco army presidio, has been held under military arrest pending court-martial.

Tweed

Tweed—Mother's Day was suitably observed at the United Church on Sunday with special services. A large congregation attended morning or the special occasion. The church was tastefully decorated with baskets and bouquets of flowers.

A Baptismal service was held and three children were baptized by the Rev. R. R. Nicholson. They were, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Elliott; Carol-Ann Elizabeth, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor; and Elizabeth Helen, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Montgomery.

Four members of the C.G.I.T. officiated as ushers: Gladys McGuire, Elaine Beatty, Joan Connor and Marjorie McTaggart.

During the service baskets of flowers were presented to Mrs. Archie Gray, the oldest mother present and to Mrs. Allie Dafoe, the youngest mother present. The presentations were made by Barbara Ann Erichson and Mary Connor.

The music by the choir was in keeping with the occasion. The choir sang, "Love Divine" with Mr. M. G. Dales singing the solo and obligato parts. Mr. Frank Thompson sang "Little Mother of Mine".

Rev. Nicholson spoke on the life of Susanna Wesley, mother of John and Charles Wesley.

Mr. Evan Flyn Tummon, teller of the local Bank of Montreal staff, has been notified of his transfer to the Belleville branch. "Tip" will be missed locally in a great many ways. He has been the mainstay of the defence in the intermediate hockey team. In addition he has patrolled the centre garden for the local softball team and has few equals as "fly-ball chaser." He should have no trouble obtaining a berth in the Belleville team. "Ever several years "Tip" Tummon has been a teacher of a boys' class in the United Church Sunday School and his pupils will be sorry to lose him.

"Tip" carries with him to Belleville the best wishes and heartiest congratulations of a host of friends who will follow his career in the realm of finance with keen interest.

Not all the school "howlers" are originated by the "school boys"; as evidence of which comes the following gem from the pen, or chalk, or remaining member of the Tweed High School staff. The class and teacher had been discussing family life and the importance of plants to mankind. In the course of the lesson placed this sentence on the blackboard, "Write a an article on the importance of plants in the life of a man."

A meeting of the members of Tweed Horticultural Society was held on Monday evening in the Council Chambers with the president, Mrs. W. J. Brady in the chair. Miss Cocy McKelvie, delegate to the annual convention held in Toronto in February, gave a very fine report of the proceedings of the meetings. Mrs. Cecil Bonter read an article on garden work for the month of May.

There was considerable discussion as to co-operating with the tree-caterpillar menace which appears to be spreading rapidly throughout the district this spring. Their tents can be seen in great numbers in the prevailing wild shrubs along the roadside in the Tweed district this spring season. Unless steps are taken at once to destroy the tents of these pests before they leave the nests, our shade trees may be denuded of their leaves in a very short time, a few times past. The members of the Horticultural Society are unanimous as favoring a general campaign to destroy this pest. Methods and methods of doing so were suggested. One of the best is to destroy the cocoons of a lighted ball of rags soaked in oil and fastened to the end of a pole.

Some discussion was entered into regarding the care of the lawn in the cemetery. Certain graves receive little or no care as relatives have passed on or moved away leaving no one to look after them. Various methods for these suggestions were made, the hope was expressed that some local organization in the form of a Committee might take the matter under advisement.

A motion was passed that a Tulip Show would be held in the fall, if weather conditions have not been favorable to the growing of tulips locally at that time the few fine displays as in former years.

Mr. and Mrs. Courneyea (Courneyea nee Genneth Akey, formerly of Tweed) who were married in Detroit, born a short time ago were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Manning Courneyea prior to their marriage. Mrs. Courneyea was presented with a purse and cards and flowers her friends in the reeling department of Bonners-Worth Limited, Detroit, department presented Mr. Courneyea with a bible.

The following addresses were read. Dear Genneth:

On behalf of the staff of the reeling department, we wish to express our hearty congratulations to you on your well-chosen station in life. For the past few years we have enjoyed your comradeship, both at labour and in social activities, and hope you will accept this little token as a remembrance of your friends of the reeling department.

We extend to your our best wish for a happy wedded life.

— The Reeling Department.

Dear Lawrence:

We do not wish you to begin a new sphere of life without knowing that it is our earnest wish and desire that you will be thoroughly happy.

Your carefulness, accuracy and pleasant manner have endeared you to hold our highest esteem.

As a token of our friendship and good wishes we ask you to accept the accompanying gift and we all unite in wishing you the fullest measure of happiness and prosperity.

The letter was signed all the employes of the Public Utilities.

With consistency a great soul has simply nothing to do. He runs his course, nameless as the orbit of the sun.—Emerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gibson and Vera of Gananoque spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. James Barnes and Mr. Barnes.

Miss Rea Mowers of Kingston, spent the week end at her home here.

The community was shocked when the news came that Mrs. Wm. Waddingham had passed away at her home residence on Thursday after noon. Although she had been in failing health her death was quite unexpected. She was a member of Empey Hill United Church, Pastoral, which was held at her home on Sunday afternoon and was very largely attended, was conducted by her pastor, Rev. W. E. L. Smith, assisted by Rev. Mr. Craig of Bloomonville. She leaves her husband, Mr. Wm. Waddingham, a daughter Mrs. Robt. McFarlane, of Shannonville and two sons, Ernest and Arthur, both residents of this community.

Her bearers were her two sons, Ernest and Arthur Waddingham; her grandsons, Mr. Lloyd McFarlane, her grandson, Mr. Durwood Waddingham; her nephew, Mr. Will Gowsell and Mr. Albert Farrer of Toronto. Interment was made at Lonsdale. The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. Waddingham and family.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stapley, Miss Eleanor and Roy Stapley spent Sunday in Kingston with Hester in the hospital there.

Mrs. Earl Hutchinson has returned home again from Kingston where she has been visiting patients in the hospital.

Miss Martha Penny spent the week end with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. McLean, Billsville.

Rev. W. E. L. Smith, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. S. E. Winter and Miss M. Penny were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Winter on Thursday evening.

Miss Thelma Melbourne spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mowers and accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Mowers and family to Kingston for the evening.

Miss Elsie Henderson spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Henderson.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Ford, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Grooms and Bobby were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harvey.

Mrs. Mirton and family and Mr. Bill Parker of Toronto, spent a few days at Mrs. Waddingham's.

Mrs. E. Whittington has returned to her home for the summer.

Mr. Roy McMath attended the Synod in Kingston on Tuesday as delegate from St. Mark's, Demorestville.

Mrs. McMath and McGillivray went down for the evening session.

A good number attended the Sunday School Rally held at Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Shaver for Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Shaver on Friday night at the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Woodcock.

Mr. Jim Stapley had the misfortune to break his arm on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Ben Dennison, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dennison spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson. Mrs. Dennison remained over for a few days.

Mrs. Kerr of Napanee, visited her sister, Mrs. M. Turnbull on Sunday.

Foxboro

Foxboro—Messrs. MacKenzie and Grant Spencer and Master Buddy Grant of Rochester, were recent callers at Mr. R. A. Morton's.

Friends will be sorry to note the illness of Miss Amelia Clarke.

A large number attended the funeral on Sunday of the late Ed. Sine and also the funeral service for the late Mrs. Whaley on Tuesday in the United Church. Rev. F. Horton in charge of both services.

A large number attended the S. S. concert on Friday evening and Sunday morning. The front of the church was beautiful with cut flowers, plants, etc. The printed programme was used. Recitations were given by Misses Marion Daniels and Phyllis Dafoe and Mrs. Hodgen gave the story of the Epworth Fire and scenes from the home life of John and Charles Wesley. Mrs. J. Gowsell and Mrs. Evart Sills rendered appropriate duet. In the evening service Rev. Mr. Horton gave a splendid discourse on "The Life of John Wesley" and appropriate music rendered by the choir.

The Foxboro Y.P.U. meeting was held as usual on Monday evening with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Horton, conducted the worship service and the roll call was responded to by a verse containing the word "Motto." Miss Helen Davis led in prayer and a reading was given by Miss Margaret Bellinger. Guitar and violin music was given by Messrs Gerald Dafe and Bill Rombough, after which Miss V. Sherry read Scripture lesson. Miss Marie Bartlette gave the topic and Miss Helen Davis rendered an instrumental solo. The members of the League Benediction closed the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stewart and Jackie spent Mother's Day in Hastings.

The regular W.M.S. meeting was held on Thursday evening in the S. S. room with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Horton was in charge and after singing a hymn, Mrs. Hodgen conducted a given by five young ladies. Vera Wait, Marie Bartlette, Verna Sherry, Mona Dafoe and Bernice Tenny, showing that lasting peace was built on the Christian church. Prayers were given by Mrs. J. G. Sills and Mrs. W. Hodgen, followed by a litany by different members.

Mrs. Millegan gave a poem on "Peace" and a hymn for the juniors was sung, after which Mrs. Stanley Spafford gave a very inspiring address on "How much have we grown in Christian Work." A hymn was sung and Mrs. Cay closed the meeting with prayer. Lunch was afterward served.

The school children enjoyed a very pleasant day on Friday and had their dinner in the woods, accompanied by their teacher, Miss Millegan.

Latta

Latta—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dreyer of Smithfield and their son, Lloyd, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Erie Denyes.

The church was almost filled on Sunday evening as the special service of Mother's Day. There were two baptisms. Eighteen mothers were in the choir.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. W. Brown and family visited at Mr. Harry Dunning's at the lake here on Sunday.

Miss Passmore, teacher of Lesley's Holy Training, held at class at Mrs. E. Denyes' on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The community was very much shocked to hear of Mr. Charles Jarrard's house being burned on Sunday afternoon while they were away.

Mr. Jack Crove has gone with Mr. Frank Garrison to work on steel construction of tanks near the Gotebo border.

Haile Selassie Fights Recognition of Conquest

Fighting against recognition of the Italian conquest of his country by the League of Nations, Haile Selassie, deposed emperor of Ethiopia, INSET, will appear before the league's council to defend his title in person. The ABOVE picture, showing the league in session, was taken during the discussion on the Italo-Ethiopian conflict in 1935, when Baron Aloisi, Italian representative, walked out of the meeting in resentment of a speech made by the Ethiopian delegate.

ASSORTMENT OF BURGLARS' TOOLS TAKEN FROM CAR

Lewis Beaver, Leo Grimy And Jack Stone Held For Break-in

REVOLVER FOUND

One Tries to Escape But Newspaperman Bars Way

Stratford, Ont., May 14 (CP) —Wee Toronto men, alleged to have tried to "knock open a safe" in Willow Grove Creamery after a break-in, were arrested by Stratford police today when their automobile upset in a 70-mile an hour chase through city streets.

Arrested were Lewis Beaver, Leo Grieg and Jack Stone, all believed to be about 27, charged with breaking and entering. Police said they took an assortment of burglars' tools from the trio's overturned coupe.

Not long after Sergeant George Walker and P. C. Joe Taylor had taken the men from the overturned coupe, it is alleged one attempted to escape from the office at police headquarters when being searched. A general search followed but the trio was overpowered.

They will appear in Magistrate J. A. Makins in police court today charged with breaking and entering. Police said it was likely other charges would be laid.

BOMBER CRASHES KILLING ONE OF CREW OCCUPANTS

Machine Was Designed For a World's Long Distance Record

PILOT IS SAVED

Bristol, England, May 14 (C.P.-Havas)—A long range Royal Air Force bomber crashed in flames near Bristol today, killing one of its two occupants.

The plane was believed to have been a Vickers Wellesley machine, of a type designed for a try at the world's long distance record.

M. P. H. Warren, a civil technician, was burned to death. Flight Lieut. C. A. Washer saved himself by a somersault leap from the flames began to spread from the motor.

The accident brought R. A. F. accidents for the year to 46. Warren, though not an aviation officer, was the 77th. person to die in such crashes.

The airplane was on a test flight when it cracked up. It is the second R.A.F. machine to crash to be lost, a similar plane having disappeared with a crew of four on February 24 off the coast of Northern Scotland, while on a flight around the British Isles.

It was understood the accident would not affect plans for an attempt at the long-distance record which will be made in another machine of the same type.

VON CRAMM IS GIVEN ONE YEAR FOR DELINQUENCY

Top Ranking German Tennis Star is Quickly Convicted

ARRESTED IN MARCH

Berlin, May 14—(AP)—Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Germany's top-ranking tennis star, today was sentenced to a year in prison for violation of a Nazi moral delinquency statute.

Baron Cramm, scion of a highly placed German family, was found guilty of improper relations with an 18-year-old Jewish girl, Irmgard Herbst, who emigrated to Jerusalem March 15, 1936.

His conviction came quickly after he was given a trial secretly in grim Moabit criminal court.

Two months were deducted from his sentence for time already served since he was arrested March 5 at the end of an Australian tennis tour.

Extenuating Circumstances.

The presiding judge in sentencing Von Cramm said his meritorious achievements for German tennis, his youth and his "frank and earnest confession of guilt" were considered extenuating circumstances.

Stern-faced and weary looking, the handsome tennis ace stood with folded hands as the sentence was pronounced. The public and press, excluded from the trial, were readmitted to hear the verdict and the court's opinion.

The jury declared Von Cramm's alleged associate with Herbst was grave, especially after "the Roehm affair" which should have been a warning to him.

(Captain Ernst Roehm, commander of the Nazi storm troops, was executed in the Nazi blood purge June 30, 1934. He was reported to have been leader of a group who practiced homo sexuality.)

The court opinion said Herbst blackmailed Von Cramm for a sum of 20,000 and 30,000 marks (a total of $12,000).

The presiding judge declared Von Cramm admitted being driven into the blackmailing scheme by his affair with the Labor motion. But the Conservative critics, after pressing the inquiry ,will not carry their demand to the point of a government death of his father.

20 BOMBS DROPPED

Twelve of These Fall About Roman Catholic Mission

Hankow, May 14—(CP-Havas)—The American Baptist and French Catholic missions in Chengchow were damaged yesterday by Japanese air bombs but foreign missionaries, who include Miss Pearl Reid of Kingston, Ont., escaped unharmed.

Eight Chinese were reported killed in the Baptist Church compound while several were killed or injured on the Catholic property. Miss Reid, who has been through three bombings, a Briton and three American missionaries are in the Baptist Mission.

The Chinese government was informed 14 Japanese planes dropped eight bombs on the Baptist and 12 on the Catholic missions, in addition to 27 others near the Lunghai and Peiping railway stations which cross at Chengchow.

Britain May Withdraw Minister to Mexico

TAKE I MEXICO BREAKS. —U P—W. P. McKNIGHT

Ameliated From Foreign Staff

Mexico City, May 14—(AP)—Mexico and Great Britain came to a diplomatic parting of the ways today for the third time in two decades.

Offended at Great Britain's "unfriendly attitude" arising from President Lazaro Cardenas' expropriation of $250 million of British oil properties valued at $250,000,000, the Mexican government announced it will withdraw its Minister to London, Prima Villa Michel, and his entire staff at once.

Britain May Recall

It was expected the British Minister to Mexico, Owen O'Malley, who presented his credentials only last November 30, would be recalled. Mr. O'Malley himself was quoted as Mexico took the speedy unilateral.

Local quarters held it likely that Great Britain, who already had an,

4 Children Said to Have Been Hidden In Squalid Hut for Fourteen Years

Boston, May 14—(AP)—Children's organizations today pushed as well as efforts to find the four Roxbury brothers and two sisters said to have been hidden in a squalid hut for 14 years because none was able either to walk or talk.

Robert C. True, agent for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, said the four, offspring of a 73-year-old father and 53-year-old mother, included boys 35 and 15 and girls 23 and 14. The younger boy was blind as well as deaf, he said. All were suffering from disease.

The four were patients at Psychpathic Hospital today, pending favorable removal to a state institution for specialized training. Two other daughters, who worked as domestics had supported the family since the father was forced to give up his trade as a carpenter, True reported.

BRITAIN, FRANCE URGING POWERS TO SETTLEMENT

Self-Government For Minority of Sudetens Stumbling Block

CZECH FOREIGN POLICY

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 14 (CP Cable)—Within a few days, it is expected, the government of Czechoslovakia will announce its new plan to meet demands of the German minorities. Great Britain and France have urged that the Praha government should go to the utmost limit possible in securing a complete settlement of this problem which still hangs in menace over the peace of Europe.

They consulted Berlin direct with a plea that Germany should do what she can to advance the settlement. Berlin, it is believed does not recede from its original position that the question of minorities is one for the Sudeten Germans and the Praha government. Berlin has refused to intervene.

Conflict Over Two Demands

The conflict, however, will arise from the British move in Praha which will have the effect of persuading the Czech government to accept demands by Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader, now visiting London.

If Konrad demands by Henlein, it is over two that conflict is most likely to arise. They call first for complete self-government for the German minority, second for control freedom of Czech foreign policy which at present is bound up in alliances with France and Soviet Russia.

Information here is that while the Czechoslovak government is prepared to go far in the interests of peace, it cannot accept these demands as they stand. The Czechs assert complete autonomy for the German minority would mean the German frontiers open to attack. To change Czech foreign policy as demanded by Henlein would mean the German minority rules Czechoslovakia.

Germans Behind Henlein

Thus, while the great powers move behind the scenes for peace, the dividing line between Germans and Czechs is still sharply drawn. Yet the fact that Henlein is here announces the concessions it is prepared to make.

If Henlein insists on complete autonomy for the abandonment of the treaty with Russia there will be danger of a new international crisis. There seems no doubt from present indications he will have Germany behind him.

Great Britain has given no pledge to Czechoslovakia beyond a general pledge under the League of Nations covenant. This carries with it no obligation to impose military sanctions. France, however, is bound to Czechoslovakia by a formal treaty under which if Czechoslovakia were attacked without provocation, France must immediately lend aid and assistance.

Czechs Are Firm

With this in mind, Czechoslovakia blocks the way towards the east. Drang Nach Osten (the march toward the east) is a part of Germany's policy. Seizure of Austria has brought Germany to Czechoslovakia. She is pushing her influence into the Danube valley into the Balkans.

Jap Captors 'Do War Dance' About Released Britisher

Shanghai, May 14—(CP-Havas)—H. H. Jacobsen, Danish engineer, in a sort of war dance around me," M. E. Wilkinson, prominent British resident of Shang'ai, declared here today after his release from an 11-hour detention during which he received a bayonet thrust in the back from a Japanese soldier.

Mr. Wilkinson, a noted ornithologist, was arrested by a Japanese patrol for "penetrating the western suburbs without permission."

"A Japanese sentry," he told the Associated Press, "gave me a bayonet thrust in my throat. Later I was surrounded by Japanese soldiers, who performed a sort of war dance around me, shouting insults and striking me on the face and body. One of them struck a bayonet into my back just over the right shoulder-blade, inflicting a large wound. Luckily it failed to reach a lung. Another soldier struck me in the eye with his fist."

NATIONS' STAND ON SPANISH WAR IS CHIEF BARRIER

Mussolini Says World Should Know of Totalitarian Might

300,000 AT GENOA

Duce Praises Friendship of Germany And Anglo-Italian Treaty

Genoa, Italy, May 14—(CP-Havas) —Doubt as to the possibility of concluding a Franco-Italian accord was expressed here today by Premier Mussolini in a speech before 300,000 cheering followers.

"I do not know whether he will reach an agreement with France, because in Spanish war we are on the other side of 'the barricades' he declared.

Proclaiming that Italy desires peace, the Fascist leader warned that "the world should realize that the totalitarian states will form a bloc if necessary."

German-Russian Worlds In Contact

"Italy retains the loyal friendship of Germany," Mussolini said. "Today the German and Roman worlds are in contact."

"Their collaboration can only be fruitful."

The vast crowd were 300,000 persons who had come in from the countryside in garb of the old Roman state for an historic visit in 12 years to this largest Italian port.

In explaining the change in Italy's attitude regarding Austro-German unities between the assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss in 1934 and the final German annexation of Austria, Il Duce said:

At Brenner in 1934

"If persons beyond the Alps recalled what we did in 1934 (when 40,000 Italian troops were sent to the Brenner Pass), let us recall that by 1936 (when Germany absorbed Austria) much water has passed under the bridges of the Tiber, the Danube, the Thames, La Spree, and also the Seine."

ONTARIO MEETING OF CONSERVATIVES TO BE HELD JULY 21

Party Leadership And Policies Will be Under Discussion

COMMITTEE SATISFIED

Toronto, May 14 (CP)—Ontario Conservatives prepared today for a meeting on July 21 at which party leadership and policies are expected to be under discussion.

Executive of the Ontario Conservative Association decided at a meeting here yesterday to hold the convention, originally scheduled for May 28 and postponed until October two weeks after the Dominion party convention in Ottawa.

R. C. Wood, who terms himself Acting Secretary of the "Committee for Conservative Action", which recently has pressed for the holding of a general meeting in June, announced his satisfaction with the executive decision. The committee had done "the best it could and we accept that," he said.

First Since 1936

The convention will be the first since 1936 when Hon. Earl Rowe, member of Parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe, was chosen leader succeeding former Premier George S. Henry. Mr. Rowe suffered personal defeat in last October's provincial election and the party's fate is in the hands of nature by Leopold Macaulay, member for York South.

The executive yesterday declined to admit Wood to the meeting at which the committee for action's demands for a June convention will be reported to have been discussed. Wood said after the meeting the committee which he claims includes many prominent Conservatives, would demand at the convention a new leader be elected and a new, progressive platform adopted. The committee then would disband, he said.

ARREST MADE IN SHOOTING CASE

Harry Dales, Owen Sound, Charged With Vagrancy After Recluse Shot

Owen Sound, Ont., May 14—(CP) —An arrest was made today during police investigation of the mysterious shooting of 81-year-old recluse William Waterton, found dead of shotgun wounds in his stone shack Thursday.

Sergeant Jack McCaffrey and Constables arrested Harry Dales early today at the home of Howard Hooey in Owen Sound. He was charged as a vagrant but police said a material witness in the death of Waterton. Dales was to be before a magistrate today for a formal remand.

Dr. E. R. Franklin, Ontario government medico-legal expert, is continuing the study of Waterton and no date has yet been set for the inquest. The shotgun which fatally wounded Waterton was found near the body but police were inclined to the belief the fatal murderer was killed, and did not commit suicide, doubting that a one-armed man could have inflicted both injuries after shooting off or propping up the gun and pulling the trigger with a string. There was no string attached to the gun.

Hail! There are many riddles in nature and hail is one of them. Hail occurs practically outside the tropics. Most hailstorms take place before midsummer in the temperate zones. This is because in the tropics a large part of midsummer the freezing level is too high. Hail is made up of concentric layers—of clear and opaque ice. For a hailstone is supposed to start with a raindrop as a nucleus, which is carried up and frozen, or by a condensation of supercooled water drops on ice nucleus snow and frost, falling again into the warm area, to be again carried aloft. Each round trip gives them two coatings of ice.

MOON ECLIPSED IN CLOUDLESS SKY

Approach of Dawn Softens Effects After Eclipse Is Total

With a brilliant moon shining from a cloudless sky providing a perfect setting reddish hues those who burned the midnight oil in order to view the lunar eclipse that took place shortly after three o'clock this morning were able to obtain a clear look at the nature al phenomen in all its stages.

As if in preparation for the act in which she was cast in the leading role, the moon's usual silvery hue was changed with only a slightly reddish glow from the time it appeared in the first rays over the eastern horizon.

It was not until approximately two o'clock, forty-five minutes after Earth's shadow was visible on the eastern rim of the moon. Showing in vivid contrast against its reddish silver, the sinister darkness gradually obliterated the rays of "La Lune" reflecting a grayish colored light back to Mother Earth.

Total eclipse an hour later however did not result in a complete obliteration of the moon. Owing to the sun nearing its rising hour, the moon was plainly visible to the western heavens giving the appearance of being covered with a grey cloth.

50 Bargain Hunters at Auction Drop into Cellar as Floor Gives Way

Hamilton, Ont., May 14—(CP)—Splintered beams and smashed cellarwall cluttered the yard at 19 in the home of Arthur Meppin, resident of the near-tragedy that occurred when 50 persons attended an auction sale were plunged into the basement when a floor collapsed.

The seven-foot fall yesterday, brought injuries to seven persons. The crash came after the crowd of great was in the cellar. The door was blocked and the floor gave way under concentrated weight.

Most seriously injured was Mrs. Sarah Worsch, 72, who was taken to hospital suffering a broken foot. Others known injured were Mrs. Mary Hall, Thomas Bolton, Mrs. Elizabeth Bolton and Andrew Watson, 70. Police said several others were injured but left the scene of the accident after being taken from the cellar.

Meppin, who owns the central Hamilton property, had just completed arrangements for its sale and the auction was for the purpose of disposing of household contents. He intends to leave for Scotland next week.

Coroner Harry Thomas said there was no indication of trouble until the house supports began to

British Cabinet Changes Likely Early Next Week

London, May 14 (C.P. Cable) — Prime Minister Chamberlain has escaped the challenge in the government's critics on rearmament in the air. Winston Churchill, critics leader of the Opposition, leads Labor's attack on the air ministry with a demand for a committee of inquiry, Mr. Chamberlain will interpose no defence of Air Minister Lord Swinton.

Opposition Liberals will support the Labor motion but Conservative critics of the air ministry are in a dilemma. The government intends to regard the Labor demand as a censure motion and has warned (which is extremely improbable) that the government would have to resign.

The presiding judge declared Von Cramm admitted being driven into the blackmailing scheme by his affair with the Labor motion. But the Conservative critics, after pressing the inquiry ,will not carry their demand to the point of a government death of his father.

Women Riding in Truck Injured, Driver Is Held

Peterborough, Ont., May 14 (CP)— Collision between a motor truck and a car on the highway near Prescottville last night resulted in injuries to two women and the arrest of the truck driver.

Mrs. Sandy McManus received an injured hip, bruises and shock and a possible fracture of the pelvis and Mrs. Maurice Tolton suffered a fractured nose, facial lacerations and bruises. The women were passengers in the truck driven by Maurice Tolton, taken to hospital for observance. Police said Tolton would be charged with dangerous driving.

The truck collided with a car being driven by W. E. Stevens, accompanied by his sister, Hellyer Stevens nor his sister were hurt. Stevens said he had pulled over to the right side of the highway as far as possible when he saw the truck coming over a hill, but the truck struck the front of his car and then swerved into the ditch with its wheels in the air and his radiator buried deep in mud.

PICTON GOES ON D. S. TIME MONDAY

Picton clocks will be placed one hour ahead at midnight tomorrow as daylight saving time comes into effect in the Prince Edward county town officially on Monday.

Wm. Donnelly, K.C., McKibbon casting the deciding vote, the bylaw authorizing the new time was passed at a town council meeting a few weeks ago.

WELLINGTON RECTOR TO BE INDUCTED

With the Venerable Archdeacon R. J. Dumbrille of Prontenac in charge of the service, the Rev. E. W. Cranny, rector of St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Wellington, will be formally inducted into his charge on Sunday.

The preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. R. Seymour Payne, vicar of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, while other dignitaries of the Church of England in this district will be in attendance.

The Rev. Mr. Cranny has formerly a rector of a Hastings County incumbency and succeeds the Rev. J. W. Brownlie in Wellington, who was transferred to Athens.

The induction service will take place at 7.30 in the evening.

BELLEVILLE TO START D. S. TIME MAY 29TH

A general misunderstanding apparently exists in the minds of a number of Belleville residents over the date Daylight Saving Time is to be inaugurated in this city. Many believe that the date of May 15th has been passed and Daylight Saving will take effect on May 29th, at midnight. It will be advertised by the office of the city clerk. This date will be effective until September 25th.

PICKEREL SEASON OFFICIALLY OPENS

Today marks the opening of the pickerel fishing season, Inspector Herb McKibbon of the Ontario Fishery Department announced. Local waters at Hastings County are reported abundant with these game fish this year, thus assuring the more ardent followers of Izaak Walton of prolific season in their favourite pastime. Some extraordinary fine catches of speckled trout have been reported since the opening of the season two weeks ago.

According to a government decree, every storage plant in Ontario with the exception of Picton, Trenton and Brighton had an ample amount in storage this year in excess of the stock held a year ago.

The Georgian Bay district with 71,000 bushels still in storage while British Columbia has the largest, 67,000 bushels, awaiting disposal.

With large 1937 crops reported in Canada and the United States, the market last year was extremely unsatisfactory, it is reported. A bumper crop of citrus fruits adversely affected the apple market, while the low prices of oranges resulted in a distinct increase in consumption that in turn reflected upon the sale of apples.

Military Notes

Among the eight members of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals at Vimy Barracks, Barriefield, who are to receive transfers to points of the Canadian Northwest is included Corporal R. H. Calnbeck, Desoronto, who has received notice of his appointment as signaller to Fort Smith, Northwest Territories. Of the eight men transferred, five are going to the Northwest Territories; two are going to the Yukon and one to Saskatchewan. They will replace men of the R.C.C.S. who have been in the Northland on duty for some time past.

SPRING PRODUCE GREETS SHOPPERS ON CITY MARKET

Largest Offering of The Season on Display Today

BUTTER DECLINES

The white of trilliums and the blue of violets enhancing the pale, multi-colors of cut flowers and potted plants, together with the freshness of new vegetables gave the city market a typical spring appearance when farmers and market growers of the district displayed one of the heaviest offerings of produce seen during the current season.

While the cooler spring tone remained fairly steady some decreases over quotations of a week ago were noted. Outstanding was the sharp decline in farmers' butter which dropped from 28 cents to 24 cents, dropping 10 cents from 75 to 65 cents. Potatoes that flooded the market, a usual element with vendors a few weeks before the advent of new crops, also noted a decline with 90-pound bag lots selling in places for $1.50 while a majority of vendors asked 65 cents.

Increases in fairly large quantities dropped slightly in price with hen-pound quantities selling for 25 cents, a 5-cent decrease from quotations of a week ago. In the main, however, the vegetable was offered in small lots, that sold for a dime each. Early morning shoppers thronged around the stalls of growers displaying all imported vintage sold as 10 cents per pound.

Early Vegetables

New onions were fairly plentiful selling in bulk at prices ranging from three offered for 10 cents. A reported new lettuce was in evidence but the bulk of this vegetable to 8 cents a bunch with two offered for 15 cents. Asparagus was quoted at 5 cents per bunch with an unlimited quantity of tender offered to the particularly buyers' price.

Fruit and vegetable plants in flats were plentiful today with tomatoes offered at 50 cents for flats containing 48 to 50 plants. Strawberry plants were quoted at 45 cents per hundred with red raspberry canes offered at $3 per hundred.

Small pillowed violets added a bright spot of color to the shades of the flowers on display. Bouquet selects selling at twenty-three cents; medium at twenty cents and offered at twenty and twenty-one cents per dozen respectively while large bouquets were offered at twenty-two cents.

Items of Home Cooking

Home cooking booths offered a delectable variety of chicken pies at one point while a brisk trading market causing steady activity on the part of shoppers.

Broilers in a fairly large quantity headed the chicken offering with choice young birds quoted at from seventy-five to ninety cents per pair. Choice chickens offered showed little change in previous prices, good weighty fat selling from 80c to $1.35 each.

Fresh water trout and lake trout headed a variable fish offering with the former selling to a brisk market at twenty-five cents per pound and the latter offered at twenty cents for the same quantity. The popular muskrat was plentiful and was offered at two pounds for twenty-five cents. Lake herring fish was quoted at five cents per pound and with smelts at from four for twenty-five cents rounded out an attractive offering.

Seven-weeks old pigs again were plentiful with prices of from five to seven dollars each showing no change from the quotations of a week ago.

Obituary

CLAUDE W. COLE (Main Duck Island)

Picton—Claude W. Cole of the Main Duck Island, well prominent citizen of Cape Vincent, N.Y., passed away at his home there at 7.30 this morning, May 13, following a heart attack. The deceased had been ill since last Big Apple Day, sixty-nine years ago, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Cole. He was still a young the family moved to Greenbush and his early life was spent there.

When he grew to manhood Mr. Cole went to Main Duck Island to be engaged in farming. At that time the Main Duck Island was held in trust by the Crown for an Indian tribe. The government gave the island is well known for the herd of deer that Mr. Cole kept there. There is also the lighthouse and a radio beacon.

Mr. Cole married Miss Annie Dodge of Milford, who survives, two sons, Cecil Cole of Cape Vincent and Wilmot Cole of Buffalo, one sister.

Surviving also are two brothers, Ellsworth Cole of Main Duck Island and Arthur of British Columbia.

The body is being brought to Picton on Monday but funeral arrangements here have not yet been made.

FROST APPARENT IN THE DISTRICT

No Material Damages Reported to Early Crops

Jack Frost breathed a frosty breath over the city and district last night but in the main it was harmless as parts a heavy hoar frost. While no reports have been made to this office crops were reported distinct concern on the part of farmers whose plant growers was noted today.

Warned yesterday of the possibility of a frost, Wellington greenhouse men covered young tomato plants with burlap and straw last night. Further warning in the vicinity of Wellington's clock this morning of scores of greenhouses feverishly applying water to the crops but at the close of a distinct stiffness was apparent, although no damage was done to the crops.

North of Shannonville, according to a resident at his early market today, heavy white frosts were noted. Shannonville, however, escaped and curled as the edges.

Apparent No Roofs.

On the plith concession of Sidney, frost was apparent early in the morning although not while beneath the rays of the sun today. One resident stated he had a visible sign of a field where the crop is already knee high, but that no effect of damage.

"Water and dampness attracts frost," he said, "and therefore the lack of damage to the crops is attributable to the damp soil conditions in the places under the roofs of the ground."

North of Foxboro, the white frost was fairly heavy, a resident stated. In one place a slight skimming of ice was noted on a pail of water that had stood outside all night."

General reports state that no damage has been done this far and the main precautions now being taken is to ward off any further visits of Jack Frost.

Police Reserves To Organize Civil Air Defences

Sneak thieves pilfered the garden of J. H. Bell, 62 South John St., during the night and made away practically all of the full grown rhubard available for use, police were informed today. Two stalks of the rhubard was set at $2.50. Police investigation led the authorities to believe the spring delicacy to have been stolen by enterprising persons who intended to sell it in a house to house canvas that has become quite prevalent of late.

Activities were purely routine and no arrests have been reported in the city for 48 hours. A bicycle, found abandoned near Bell's Creek recently, is still in the possession of the police awaiting an owner, 21 transients arrived in the city last evening despite it being Friday the 13th, and were billeted at the police station.

MEXICO BREAKS

nounced her intention of boycotting Mexican oil, would follow the severance of diplomatic relations with economic measures designed to force the Cardenas government to terms.

There was no indication, however, as to what form these measures would take.

Amount of Trade

Mexico bought from Great Britain in 1936 to the value of exported goods worth 23,400,000 and 23,700,000 pesos and sold her goods worth 37,800,000 and 67,200,000 pesos, so that cessation of commercial intercourse would hurt this country most. (The peso was quoted yesterday at from 4.36 to 4.42 to the United States dollar.)

Britain's increasingly energetic protests against expropriation of Ayuila (Royal Dutch Shell) Oil Company, along with 16 other British and United States companies, prepared the way for the diplomatic break.

Twice in recent weeks Mr. O'Mal. ley personally demanded the return of the properties, asserting there had been a "denial of justice" and political motives in the seizure, and twice Mexico refused.

Direct Cause of Rupture

A final bill for 10,000 pesos, less than $100,000, and Britain's indignation over the Mexican attitude caused the rupture, however. The bill was for the third of a series of payments on British claims growing out of Mexico's civil wars. Payment was due Jan. 1, several times recently Mr. O'Malley had inquired informally about the matter and the note was delivered Wednesday he delivered a formal note. He told the government of Mexico its attitude toward this bill and toward Government Indebtedness generally" was "not from reasoning" and "in itself rendered unjustified. He emphasized the financial condition of which would be payment of full and adequate compensation.

Challenge to British Right

President Cardenas' May Day in his reply yesterday sharply challenged Great Britain's right to interfere in the domestic situation in Mexico.

He added, apparently referring to war debts, that "powerful states which have commanded enormous resources" were not paying all their bills and "refuse to recognize the reality of the withdrawal of the Mexican Minister from London.

Mexico City dispatches said: "The Minister of Great Britain was advised during the day of the unfriendly attitude of the British government toward Mexico, growing out of their commanded resistance to the oil companies, the Mexican government's decision to withdraw and withdraw its Minister in London and the personnel of the legation. The country, officials said, is leaving the archives in custody of the Swedish Minister, Count Louis Lodero Demegris."

Hoped Break Would Not Come

In 1920, the British envoy was recalled from Mexico as a result of the Obregon revolt and diplomatic relations were severed. Americans besieged and killed an English woman who refused to let them enter the consulate.

Mexico has been at odds, too, with the United States before there were broken off after the assassination of President Francisco Madero in 1913, but to be resumed until Carranza became president in 1915. Carranza's administration secured them again in 1920. They were renewed after the defeat of Obregon come to the presidency.

Britain Surprised

London, May 14 (C.P. Cable) Mexico's break in diplomatic relations stunned London with unpleasant surprise. The Mexican legation only warned it this morning. While it was evident the negotiations were rapidly approaching head British circles scarcely thought Mexico would sever relations.

During the illness of the present week Viscount Halifax, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has been acting for the League of Nations Council at Geneva.

NATIONS' STAND

Interrupted here by repeated cheers, Mussolini went on to refer to the Ethiopian war when "we were the object of sanctions (which are now removed by nations) which we have not forgotten."

His further explanation of Italy's failure to resist the German advance in the Rhineland in 1936 was accepted by Fascist Italy could not indefinitely abandon the line of the Brenner to the armies of the Hapsburg and of Metternich.

"Italy Has Never Known Fear"

"It was therefore not from fear that we acted," he added, "for Italy has never known fear, and will never, ever know fear."

Cries of "long live Hitler!" came from the crowd when Mussolini made his reference to Italo-German friendship.

Saying the Rome-Berlin axis does not prevent agreements with other countries which sincerely desire them, Mussolini referred to the pact with Yugoslavia, declaring that since it was ratified peace had reigned in the Adriatic.

Referring then to Great Britain, he said: "I hope that mutual understanding and ignorance in our relations will disappear.

"It is high time to comprehend Italy," he added, "to know her. In 20 years she has given tremendous proofs of its worth.

Mussolini Defends Pact of Steel

"The London-Rome accord is an agreement between two empires which extend from the Mediterranean through the Red Sea to the Indian Ocean.

"It is our determination to respect the sovereignty completely favorable way in which it was received by the world is proof of its value.

Hostile cries broke from the crowd when Mussolini referred to Russia. Mussolini expressed his misgivings regarding conclusion of an agreement with Great Britain, France and Russia.

"France wishes the victory of Bolshevism," he said, "and Russia desires and wish for the victory of France."

Applause again he was interrupted by cheers, and continued:

"Russia has made self-sufficiency, autarchy, the basis of her foreign economy. Russia is not a land of free trade."

Mussolini Defends Navy

After praising the policy of economic self-sufficiency, Mussolini defended Italy's naval efforts to play an Mediterranean.

"We have refused to bring together its whole fleet so that the world might know what its power is," he declared.

He came from Gaeta on the Tyrrhenian Sea to Naples with the cheering battleships Cesare and numerous cruisers, destroyers and submarines. The submarines were already anchored in the bay. Warships were also assembled facing the harbor and throughout the day were brilliantly decorated.

In his speech he made thinly-veiled but unmistakable threats at Great Britain and France, especially reflecting the Italian government's displeasure at the recent visit of the British sovereign to the capital of Italy's ally.

Ready to Defend Peace

"We must be ready with all our might to defend peace, especially when we hear speeches—even if from across the ocean—which are not pacific," he declared.

"It perhaps is to be considered unfortunate that the so-called great democracies really are preparing for a conflict which, however, it is well to know that in such a case the totalitarian states would immediately become a bloc and would march together to the end.

Mussolini said "the Stresa front is buried and, so far as we are concerned, never will be revived."

In a further reference to the accord between London and Rome, he said "the last speech of the British Prime Minister was an attempt to emerge from the labyrinth of commonplaces and recognize in all its power the majesty of Fascist Italy."

300 Rochester Residents To Visit Here June 17th

Large Party Will Come by Boat For Full Day of Recreation

C. OF C. ASSIST

Belleville and district is to be visited by an estimated number of 300 residents of Rochester, New York, next month, according to plans of Rochester Chamber of Commerce, arranging to make this 'day of Quinte section a one-day playground on June 17th.

According to the circular, the holiday party will leave Charlotte dock on Thursday night, June 16, for the Bay of Quinte cruise and arrive at the entrance to the bay at 6 a.m. on Friday morning. The boat, specially chartered, will dock in Belleville at 8 a.m. on Friday.

"During Friday you can fish, play golf at the 9-hole course of the Country Club, take sight-seeing trips through the County of Prince Edward, through the courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce, or take a specially arranged boat trip through the Trent River," the circular invites.

To Meet In Hungary

The International Federation of Business and Professional Women is to hold its 1938 convention in Budapest, August 1-6. Miss Lena Madesin Phillips of New York is president.

The program of the convention will deal with the changing world, the changing woman and the adjustment of the changing woman to the changing world. "The federation is pursuing a three-year objective", its aim being increasing the number of women in public office and the number of women in executive positions.

Convention speakers will be outstanding federation leaders, among whom are some of Europe's ablest lawyers, teachers, psychologists and economists.

Tragic Tale of the 'Ocean Wave'

Pt. Traverse Fisherman Recalls Story of Sinking of Lake Vessel With Loss of Twenty-eight Lives

A small fortune still lies in the bulk of the "Ocean Wave", a steamer that burned on Lake Ontario a little over eighty-five years ago with a loss of twenty-eight lives, and a large amount of grain, sixty-six paper currency. The hulk of the ill-fated steamer lies in a watery depth of water off Point Traverse, on the Main Duck Island, known to sea-faring men as the "graveyard of Lake Ontario" according to Wm. Le Micelle, Point Traverse fisherman as told to the Picton Times.

On April 19, 1853, as Le Micelle's story goes, the "Ocean Wave" was proceeding from Cobourg to Kingston loaded with mixed freight, passengers and the company's earnings over a long period of time.

Engaging in a martial race with another line steamer, engines of the "Ocean Wave" became overheated, and ignited a large shipment of oil low on board. Heroic efforts on the part of the crew failed to check the rapidly spreading flames, and a signal of distress was immediately hoisted.

The steamer "Emblem" immediately rushed to the assistance of the ill-fated "Ocean Wave". She picked up panic-stricken passengers who had thrown themselves into the water, and were clinging to wreckage, conveying nineteen hysterical survivors to Kingston. Twenty-eight men, women and children either burned to death or found a watery grave.

Noticing the flames from a passing steamer, the crew's cook awoke at two o'clock in the morning. David Dunnage, South Bay farmer, immediately summoned neighbors and started for the burning steamer. Here they rescued a man struggling in the water, who later proved to be Captain Wright, master of the ship.

The story of the rescued captain according to Micaella, was a tragic tale of the disaster. In his testimony given at the subsequent inquiry into the affair held in Kingston under Dr. E. Barker, then collector of the British Whig, Captain Wright stated that the fire that destroyed the steamer in its entirety was first discovered by the mate.

Life-boats Were Ablaze.

"We tried to run the ship ashore but the flames were so terrible that they drove the second mate from the wheel," the captain told a jury at the investigation. "I went aft, and found about fifteen of the men, let us get the boats down'. But the boats were ablaze and in eight or ten minutes were totally destroyed.

"The engines were still running and the chief engineer could not leave them. The steamer proved making a raft to save the women passengers but all planks had been seized by the men on board and were used in the striving for himself. Barrels of flour were rolled overboard in an effort to get at the provisions beneath them.

"The first board I ripped up was grabbed by a lady's maid who immediately jumped overboard with it. Another board was taken by members of the purser and several women missing when I returned.

"By this time the saloon was a mass of flames that burned my hands, arms and body. I then took a plank and jumped into the water with it. Not a soul except myself was on the after-part of the boat when I jumped into the lake."

Carried Valuable Cargo.

It is said, continued Micaella, that a large sum of money, chiefly silver and gold, was carried in the "Ocean Wave" on that trip, and is believed to be there yet. No attempt has been made to salvage the wreck since the hull of the ship lies in deep water.

Several weeks later the body of the purser was found on the rocky shores of West Point, near the Sandbanks by a Mr. Hyatt. Large sums in money, chiefly paper currency, was found in the pockets in good condition.

TEN NEW TRUCKS ADDED TO FLEET

Trudeau Motor Sales to Deliver Ford Trucks This Afternoon

Augmenting a number of trucks sold to Canadian Canners Ltd. late last year and delivered to their transportation centre at Wellington, ten brand new Ford trucks will leave the showrooms of the Trudeau Motor Sales, lower Front St. today for the lakeside village where they will complete part of the large fleet now being used for the transportation of produce and products, by the canning company.

The distributing centre of motorized transportation at Wellington is in charge of E. Boyce Willis, manager of a local plant of the Canadian Canners Ltd. From this point drivers and vehicles are despatched to the many operating plants of the company in this immediate district.

Eleven trucks comprised the sale made by the Trudeau Motor Sales, one truck having been delivered to its destination on Thursday.

Station Attendant Relates Humorous Tale of Forgetful Drivers

ODDITIES FOR SECURITY

It's motoring time in the district, and the first wave of "those-who-forget-to-gas-up" have begun to make their presence known at local gasoline service station, compulsory "hocking" wrist and pocket watches, rings and other possessions for a few dollars' worth of gas for their machine probably stalled on some rural road.

Each year it happens. Each season cars are bound to run out of gasoline, and motorists, good and bad, are forgetful. Each season cars are bound to run out of gasoline, and motorists, good and bad, are forgetful. Each season cars are bound to run out of gasoline, and motorists, good and bad, are forgetful.

"You'd be surprised at the number we get every week. And, you'd be more surprised at what they offer in exchange for the gasoline. Let's see, last year we had lots of funny incidents," recalled the service station attendant this morning. "It's a little too early yet for us to go into the business in a big way, but they're started.

"One of the funniest deposits we have ever had was a set of dental plates, a worried motorist offered to leave with us for a gallon of gasoline until he could get some money to pay us. Another, a few days later, a man ran out of gas. He traded a carton of soap for gasoline and left the next town. We've had spare tires, car jacks, batteries of all kind, know how many of these—both of the wrist and pocket watches, lighters, flashlights, and even children offered us as temporary security. Perhaps the oddest was the offer of a farmer to trade us a pig for gasoline to last us for the evening with the tractor. We didn't do any business with him, but we got lots of wood and almost every other farm product for gas.

"Even the average car driver entering the station order the attendant to fill up the tank.

"He does not," reveals the service man. "Generally we get an order for three or four gallons from the average driver. Then we have the most fun with the younger ones, the fellow who is out with his girl and later motion to us by holding up one or two fingers, meaning, of course that many gallons.

"Then we fill up, we do have fun in our station. I guess all the rest of them do, too. But the open season for fun is just starting."

20 PAY LIFE POLICY PAID-UP AND GIVES EXCELLENT RETURNS

This week we received the following letter from an Ontario clergyman whose 20 Pay Life policy has become paid up:

"Dear Sirs,

Time flies. It seems like yesterday when I was 32 and a man named Ellsworth came into my barn where I was feeding my horse and "talked me into" Policy No. 135,899, that was in 1918.

I was in receipt of less than a thousand a year clear. But each year since I have made my payments of $134.30 on time, and I am looked glad I took Mr. Kilpatrick's advice.

I have paid in $6686.00 and I understand from your letter that my policy now has a cash value of $8651.97, including my dividends of $1,965.97, which is due at time to thank The Mutual Life for the company always keeps me back from headquarters and from the various agents who have called every year since 1918. We are not putting company. Policy 135,899 is now paid up for life (unless I become hard pressed for money) as long as I live, and my family will have the $1,000 protection. I will take the dividends of $277.97 in cash and leave the cash value at $8651.97, which I understand will increase each year and to which will be added dividends in your capable hands.

* Any of our representatives, or Head Office will be glad to quote figures for a 20 Pay Life policy for you.

Madoc

Madoc—The members of Trinity W. M. S. met on May 5th., with a fine attendance at the home of Mrs. V. Jack.

The opening exercises were conducted briefly by the leader, Mrs. Kennedy, with Miss Wood as pianist, quiet music preceded the opening prayer by the leader. A meditative subject "Stairways of Life", presented by Mrs. Dafoe held much interest. The Lord's Prayer was recited in unison.

The president Mrs. Dafoe, with the treasurer, Mrs. S. S. Ashley, assisting conducted the necessary items of business. Reports were received from the secretaries of the following: Temperance, Mrs. J. Henderson; Supply Literature, Mrs. Fred Keeting; Mission Band, Mrs. T. E. Burnside; Christian Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. M. Fox, and Strangers and Community Friendship, Mrs. L. Ashley, in which one noted the bereaved, "shut-ins" and strangers were visited. A dedicatory prayer by the president following the receiving of the treasurer's statement completed the business period.

The final chapter of the Study Book, "The New Church Faces a New World" by Rev. Mr. Jesse H. Arnup, which has for the last seven months proven most informative and interesting was ably concluded and reviewed by Mrs. T.E. Burnside with the assistance of Mesdames M. Fox, F. Fleming, E. Burnside and S. Ashley.

The Worship Service was again directed by Mrs. Kennedy with the theme "The Church and World Peace" being dwelt upon. The five themes in the building were necessary for completion — World Peace, Justice, Goodwill, Understanding, Righteousness and the World wide Christian Church were introduced by Mesdames L. Ashley, W. Jarvis, W. McBain and Miss Wood. Appropriate hymns and prayers by Mrs. Pair, Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Kennedy concluded the programme.

Mrs. Wareham Harris and Mrs. L. Ashley assisted the hostess in the offering of hospitality.

On Tuesday evening the members of St. Peter's Young People's Society held a social evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Waller Reid on the banks of Moira River. During the evening Walter Reid presided over the business of the U. P. U. and Hilda Nicol on behalf of the members presented Pearl Reid with a shower of handkerchiefs concealed in a prettily decorated parcel. The evening was spent with games and contests and a lunch was served by the girls of the Aid. St. On Sunday morning during the Sunday School hour Frances was also presented with a bouquet picked by the officers and members. She then leaves shortly to enter the school of nursing in Kingston General Hospital.

Mother's Day Service — St. Peter's Presbyterian Church

At the morning service a large congregation gathered in St. Peter's church to honor Mother's Day. Appropriate music was also presented one by Mrs. Runion of Hamilton in memory of her mother, Mrs. Ida Dafoe Runion who died in April of this year; one by Mr. and Mrs. Field Allan in remembrance of Mrs. Robert Allan who died seven years ago. The third gift of flowers was from the Whytock family in memory of their mother, Mrs. Ida Whytock.

The choir with Mrs. Blanche Alexander presiding at the organ rendered an anthem entitled "Mother's Evening Prayer". The solo parts were taken by Mrs. Ken. Nicol, Mr. W. Hawthorne and Bill Hawthorne, Jr. The text for the sermon was taken from 1 John, 4.8. "He that loveth not knoweth not God, for God is Love."

Trinity Y. P. U.

Trinity Y. P. U. met in the school room of Trinity United Church Monday evening. The vice-president, Miss E. McDermid in charge. A committee composed of Mrs. Johnson, Miss Ferguson and Betty Demorest were appointed to distribute the Sunshine Bags.

The meeting was then turned over to the Missionary convener, Mrs. L. Ashley who gave a very interesting reading. The hymn, "In Christ there is no East or West" was sung. Facts about the United Church in Canada were given by Betty Demorest. A poem "The New Canadian" was read by Mrs. Hulin. Misses Thelma and Dorothy played an instrumental duet. Missionary story on the church work in Saskatchewan was read by Edith Burr. Miss McDermid read a poem "O Canada", Mrs. Ashley closed this meeting with a Bible reading, a hymn and prayer.

On Monday evening there assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Rhicard the friends and neighbors of Mrs. Walter Rhicard for a surprise party before her departure to her new home in Montreal. A social evening of cards, also games and contests and singing made the evening a jolly one. After an address was read a presentation of a lovely white woollen blanket was made.

Dear Hilda,—

It is with mingled feelings of joy and sorrow that we, your neighbors are gathered here this evening to spend a social hour with you before your departure to your new home. We are taking this opportunity to wish you success, health and happiness in your new environment. We regret that we are losing your congenial companionship, your sincerity, your jovial ways, but we know that our loss is another's gain. We are sorry that Walter cannot be with us this evening and so we ask you and Douglas to convey to him our very best wishes for his future success.

We hope that your new home may not be so far distant but that you may return often to visit your acquaintances of the neighborhood.

As a slight remembrance of our appreciation we ask you to accept this gift. May it remind you of the good times spent with your old friends and neighbors of the Scotch Settlement.

Signed on behalf of the community: Anna Way, Lilian Pidgen and Margaret Craig.

Mrs. Kincaid made an appropriate reply in which she thanked all for the gift. A delicious lunch was served and after wishing Mrs. Kincaid "bon voyage" all departed for their homes bringing an enjoyable evening to a close.

On Monday afternoon the teacher and pupils of the Gordon School held a farewell party for Douglas Kincaid. As a token of remembrance he was presented with a couple of books. The time was spent in playing games.

Meeting of Young Women's Club

Mrs. Norman Wyvill was hostess to the Young Women's Club on Tuesday evening for its fourth meeting. The attendance was somewhat cut down owing to illness of several of the members. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Oakmsaw.

The business followed and a committee was appointed to be in charge of a lilac tea to be held at the Manse during that time.

It was decided to donate what ever clothes were not sold at the rummage sale to the W. M. S. for their bale. Mrs. Hunter was appointed to find out what part of the Indian Girls' clothing is to be provided by the Club.

Lunch was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in sewing.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Blue.

Madoc Discussion Club

On Tuesday evening Madoc Discussion Club held its meeting in the library of Madoc High School. Rev. Mr. Hunter the president conducted the business and then introduced the first speaker of the evening, Mr. John Bristol, one of the members who gave a very instructive and interesting paper on "Modern Credit in Alberta". Mr. Bristol gave an account of the natural resources of the province of Alberta, it being one of the richest provinces in the Dominion as far as its own resources were concerned. His talk was very much enjoyed, and he was thanked for the discussion by members of the Club. The second speaker was then the guest speaker, Mrs. (Dr.) Scott of Toronto, who held office as "National Council of Women". Mrs. Scott, brought greetings of the Local Council of Women for Peterboro and district gave a history of the Council since 1893. The Peterboro Council is under three headings, the local council, the provincial council and the National Council. It is nonsectarian and non-political and has been very active in dealing with many issues that have been brought before the governments of the many different councils. Mrs. Scott proved herself to be a very pleasing speaker and her splendid address was very much enjoyed by the members and visitors present. During her stay in Madoc she was guest of Miss McDermid.

WALL PAPER 50 YEARS OLD. STILL FRESH AND BRIGHT

Lindsay, Ont., May 13.—(CP)—Wallpaper in the home of Norman McGill at Janetville, 13 miles south of Lindsay, is fresh and bright after 80 years of service. Perhaps the oldest wallpaper in Ontario, the silver grey paper was put up twenty years after the home was built by McGill's grandfather. Expensive then, it is believed to be a French or English import, similar in design to modern best linoleum.

PAINTING CASE IN COURT

Ashford England May 13.—(AP)—George Owen, 36, accused "with other persons not in custody" of breaking into Sir Edmund Davis' Kentish castle and of receiving two paintings from a £100,000 ($500,000) burglary April 23, was committed to trial today on the latter charge.

The court decided no evidence had been offered on the burglary charge and ruled Owen be discharged on that count.

CANADIANS REGRET HER DEATH

One of the best known of Canadian women, Mrs. William D. Herridge, wife of the former Canadian representative at Washington and sister of a former prime minister of Canada, the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, died unexpectedly in New York. Her position in Canada had been unique for she acted at Ottawa as hostess for her bachelor-brother when he was Prime Minister and at Washington after her marriage to Mr. Herridge she presided at the Canadian legation with grace and charm. During the election campaign which was her brother the Prime Minister's last she toured Canada with him in 1930. In this and many other ways she came to make many friends throughout Canada.

Canadians were deeply interested in the woman who was for a time Canada's first lady commoner and naturally were shocked at her death and mourn her loss and feel sympathy with her family in their bereavement. In the United States her demise has caused sorrow to many who knew her.

OVER ETHIOPIA

Emperor Haile Selassie has seen the last of the free native states of the world disappear, his own Ethiopia. There has been a natural tendency to sympathize with the pale-faced, dark-haired monarch. Just as no nation which has remained backward in civilization can win a war against modern scientific equipment in this generation, so it is with Ethiopia, which could not exist against modern civilization.

While the customs of his dark warriors and natives were an anomaly in the modern world, they were not more so than a nation which would prefer war to peace. It is true that the Ethiopians were in the minds of many short of modern civilization, but it turned out that they were equally out of place in a world which is modern in such things as planes, guns, and bombs.

Haile has this consolation that his people have placed on the Italian conqueror a load of taxes. He knows it will cost Italy much to develop the land.

The tragic point is that Ethiopia had to come to modernity through the furnace of war. It might have been something to boast of had the dusky warriors and their friends become modern without conflict but it seems difficult to realize how this could have come about.

It is his bitter fate and realization that one of those introduced into a league to guarantee peace and the rights of states should be the one to disappear.

There is one bright spot that British statesmen see—the elimination of the quarrel over Ethiopia, a 'realistic' bit of politics, might be taken as a step to lead to world appeasement. Now there is little consolation in that for the Ethiopian who trusted the League, but when all is done, it may be felt by some as a relief to hope that even if Ethiopia had to swallow a bitter draught, it helped to cure the ills of the world.

Like nature, the laws of nations have a peculiar faculty of making good out of ill. May it be that the sufferings of Haile Selassie and his people will have the result of peace for restoration of primitive Ethiopia seems impossible.

NO HELIUM FOR GERMANY

Helium will not be sold by the United States to Germany. Dr. Hugo Eckner now holds no hope for the future of lighter-than-air travel for passengers. No more passenger flights without helium, the non-inflammable gas, is his prediction.

Dr. Eckner pointed out that the military authorities of the United States had no objection to the sale of the gas to Germany, but that it was in the hands of a commission of six men who have control of the sale. Dr. Eckner assured the United States that Germany could make no military use of helium.

It is easy to understand why the notion to sell Germany helium gas originated — the loss of the zeppelin at Lakehurst in an explosion of hydrogen in which thirty-six persons were killed caused the agitation in favor of sale.

Germany has by her political actions caused anxiety and it would be natural for any nation controlling the monopoly of such a gas as helium which will not explode, to take care into whose hands it comes.

The refusal of sale will probably hold up passenger travel in zeppelins but it may not prevent use of hydrogen gas in zeppelins in eventuality of war.

Any nation would be justified in caution and it is hard to see how the Germans should feel aggrieved in the refusal to sell toth ers, for the Nazis have done some things in the post few years not quite according to the code of other western powers, such as the remilitarization of the Rhineland in the face of the principle of treaties or the sudden coup in which Austria disappeared as an independent power. If there is doubt of Germany the Germans have only their Nazis to take the blame.

WILD PLUM BLOSSOMS

Plum blossoms white in the Spring!
Have a scent that will always cling,
As of something precious and sweet —
Lost long ago — long ago.

Plum blossoms last a short while,
But I would walk many a mile,
Just to gather them close in my arms —
Remembering other Springs — other Springs.

YE'RE A' LAMPLIGHTERS

I was sitting in the gloamin', an' a man passed the window. He was the lamplighter. He pushed his pole into the lamp and lighted it. Then he went to another and another. Now, I couldna' see him. But I knew where he was by the lights as they broke out doon the street, until he had left a beautiful avenue of light.

Ye're a' lamplighters. They'll know where ye've been by the lights. Ye'll want your son to be a noble man. Let him say wi' pride when you've passed on: "Me faither lit that lamp."

The first burst of light that the world had was the lamp lit by Jesus, or rather He was the light Himself. He said truly, "I am the Light of the world." Ye're in his succession. Be careful how ye bear yourse'l's. — Harry Lauder.

TRENTON HAS A PAINT UP, CLEAN UP CAMPAIGN on the go, and, brothers, are our neighbors going to bat on the idea? Trenton will have its face washed and lifted, accumulation behind the ears eliminated, and emerge bright and shining and proud as a peacock. Yes, Trenton is going into this brighten up, paint up, clean up campaign in a Big Way—enthusiastic about it. Belleville also has a similar campaign, in fact we believe that Belleville Chamber of Commerce originated the idea and it is spreading all over the country like the measles. Brighton, Tweed, Gananoque and other up and coming communities have caught the contagion and are going strong. Seems if all these smaller communities are trying to outshine Big Brother, and we cannot let that happen—so like Tom Sawyer and the whitewashed fence let's make it a labor of love, a work of art, and present the finest example of a beautiful progressive city, all dolled up for the summer season ever seen in Canada. Let every citizen do something, little or big to make the Campaign a success, and the combined effort will produce wonderful results.

MUCH HAS BEEN WRITTEN BY HUMORISTS about hubbies bidding goodby to wifies at trains, airports, and steamers when the wife was leaving home for a vacation — of the instructions given the husband as to the care of the house, the car, the canary, the puppy, the plants, the goldfish, and every little thing belonging to the household economy. All very interesting and amusing, only eclipsed by the return of the head of the house and her discoveries of the omissions and commissions of the lesser half. This is a variation of the story in real life. It happened to a Belleville business man bidding goodby to his wife who was taking the fast train for Toronto one evening recently. He entered the train, searched every car for a vacant seat for his wife and was just about to leave the train when he found the door shut and the train moving. Trainmen refused to open the door as the fast train loses no time picking up speed. The conductor arrived on the scene and upon being requested to stop the train, refused quite emphatically saying he would not stop that train for the King of England, especially at that particular point—next stop Port Hope and held to seconds to make good the fast schedule required. Then the question of the Belleville man's fare came up. Nothing doing, said he, you can stop this train anywhere and put me off, but no fare from me. I don't want to go to Port Hope or any place other than Belleville. Finally the conductor agreed to carry the reluctant passender to Port Hope free. Then the Belleville man raised the question "What about transportation from Port Hope to Belleville?" Finally this was agreed to and sometime after midnight the husband arrived home after spending some five hours farewelling his wife. S'help me that's a true story, approximately as learned from authoritative source, by the star reporter who covers the waterfront in the winter and railway stations in summer.

Judge Bell and Mr. Thomas Slattery, Deputy Inspector of Weights and Measures, Picton, were visitors in town today.

Eight young men, natives of this city, left this morning to seek their fortunes elsewhere. Thompson Dunnigan, John Covert, Harry Holmes and Charles Rosevear, went to Toronto, and Frank Maybee, John Hamilton, William Baker and Charles Dulmage, to Worcester, N. Y. We wish them every success.

Mr. H. Tammadge, manager of the Belleville Opera House for the past five years, finds that he cannot successfully manage his own business and that of the opera house at the same time and he has resigned to look after his own affairs. Mr. Fred Adams, who is well known and popular, will look after the opera house in future.

Fascist Revolt in Brazil Crushed

Loyal forces of President Getulio Vargas were successful in putting down a Fascist revolt in Rio de Janeiro after three hours of fierce fighting. President Vargas, INSET, was forced to defend himself and family when he was trapped in his palace. Shooting from the windows of the palace he succeeded in fighting the rebels off until loyal troops came to his aid. Several hundred officers and men of the Brazilian army and navy were placed under arrest following the revolt. A general view of the Avenida de Branco, principal thoroughfare of Rio de Janeiro, is shown ABOVE.

Two Women Meet Death as 'Plane Crashes

The body of one of the two young women who were drowned when this aeroplane turned turtle while alighting on Lake Union, Seattle, Wash., being removed from the water by a rescue worker while the search goes on for the body of the other woman. Mrs. Cone Dalber, 27, wife of a Seattle mountaineer, and Miss Dorothy Mathews, 24, were the victims. The aeroplane was piloted by Bradford Washburn, Harvard mountaineer and explorer, who with James Barrows, 30, Miss Mathews' fiancé, was thrown clear when the aeroplane somersaulted. Barrows and Washburn stripped to their underwear after the crash and dived repeatedly for the women.

Canadian Eggs Shipped to Overseas Market

Fifteen hundred cases of Canadian eggs recently accepted for shipment to Glasgow, Scotland from Montreal, it was the largest shipment of eggs to be shipped overseas in a number of years. With the cooperation of the Marketing Service Dominion department of agriculture, the shipment was gathered from farmers' co-operative organizations throughout the Dominion. Several cases of the eggs are shown ABOVE being loaded aboard a vessel at Montreal.

Flat Feet May Cause Pain in Legs, Hips, Back and Head

An elderly man consulted his physician about a pain in inner side of his right knee. Examination showed a flat foot which allowed the lower leg (tibia) bone of turning inward thus putting strain on inner side of knee. A plaster cast was taken of the foot, a support made, and the pain in the knee disappeared.

Flat feet are common and if not brought up by exercise or supports or both, it may mean other symptoms besides painful feet. The knee joint and all the joints in the spine between the neck and pelvis receive a strain when the arch of the foot falls.

Our method of examining recruits for overseas service was to have them walk across the floor and note if large tendon going to heel bone came straight down to the heel or inclined outward letting inner side of the foot come down. The recruit then knelt on a pillow and we could see from the front of him or clean spot where arch had held sole off the floor instead of letting the whole sole of the foot reach the ground. If the large tendon was turned outward and the whole sole of the foot was black from touching the floor the recruit was rejected from the infantry but might be used in ambulance or other service.

However some of these flat-footed recruits were very anxious to go over with the infantry and when the feet had enough "spring" in the arches to raise them from the low pillow up on their feet again (without help from their hands) they were accepted. Their feet, although flat, with arches down, were not 'rigid' flat feet. One such case had walked forty miles to enlist and another had walked second to the world's champion in a three mile walking race a few days previously.

The first thought in the majority of cases of flat foot is to try to strengthen the muscles which hold up the arch of the foot making the foot look like a claw.

Two simple exercises done twice daily to a count of twenty each are:

1—Trying to grasp a marble or other object with the toes.

2—Raising the body slowly from heel to toe holding a few seconds, and then coming down slowly.

A third exercise is to walk around the room three times on the outer sides of the feet. Results can often be obtained in six weeks to six months.

Putting the feet in hot water for five minutes before exercise and for five minutes after exercise will prevent or remove soreness caused by the exercise. When the individual is elderly, greatly overweight, or unwilling to take exercise, arch supports, properly fitted, act as a crutch and give much relief.

THAT PAPER GAME

Henry Talbot Devere Clifton, reputed to be one of the richest landowners in the British Isles, engaged in a poker game at Long Beach, Cal., recently and wagered $150,000 on a hand consisting of two kings and two jacks. One of the players, Lew Brice by name, said to be a brother of Fanny Brice, the actress, held three sevens and won the pot. Settlement was made by cheque and although he has tons of money, Mr. Clifton, from the port of Islay, off the Scottish coast, displayed the nature characteristic of caution by stopping payment of the cheque, until the merits of the case shall be decided in court. It is said that Mr. Clifton's contention is that had the winner of the pot lost, he was not in a position to pay the stake.

Not being familiar with the laws of California, one is unable to say what action the courts will take on this dispute. In Canada gambling is not recognized as a legitimate transaction and it is impossible to collect, by process of law, debts so incurred. It may be different in California, but in any event the stakes in this game were so large that it would seem they were out of proportion to an undertaking merely associated with recreation. In which one of the parties did not know whether those he was playing were capable of making good any losses they might incur.

Clifton, who is 30 years of age, is the son of the late Squire Talbot Clifton of Kildalton, Isle of Islay. When his father died he left him an immense fortune and property in the Pyde area of Lanarkshire extending five and a half miles along the coast and embracing 6,000 private houses, 500 stores and 19 banks, an estate which has been in the family since the Middle Ages. For the proprietor of such sources of wealth, a poker stake of $150,000 may not be excessive; at the same time it is a lot of money to risk on the turn of a card. —Woodstock Sentinel Review.

FAMINE MIGHT HELP

An inconspicuous news item from London gives a hint that Continental Europe is in the grip of a widespread drought, the worst in 150 years and the strange thing about the contemplation of such a disaster is that it holds out hope for something that would be desirable, namely a halt of the drift toward war.

Economists at London and Geneva have learned that disaster to wheat and grass lands is threatened throughout Central Europe and the financial resources of several nations that have been engaged in large-scale armament dollars may have to be diverted to the purchase of foodstuffs.

While reports of the drought may be overstressed, it is well known that nature can strike a blow that readily paralyzes the whole human economy at such often happens when the conditions of humanity is at the despairing point.

People of reasonable outlook on life have watched the mad race toward war that has been proceeding in Europe for years. They have seen the possibility of another terrifying conflict that would shatter the foundation of civilization. War would produce famine and pestilence. Even a famine without war would be preferable to one with it and so great is the consternation over the threatened military catastrophe that a tolerable drought that would turn European governments from their armament folly might be welcomed.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

17 NURSES GRADUATE

Members of Class

Members of the 1938 Graduating Class include: Misses Bessie J. Beaumont, Picton; Nora Marie Bush, Belleville; Hilda E. Cryan, Demorestville; Aileen Dolan, Trenton; Grace M. Donnelly, Belleville; Helen J. Hanbury, Frankford; Doris W. Hagerman, Bridgewater; Isabel Henderson, The Ridge; Marguerite K. Hicks, Corbyville; Madeline F. Leery, Stirling; Beryl Martin, Colborne; Dorothy V. Parsons, Belleville; Mabel L. Peacock, Colborne; Florence E. Shepherd, Hamilton; Naomi Evelina Wannamaker, Moscow Jaw, Sask.; Dorothy J. Warren, Belleville; Reta M. Welbanks, Picton.

Present on the platform last evening, with the graduating class were Mrs. Van Blaklaze, president of the Women's Christian Association, Miss H. M. Collier, Acting Director of Nursing, Miss M. Fitzgerald, president of the Hospital Alumnae Association, Dr. Harvey Agnew, of Toronto, Reeve Jamieson Bone, Mr. Mackenzie Robertson, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Hospital; Dr. M. E. Brancombe, president of the Medical Staff, Dr. J. J. Collins, and Mr. G. A. Friesen, administrator of the Hospital.

Making an appealing picture in their uniforms, fifty students and the graduate nurses occupied the centre of the auditorium.

Mayor Offers Congratulations

His Worship Mayor Jamieson Bone on behalf of the citizens of Belleville congratulated the young ladies on the success they had attained. This, he said, was one of the most important events in the life of a nurse, when she graduates and feels that she is now about to take her place in the world and to her chosen occupation in life. A great deal of gratitude was owing the Women's Christian Association of Belleville, which had built the Belleville General Hospital and had guided its activities for many years until it was placed under a Board of Governors. The hospital today ranks high in the province of Ontario and the Board of Governors is to be congratulated for the purchase of the Bell Institution. The graduating nurses, he continued, after the splendid training they had received at Belleville General Hospital could take their place in life, a credit to the institution and to the profession. For them he wished every success in life.

Mr. Robertson, chairman of the Board of Governors, on their behalf offered words of congratulation to the young ladies who were last evening taking part in the happy event of graduation. Graduation was one step of progress in life, which would inspire them to greater service to and to humanity. The citizens, who had come to graduation exercises in such large numbers were thanked for the encouragement and interest shown on this occasion. On behalf of the Board of Governors, the administration, the doctors and nurses, the chairman asked their cooperation in every way possible and invited them to visit the hospital.

Owned by W. C. A.

Mr. Robertson pointed out that Belleville General Hospital is now owned by the city of Belleville and is the property of the Women's Christian Association, and there should be given all honor and praise for the work they had done over a long period of years. From a small beginning the hospital had grown to its present state of efficiency and service and the co-operation of all the citizens was asked in assisting the hospital in its great service for the good and health of the community.

Two delightful solos "The Lass with the Delicate Air" and "Villa" were contributed in charming style by Mrs. G. H. Stobie.

Speaker Introduced

Mr. G. A. Friesen introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Dr. Harvey Agnew of Toronto who is secretary of the Department of Hospital Service Canadian Medical Association; President-elect of the American Hospital Association; secretary of the Canadian Hospital Council and Editor of the Canadian Hospital Journal. His services, Mr. Friesen said, in establishing and maintaining co-operative relations between hospitals and other allied associations were invaluable. The speaker had met Dr. Agnew at conventions in the East and West, and no profession was complete without him. For these reasons it was an honor to have such an outstanding personality present on such an important occasion.

Dr. Agnew delivered a brilliant address which was followed with keen interest and enjoyment by those present.

Dr. Agnew in congratulating the graduates said:

"It is always an inspiration to see young people graduate — to see them on the threshold of their careers. Our modern life requires so many years of preliminary and special preparation that it is no wonder that one becomes impatient to get to work. You nurses are now leaving this period of preparation behind you and your work entering that phase of your nursing career which will take your theoretical places as full-fledged members of the nursing profession and make your individual contribution of service to society.

"On occasions such as this it is quite customary, I believe, to "address" the graduating class. As you have had three long years of study with many lectures and admonitions, early and late, I propose, on this happy occasion, to help you celebrate by sparing you another lecture and to address my brief remarks not so much to yourselves as to your many friends gathered here tonight to do you honour.

Nursing Education

"The course in nursing is not an easy one; in many respects it is one of the most exacting courses open to young women of today. Few indeed, if any, are the courses demanding an equal amount of effort, long hours, combined study and practical work, and discipline.

"These young ladies, graduates now of your fine school for nurses, go out into life equipped with a training quite unavailable to their predecessors of even a generation ago. Much has been done to improve the standards of nursing in Canada and I cannot speak too highly of all who have helped to bring about this higher standard.

"We couldn't improve on the raw material. The nurses of the past generation had the true Nightingale spirit — devoted, conscientious, courageous, they raised nursing to its present high pinnacle in human respect and admiration. But we have been able to improve the training and the nurses fitness for that training.

"The higher standard of preliminary education has been demanded and rightly so, too. The actual training in nursing is better than ever before. Better theoretical work is now given and more of it. The instructresses are better qualified by study and by the teaching equipment is more complete. Courses are rationalized on affiliations elsewhere. The nurses' health is more carefully checked and conserved. All in all the school for nurses of today presents to the community a young lady better equipped to start with and more likely to keep abreast of the ever increasing knowledge in her professional life.

"The school for nurses is still one of the few institutions where a truly commendable atmosphere of discipline still prevails. This is rightly so, for nursing is a matter of business: it requires a clear head, quick thinking and an all pervading sense of responsibility and duty. The modern training school should effectually put a stop to the reputable old Salvey Camp nurses of Dickens' generation, concerning whom one London hospital was compelled to post a notice that "any nurse found drunk on the wards will be fined two weeks' pay". Nor does a hospital Chairman now have to explain that "The most he could get, at the shillings a week, was" that they were neither confirmed drunkards nor Irish.'

Through the Patient's Eyes

"I suppose there is no person who is so exposed to criticism as the nurse. This is because she is dealing with people who are physically sick (and that always means mentally sick to some extent) who are keenly critical and who quickly note the slightest most inadvertent slip. Sister John Gabriel of Seattle, one of the outstanding hospital leaders on this continent, has written a most valuable book entitled "Through the Patient's Eyes".

"Her chapter on the nurse is most instructive. She emphasizes cheerfulness and optimism. Depressed persons bring new courage to dejected patients. The nurse "can never allow herself the luxury of losing her temper, of discussing her ailments or of talking about her own operations". Sister Gabriel urges also that the nurse should be always on the alert to note any underlying social problems causing or prolonging illness, and perhaps helping to solve the delay in recovery.

"Our nurses must learn a totally new language — the language of devotion. Of course there is a brighter side to that too. The author of "Madame Claire" tells us that you, ever stop to think that the names of nurses are the names of flowers are very similar? I might say — Do come and see my garden. The double pneumonias are really wonderful — I am very fond of my trailing phlebitis, too, and the laryngitises and the deep purple quinsies are a joy to behold. The bed of asthmas and malarias is finer than ever and the dear little droplets make such a pretty showing with the blue of the anthrax behind them".

A Background of Glorious Tradition

"The nurse of today inherits a long and glorious tradition. The dietitian may claim to belong to a slightly older vocation, inasmuch as Eve put Adam on a raw fruit, high vitamin diet, but undoubtedly both Cain and Abel demanded vigorous nursing care when the apples gave them the tummyache. The New Testament is said to mention the night nurse where it is written in Mark "The damsel is not dead, but is sleepeth". However, that was obviously not a nurse in this hospital.

"For centuries nursing has attracted the finest women, Fabiola, Paula, Radegonde and Florence Nightingale. The earlier women worked under impossible conditions; unwittingly they often destroyed the patient's only chance by introducing germs in a bed with two or three other occupants — I mean human occupants — who were suffering perhaps with plague, or typhoid or other infectious diseases.

"Our Canadian nurses date back 300 years. The three Sisters who embarked at Dieppe tossed on the stormy Atlantic for three long months, and finally landed in Quebec to face heavy bombardment, smallpox epidemic, were true heroines in every sense of the word. Of one of them it was written, "It is difficult to conceive a self-abnegation more complete than that which they displayed in the course of their work and their devotion to the sick."

Our Hospitals

"It is a pleasure to be the guest of this hospital. You can be very proud of your hospital and of what is serving this community faithfully and with credit. You have been exceedingly fortunate in securing Mr. Gordon Friesen as your superintendent. I have been following his career for a few years and recently here, for a number of years as we who know him feel he has done well from coast to coast look upon him as one of the outstanding hospital administrators of this country.

"I am delighted to hear that you have established a medical auxiliary. That is an excellent idea. Only time can tell what good it will mean to your hospital and your community.

"Canada's particularly well blessed with a wonderful chain of nearly 900 hospitals stretching right across this fair Dominion. What these hospitals have been to countless sufferers, particularly in the earlier days, can never be fully realized.

"Some months ago a doctor in a fishing village away out on the Pacific Coast told me how his little community of 400 souls, mostly Indians, were willies to to have a little hospital built by themselves, some five miles over open sea from the nearest hospital — and a nurse in the community and with boats calling but once in ten days—they simply had to have such a hospital, particularly for those periods when the sea was too rough for small boat transportation. Now they have a nice little hospital, but they are not planning any nurses' graduation this year for the simple reason that there isn't a single nurse in the hospital — probably the only one in Canada in such a predicament! The nursing must be done by relatives, who also bring in most of the food!

Our Debt to the Hospitals

"It is really quite impossible for us to realize what has been accomplished by our hospitals and what are being performed every day — have been performed today—which would have been impossible but a few years ago. Results are being achieved which would have been possible without the benefits of the costly facilities and the skilled assistance of the hospital and its staff. Many people are alive today — many people are about building — who owe their lives to modern equipment and modern skill.

"Our hospitals and their staffs have had much sympathetic support from the public, but these are restless times and we must not become critical of everything. It is special that we recognize the absolute necessity of these institutions appreciate the self-sacrificing service of those who work in and for these hospitals and give them our sympathy and support which they deserve. The average person has no conception of the amount of money required to keep a hospital up-to-date, to buy the many new pieces of equipment developed to improve our methods of diagnosis or to enable us to achieve better results. Governmental assistance does not always meet the cost of caring for the many patients who cannot pay their own way. The free contribution of our doctors to public patients has never been adequately

A Transition Period in Nursing

"This is a most fascinating period in which to enter the nursing profession. The field of nursing has been profoundly affected and considerably broadened by the development of public health and social welfare measures. New fields of activity for the nurse have been created in the last few years. Much thought has been given to means whereby nursing services can be made more readily available to the public. These movements need the most serious thought of the public and of the nurse organizations.

"In conclusion may I congratulate the members of the graduating class upon having attained the most coveted goal of your dreams. At the same time may I remind you that this goal should be considered merely a milestone, that you have really but passed your apprenticeship and that your real task still lies before you. Your previous professional life must be considered as essentially one long post-graduate period of study.

"And, in congratulating you, I wish to include your superintendent, your instructresses and supervisors, your doctors and all others who have helped you attain this parchment and pin, and to take this opportunity of wishing your undergraduate colleagues equal joy and success next year."

Presentations Made

The presentation of pins and diplomas to the graduating class was made by Mrs. V. Blaiklee, president of the Women's Christian Association, Miss H. M. Collier, Acting Director of Nursing, and Mr. G. A. Friesen, administrator, and the congratulations of the Board of Governors conveyed by the chairman.

Miss Hilda Cryan was gold medallist of the class, having the highest standing in theory in the final year, and was the recipient awarded by the Board of Governors and was presented by Miss H. M. Collier, Acting Director of Nursing.

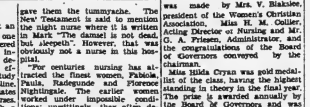
Miss Dorothy Beaumont was awarded the silver medal given by the medical staff for highest standing in practical work and the presentation being made by Dr. F. J. Brancombe, President of the Medical Staff.

Miss Collier was called upon to present the Kathleen Van Blaiklaze's prize in surgery to Miss Dorothy Warren; Miss Cryan's prize in hygiene and public health to Miss Aileen Dolan; Dr. Morgan's prize in gynaecology to by Miss Bessie Beaumont; Dr. Ketchum's prize in obstetrics to Miss Hilda Cryan and Florence Shepherd; Miss Hilda Cryan's prize for best nursing won by Miss Naomi Wannamaker was presented by the donor as was Dr. Grennell-Stark's medal for massage won by Miss Dorothy Warren. Miss Collier also pointed out that eight students received honor standing in theory. three ninety-eight and all the others ninety six. The prize was given for proficiency.

Roses for Miss Collier

Mr. Robertson offered words of appreciation on behalf of the Board of Governors to Miss Collier for her co-operation in carrying on the work of making nursing and the hospital as efficient and as efficient as possible. When head of the surgery department she had called upon to give notice to fill the position of Acting Director of nursing and was given splendid service ever since. A lovely bouquet of roses was presented to Miss Collier as an expression of appreciation of her work.

The address to the graduating class was delivered by Dr. M. E. Brancombe, president of the Medical Staff who outlined two points of interest. He first addressed the patients the audience, and of the prospective nurses, the graduating class. From the former he asked greatest consideration and sympathy for their treatment of the nurses, the courtesy of prompt payment for nursing fees and that the work of the nurse be not retarded by the amateur views of relatives of the patient. He urged the girls of the graduating class to remember that the knowledge graduation did not mean that now they had gained sufficient knowledge of their profession, only after years of constant practice would they feel that they had a real understanding of their work. The speaker recalled the Florence Nightingale spirit to the great and noble Christian orders of the great Christian church which had given the first example of the self sacrifice of nursing.



He warned the graduates against the fallacy of egotism and impressed the value of efficiency. He added his congratulations and assured the class that every member of the staff was proud of their success.

Valedictory Given

Miss Mabel Peacock was class valedictorian and gave a charming and thoughtful address. The years of training, she said, so long in looking forward to, had passed quickly. The time had seemed as a bridge spanning the years between from their chosen work but it was a bridge of experience with varying results. She recalled the years of training, the first timidity, the friendships formed, the new interest in affiliated hospital in Montreal. The latter period has been one of mingled joy and pain, recording the passing of Dr. McCreary, keenly felt by the class. Miss Peacock spoke with gratitude of the guidance of Miss Collier, of the encouragement of Mr. Friesen and of the kindness of Miss Collier and the other supervisors. This was a time of farewells to them and to the school, which had sheltered and trained them and which they would now represent in the best of their ability. In the future the classmates would see themselves as members of the great family of graduate nurses. As they faced the future they would always cherish the thoughts of training days at Belleville General Hospital.

The Impressive Florence Nightingale Pledge was taken by the nurses who repeated the solemn words promising to maintain the high standard of nursing.

At the close of one of the most interesting graduating programs in the history of the School for Nurses, Benediction was asked by Rev. W. J. Walker. The National Anthem was played by Mr. Gordon Greer who presided at the piano for recessional music.

Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.00. For your perfect enjoyment of "The Girl of the Golden West", it is suggested that you see it from the beginning at 2.30, 7.10 an 9.20 p.m.

Former Residents Of S. S. 14 Madoc Appreciate Article

The Editor, Ontario Intelligencer, Dear Sir—

I am enclosing a couple of letters of appreciation recently received regarding the "Historic Sketch of S. S. 14 Madoc and Vicinity". The following letter from Mrs. Jas. Henderson, wife of the Station agent at Minaki, Man.

"Minaki, May 2, 1938"

Dear Maud,—

I had intended writing you sooner and thanking you for the Ontario Intelligencer you sent me. You can't imagine what a gold mine of information it contains for one living so far away as Minaki in Eldorado.

Some of the items had completely left me and I am so glad to be able to pick up the connection once more.

Mother sent one on also and I sent it to Benito to Mrs. Johnston ("Florette Harvey"). Her daughter, Violet (Mrs. (Rev.) McAllister) lives in Minaki and says Florence is looking forward to coming down this summer and having a visit with me. Mrs. McMillan is very like the Harvey side of the house, and she read your article and she said her mother often told her stories which she read.

Will Harvey is a butcher at Ochre River and comes here each fall with a load of fresh fish from Lake Dauphin. I had not seen him for fifty years and he is 78 years of age day. I didn't recognize him.

Wonderful Spring weather and everyone putting in crops as fast as they can.

Kindest regards to George and thanks many times for the paper. I began reading the last term of Maggie Braskell's teaching.

We see Sam and Iva Chambers occasionally. Irene Ireland at Nee-paws hospital. So I used to go there to see Sam runs on the C.N.R.

What a visit we could have if we could get together.

Note—All these names mentioned are from Eldorado.

Mrs. J. T. Mather, Winnipeg, wrote:—"I enjoyed your article very much. So many incidents connected with our early days. Some of the skull that was dug up and I saw Steve Bridge go home with not know how you remembered them all."

Letters of appreciation were also received from Rev. S. M. Scott, Kincardine, Ont., and Mrs. Evan O'Lara, station agent at Crandall, Man., who remembered nearly all the people mentioned in the article.

Another letter is from Dr. Mitchin, Rochester, N.Y. He writes:

"Dear Mrs. Fox:

Received a copy of The Ontario Intelligencer containing the splendid article written from School No. 14, Madoc. I have enjoyed reading this. In my youth I lived for a time in this district of Eldorado and knew your district well. The names given are so many familiar.

I knew and remember well many of the Dale family, Mother Tuttle, either, or the ones she thinks it would be nice to have, but the ones Jimmie really likes best.

Responsibilities, Too

On his birthday a boy must, of course, be allowed the centre of the stage. It is, after all, his day, and comes but once a year. But while he can play exhibit A, with little gold crown and all the delights reminded also that a king has responsibilities as well as rights. Make him understand it is his responsibility to see that everyone has fun, no one is neglected—even in order to build his character, but to make it more fun to add to the boy's own sense of power and importance. Let him get a "boss" leave him to his friends. They'll pull him down.

A Mom children seem to enjoy a lot of foolish presents rather than a few handsome ones, especially as birthday parties. The rest of the party get more "kick" out of it, too, and it is safer on the pocket book. Children love a lot of packages to open. They love something funny, something to promote a bit of clowning.

If you really have some money that must be spent, why not get tickets to a show for the whole party? It avoids that "broken-egg feeling" after the food has been eaten, the presents opened and the caps worn. By the time you get them home and have indulged in another dose of ice cream, it is bed hour—the end of a perfect day, with no tears, positively no tears yet", was rather amusing. Mrs. C. Huffman gave a Mother's Day" reading, stressing temperate living. Mrs. F. Yorke and Mrs. Perry Vine with your Saviour in prayer." Mrs. Wilfred Clare sang "The blessed name of Jesus." Prayer by the president, the solo, word and Lyman closed the meeting. Mrs. Treverton served lunch. Attendance was 21 including 1 visitor. Collection $1.75.

How Any Learned a New Way to Patch Holes in Bags

By MAUDE FOX

Amy Percival put away her broom and duster, removed her bib apron, and tidied her hair. "Now," she mused, "I can really finish that paper I was getting ready for the Institute meeting this afternoon. There are two hours yet before it is time to get dinner."

She got out her writing materials, and was just starting to work when the door bell rang, and her husband came in with an armful of bags. "Can you fix these today, Amy? There are plenty more need fixing but if I had them here I might miss some of the others by stuffing a wad of hay into the smaller holes, but I really must have these for tomorrow, for I have sold a load of oats and I have to take them away in the morning." Amy's face clouded. "Why Arthur, I can't fix them today! I have to finish my paper for the Institute meeting this afternoon. I am to read it at the meeting." "I am very sorry, Amy, but it cannot be helped this time. The rain has made a pretty mess of these, and I really must have them. I hate to keep you home from the meeting, but what else can I do?"

Amy put away her writing materials and got her needles, thread, thimble, scissors, and then sat soon busy patching bags. She had just finished the first one, when there was a knock on the door and Amy's friend and neighbor Jenny Stevenson came hurrying in. "Amy, hey went to town this afternoon, and I thought I would run over. I'd come over and stay with you and we could go to the Institute meeting together. What are you doing there, Amy?" "Oh, Jenny," exclaimed Amy, "I am to read my meeting, and I had planned on it being finished, but I brought in all these bags and said they would have to be fixed today. I was to have given my paper on 'Economy in Housekeeping.' I have my paper all in shape, and was just copying it off again to make a few alterations, when Arthur came in with these bags to mend. I have not a can't go", and Amy looked very disconsolate.

"Is that all your trouble?" asked Jenny. "Just you get your writing materials again, and fix up your paper, and you can manage and I'll be here afternoon at the Institute." "But the bags, Jenny,

Children Have Own Problems

Forums Reveal Things That Often Puzzle Youngsters

By GARET C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

CHILDREN have problems, too, and sometimes with us, their parents. During the past several months I have, at various places in the United States, conducted forums not only with adults but with high school, junior high and sixth and seventh grade children, after reaching several thousand of the latter in groups of a hundred or so. I think I told you I have been attached to the U. S. office of education for the period January to June of this year as leader of this demonstration public forums. Whereas the main schedule provides for an adult forum each evening, there are many off-schedule forums, especially with school children. Here are some of the questions children of this age have asked:

Why do some children always want to have their own way? Why do children want to wade in the creek and catch cold? Why do some children groan over pain and some just go ahead? Why do little ones get a licking for something they do and the bigger one doesn't get licked for the same thing? Why do some children not like spinach and carrots when these are good for them? Why do some children want to fight? Why do boys and girls ass their neighbor and say ugly things? How can you cure yourself of itch? Why do some children make fun of other children? Why do children tease you when you get a licking and they don't? If I were poor and some rich person lived next door, why wouldn't they like me? Why do children sometimes tattle?

More Questions.

Why do we have the habit of letting mother pick up our things? How might we correct this habit? How can a fellow keep from getting very angry? What can we do to keep other children from tattling on us? Why do some children think it is smart to smoke? What should you do when someone gives you something and then wants it back? What should you do when other children blame you for things you do not do? Why do children want you to do things not right or against the instructions of your parents? Can you get to be so close friends of others that they will get you to do things you do not want to do? What should you do about a traded article disbowered by the owner later? If you find something and do not try to find the owner, is it stealing? Why do people borrow so much from other people?

How can I get rid of my bad temper? How can we help someone of the group who is odd or queer? How can I get over feeling down? What ought we to know about being sensitive? Why do some people say so much things about others behind their backs? Why am I ashamed to be seen with odd people? Why do some people pay attention to you when you have something and not when you have anything? Why do people say untrue things about you?

Style Whimsies

With gray tailleurs, mustard accessories are new and effective.

Denim riding skirts and short jackets to match, worn with cotton shirts, husky boots, spurs and hats, are the proper apparel for the dude ranch visitor.

The sheer frilly type of blouse with a soft neckline is flattering for the older woman. Pink, white and light blue in light colors, and Parisand and navy are the most popular dark colors.

Chic, Cool-Looking Frocks Favored for Warm Weather

Dress and redingote of high twelight polka-dot silk chiffon.

Refreshing Hues, Fabrics Used in Summer Clothes

By LISSETH

FROM NOW on the aim of the well dressed woman will be to be cool looking as well as chic.

There are various ways of doing it. Very thin black chiffon is cool when colors seem warm. While almost always does it, the dress navy or a combination of the two. Green has a refreshing effect, and so has blue. The mauves are also excellent if not too pinky. The mauves and violet shades are great favorites with the French designers, this season, too.

Red looks hot, but the dusty pinks, and slightly rose and white shades are cool looking.

Lime shade is said to be a favorite with England's Queen Elisabeth, and Paris is using it for a decorative scheme in the rooms which will be occupied by the British king and queen on their Paris visit in June. See how quickly that cool looking shade will be featured over here.

The dress and redingote costume shown here features a full-length coat with subtle, flattering lines which adds no warmth to the dress. The dress has a sleek, flat-pleated skirt in very lightweight polka-dotted silk. The redingote is in chiffon with matching dots. There are unpressed pleats in the coat which make it float out airily from the dress. Covered buttons down the front, a long tie necktie and white flower at the neckline are style points of the frock.

A wide, shallow sailor of rough black straw completes this costume.

Cape Suit Is Smart

One of the cleverest and smartest of suits is shown right, in a slim, diamond-dotted navy crepe dress, with a matching waist-length cape lined throughout with white pique. Narrow straps inside the shoulders cross in front and button at the back of the waist, holding the cape securely. The latter is stirred freely in the breeze.

The small, shallow sailor is in white pique, bound in navy, and the veil is navy, carrying a subtle and flattering shadow.

A handbag of white alligator calf, white gloves and corsage make the picture complete.

Schiaparelli's costume is always more than interesting. It is exciting. This summer she has taken inspiration from nature. She uses flower colors, sheaves of wheat in designs and fastenings to coats; she twines branches of leaves about the waist, and pretty enameled insects on sams. She also uses leaves in embroidery, jewelry, hat trimmings and cutouts.

Bigger than ever are the flowers of the prints used for evening frocks. Enormous red poppies flame on the white chiffon of an evening frock that has a very wide, frothy skirt shirred into a tiny waist.

A lilter for that plain black dress is a bolero and sash-girdle of pale or yellow suede with a sawtooth edge.

WOMAN WHO MARRIED YOUNG IS NOT HAPPY

By VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS LEE: I have a problem to solve and it seems as though things get worse instead of better. I am 23 and have been married four years. We have two boys, one six months old and one two.

"My husband has been very good to me until the last four months. We lived on a farm last year and he decided he wanted to go back to town and work, so I told him I would stay with my folk until he got us a place to live. But he does not seem to try to get one.

"He comes home to see us every Saturday until last Saturday, when he did not come. He does not drink, I know—or, at least, he has not since we have been married. But he does not want me to have company, and he does not want me to go any place when we are keeping house, only to his mother's and mine. I like to have young folk around. He is 27 but acts 60.

"J. B. B."

I wish I could keep young people from marrying, at least until they are 21 or two. You were too young, you see, and never feel the need of the fun with other young folk, and freedom from care which you enjoyed by marrying too early. However, that can't be remedied now in your case.

You couldn't leave the babies with your folk and go to town to find a place to live? Your husband probably doesn't hurry much time, is tired when he gets through his work, and just let, the matter slide. He knows you are being taken care of, so does not have that to worry him. You know more about houses, and probably could find a place and relieve him.

You see, my dear, you gave up your girlhood to marry this man whom you loved, and have brought two lovely babies into the world.

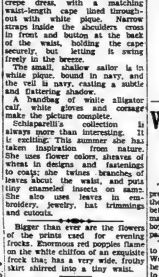
Then your job is to make a home for the man and the children—and make it as happy a home as you possibly can. Every married couple has some troubles and disagreements. That is natural. Do not exaggerate those that come to you. Cultivate a happy disposition. You are young and you and your children can be playmates as well as parent and children. If your husband doesn't care to go out, make his home a restful place for him to come to when his work is done. You will make friends with your neighbors, other young married couples, and may, if you are tactful, gradually get your husband to associate with them, too. Do not press the matter, and do not get it into your head that your husband has all the faults. He probably could tell of some of yours—but he most likely will not. Let me hear from you from time to time. It is up to you to make a success of

SOUP IS MAIN DISH ON LUNCHEON MENU

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

LUNCHEON
Cream of Asparagus Soup
Whole Wheat Toast
Stewed Rhubarb Cookies
Milk or Tea
DINNER
Pork Chops, Mashed Potatoes
Asparagus
Radish and Lettuce Salad
Daffodil Cake Coffee or Tea



Save the tips of the asparagus for dinner and use the less tender portions for the soup. You can cook all the stalks, and the coarser parts will not go through the sieve. You can put the chops in a shallow pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and roast them in the oven.

If you can, if you wish, cover them with tomato sauce and cook in the same manner.

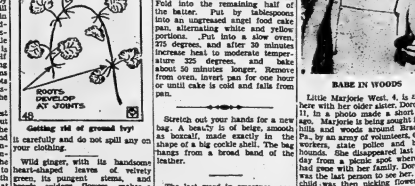
Today's Recipes

CREAM OF ASPARAGUS SOUP —Two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flotir, one cup milk, one cup strained asparagus, salt and pepper to taste. Cook asparagus in just enough water to strain. Stirring the butter and flour. Melt butter, blend in flour, add milk gradually, stirring the while. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Add asparagus, season well and serve immediately.

DAFFODIL CAKE — One cup sifted flour, one and one-fourth cups sifted sugar, one cup egg whites, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cream of tarter, one-half teaspoon vanilla, four egg yolks, one-half teaspoon orange extract. Sift flour, measure and add three-fourths cup of the sugar. Sift together four times. Beat egg whites with salt to a foam. Add cream of tartar and beat until eggs stand up in peaks yet are not dry. Add remaining half cup of sugar, two tablespoons at a time, beating in each addition well before adding the next. Sift small amount of flour mixture over eggs, fold in carefully, add more dry ingredients, fold it in. Divide mixture into two parts. Add vanilla to one part, folding it in carefully. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored, add orange extract to them. Fold into the remaining half of the batter. Put by tablespoons into an ungreased angel food cake pan, alternating white and yellow portions. Put into a slow oven, 325 degrees, and after 30 minutes increase heat to moderate temperature 325 degrees, and bake about 30 minutes longer. Remove from oven, invert pan for one hour or until cake is cold and falls from pan.

BABE IN WOODS

Little Marjorie West, 4, is shown here with her older sister, Dorothea, 11, in a photo made a short time ago. Marjorie is being sought in the hills and woods around Bethlehem, Pa., by an army of volunteers, C.C.C. workers, state police and bloodhounds. She disappeared last Sunday from a picnic spot where she had gone with her family. Dorothea was the last person to see her. The child was then picking flowers. A report from Thomas, W. Va., that the child had been seen there in company of a "red-haired" man introduced the possibility of kidnapping.



TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

GILL-OVER-THE-GROUND, or Ground Ivy, proves a most annoying weed when it stealthily creeps through a lawn.

If you are familiar with it by either of its two names, you will also recognize its industrious habit in this Garden-Graph. It has roundish, scalloped leaves and its blossoms are small cluster of pale-blue-purple flowers. This plant is a perennial and propagates itself rapidly from seeds and by rooting from its creeping stems which contain many joints at which roots develop. If left to grow undisturbed, it gradually covers the ground and crowd out the grass.

The best way to keep this pest down by pulling it out by hand, but this is next to impossible after the creeping vine twines itself around the stalks of grass. Spading it under only leads to a new and seemingly more vigorous crop. The modern way to destroy it is to spray the leaves thoroughly with a solution of sodium chlorate at the rate of 1 or 2 ounces per gallon of water over each 100 square feet of lawn surface. Since sodium chlorate is easily inflammable, use it carefully and do not spill any on your clothing.

Wild ginger, with its handsome heart-shaped leaves of velvety green, its pungent stems, and brown spidery flowers, makes a fine cover under evergreen trees, rhododendrons, shrubbery and woodland, splendid enduring green ground land.

Stretch out your hands for a new bag, a beauty is of beige, smooth as boxcalf, made exactly in the shape of a big cockle shell. The bag hangs from a broad band of the leather.

The last word in smartness goes to Creed's tailored suit of fine gabardine, its fitted jacket bound with black grosgrain. It is worn with a pearl studded white pique blouse.

Physician Sees Good Ideas in Homeopathy

Writer Says Regular Medical Profession Could Learn Things from System

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE BEEN reading with a great deal of interest lately the journal of the homeopathic medical profession. The Hahnemannian Monthly. There was a time when homeopathy was widespread and popular.

The founder, Dr. Samuel Hahnemann, had a good medical education. He founded his system of medicine after he had done some experiments with quinine, which is the cure for ague. By way of experiment he took four-drachms of it on successive days, being at that time in the enjoyment of his usual health. In a few days he experienced all the symptoms of ague. He then came to the conclusion that medicines cured diseases in proportion to the extent to which they could reproduce the symptoms of the disease. The principle of like cures like.

Another part of the system was the practice of giving extremely small doses of a drug. Fifty years ago there was a great deal of debate as to whether homeopathy was a sound system or not, but it is not much in evidence now because the homeopaths have about died out. The thing that quashed it more than anything else was the advent of surgery. Homeopaths used surgery as much as anybody else and they got away from the idea of the importance of drugs.

So far as I can see from the articles in this homeopathic magazine, their practice is not very much different today from that of the regular medical profession. There is an article on allergy and one on the examination of the eyes of school children which might have been published in any regular medical journal.

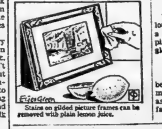
Sticks to Own Drugs

To a certain extent they stick to their own drugs, but even here they have come over pretty largely to the practice that prevails everywhere. I find, for instance, a surgical clinic in which the treatment appendicitis with peritonitis is given as the classic Ochsner treatment, which consists in holding off operation, putting the patient in a sitting position and giving no food or water by mouth until the acute condition has subsided, and I see that men successors of every kind would use this treatment more extensively.

I also find a paper on the use of electricity, high frequency currents, diathermy, and sinusoidal currents, which indicates that the homeopaths are using not only drugs but all the methods of treatment that the profession at large uses.

Here is a long continued article on food allergy, giving lists of food tables, food groups, which are liable to cause allergic symptoms, classified so that they can be administered to a patient to see whether allergic symptoms result. These are exactly the same as the food tables used by specialists in allergy in the regular medical profession.

From a study of their articles on drugs I am inclined to believe that regular medical profession could also learn something from the homeopathic today.



Poems That Live

THE BLACKBIRD

The nightingale has a lyre of gold;
The lark's is a clarion call.
And the blackbird plays but a boxwood flute,
But I love him best of all.

For his song is all of the joy of life
And he is the mate of spring weather,
We too have listened till he sang
Our hearts and his together.
—William Ernest Henley.

Wife Preservers

Extra gilt edged picture frames can be removed with plain lemon juice.

The whisper of taffeta grows louder. For bedtime wear there is a suit of black taffeta dotted with pink and worn with pink taffeta gloves with black stitching.

Extra flat are many of the newest berets. Pascal makes a beret of mustard yellow felt that is as flat as a disc. It is worn straight and far back on the head.

FLATTERING COLORS IN MAKE-UP AND DRESS ENHANCE WHITE HAIR

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

THE CORRECT makeup and the right colors in clothes are most important for the white-haired woman. If you have lovely white hair, and wear the proper colors in both makeup and clothes, you can be your most beautiful and distinguished self.

If you have white hair and a vivid complexion you should wear: Clear gray, dark gray, clear light gray, medium violet, pale bluish violet, turquoise blue, French blue, medium greenish blue, deep clear pink, medium gray blue and peach. Your powder should be natural, your rouge and lipstick red coral. Your eyeshadow to match the color of your eyes. Blue eyes blue eyeshadow and blue-green or brown mascara. Hazel eyes blue-green eyeshadow, black or blue-green mascara. Brown eyes, blue-green eyeshadow. Green eyes, green eyeshadow and blue-green mascara. Here are the colors you should avoid: Pure green, red, brown, russet, orange, and muddy colors that would accentuate your complexion ruddiness, and all muddy colors that would detract from the blue white of your hair.

Colors To Avoid

If you have gray or white hair and an average complexion you have a wide choice in colors. You may be either prematurely gray or you may have gotten white hair with maturity. But with no complexion faults to worry about, you have a greater selection than your ruddy or pale friends. The colors for you are: Black, dark bluish gray, medium gray, dark to gray, dark violet blue, orchid, powder, blue medium green, peachy, clear medium blue, Chinese red, clear dark green, light pinkish purple, English pastel blue, lavender, jade, warm apricot and turquoise.

Because of your hair you should avoid: Brown, yellow, taupe and the muddy colors which do not bring out the lights in your hair.

Your makeup is: Natural powder, Chinese red rouge and lipstick. You, too, should pick your eye shadow and mascara to match the color of your eyes.

If you have white hair and a pale or fair complexion you should wear: Pale gray-green, burgundy, dark reddish purple, brick, almond green, black, pale turquoise (if your skin is not sallow—see note), yellow, peach, cosmos, clear light gray, peach, aquamarine, light blue, orchid, medium gray green, fuschia, almond green and powder blue. You should avoid: Dark green, red, russet, yellow, violet, orange, and muddy tints, and all vivid shades that are too violent for your personality. Also shun the muddy colors that quarrel with your hair. If your complexion is clear you should use natural powder. If you are inclined to be sallow use a powder that has an orchid undertone. Red coral rouge and lipstick will be best for you, and again you pick your eyeshadow and mascara according to the color of your eyes.

White cotton lace evening dress

THIS PRIMLY cotton lace formal might well be called the Meal summer evening gown.

It is designed in the peasant manner with fitted bodice and full skirt. And it is posed over a petticoat slip of white sheeting, which is also used for the fluffy ruching trimming on the skirt and the crisp flowers forming the decolletage.

The original model was designed by Gisela Bennati of Hollywood.

COUNT ZARYNOFF AND McDOUGALL WRESTLE TO DRAW

Jack Forbes, Referee of Toronto Dislocates Knee in Tumble From Ring

DUNLOP WINS

Downs Al Reid Twice While Chief Lynx Defeats Von Bamburg

It is bad enough when the contestants in a modern wrestling bout are injured, but something new in the annals of Canadian wrestling was seen at the Ritchie Arena last evening when Canada's premier wrestling referee, Jackie Forbes, of Toronto, sustained a dislocated knee during the semi-final bout of last night's wrestling card and was unable to continue in his official capacity as the third man in the ring. To add further oddities to the night's performance, as Referee Forbes hobbled helplessly outside the ring, the two semi-finalists, Bunny Dunlop and Al Reid, continued their personal feud within the ropes minus the services of an official, until Otto Vanlingenburg, who wrestled in the initial bout scored the decision and hurried into the ring to fill the vacancy. After medical attention, however, Forbes was able to return home to Toronto, he could not continue in the ring. Cliff Faux, a local opponent at the art of modern wrestling, capably acting as referee for the main bout of the night.

Bringing together two proven wrestling veterans, Scotty McDougall and Count Zaryneff, in the feature main bout, some 500 local wrestling patrons were treated to the most scientific exhibition of strength and orthodox wrestling ever shown in the Ritchie Arena ,when McDougall and Zaryneff grappled to a draw over the hour limit, each man winning a fall with the final bell practically saving McDougall. Referee Forbes as Zaryneff had the canny Scot in a rather precarious position and apparently subdued as the final gong sounded.

Quits Again.

Despite their extra avoirdupois the main boulers were exceedingly agile, given a clean, orthodox exhibition of modern wrestling as they accomplished many splendid holds with the Russian Zarynoff ability, being the more proficient at counter wrestling, however. McDougall won the first fall after Zaryneff missed a flying head scissors, the Scotchman dropping the Russian with a slam and pinning him with a press in 35 minutes. Count Zaryneff had a decided edge in the second bout, however, as he frequently applied punishing scissors holds, his apparent favorite wrestling diversion. Zaryneff won the second fall with the application of a twist and reverse full nelson.

Zaryneff's ability to cover up when in difficulty with his famous tortoise position, helped him on the defensive, while he again applied the pressure with flying scissors holds and had McDougall's arms locked close to the mat and seemed to be a certain winner as the final gong sounded making the bout a draw. The clean orthodox manner in which the main boulers grappled and their fine generous exhibition was roundly applauded, while the bout was most capably handled by Cliff Faux, local wrestler.

Dunlop Wins.

In the semi-final bout "Bunny" Dunlop, Cleveland, won two of the three falls over the 45-minute route over Al Reid, the elongated Hamilton ex-policeman. Using Dunlop's head as a battering ram, Reid subdued the villainous Dunlop to win the first round after battering the Cleveland fisherman's head against the ring post and subsequently rendering Dunlop hors de combat and falling on his prostrate body for a fall. Dunlop won the second fall with a pretzel, but only after Referee Forbes had become tangled between the wrestlers when they moved to the floor, sustained a dislocated knee and had to retire, being unable to return for the remainder of the evening under physician's orders. Dunlop won the third and deciding fall with a reverse body slam.

In the curtain raiser the villainous Chief Lynx proved too tough a customer for Otto VanBamberg, the lithe and agile German youth in a bout that saw action personified, but the Indian dropped VanBamburg with an aeroplane spin and won with a cross after some sixteen minutes of fast grappling.

CHAMP SHOOTER

Knocking off a mere 198 out of 200 clay targets, Roger Fawcett, New York publisher, became the new amateur trapshooting champion of North America. Many Canadians took part in the event, sponsored by the New York Athletic Club.

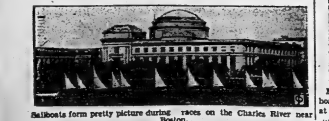
TONY GALENTO WINS OVER MANN

Scores Two Round K.O. And Calls Loudly to Bring on Louis

New York, May 14 (AP) — A shadow shaped curiously like a bear barrel falls across the heavyweight scene cast by Tony Galento, the thumper from Orange, N.J., who last night scored a signal victory over the forces of beer and disorder in a two-round K.O. victim of Nathan Mann; Connecticut's contribution to the prize ring.

Pared down to a round and rubbed to 222, Tony stood in his dressing room and offered to take on all comers including Joe Louis.



"Him," said Tony shyly, "I will knock him out in two rounds. And Schmeling? Bah! Schmeling? Well I can't say anything about him. We're stablemates now."

He was a little vague on the details of his triumph. He had knocked Mann down for a nine count with a left and a right and then as Nathan angered on, Tony rose added a terrific left hook for good measure.

A moment later he caught the grogey Mann with that left hook and Nathan took the 10 count on one knee.

"Well maybe that's the way it went," said Tony. "I dunno. Anyway, I finished him quicker than Louis did. I want Louis, wait till I get him in there."

BASEBALL TRAINING CAMP BIG FISH USER

Major League Athletes Give Fish Foods Leading Place —Any Day Fish Day With Them

Batting and fielding averages may sometimes worry team managers at the spring training camps of the major league baseball clubs, but there's never anything wrong with camp appetites — except, perhaps, from the business office standpoint. Hunger is a good sauce, and the players come away from the diamond workouts as hungry as bears. Take, for instance, the case of the 1938 Cincinnati Reds, of the National League.

"When the Reds broke camp," says a sports writer who was with the team, "they had a fair record of twelve games won and six lost. But as far as the owner, of the Tampa hotel where they made their headquarters was concerned, they batted a cool 1,000 per cent. at the dining room table. When not on their stance on the diamond, they definitely did not pull away from the plate in the hotel."

There were various kinds of foods on the special menus arranged for the ball-players, and fish had pre-eminent place. Prominent place daily, as a matter of fact, the press story ran. Approximately 175 pounds of fish were used every day, according to the statement of the man who did the buying for the club. "Any day a fish day" was the motto among these athletes who must get into spring physical condition for the strenuous league season and keep that way.

Naturally there are the best of reasons why fish is a first rate food for athletes, and for other people who want to be strong and healthy. Fish has high protein content, which means that it is a nourishing food, and the flesh of fish have high energy value. Fish foods have this further merit, which is not common to all foods, that they are very readily digested. Then, too, and this is important from everybody's standpoint, they contain such healthguarding and health-building mineral substances as calcium and phosphorus and iron and copper and iodine and they also have valuable vitamin content, and Vitamin A is especially high, and that, by the way is one of the reasons why children should eat fish often.

SMITH'S FALLS GRADS WITH TORONTO

Here's a trio of younger members of Dan Howley's Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League. All three played for Smith's Falls in the Canadian-American loop last year, flinging the sphere in the top picture is Walter Ian Pranconi, a pitcher, and the youngest member of Howley Dans outfit. Born in Vermont twenty years ago Walter stands five feet nine and threes a half mean fast ball. Below is George Kilrak, another roundsman, who has seen 22 years roll by and during that time has climbed up over the six foot mark. Another six footer is Al Smith, inset, who batted over 300 last year, while playing second base. He's ten no easy meat for pitchers this year either.

MIDAS TOUCH OF NEWARK BEARS EXASPERATING

First Time Starting Hurler Stops Royals After Four Straight

TORONTO LOSES

Pat Malone Allows Only Three Hits Till Ninth Frame

That midas touch of Newar Bears is getting a lot of International League managers down. Throughout the circuit all you hear from a lot of pointed gibes are a few rumbled phrases that go something like "the rich get richer, the poor, etc." And no wonder.

The Bears uncovered young John Haley in his first starting role yesterday and the stripping six-footer two right-hander stopped Montreal Royals' four-game winning streak with a six-hit effort that won the ball game 11-1.

Haley who won 14 and lost 13 for Augusta, Ga., in the Sally League last season, had his pitched to relief work prior to yesterday's game. His full game triumph sent the Bears of another full-time flinger. Rochester Red Wings, another club boasting a four-game winning chain, blasted Jersey City Giants out of the first division with a 7-3 victory and moved right into the Jersey City Giants' place.

Old Ollie Carnegie had himself a perfect day with a pair of homers and a double to drive in five runs but he's still two full edge over the slipping Syracuse Chiefs.

Another veteran, old Pat (Slubber) Malone, pitched for Baltimore Orioles before Baltimore Orioles before Baltimore baseball players from in the Western Ontario and although he has been out of the game for some considerable time. Mr. Michael agreed to assist the locals in what ever way he could. The local intermediates haven't held so much as an infield workout as yet and are fully two weeks behind in their spring training. In all probability they will meet the fast Kingston C.I.C. team in the Jay street loop opener here on Victoria Day, so they should get a hustle on.

Few fans at the House Arena last night realized the seriousness of Referee Jackie Forbes' injury at the time it occurred. Forbes was kneeled in the floor when rolled over by Al Dunlop. A local "Oh" was heard and Forbes fell out of the ring. Hobbling as best he could to the dressing room, it was later discovered he had sustained a dislocated knee. Fortunately Billie Hughes, well known Canadian athletic trainer and friend of Forbes, was in the arena. Hughes hastened to the dressing room and relieved the pain by putting the joint back into place but Forbes was unable to continue, as the pain was soon excruciating. He was later attended by a physician.

The announcement that boxing with milsters from Oshawa, Trenton, Belleville and possibly Kingston, would be held in the House Arena next week, was most opportune and should attract a large gathering. Unfortunately one of the smallest houses of the season with-in-the-month-results of Count Zarynoff-Scotty McDougall bout last night. Those veteran exponents of the modern art of wrestling gave the patrons one of the best exhibitions of scientific wrestling and clean displays of skill and strength ever seen here, and their efforts were very warmly received and appreciated. After Referee Forbes' accident, Cliff Faux, a local wrestler, was pressed into service as the official for the main bout. Despite this fact McDougall and Zarnyoff needed no official assistance. Faux did himself well.

The Peterboro scribe comes to bat with the following C.O.B.L. chatter; "Ben Stewart of the Oshawa G.M.-men has packed his kit after one year in the Motor City and headed north to Timmins. Bennett came from Western Ontario and, according to Napper, was derailed in Oshawa. Played a good game back of the bat, being a steady receiver and handy hitter. Since the G.M.-men have no imports (for a change) this year, they may run into a spot of trouble. Hiding up a capable receiver to hold up Biddle. However, they have a fine junior graduate in Danny Normeyle, who should make good, and a capable catcher in Dick Mitchell, the Cobourg chatterer. So we won't weep long for scalawags yet awhile for the twice-C.O.B.L. champs."

Bill Corum of the New York Journal and American hears that Commissioner K. M. Landis will resign soon on account of failing health. "Indeed, he would submit his resignation immediately, if he could be assured that his secretary, Leslie O'Connor would get the job" writes Bill. "We've always been for the Judge, personally and because we are convinced that he has done great things for the game, whose symbol he has been. He hasn't been 100 percent consistent. It is doubtful if that sort of consistency would have been good for the game. I think he has been fair as possible, I'm sure he has been thoroughly honest and that the majority of his decisions have been wise."

Remember when Clem Loughlin ended a 20-year career in hockey by retiring as manager of Chicago Black Hawks one year ago today. Clem gave up his job with the National Hockey League Stanley Cup winner this season—to give his time to his wheat farm and hotel at Viking, Alta.

Of a more recent date Western Canada seems to be predominating the Dominion's major amateur sporting activities. Commencing last summer when the Western Canada Amateur Canadian Canoe Association championships they have added to their laurels and won year-in and year-out, except rugby football, in which they made a creditable showing, however, Summarizing their accomplishments in Canada's sport field we find the West have won the following titles within a year; Senior hockey, Trail Smoke Eaters; Junior hockey, St. Boniface Seals; Men's basketball, University of British Columbia; Women's basketball, Edmonton Grads; Rex Lacrosse, New Westminster Salmonbellies; Soccer football, Vancouver Johnston Nationals; Curling, Ab. Lowes Edmonton.

Providing they are afforded a generous contribution during their big day today, the local softballers intend to put the money subscribed to a much-needed good use, namely to erect a set of more than bleachers at the Coleman Plata diamond. If the spectators are afforded a seat at these softball games naturally the paying public will turn out in greater numbers. Coach Chuck Barrett is negotiating for an exhibition game for his Comber's A's squad with Trenton, the game to be played on Coleman Plata Monday.

Here is the latest word in the local Ki-Y softball loop last evening the St. Mikes "Irish" trouncing the "Hi-Speeds" 20 to 14 in a free scoring game at Q.A.S. grounds. Three games are slated for Monday at Q.M.S. It's O.S.D. vs. Beacon, at Q.A.S. Westerns vs. Warriors and at Q.V.S. Lucky Strikes vs. the Cubs.

HOOFS FODGE—Fudgy Tony Galento, the beer-drinking heavyweight, polished off Nathan Mann in less time than it took champion Joe Louis to accomplish the same feat.....Charlie Gehringer says Lefty Grove's fast ball of a decade ago was so much faster than Bob Feller's, that the latter's today looks like a softball looming up before him.....the Cronin's Red Sox seem to be hitting their long overdue stride this season..... The Cataraqui Canoe Club of Kingston yesterday affiliated with the O.C.A. and will make a bid for the C.C.A. championships this year, thanks to Sports Editor Bill Walshe's combined efforts.....Friday the 13th was surely a black cat omen to the Irish.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Wet grounds kept the local intermediates from practicing last night, but Coach Alex Weir ordered practice for Monday night. "We've been here now days to sporting div and that includes Sunday, a day we can't practice, so we'll have to make the best of things next week," added Alex. Incidentally the local intermediates have approached W. G. Mitchell, of the Dominion Government Seed Branch with district headquarters at Belleville, relative to Mr. Michael managing the local entry in the Bay of Quinte League this summer. Mr. Michael is an ardent baseball player from in the Western Ontario and although he has been out of the game for some considerable time. Mr. Michael agreed to assist the locals in what ever way he could. The local intermediates haven't held so much as an infield workout as yet and are fully two weeks behind in their spring training. In all probability they will meet the fast Kingston C.I.C. team in the Jay street loop opener here on Victoria Day, so they should get a hustle on.

GOLF FACTS By Alex Morrison

It is the simple thing that brings success in golf. But the very simplicity of the thing escapes the mind from the player's attention.

For example, teeing the ball on the left side of the tee has many advantages. It encourages the right swing from the inside out and bringing confidence in reaching the middle of the fairway with almost any kind of shot. Yet very few players ever use that part of the teeing ground other than by accident. The majority use the right side as the divot holes show.

As to the reason given for using this side of the tee is that it lines up the ball so that it can be pulled or hooked in toward the middle of the fairway. In other words, it affords the average player the opportunity to follow the example of some of the pros who are in the habit of playing this type of shot, a shot that is supposed to bring more roll, distance and general advantages.

Actually it doesn't. No matter who the player is, he doesn't gain anything by trying to play such a shot. And the less skill he has, the more trouble he gets into by trying, because there is a tendency for him to steer the club or swing from the outside in so as to prevent hitting the ball in from the right side of the fairway.

When you are lined up to hit out toward the middle of the fairway you have a better chance of making the proper swing.

RACING ACTION IN THE ENGLISH MANNER

Every muscle tensed, these two horses are roaring down the stretch at the Kempton Par track, England, with a mutual objective, to capture the Queen's Prize. Senor, ridden by Jockey Crouch, is nearest the camera, while up on Sender, the other horse, is Gordon Richards, England's greatest jockey. Note the two riders as their steeds race close together. Disappointment awaited neither at the finish, the race ending in a dead heat.

CHAPTER 22

Judy Goes for a Swim

I went for my swim about four. The water was icy cold and invigorating. I swam out to the raft —and climbed up on it and stretched out in the sun. It was heavenly!

I lay perfectly still for a long time. I think I almost went to sleep, for I did not hear a sound until the raft began to tip, and I opened my eyes and saw Peter climbing up on the other end.

"Hello!" he grinned. "I swam here on purpose to have a little talk with you.—Miss Marsden" I breathed a surprised—"O-oh!"

He pulled himself up and shook the water from his ears and hair. "Ye-ah—Norma told me about you, and believe me! I'm glad there's someone in that house she can trust. To tell the truth I'm pretty nervous about her."

"Why—you don't think anything can happen to her?"

He sat down beside me and drawing up his knees, folded his arms tightly about them. "Yes, I do. I've been on a years sight ever since she got that wound in her shoulder. I think the sheriff is too slow for this. If he doesn't hurry——"

"But what can he gained? Why should anyone want to do away with her?"

"Why was Eliot murdered— and Barnes? If they fall in implicating Norma——"

"Whom do you mean by 'they?'" He dropped his face in his hands. "God knows! Think I'd be sitting here if I did? I guess there's a maniac loose around here in the woods."

"You—you're not serious?"

"Well—I know that Eddy is pulling around with some one. He comes to Eddy's room over our garage. Twice I've nearly caught them. Today he's gone, and Eddy is just loonsy about him. I've caught a glimpse of him, though."

"It's a sharp-eyed, bearded face, isn't it?" I cried breathlessly.

He nodded. "I'm sure you might have seen it closer—But I can't connect this man with the murders. They are too carefully planned for an insane person."

"Perhaps there is a sane mind using the insane," I suggested.

"Perhaps. Oh, I wish I had! I have been over and over this whole thing from every angle the same as I expect you have. We don't get anywhere. Parker has all the evidence against Norma, I believe Sheriff Wilson has almost solved the murder—but I'm sure he'd come back. I'm worried for Norma, I'll admit. I keep an eye on her. I'd like to ask you to keep in her room tonight."

Did he have an intuition? I'd always been a pretty strong believer in telepathic communication between two people who loved each other. I'd known so many cases where one sensed the danger of another—where one knew of a mishap long before ordinary means of transmission had been possible.

"I'm going to," I promise you I'll do all I can to guard her— you needn't worry about that." I slipped over the side of the raft, but he called me back.

"Say—wait a minute. See those two people sitting over there by that big rock?"

I looked over in the direction indicated. It was a man and woman and they were quite a distance from the view of anyone on land.

"Recognize that woman?" asked Peter.

I strained my eyes but they were too far away.

"I've a hunch I know her," he said. "You wait here. I'm going to swim along down there and get a closer look."

I watched him as he cut easily and swiftly through the water. But as he neared the couple on the rocks—the woman rose, stood for a moment—then the man jumped to his feet and they scrambled up the bank and disappeared among the pines.

Peter swam back. He motioned me to come to shore and I met him on beach. His eyes were popping with excitement.

"Finally-got! That was our friend Grace and a man I've never seen before, and—gosh! what do you think? He's got a beard!"

I simply stared at him unable to speak.

He ran up the path. "Going to hustle into my clothes and see if I can find them flee you later."

I went dazedly into one of the bathrooms that adjoined the boathouse.

And I'd said I'd keep an eye on Grace Linnell all day. I had almost forgotten her in last night's excitement and today's extra work.

As I dressed I thought of how little I'd really seen of her during all these days. Often I had met her with a book and pillow and umbrella, going down to the beach. I had never thought to follow her. She could easily have met this man any number of times.

Was Dad right, after all? Was it this man trying to frighten us so they could put over these terrible crimes?

I didn't see Peter until just before dinner and he was rather crest-fallen. "That was a bubble," he glowered. "I found them down at the dock. He was waiting for her, 'Richard', Grace introduced me—a friend of hers spending the summer in the artist colony. Close to, he didn't look the least bit fierce or sinister. No—guess we're barking up the wrong tree there."

But—I wondered.

Mrs. Caldwell made an opportunity to talk with me for a moment after dinner.

"Judy, I'm going to have a roommate," she smiled.

"Sure, you want one?" I asked. "Under the circumstances, don't blame you. You'd be all alone in your quarters, and as for me—well, just can't tell you how my spirits rose when Peter said you'd agreed to it. Of course," she frowned, by it was a pleased frown—"Peter is an old fuss-budget."

"Peter's a mighty sensible young man—if you ask me."

"Judy—I'm going over there tonight—I probably won't get back until late. And as I said, Peter's fussing is to give you and Mac an evening off."

"Give us an evening off? Don't you know—Mac won't leave this place?"

"Yes, he will—it's all arranged. Barry is going to church and then I'll be with the Alcotts, anyhow, must have a little fun, Judy, and forget this. Mac and I have it all fixed up—you ask him.

It was true, all right.

Mac had a queer look of suppressed excitement in his eyes. "Come see—I told Mrs. Caldwell about the Ramseys. They—they're friends of mine—I used to live for them. They have a place about twenty miles or so down the coast. Every year, they give the townspeople a blow-out in the form of a ball. It's a lot of fun. They asked me to come tonight—and I was telling Mrs. Caldwell how I'd like to take you and she went right ahead and fixed it up. She's a honey. Would you like it, Judy?"

Would I?

And so—I walked into another complication.

CHAPTER 23

The Ramsey's Party

Mac and I had the big car that evening. "If Miss Lydia knew that I spoose she'd holler some," he chuckled. "Do you suppose this mess ever gets cleared—I think Mrs. Caldwell will put that woman in her place—and that's about all to himself a little shake. "There I go! And I did strict orders not to talk to the Caldwells. We'll have to keep it secret tonight that we hail from the Point!"

"Won't they know?"

"Well—of course the Ramseys—"

"Gee—what did they think of you—playing a maid?"

"Why shouldn't a chauffeur bring a maid. But this is no highfalut affair, Judy, you'll find the Ramseys one with their guests and—loving it. Richard Ramsey is one of the finest."

"Who's the family?"

"Mr. and Mrs. and a daughter—Janet."

"Young?"

"Um-umph—seventeen or so."

"Pretty?"

"Huh—I'll let you be the judge. You know, masculine and feminine opinions differ on that."

"Mac—I've never asked you much about yourself. Have you always been a chauffeur?"

"BE ENTHUSIASTIC"

SAYS DALE CARNEGIE

Author of the famous book "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

● "Enthusiasm is a quality that has been responsible for many fine achievements. Ralph Waldo Emerson said: 'Every great movement in the annals of history is the triumph of enthusiasm.'

"In everyday life, too, real, genuine enthusiasm almost always works—and it usually works like magic."

● "There is something infectious about an enthusiastic person. His enthusiasm consumes—and then others —becomes irresistible. So, say to yourself: 'Today I am going to be physically and mentally alive.'

"Then go out and put every ounce of energy and spirit which you can command into your daily work. Live enthusiastically."

● "You can't acquire enthusiasm by just wishing for it. And you can't buy it at the corner drug store either. But you can develop it by will power.

"We talk a lot about the importance of physical exercise, but, believe me, we need mental exercise even more. I mean we need to wake up our sluggish minds and create a healthy, enthusiastic mental attitude toward our daily work.

Obituary

CHARLES M. ROLLINS

Charles MacDonald Rollins, a former resident of Madoc Township, died very suddenly on May 11th., at his late residence in Amerdel, Sask. Old friends in this district will regret to learn of his death.

The late Mr. Rollins was born in Madoc Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rollins. For the past twenty years he made his home in Amerdel, Sask. In religion he was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Surviving him are his widow, who, prior to her marriage, was Miss Mary Leslie; two brothers, Murray Rollins, Manitoba, and Roy Rollins of Saskatchewan.

The body will arrive in Belleville on Tuesday, May 17th. The funeral announcement will be made later.

Would Exchange Rifles for Cameras

Brampton, Ont., May 13—(CP)—Ontario municipalities should adopt a plan enabling boys to exchange their air rifles and 32 calibre rifles for inexpensive cameras, Dr. J. R. Stevenson, head of the Brampton Camera Club, suggested today.

"The idea is not so far-fetched as it may seem," Dr. Stevenson said. "When the plan was tried in the United States youngsters flocked to authorities with requests of all types and vintage to trade for new cameras."

Hunting with a camera is often more exciting than hunting with firearms, Dr. Stevenson said. Hunting is "merely an expression of an instinct" and cannot be stopped by law, he said.

KANSAS CITY BAN ON STRIP-DANCERS

Kansas City, May 13 (AP)—Henry Nangle and Dewey Hughes, State Liquor Control Inspectors, set out today to cool down Kansas City's red-hot 12th street (12th Street Gag).

"Everything dark on Saturday night at 12 o'clock and at 1:30 a.m. on week-days," was their ultimatum to this "wide open" town.

Sixty dancers must go too.

"If they want immoral dancers in New York or Chicago, this is their business," Nangle said. "I don't believe the people of Kansas City want them. The night club owners who have them can take this as a warning."

Little Benny's Note Book

Shorty Judge has been bragging all week about the watch he claimed he was going to get for his birthday, and Saturday afternoon me and Glasses Magee was walking along just walking along, Shorty said, G, I wonder what time it is?

And he pulled a watch out of his top pants pocket, proving he had really got it, and he looked at it without saying anything on account of crowding me and Glasses to ask him what time it said.

Wich we didn't, winking each other a private wink instead, and Shorty put his watch back and pritty soon he pulled it out again, saying, G, it's twenty minutes to 3 here, I wonder what time it is in Europe?

Me and Glasses not leaving on we even knew he had a watch, and after a while Shorty took it out again, saying, Jimminy, it took us exactly 3 minutes and 12 seconds to walk that last block, imagine that.

Me and Glasses just keeping on looking strate ahead and not even asking to see, the watch or saying about it, and pritty soon Shorty pulled it out again, saying, I wonder what time it is now, 6 minutes to 3, imagine. G, this watch is funny, it's probely pure solid silver, that's proberly the reason, he said.

Being practically a invitation for us to ask to feel it, only we didn't, and I said, G, I wonder what time it is, let's ask the next man that goes to tell us by his watch.

Sure, that's the only way we can find dirt, Glasses said, and Shorty said, G, I got a watch and you guys know it, and I got a box of candy for my birthday too, and I've got 8 pieces of it in my pocket in a envelope and I'm going to start to eat it all by myself and maybe you wont notice that either.

The result being we had to make a big show of his watch and he claim it was one of the greatest watches we ever saw before he would give us each a hunk of candy.

STATESMANSHIP!

"Italy's navy holds review for Hitler" . . . Mussolini reviews army of his army . . . Italian air force is known to Hitler!

"And Hezekiah . . . shewed them . . . all the house of his armour."

The first quotation is composed of headlines from a New York newspaper. The second is from II Kings, twentieth chapter, thirteenth verse.

Home is not Jerusalem nor is Mussolini Hezekiah; no one expects the Babylonian captivity to be repeated. But what, was vain glory and childish display 3000 years ago is not statesmanship today.—Christian Science Monitor.

MYSTERY MAN IS SENT NORTH

Peterborough, Ont., May 13—(CP)—Edward O'Neill, aged man who came from Ottawa this week and was found to be suffering from loss of memory, was placed on the train for Lochlin in Haliburton County north of here.

He had been detained after he was found trying to enter a restaurant. He explained he thought it was his home. He purchased a railway ticket in Ottawa for Lochlin but got off at Peterboro and became lost. He was unable to give his destination or where he came from.

Police in Haliburton learned that he was expected at a small summer resort near Lochlin.

PLANE-BUILDING SEEN FOR CANADA

British Government Sees in Canada Safe Place of Manufacture

London, May 13—(CP)— The government, having disclosed intensive interest in Canada as a source of military airplanes, and its intention of building royal air force strength to 3,500 first-line planes by 1940, prepared today to meet new criticism of its air rearmament program.

Lord Winterton's majority in the House of Commons defeated a Liberal motion of censure on the Air Ministry by a vote of 299-131 but there were a number of Conservative abstentions.

After the debate—in which Canada loomed large— three motions were tabled demanding an inquiry into the state of Britain's air defence. One was by a group of 20 government supporters headed by Winston Churchill. Conservative; one by the opposition Liberals and one by Labor.

Faced with this stiff demand, the government acquiesced, setting May 19 as date of the fresh debate. Prime Minister Chamberlain was expected to speak then.

Earl Winterton, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and Air Ministry spokesman in the House of Commons, stressed the possibility of building up a "war potential" in Canada. Several members referred to the value of having the Dominion as a centre where planes must be constructed in absolute security.

IRWIN FREED OF MURDER CHARGE

Rearrested Leaving Court on a Charge of Desertion

Toronto, May 13 (CP)—Rearrested as he walked from a court room where he had been acquitted on a charge of murdering Mrs. Nora Thornton, Robert J. Irwin today faced a charge of deserting his six children at Gananoque, Ont.

Sworn out by Gananoque authorities prior to his arrest Feb. 27 on the charge of murdering the 50-year-old woman with whom he lived, the desertion warrant was served last night on Irwin as he was assisted from the court room. Court officials said he would be held in custody pending disposition of the charge.

Mrs. Thornton died in hospital here the night of Feb. 27. She had walked into the hospital the previous day and has been treated for a fractured jaw and internal injuries. Irwin, who gave the woman a blood transfusion testified she had suffered the injuries in a fall from a bed in their home.

Irwin, whose wife died recently, wept when the verdict was announced by a jury which had been out for three hours. Mr. Justice George A. Urquhart, in his charge to the jury, said the evidence did not justify conviction of a murder charge. "What you have to consider is the question: Was the accused too drunk to form the intent to commit the crime?"

TORONTO STOCKS
(At Close)

Toronto, May 14 (CP) — Quiet trading tempo marked the closing session of the week on the Toronto share market and prices were a bit unsettled in the mines while the industrials displayed general firmness.

Trading was fairly active again in Imperial Oil and International Petroleum as gains of the minimum fraction. Utilities, steels and foods posted more gains than losses. Interest in the distillery stocks lagged and Walkers Common and Distillers-Seagrams were off narrowly at the close.

Preston East Dome climbed to $3, but settled back to around 85 for a moderate net loss. Among the penny issues Aunx Gold moved higher on a trade of about 75,000 shares, Dome, Hollinger, Lake Shore and McIntyre, Macleod-Cockshutt and East Malartic and Kirkland-Hudson Bay ruled stronger.

Few and narrow changes appeared in the base metal list. Nickel, Smelters and Hudson Bay were down minor fractions.

WALL STREET

New York, May 14 (AP)—Most stocks drifted to moderately lower levels in today's market although selling pressure was exceptionally light.

Losses of fractions to a point or so predominated in early dealings, but mild support came in before the close and lifted the majority of leaders from low marks.

Bonds and commodities were uneven and, with major foreign markets shut down for the Saturday holiday, inspiration from abroad was lacking.

Mining shares were again favored among Canadian issues. Lake Shore gained nearly a point and smaller advances were turned in by Dome and McIntyre Porcupine. Distillers lost a minor fraction, Canada Ac were neglected.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford
By Financial Service

BOARD ROOM GOSSIP ETC.
Sicoe Gold Mines

The reasons for the decline in Sicoe are several in number, the most important being gradual decline in the grade as evidenced by mill recovery. Tonnage has been stepped up considerably in the past year, and production for 1937 between $200,000 and $208,000 since the beginning of 1938, output in the corresponding periods of the previous year was about $20,000 higher per month. The company has also been subjected to numerous rumors touching on the high cost of power, plant fires, dissension amongst directors and the threat of lawsuits. These rumors were unfounded but had a considerable influence in lowering the market levy of the shares.

The Sicoe is a large property which has been developed only to comparatively shallow depth. Its development history suggests that the acreage contains new ore possibilities beyond the present workings and deeper, but this factor is not evaluated on the market, which is prone to study and accept production returns of an established operator such as Sicoe.

The fact that Brazilian Traction opened up 1-8th of a point yesterday on announcement of a 50-cent dividend declaration indicates that we are not yet in a bull market. The dividend announcement came somewhat as a surprise as in view of the recent restrictions in Brazil it was not expected that the directors would take any dividend action at this time. Consequently, under more normal market conditions, the shares of Brazilian Traction would have reflected the dividend declaration in a much more positive manner.

Rumours on Bay Street, Toronto, are to the effect that a leading bank interest office is in Montreal has purchased the old Mail & Empire Building at the corner of King & Bay Streets.

First Cheese Board For 1938 Held in Belleville Today

Only one factory, that of Roblin, boarded cheese at the season's opening boarding of the Belleville Cheese Board this morning. A total of 31 colored cheese offered brought a price of 14 5-16 cents, from an initial bid of 14 cents. Mr. W. McCreary was buyer.

In his welcome to buyers and factory representatives at the opening meeting of the Belleville branch of the Board Geo. Cook expressed the hope that the coming year would be a prosperous one for both buyers and sellers alike. "I hope the country-side is as good as it was last year," he expressed.

For the information of buyers, it was stated by Mr. C. Fraleigh that all cheese from the Picton district this season would be shipped through the Picton cold storage plant in iced cars.

It was also said plenty of cheese would be offered on next Saturday board was made by Secretary Malory. "There will be 300 from Stirling district alone," he added.

lar tools, including chisels, a loaded 22 calibre revolver, flashlight, hammer, jimmy and packages of tinfoil. There was also a number of other tools and some gloves.

Mrs. W. N. Blackstock of one of the Stacey brothers, proprietors of the Willow Grove Creamery, situated on No. 19 Highway about 2 miles north of Mitchell, saw a car parked in front of the creamery across from their house. She saw lights on in the front office of the creamery. A few minutes later she heard three or four muffled explosions.

Realizing someone had blown the safe, she telephoned police, notified Provincial Traffic Officer Jack W. Callander, of Mitchell.

Car Passed Officer

While Officer Callander was on his way to the creamery the car in which the three were riding passed him. He did not know at the time but when he reached the creamery Mrs. Stacey described the car and occupants.

Callander telephoned Stratford police notifying them to watch for the car. He also telephoned Godwich and Exeter police.

By the time Stratford police received the call the wanted car was well on the way to this city from Mitchell.

With precautionary measure, Sergeant George Walker and P. C. Joseph Taylor, Police Motor Car to the westerly limits of the city and there, with the lights out and the motor still running, they waited. In a few minutes they heard a car travelling along No. 8 Highway at a terrific speed.

Travel 70 M.P.H.

The two cars travelled down Hibon Street to Dundas, then east to Wellington Street. There, who was at the wheel of the police car, said he had the accelerator down to the floor boards. It was estimated the vehicles were travelling about 70 miles per hour.

The coupe took the sharp turn at the bottom of Hunter Street and just barely missed a heavy stone bridge wall. The car mounted the sidewalk but swerved back to the centre of the road and shot around the Wellington Street corner, headed into Ontario Street.

The car never made the Ontario Street turn but hit the front wheels began to slide and the machine turned over a few feet east of the Hydro shop. The three occupants were trapped inside.

Taylor and Walker went to the wrecked car, Sergeant Walker carried his gun. They pulled the three occupants of the car out of the overturned machine and at a glance and put them in the police van.

One Tries to Escape

In the police station, while police were booking them, one of the trio made a dash for freedom. The other two took heart and tried the same trick.

Joseph I. Dolan, local newspaperman who was in the police station, saw the attempted break and he dashed to the swing door which is hung on one end of the police sergeant's desk and blocked the passage to the street. Dolan stood pat against the door and prevented the one man who got that far getting away. Police were able to hold Dolan, delayed his sudden attempted flight.

When police searched the overturned car at the scene of the accident they found the .22 calibre revolver on the floor.

Identification cards found on the three after they had been searched by police at headquarters showed that the coupe was the property of Leo Bacon, one of those held.

Police believed he was driving the car.

SUPRISE ATTACK BY GOV'T PLANES

New Factor Interjected on Eastern Spanish Front

Hendaye, France, May 14 (AP)—A surprise attack by fifty government warplanes today was a new factor in operations on the eastern Spanish front today as the insurgents offensive against Valencia gained headway.

The Insurgent air force, long dominant in eastern Spain, hurriedly called for reinforcements. The government mass attack over Castellon, 46 miles northeast of Teruel, came in the wake of reports 300 new government planes had been unloaded at Barcelona.

Eighteen Insurgent ships engaged in the Castellon fight and reported shooting down seven government planes without loss to themselves. The government fleet finally flew away in the direction of Barcelona.

Barcelona Raided.

(Insurgent bombers raided Barcelona, taking off today and also yesterday, killing and wounding about 200 persons, according to dispatches from Insurgent radio sources. The raiders flew in from the Mediterranean, presumably from the Insurgent base at Palma, Mallorca.)

Seizure of another important point of territory in the past three days enabled the Insurgents to rectify their line curving inward from Teruel to the sea.

With powerful artillery fire, airplane bombardment and infantry attacks supported by tanks, General Franco's forces ripped open government defenses established in 1937 as a subsidiary line guarding Valencia. The area was infested with machinegun nests and strong trench fortifications.

HUNGARY'S CHIEF THREATENS NAZIS

Campaign to Suppress Agitators Has Been Launched

Budapest, May 14—(AP)—Disaster threatened Hungary's unauthorized Nazi movements and free-lance Fuehrers today as the new "strong man" government of Bela Imredy launched a campaign to suppress agitators and restore public confidence.

Imredy, who yesterday succeeded Koloman Daranyi as Premier, has two bills ready to push through Parliament—both aimed at Premier Hitler, "The Hungarian Hitler" and leader of Anti-Government Nazi groups.

One of the measures would provide the death penalty for disturbing public peace; the other would tighten restrictions on the right of public assembly.

Fire Fatal Premarks

Imredy's plan for ending the political uncertainty which caused Daranyi's resignation contained an unspoken assurance that Nazi and Jewish ideas would be tried out thoroughly in Hungary but the movements will be controlled by the Government—not by Opposition groups.

A five-point program announced last night disclosed Hungary is to end "dualism" in labor service, a modified form of the "strength through joy" movement and a corporative system of control, similar to Germany's and Italy's, for trade, industries and professions.

The Daranyi Government's anti-Jewish bill which was passed by the House of Deputies yesterday was largely drawn up by Imredy and, therefore, is expected to be enforced by his government.

BRAZIL BLAMES 'FOREIGN HELP'

President Vargas Does Not Identify The Foreigners

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, May 14, (AP)—President Getulio Vargas today charged the Integralist (Fascist) Greenshirts who tried to overthrow his government Wednesday had "foreign help."

While the President was charging foreign interference in the revolt plot—but not identifying the foreigners—the Government arrests multiplied the country for suspected participants in the uprising.

Vargas said the Integralists had seized upon "all possible sources of discord and to their ends were unheeding the fact that with foreign help they compromised the very sovereignty of Brazil".

The Vargas government in recent months has taken drastic action to restrain German activities in Brazil but officials said there was no concrete evidence the Nazis supported the Integralist revolt.

Reich centered on the fugitive Integralist chieftain, Plinio Salgado, who has been in hiding since the organization was banned March 18.

GOV'T DOCK TO BE LIGHTED

Work Being Carried on Under Direction of Harbor Commission

Belleville's water front will take on a more brilliant hue and will doubtless prove more attractive for yachting tourists as the Government Dock, as well as Victoria Park will be especially lighted this season.

The Belleville Harbour Commission commenced work today in the relighting of the Government Dock. The large metal standards, that have not been utilized for some years, are being rewired and repainted. Heavy lead cables will carry the electric current to the dock in the future, thus assuring more adequate lighting, the Harbor Commission decided at a recent meeting. The new standard will be erected at the extreme southern end of the dock, and will be equipped with complete lighting at all times of the night. For some years past Belleville's water front has been in darkness and offered no inducement for passing yachtsmen, but with the lighting of Victoria Park, the Government Dock and the lighting of the Government Dock by the Harbour Commission, Belleville's tourist trade should increase locally throughout the summer months.

New bumper logs have been purchased by the Harbour Commission and will be placed at strategic points along the dock for the protection of incoming craft, to line up at the local wharf. The Belleville Harbour Commission this year is composed of Jack McIntosh, chairman, Mayor J. Bone and A. H. Ketcheson.

Preparation of Land For Tomato Culture

By C. E. Mighton, Dept. of Botany, Ontario Agricultural College.

Tomatoes are essentially a garden crop. It necessarily follows that for such a crop, to attain success that the land should be thoroughly worked to a considerable depth. There are all sorts that in order to successfully transplant any plant we must be sure of having the soil firmly packed around the roots so that they may secure moisture and raw food materials. This cannot be obtained unless the land is in a fine state of tilth and well firmed.

Deep ploughing is the first step in preparing a piece of ground for tomatoes. Preferably, this should be done in the fall and particularly where tomatoes are to follow a clover or alfalfa sod. If the soil will permit the depth of ploughing should be eight inches. Some grow ers plough both in the fall and again in the spring. This is a splendid practice. In such cases the same effect can be accomplished by two or three deep discings. Following this with thorough, deep cultivation, will prepare a seed bed. One should with most soils provide a fine firm plant sod. Growers should remember that this cannot be regained by having the land in good tilth. However, this may be overcome early planting. A weeks earlier planting will be quite a great deal if the land is not ready

Planting Dinsiones

This is a controversial question. Experience of four feet by four feet is the one most commonly used and generally is quite satisfactory. On rich soils, however, this may be too close, while on others it may be too far apart. It also varies with what with the variety. The optimum is that distance which permits the plants to completely cover the ground.

Fertilization

The proper use of commercial fertilizer has been proved to pay profits. Results from experiments conducted in this district by the Ontario Agricultural College are the basis for the following recommendations.

On clay loam to clay soils use 2-12-6 analysis at the rate of 200 lbs. per acre. If there have been no legumes grown on the land lately this analysis might be changed to a 4-12-6.

On sandy loam to loam soils use a 2-12-10 analysis at 200 lbs. per acre. Plus this, 100 lbs. nitrate 10 per cent of nitrogen might be used if the plants fail to grow well. Tomatoes.

In later districts like those around Belleville and Napanee a 2-16-6 or 2-16-10 may be used to advantage.

For the best results the method of applying the fertilizer is just as important as the rate or analysis. Primarily the fertilizer for tomatoes should be locally applied. This means applying it near the plant rather than broadcast.

Where the setting is done by hand the fertilizer should be placed within three or four inches of the plant and worked into the soil to a depth of about 4 inches. This places the fertilizer in the path of the roots and down in the soil where it will be readily available. Take care that the fertilizer is not allowed to come with the fertilizer.

Where machine it is apply the fertilizer in a ring around the plant after it is set and mix it in to the soil. If this is done the fertilizer should be hoed in to a depth of about 4 inches deep.

The most approved method of applying it is to drill it in bands about four inches away from the plants and 4 inches deep. Unfortunately, machinery is not, as yet, readily available for this.

Laboratory Aids France in Fight On Potato Bugs

Shipments of parasites to aid in the strenuous war against the potato beetle, scourge of France were shipped to that country from the Provincial Entomological Laboratory recently.

The parasites, the beetle which is believed to have invaded that country from North America just a few years ago, entomologists of France are bending every effort to fight this destructive pest. Shipments of parasites to aid in the insect war sent from England arrived a few of those which have been consigned during the past year or two.

Experiments to further help his own country in the war of extermination, Dr. Jean Feytaud, one of the French Entomological Service, will visit the Belleville laboratory and spend some time here this summer in the study of parasites. Mr. Brunelesu was a visitor to the city on the same mission and his work is recognized as one of the most valuable entomologists of the French service.

At the present time the local laboratory is lending its efforts on the propagation and shipment to the European theatre of apicle and tiphy parasites to aid in the fight against the potato beetle. Shipments of parasites which were bred here in 1937 were sent, a shipment made to New Brunswick. About four million insects comprised one week's consignment.

Later this season parasites which have been bred here will be sent to Lexington district to aid in the fight against the peach moth, while the corn borer, which threatens here from the north so serious locally of late will also be fought with locally bred parasites.

Hog Grading Service Available to All Farmers

The Hog Grading Regulations require that all hogs be purchased from the farmer according to grade, with price differentials between grades. These Regulations are effective insofar as they are supported by the farmers and shippers of the district concerned. In the districts where they best been introduced, they have been bought strictly according to grade for many years. In other districts, farmers are ready and willing to sell their hogs on the flat basis, even though it is costing many of them money. Obviously, it is impossible to give official supervision to the thousands of hog buying transactions which take place every week, but all the hogs are graded at the destination. This means that the grading service is available at all times to the farmer, and it is largely up to himself whether he makes use of it or not.

If farmers experience any difficulty in collecting their premiums, kindly write to W. M. Gordon, Department Agriculture, Peterboro. Week ending May 8th, 1938 are as follows:

WOOD BECOMES HEAD OF AIR MINISTRY

25 Persons At Least Killed in Atlanta Hotel Fire

MANY MISSING, THIRTEEN HURT IN EARLY BLAZE

Estimates Vary at to Number of Missing Persons

WALLS ARE MENACE

Roof Collapses And Plunges Through to Basement

Atlanta, May 16 (AP)—Flames which started in a basement kitchen killed 25 persons at the Terminal Hotel early today, left 13 injured and others missing. More than a dozen persons were rescued or leaped to safety.

The number of persons unaccounted for was a matter of conjecture. Reports to firemen and police indicated from 18 to 65 persons were registered in the 62-room, five-story brick and frame building.

A high wind from the west fanned the flames. City ambulance crews were set to work in mid-morning removing the debris. Engineers said no guess would be required to clear out the wreckage.

Fear Men are Dead

Police Chief A. A. Hornsby expressed belief "10 or 15 more" bodies would be found in the mass of debris piled on the street below. Speed with which the flames gained headway amazed witnesses.

Police Lieutenant J. T. Lanier said he was five blocks away in a patrol car when he saw the fire shot up, and that by the time he arrived guests were fleeing in panic.

"I couldn't see them," he said, "but I could hear people on the upper floors crying out and praying."

The fire was described by Chief Hornsby as the "deadliest in the history of Atlanta."

Court Favors Hospitalization To Prison for Drug Addicts

Hamilton, May 16 (CP)—"I will go as far as to agree with you that hospitalization rather than imprisonment would be the proper treatment for drug addicts," observed Magistrate H. A. Burbidge in Magistrate's Court today during the hearing of a vagrancy charge against William McCrae. McCrae, who had just remarked that drug addicts should not be sent to jail, was convicted and remanded a week for sentence and a mental examination.

"I didn't make the law," continued the magistrate.

Three members of the morality department testified to having seen the accused in the company of known drug addicts.

"I went on the drugs as the result of war wounds," McCrae said in his own defense.

"I suppose you would like to go off the drugs" asked George W. Ballard, K.C., crown attorney.

"Yes," replied the accused.

"And I suppose you would like to see the sale of drugs stopped?" continued the crown.

"I know what you are going to ask—where did I get my drugs?" answered McCrae.

"Well, where do you get them?" asked Mr. Ballard.

"I will not answer that question and I won't help to stop the sale," said McCrae.

In answer to further questions by Mr. Ballard, McCrae denied being a runner and selling drugs for "higher-ups."

James LaRue, 47, said to have come from Montreal, pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of a narcotic drug—a quantity of morphine. He was remanded a week for sentence.

Arranged for sentence on vagrancy charges in connection with the police drive against drug addicts, Frank Mercer and Edgar Johns were sentenced to 3 months in jail. The latter was allowed to go on deferred sentence for six months on condition he find a job and contribute not less than 40 per cent. of his earnings toward the support of his wife and family.

George Ferry and Gilbert Haggart, also held on vagrancy charges, were remanded for trial for another week.

"They better get better already," Magistrate Burbidge said.

CITY OF SUCHOW IN CENTRAL CHINA NOW SURROUNDED

Japanese Assert it Will be Only Hours Before They Enter City

HEAVILY BOMBED

Shanghai, May 16—(AP)—Japanese dispatches declared today Suchow had been completely surrounded and Japanese troops were closing in from all sides on the hundreds of Chinese trapped in the area around the vital central China rail junction city.

The Japanese asserted it would be only a matter of hours before they actually assault the strategic city for which they have been fighting for months.

EX-BANKER FACES CHARGE OF THEFT

Beaverton Man Also Held on Suicide Attempt Count

Beaverton, Ont., May 16—(CP)—R. F. Bugiaff, former manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch here, appeared in a crowded courtroom in the Town Hall today to face charges of theft and attempted suicide. Bugiaff was arrested a month ago a few days before he was to be superannuated.

The banker, for many years one of this Lake Simcoe town's most prominent citizens was brought back from Cobourg jail today for his hearing on charges of theft of Orillia is breaking.

Bank inspectors were making a routine examination of the branch's business here when a revolver shot was heard from Bugiaff's office. The officials discovered Bugiaff with a bullet wound in his head. Further investigation resulted in the laying of a charge of theft involving $3,000 in securities belonging to the Neil Rutherford estate.

Vatican and Spanish Government To Exchange Plenipotentiaries

Cas'el Gandolfo, Italy, May 15 — (AP)—A Vatican news service announced today that the Holy See and the Spanish insurgent government had arranged to exchange plenipotentiary diplomatic representatives, completing formal recognition of the Vatican of General Franco's regime.

The Spanish insurgents named as Ambassador to the Holy See Don Jose Maria de Yanguas Y Messia, Vicount of Santa Clara and Arredillo. He also is a member of the National Council of Franco's State party.

Pope Pius chose as Apostolic Nuncio to Nationalist (insurgent) Spain his former Nuncio in Austria, Monsignor Gaetano Cicognani.

Diplomatic contacts between the Holy See and the insurgent regime have been maintained for the last several months by charges d'affaires. There have been no diplomatic relations between the Vatican and the Barcelona government for more than a year.

FOUR ARE MISSING ON FISHING TRIP; MOTOR CAR FOUND

Police Search Ottawa Men on Islands in Mississippi River

USING MOTORBOAT

Party Intended to Return to Ottawa Early Sunday

Pitrroy Harbor, Ont., May 16 — (CP)—Discovery of an abandoned automobile today started police searching for four Ottawa men who have been missing on a fishing trip since Saturday.

Provincial Police and relatives sought the men on islands in the Ottawa river and in the nearby Mississippi. Pitrroy Harbor is 25 miles west of Ottawa by airline.

The men, all employees of an Ottawa paint company started on their fishing trip Saturday morning, taking only a lunch and intending to return to their homes in the evening.

When they did not appear relatives were not alarmed, believing they had extended their holiday. When they failed to return Monday police were informed and the abandoned car was found near Pitrroy Harbor.

The missing men are: Gaspard Benoit, 39, Paul Paquin, 27, Wilfrid Boldue, 25, and Russel Radcliffe, 27. All are married.

The men were using a 16-passenger motorboat.

British Minister in Mexico to Leave Monday

Cedillo, Who Broke With Cardenas, May Lead Revolt

DIVERT ATTENTION

Mexico City, May 16—(AP)—Socialist students today seized buildings of the University of Mexico in a sudden attack that left a number wounded. The students' dash barricaded themselves against quickly summoned forces of police and troops.

The student outbreak was the first manifestation of internal unrest, following the March 18 expropriation of 17 British and United States oil companies.

Cedillo's Statement

Associated with the Socialist leader, General Sturmino Cedillo, charged today that President Cardenas was trying to "drive him to rebellion" to distract the public from the oil expropriation issue.

Cedillo, who has an armed peasant following to whom he has allotted land on the estate in San Luis Potosi, broke with Cardenas last August on the latter's policy of Agriculture.

Cedillo since has been frequent rumors he is ready to lead a revolt against the government.

Found Dead Under Tree

Toledo, O., May 16 (AP)—Chas. J. Stein, 72, former treasurer of the Scripps-McRae newspaper chain and father of a prominent attorney in St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Toledo, was found dead today beneath a tree near a pond today.

Coroner Wilbur R. Shapiro returned a verdict of suicide by firearms after he had read a note left by Mr. Stein. Despondency due to financial worries apparently was responsible, the coroner said.

GIRL DRIVER FINED

Hamilton, May 16 (CP)—Adeline Baker, 18, of Wingham, Ont., pleaded to have driven a car without an operator's permit, was fined $10 and costs or 10 days in jail by Police Magistrate Burbidge here today. She was driving a car which figured in an accident on Market Street on Saturday. Roy McGonigal of this city, faces a charge of failing to remain at the scene of the mishap. He was remanded one week for trial and granted $400 bail.

AIRCRAFT PLANTS NOT SURVEYED BY BRITISH MISSION

Members of Mission Will Meet Representatives of Firms

PARTICULARS KNOWN

Conference in Ottawa Has to Deal With Various Types

Ottawa, May 16—(CP)—The British air mission, headed by Commander J. G. Weir, conferred with Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie for two hours today. With the minister was a representative of Sir Francis Floud, British High Commissioner.

Details of what transpired were carefully guarded. But it was elicited from a brief press statement issued at the close of the conference that the mission would not survey Canadian aircraft plants. They hope however, to see "the representatives of the firms interested in aircraft production" in Canada.

Details Are Given

It is understood on reliable authority that the particulars relating to the capabilities of all Canadian aircraft plants were placed before the British representatives. These were gone into in considerable detail, and the mission is believed to be satisfied the Canadian industry is in good shape to take care of whatever the British government may require of it.

The conference had to do almost exclusively with the construction of various types of aircraft built to standards required by the Royal Air Force. The present and potential facilities of the Canadian plants was thoroughly explored and the services rendered to the Royal Canadian Air Force by those factors reviewed.

Statement Issued

The statement from the Department was brief. It said:

"The British Air Ministry mission which has been in the United States called at the Department of National Defence this morning.

"The mission is devoting its time in the first place to studying the complete information already available. Before leaving Canada, they will have to satisfy the authority of all firms interested in aircraft production; but in view of the complete information already available and the short time at their disposal, the mission does not consider it necessary at this stage to visit the various Canadian plants.

"The mission will stay in Ottawa for two or three days."

No clues of her wanderings have been found by the large party of searchers, mainly river drivers and forestry employees.

FOUR AIR MEN REPORTED DEAD AFTER FLIGHT OF TWO AT SEA

London, May 16 (AP)—Death of five men after a flight of two days was reported today when the United States steamship City of Norfolk arrived from Baltimore.

Officials said one man jumped overboard after a fatal assault May 14 on another member of the crew.

Three others were drowned when a rescue boat which put out in a heavy sea capsized.

The City of Norfolk, 8,434 tons, left Baltimore May 5 for London and Hamburg. She belongs to the Baltimore Mail Steamship Company.

The fight occurred when the Baltimore mail liner was entering the English Channel. The fatal assault was understood to have been made with a knife. United States consular officers are investigating.

The City of Norfolk was carrying a general cargo and passengers.

The dead: Ernest Poppe, 60, cook, victim of attack; Chris Kalguire, 30, Spaniard, who allegedly attacked Poppe with a kitchen knife and then jumped overboard; William Buschenhan, dishwasher; Charles Kendall, ship's carpenter; and Bowie de Vries, a baker. The last three were drowned when the rescue boat capsized.

The affair occurred 90 miles west of Bishop's Rock. The City of Norfolk discharged 47 other passengers here, and was scheduled to proceed on to Hamburg.

RULING OF COURT PROTECTS WORKER AT UNFAIR LABOR

Order Given on Case of Strike as Result Unfair Conditions

NO DISSENT

Washington, May 16—(AP)—The Supreme Court ruled today that striking men, who strike as the result of an unfair labor practice by their employer, are entitled to protection of the National Liberal Relations Act.

This decision was given in upholding an order by the National Labor Relations Board directing the Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company to reinstate five employees who had gone on strike in San Francisco.

Justice Roberts, who delivered the decision, asserted the strikers remained employees under the Labor Act and were protected against the unfair labor practices denounced by it.

Roberts announced no dissent. Justice Cardozo and Reed did not participate.

The court reversed an opinion by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals refusing to approve reinstatement of the five men on the ground that they had severed their employment by striking.

Customs Revenues For April Smaller Than A Year Ago

Ottawa, May 16—(CP)—Canada's April revenues at $15,727,123 showed a decrease of $1,631,343 under those for April last year, the Department of National Revenue reported today. Customs duties amounted to $6,906,508 compared with $6,947,677; excise taxes, $3,791,997 against $4,-739,815; sales tax, $3,647,830 against $3,970,868; and miscellaneous collections $1,018,428 against $61,745.

TRAIL OF DEATH AND WRECKAGE IN WAKE OF STORM

Believed Three Drowned When Trawlers Are Swamped

SEVEN RESCUED

Boston, May 16—(AP)—A trail of death and wreckage was left today in the wake of the furious storm that lashed the New England coast and swept inland yesterday disrupting electrical service in several sections. A Provincetown fisherman picked up almost hopless on a Martha's Vineyard beach, reported three others perished when mountainous seas swamped their two power trawlers off the coast. He rescued safety by clinging to driftwood.

Seven sailors were rescued from the three-masted Canadian schooner Stewart T. Galter, out of Parrsboro, N.S., found awash 30 miles south-southeast of Portland, Me., by the coast guard cutter waiting its chance to beach the vessel carrying a cargo of pilings. Heavy seas had opened the seams of the 153 foot craft.

Mohandas K. Gandhi is Champion Of Britain in Indian Affairs

BY JAMES A. MILLS
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Bombay, May 16—(AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi today is a bigger figure in India than ever. After a series of bitter, self-imposed silence and inactivity, he has staged a dramatic comeback which places him once more in the world's limelight.

The Hindu who has led India's nationalist movement, recently scored a series of notable successes. They have culminated in a virtual agreement between Hindu and Mohammedan communities of India and most of their long-standing differences.

Thus one of the last barriers to real political unity of India's 350,000,000 people has been removed and Gandhi's position has been strengthened.

Fresh from a tour of the northwest frontier province where a year ago he would have been arrested, the apostle of peace and passive resistance now exercises almost dictatorial power over the congress party.

Champion of Britain

Once an implacable opponent of Britain's rule in India, Mohandas K. Gandhi now is their champion.

This is due largely to Great Britain's recent conciliatory policy. The better understanding between British and Indian leaders has produced a new spirit of mutual confidence and good will throughout India.

The country never has been so prosperous. There is little real, suppressed Nationalist agitators and filled prisons with demonstrators have stood idle for several years.

Because of British concessions to Eire, many influential Indians believe India will have an autonomous government within a few years.

Gandhi is concentrating on obtaining modifications of India's constitutions to permit Indians to control defence, finance and foreign affairs—the vital ministries British thus far have retained.

CYCLISTS SUMMONED FOR BREACHES OF LAW

Four youthful cyclists were apprehended riding their bicycles upon the footbridge and the cement approaches yesterday. Despite continued previous warnings riders of bicycles have continued to disregard the notice relative to the discontinuation of the practice with the result that it has been instructed to apprehend those to infringe upon the regulations regarding the riding of bicycles in that sector and obtain the names and addresses of guilty parties. The quartette apprehended yesterday will be summoned to court, where charges will be preferred, police officials revealed today.

TULIP BEDS IN CITY ARE RAIDED

East Hill residents, whose flower gardens have been raided and pilfered of a late date are complaining to police authorities relative to sneak thieves stealing tulips from their flower beds. Several such incidents were reported from the west end, while reports from that section of the city stated that several similar cases have resulted in such thefts, but reports were not made. Police promised attention with the result the police patrol car will patrol several streets, where such robberies have been more prevalent lately. "We take time and pains to put out these flowers in an effort to beautify the city, but if these thefts continue there is little use in planting them," complained one irritated citizen in his report.

BOGUS COINS GIVEN TO TAG-DAY COLLECTORS

BLAZING GASOLINE DAMAGES MOTORBIKE

Blazing gasoline that enveloped a motorcycle belonging to James MacKenzie at the corner of Dunbar and West Bridge streets early Saturday evening attracted a large crowd of curious spectators.

When the bike slid from beneath MacKenzie and rolled on the pavement, a spark ignited spilled gasoline that quickly spread over the machine. Firemen raced to the scene and extinguished the blaze with foam projectors. MacKenzie was unhurt although considerable damage was done to the "bike".

INJURES HANDS IN CLOTHES WRINGER

The new washing machine was a source of pride to the bride of a few months. She got it a number of rehearsals following its delivery to her home. Then came the great washday. The new machine functioned perfectly until the time came to put the wash through the wringer.

When a piece of clothing jammed in the machine, she inadvertently placed her hand between the moving rollers to extricate it. And today Mrs. Carl Payne, Wellington, is suffering from a badly bruised and lacerated hand while the new machine is being regarded with a new respect.

GEORGE BAILEY IS COMMITTED TO STAND TRIAL

Young Said He Was Threatened by Bailey, While All Had Been Arrested, In Jail

SEVERAL CHARGES

"You signed your own death warrant, too, by the oath, but by me," was the threat, Fred Young, Deseronto, said George Bailey had threatened him (Young) with in the Hastings County jail if he (Young) testified against Bailey in the matter of several charges of breaking and entering and theft preferred against Bailey, Young and Harold Maynes.

George Bailey, Pabla Amo, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today charged with breaking, entering and theft from the general store of J. R. McCabe, West Plains, and was later committed for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

Bailey had elected trial by a higher court on a previous occasion when he was faced with multiple charges of breaking, entering and theft east of Belleville during the month of March last. Undefended by counsel, Bailey entered his own cross-examinations today when J. R. McCabe, West Plains, general dealer, testified that his store had been burglarized on the night of March 23rd, last. Mr. McCabe identified merchandise, that Provincial Police produced as the goods which was said to have been found on the persons of Bailey, Young and Maynes during arrests by Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C.

Companion Testifies

Young, a companion of Bailey in Napanee for similar charges, stated Bailey, Maynes and himself had motored to Wm. Plains in Richmond Township on the night in question and had broken into the store. He identified some of the articles produced as having been stolen from that store and later cached at the home of Mrs. Mabel Thornhill, Wilton.

"Did you receive any threats from Bailey while in custody in the Belleville jail?" asked Mr. Donnan of Young.

"Yes, he said, you signed your death warrant, not by the cops, but by me," he stated. "I heard this say," replied Young. Maynes, a relative of Bailey's and third member of the trio, corroborated the former witness' story, but added he had not by heard anything threatening about "your death" when he was questioned about the charges now made by Bailey. Mrs. Mabel Thornhill admitted Bailey, Young and Maynes had split "some swag" in her home.

Crown Attorney Donnan produced a sawed-off shotgun and some shotgun shells, stated the gun had been recovered by Provincial Constable W. E. Smith, from an old chest in a garage, Point Anne. The gun was said to have belonged to Bailey. Young and Maynes testified both admitting the gun had been used when they robbed the West Plains store. Bailey, who did not give evidence on his own behalf, said that the gun was not his property, but rather the property of a relative.

"I find there is sufficient evidence here with which to put the accused upon his trial at the next court of competent criminal jurisdiction," concluded the magistrate.

Bailey is also facing several other charges of a similar nature, arising out of numerous break-ins committed east of Belleville but within.

Girl Guides and Brownies Hold Their First Rally Here

Twelve Companies From The District Meet at The Armouries

SPLENDID PROGRAM

Twelve companies of Girl Guides, comprising the Belleville district took part in a most successful rally held on a city on Saturday afternoon at Belleville Armouries. The Rally, the first to be held here, was under the direction of Mrs. Leo B. Riggs, Commissioner, and Mrs. T. B. Hyde, District Captain, of this city who are to be congratulated on the splendid way in which the program was carried out.

Shortly before three o'clock over two hundred Guides and Brownies assembled on the Armouries floor, smart in the trim navy uniforms of the Guides and the attractive brown frocks of the Brownies. A Guard of Honor was formed by the 3rd Belleville Cadet Rangers in charge of Mrs Mary Roberts, Captain and Miss Jean Dobbins, Lieutenant. Members of the 3rd and 5th Belleville Scout Troops under the direction of Scoutmaster Morley Anderson assisted in many ways during the afternoon.

Those on the platform with the Divisional Commissioner, Mrs. W. F. Fenton and Mrs. Riggs, District Commissioners, Mrs. Leo B. Riggs, Belleville; Mrs. Ewing McLean, Picton, Mrs. E. E. Ketchenson, Frankford, Mrs. Rade, Deseronto, a number of Captains and Belleville Guide Council were also on the platform, and a guest of honor was Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C. Opened With Rest Period

The Rally opened with the March Past, the salute being taken by Mrs. W. F. Fenton, Divisional Commissioner. The R.C.A.F. Band under the direction of Bandmaster Serg. Cooper, was in attendance through the kind permission of Wing Commander H. Edwards, M. C., A. F. C., and contributed splendid music throughout.

The companies, with their officers, entered in the following order:

1st Belleville Company, Mrs Ethel Moncrieff, Captain, Miss Edna Bell, Lieutenant; 1st Belleville Company, Miss Eva Harrison, Captain, Miss Hazel McGiffrey, Lieutenant; Miss Alma Bell, Brownie Owl; 1st Point Anne Company, Mrs. G. A. Storey, Captain, Miss Pearl Tulk, lieutenant; 1st Sibley Company, Miss Lena Ward, Lieutenant; 1st Campbellcroft Company, Miss Grace Payne, Captain, Miss Betty Morse, acting lieutenant.

2nd Belleville Company: Miss Mary Roberts, captain, Miss Mary Yoss Thomson, lieutenant; Ontario School for the Deaf Company; Miss Gertrude Kecker, captain, Miss Constance Connell, lieutenant; 1st Picton Company, Mrs. Ewing McLean, captain, Miss Elizabeth McMullin, captain, Miss Iola Daubney, lieutenant; 1st Consecon Company, Miss Ruth Woodworth, captain Miss Schell, lieutenant; 1st Company, Tompkins, Mrs. H. S. Campbell, captain; Miss Anna Galna, lieutenant; 3rd Belleville Company, Miss Jean Dobbins, captain, Miss Audrey Licence, Miss Betty Cooper, lieutenant.

The Brownies were in charge of the following Tawny Owls, Misses Jean Sprague and Edna Collopy; Pack 3, Misses Maxine Dupras, Evelyn Lucas, Jean Walker, Barbara Turvey, Betty Holland and Cherriote Stork.

Brownie Pow Wow

The Brownie Pow Wow opened the program in an entertaining way. Under the direction of Mrs. E. Branscombe, Brown Owl of Pack 2, the Brownies showed how they open their meetings, and gave a number of Brownie songs which showed why they are such cheerful little folk. This number was given very enthusiastically by the Brownies and delighted the large audience.

The Ontario School for the Deaf Company took a prominent part in the program. They contributed two dance groups, the first, the Beautiful Blue Danube Dance performed in lovely blue costumes by the talented dancers, Later they presented a Spanish dance and a tap. These were under the direction of Miss Helen Kneeshaw, with Mr. Alec Gordon acting as accompanist. The O.S.D. Company also joined in the demonstration of work and in the relay games.

The Exhibition of Girl Guide Badge Work, directed by Miss Jean Dobbins, was carried out in realistic fashion. Belleville Company 2 had a miniature laundry in operation, and Company 3, Belleville, showed how fishers earn their badges. 1st Company, Belleville, demonstrated training for the Child Nurse badge, and Picton company the Ambulance badge, while the Brownies showed how to do skilful bandaging. As the demonstration proceeded, the band played most appropriately, "Whistle While You Work".

Four companies took part in amusing relay games, directed by Miss Betty Holland, the funniest being the sitsitsee relay, each sitting and having to knit, in a sitcase, don old fashioned costumes, and then sit sitsitsee again. Ballengers Round, directed by Miss Mary Roberts, was well given by Guides and Brownies. Campfire Songs with Mrs. T. R. Durley in charge brought all the Guides and Brownies grouped in a large ring in the centre of the Armouries around the colorful Flag Drill under the direction of Miss Audrey Licence concluded the Rally. The drill was perfectly done by the Guides taking part. With streamers of every paper, they formed the crosses of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick while the Band played national airs. Finally the Union Jack was formed, and the Guides stood at attention while the Band played the "Maple Leaf" and "God Save the King."

Aiding in making the Rally a success were Mrs. J. Purdy and Mrs. A. E. MacColl who were in charge of tickets and programmes; Mrs. Armstrong, who was in charge of the properties. The Belleville Armouries was available for the Rally through the kind permission of Lt.-Col. A. B. Gribble, E.D.

St. Michael's Junior Band and Municipal Band to Give Concert

Carrying out his policy of developing the younger musicians of the city and district, Lieut. Fred Jobson, bandmaster of the Belleville Municipal Band will unite his splendid organization with the St. Michael's Junior Band on Tuesday night on the occasion of a concert by the band crowd to be held in St. Michael's School for the benefit of the youthful musicians.

Besides the past performances given by the boys' band of St. Michael's Parish on Tuesday night on the occasion of a concert by the band crowd to be held in St. Michael's School for the benefit of the youthful musicians.

Besides the past performances given by the boys' band of St. Michael's Parish on Tuesday night on the occasion of a concert by the band crowd to be held in St. Michael's School for the benefit of the youthful musicians.

A splendid program has been arranged by Mr. Jobson while the band of youngsters playing in concert with their experienced elders will doubt prove a novelty to the large crowd that is expected to attend.

Recognized as a boys' band of more than passing ability, the St. Michael's musicians have sparkling performances at band tattoos held here in the past, while their exhibition at the Belleville Collegiate Institute a few weeks ago drew the admiring applause of those present.

BELLEVILLE MAN ALLEGES ASSAULT

Ellis Brothers Are Held And Remanded Charged With Violence

Peterborough, Ont. MAY 16.—(CP)— Joseph and Gordon Ellis were remanded without plea or election until Tuesday when they appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley today, charged with robbery with violence.

The two were arrested early Sunday following a complaint from Morris McCarthy of Belleville, that he had been attacked and robbed of $30 by Gordon Ellis.

McCarthy stated to police that he was hit on the head and left in a laneway after he had been robbed of $32. Several youngsters saw the struggle. Some young boys tried to hold the assailants until police arrived, but they struggled free and disappeared through a wood-yard.

McCarthy said he had been working in the peptolime mine north of Stoney Lake until last Thursday when he left his job and was paid off. He had been in the city since Friday and was going back to his home in Belleville.

When Constables Clarke and Moody arrived, McCarthy was sitting up with a badly cut head. He said he badly dazed and could remember little of what had happened. He recalled only a short struggle before he had consciousness and was certain he had his money with him at the time.

Pan of Blazing Grease Damages Restaurant

Awakened shortly before five o'clock this morning by the smell of smoke in his apartment, above the Guild Restaurant, Front Street, Constable Wood dashed downstairs to discover the restaurant kitchen afire enveloped in flames.

Notifying Peter Lambros, proprietor of the restaurant, and turning in the alarm on the second floor of the building, the two men returned to the now smoke filled kitchen, to obtain the origin of the flames which in a pan of boiling grease. Lambros attempted to remove it from the stove, sustaining severe burns on one of his hands.

City fire departments answering an alarm swiftly extinguished the flames before any material damage was done. Slight damage was caused to the interior of the restaurant by fumes and smoke.

Lambros received first aid treatment from Fire Chief Lynch.

Police Constables Graham Evans rendered invaluable aid in assisting firemen and proprietor to extinguish the blaze.

KID-KAR DERBY SLATED FOR JULY

Kinsmen Announce Date of Important Event

Announcement made, over the week end following a meeting of the directors of the Belleville Kinsmen Club that their now famous Kid-Kar Derby will be run here on Tuesday, July 5th., has caused a ripple of activity among the youth of the city.

The unqualified success of the 1937 derby when George Wilson, winner of that event not only defeated the cream of Canadian riders but went on to win further honors in the world's championship race at Akron, Ohio, has caused an unprecedented wave of enthusiasm among the youthful boys of the city and district.

Already the din of hammers and the noise of saws is beginning to be heard in backyard garages and sheds. Potential champions are searching the city for and purchasing the necessary ingredients for the erection of one of these cars. Perhaps an incentive is seen in the fact that the committee in charge has eliminated the rolling starting handicap of the 1937 derby, in turn result in a much higher rate of speed as the youthful drivers dash down the course in search of victory and the honor of representing their city at other events of a similar nature.

The rules of wheel may be used, officials stated today, while the complete regulations according to over-all length will still be in force.

In order that the general public may have all itself of the opportunity to view this unique race, the time and place has been definitely set for 6.15 p.m. on Tuesday, July 5th. This of course will delight early arising time. Entry forms are now available, it is understood, and potential participants are urged to obtain one as soon as possible. Building and race rules are complete on the entry form and readers are advised to study the regulations before commencing the building of their "Silver Bullets" and other cars.

POLICE COURT

Matthew Corby, Belleville, was sentenced to not less than three months nor more than six months in the Ontario Reformatory after being convicted of vagrancy and panhandling before Magistrate J. J. Burkholder, K.C., in the city police court.

"This man is an old frequenter to the County jail, having had nine previous convictions I know of", added Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., in reviewing Corby's record. Corby was apprehended on Front Street, on Saturday seeking alms, ten cents is the amount he had asked a local citizen for when apprehended, police say. Arthur Hughes, and Gordon Graves, who were to have appeared for sentence on these charges, found their cases further enlarged. It understand Dr. Doyle, the Provincial psychiatrist will be in the city tomorrow and I believe these two men should be mentally examined before the court passes sentence," stated His Worship as he enlarged both matters until further notice.

A local motorist was fined the costs of the court for driving a motor vehicle with a defective muffler, thus causing unnecessary noise. The motorist assured the court he had remedied the trouble.

Obituary

MRS. SARAH M. CAUGHEY (Ethnet)

After an illness of two weeks' duration Mrs. Sarah Maria Caughey widow of William Caughey, passed away at her late residence, in the 2nd. concession of Sophiasburg Township, Prince Edward County, on Sunday morning, May 15th.

The late Mrs. Caughey had reached an advanced age, she being in her 81st. year. She was born on Hurlt's Island, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Simon Delong.

All her life was passed in Prince Edward County and she was most highly esteemed. In religion she was a member of the United Church at Croiton.

Surviving her are two daughters, Mrs. Grace Schenlinger, Syracuse, N.Y., and Mrs. Merrit, Bailie Creek, Mich.; three sons, Mr. Simon M. Caughey, Sophiasburg Township; Mr. Lorne Caughey, Hillier Township, Dr. Manley D. Caughey, Detroit, Mich.; one brother, Mr. Simon Delong, Toronto.

The funeral service conducted is made elsewhere in this paper.

Late Augustus H. Bertrand (Campbellford)

Plainfield (Special)—The funeral of the late Augustus H. Bertrand, son of the late Joseph Bertrand and Catherine Brennen, who died suddenly at his home near Campbellford, in his 58th year on Wednesday morning, was held from his late residence to Keyesbury United Church, on Friday afternoon. Rev. James A. Flint, of Norham, and formerly of Bayside, officiated. Mr. Bertrand had been in failing health for several months and was not considered critical. He had eaten a good breakfast and shortly afterwards, while Mrs. Bertrand, who before her marriage was Katherine Karl, of Havelock, was at the barn attending some chickens, he took a weak spell and expired a few minutes after her return to the house. Left to mourn besides his widow are six sons and two daughters, James, Kirkland Lake; Arthur, Tyendinaga; Joseph, Percy, Alvin, William, all at home; Katherine, all at home; brother, Joseph Meyerson four sisters, Mrs. Robert Miller, Detroit; Mrs. Jas. Rose, Port Colborne; Mrs. James Bradley and a fourth in Saskatchewan. Mr. Bertrand was a Methodist, while, his brother-in-law.

The bearers were: Messrs. Orland J. Bertrand, Albert Bertrand, Arthur Bertrand, James Bertrand, Joseph Bertrand and Cecil Bertrand.

Those present for the service from a distance were: Mrs. William Sollitt; Mrs. Harriet Mason, Mrs. Earl, Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Orland J. Bertrand and little Mary, Gilead.

Interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Campbellford.

MRS. JESSIE BOWEN (Frankford)

Frankford, May 16 (Special) — Reverently, sadly and silently, friends and relatives, citizens of the entire district paid their final tribute of respect to the memory of Mrs. Jessie Bowen, Frankford's oldest resident, who passed away early after a brief illness on Friday, May 13th. The service which took place at her late residence was conducted by Rev. J. P. Lane of Frankford and was assisted ably by Rev. J. D. P. Knox, of Belleville. During the service an appropriate choice solo "The Last Watch" was rendered by Miss Maybee as comforting messages were conveyed by the ministers to the sorrowing ones.

The late Mrs. Bowen, who was in her ninety-seventh year, had resided in Frankford for nearly fifty years. Predeceased by her late years she had enjoyed good health until three weeks ago when on the occasion of her ninety-sixth birthday she gratefully received messages of congratulation from her many friends and loved ones. A golden era out over the cliff in the village when news of her death was made known.

Born at Dummer, Ontario, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter MacPherson, pioneers of the Scottish settlement of that district established nearly two centuries ago. About forty-five years ago, she moved to Frankford with her husband Byron Bowen who predeceased her about twenty-two years ago. Her resistant with genuine Christianity will be long remembered by all who knew her. Kindly beyond the point of generosity and because of the staunch friend of all who passed her way.

She was a faithful member of the United Church, attending services with marked regularity. Her activity in the Women's organization, of which she is a chartered member, will be sadly missed. The faithfulness with which she fulfilled her obligations to the church she loved was characteristic of the sincerity portrayed in her long and useful life.

In keeping with her fondness for flowers during her entire life floral tributes, great in number vividly bespoke the esteem in which she was held by her large circle of acquaintances.

Last remaining of this MacPherson family of five brothers and four sisters, she is survived by one brother Mr. M. Bowen, of New York, U.S.A. and one daughter, Miss Margaret Bowen at home.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. D'Arcy Ketcheson, D. Vandervoort, J. B. Ford, Wm. Simmons and Geo. Pollard all of Frankford and Mr. A. A. Southworth of Campbellford, Ontario. Interment was made in the Frankford cemetery.

WILLIAM H. BAKER, Y.S

William Edwin Baker, V.S., passed away in Toronto, at 711 Robert Street, on Saturday, May 14th, in his 94th year. Interment will be made in Glenwood Cemetery, Morrisburg, on Tuesday afternoon, May 17th.

The last rumors this weekend sent federal Ottawa into San Luis Potosi, northwest of here. They mounted anti-aircraft guns on the church rooftops and established an anti-aircraft unit at a principal street corner where Charles and Nelson Eddy are seen and heard in the exquisite romances of romance and song in "The Girl of the Golden West" at the Bells Theatre.

The lovely new songs heard in this stirring Belasco-Generale Production of Puccini's Opera, "The Wind in the Trees", "Shadows on the Mountain" and "We Are Free To Say", "From Sun-up to Sundown" and "Wand'ring Star" are rendered in the midst of a lavish Spanish festival.

TOURISTS

One of the biggest of businesses is about to go on overtime—the tourist traffic. This is the season when the people who own motorcars or who plan extended trips by other means of conveyance, get out their maps and buzz, and are thinking over their plans for vacation.

This year as in any year the Canadian should think of seeing Canada first. However many tours a person has made, he has not completely exhausted the touring possibilities of Canada. One life is too short to take in all the attractions of Canada and to study the conditions of various parts of the country and get to know the people by visiting in their neighborhood. And he believes that there are no finer people to know than his own people whether they live on the Pacific Coast or in the Maritimes or in the Yukon or any part of the country. This does not mean that he should not cultivate acquaintance with the people of other lands, for Canada has good neighbors to the south and has good relations in Europe, the finest democratic countries on the farther away Dominions of the British Empire.

It would not be so easy were there no guides to tourist travel but the way of the tourist is made easy because he is invited everywhere, because he helps to build up trade. If a tourist had to map out his plan on a large scale, it would be difficult Today with all the services of railways, steamboats, busses, and motorcars, and with the added road, maps and gasoline stations, no one need lack a romantic spot in which to reside for a while as a visitor.

There is of course always the old time visiting of visiting one's friends in the city and country, particularly the latter if one is of the city born.

In fact everything has been made easy for the touring party. There is even a large share of individual enterprise for in no vast a system of vacationing and touring, one can make his own tour, for there are an infinate number of factors which now may be made factors in a tour. No one has to go where his neighbor goes. He may go where his neighbor has never been or for any detail. If there ever was a time for travel it is now with the ways prepared for everyone.

In process of time with such an opportunity of travel, conditions may make it possible that nearly everyone can go on an extended tour. Today there are unfortunately some who cannot find the means for any extended tour, something which would lift them out of themselves and make them happier.

Returning to the monetary side of touring, one has but to realize what is the extent of travel today. Last year tourists from other lands brought to Canada no less than $282,000,, practically three hundred million dollars. Indications point to an even larger outlay in Canada by visitors in 1938.

The touring business is building up a vast industry. No one can exactly figure its ramifications, for it has so many factors, the financial, the good will, the health and so many other elements which are part of it. Hundreds of thousands of persons feel the need of a change and out of that urge they contribute as much or little as they like to the growth of the industry. And it will grow more and more, there is no doubt of that. Already the figures of the advantages of tourist traffic are almost in the realm of wizardry and yet they are true.

SAFETY ON THE ROADS

(New York Times)

Anything that any individual, any public agency or any private interest can do to stop the American motorist from killing or hurting himself or any one else should be encouraged. This is one of the objectives of National Tire Safety Week, which opens together the auspices of the Rubber Manufacturers Association. There is no inconsistency between the desire to sell more tires and the desire to have more motorists alive and well to use tires. It is uneconomic to run on tires which are likely to shoot the motorist into Kingdom Come and one hopes that the rubber manufacturers will have a good week.

Our annual totals of killed and wounded on the roads have long been discouraging. Now the tide may be turning. The March figures on motor vehicle fatalities just made ublic by the National Safety Council may be the introduction which become continue to show the decline which began in November, 1937. For the first quarter of this year the council's figures indicate 7,100 such deaths, as compared with 8,650 in the corresponding quarter of 1937. Taken on the basis of mileage rates, or motor vehicles deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle-miles, the figure for the first two months of 1938 was 15.1, as against 18.5 in 1937—a reduction of 18 per cent.

We know that accident rates can be reduced for the whole country because they have been reduced in some States and communities, and because some States and communities have consistently made better records than others where conditions are comparable. In twenty-eight States in which the National Safety Council collected data the safety programs running from November of last year to February of this year saved 1,770 lives, cutting the former automobile death rate by an average of 13 per cent.

If Tire Safety Week saves a single life it will be worth the time, trouble and expense it takes. It will certainly same many lives. If it hastens the decision of twenty-odd million car owners to spend $500,000,-000 to replace 50,000,000 tires which will wear out this year, that will be a good by-product.

FABULOUS LEGEND

Tall, at a desk of polished oak,
A slender poet sat and wrote,
Spilling upon the scattered pages
Words to tower down the ages.
Outside a burly wind was high
That drove the rain across the sky;
And quietly upon the sill
Death stood proud and beautiful.
The poet, lifting up his head,
Made his obeisance to the Dead.
"Death," he said, "standing there
With the pre-enrolled at prayer,
Cold, importunate and strong,
I defy you with my song!"

(And the pounding of his heart Hammered lungs and ribs apart.)

"Death," he said, "upon this paper
Are these words sharp as a rapier;
I shall fend you off and days
Of disaster with a phrase;
The long ledges of the night
Will be radiant with light
Flowing from the truth I tell;
Truth like mine is powerful,
Defeats the grave, dark imrage,
With your archangelic flimsage,
Go and tell how once a mortal
Stayed you on his very portal."

The curtain at the doorway shifted,
The soft voice of dark Death lifted;

"Even now you are a host
Within yourself unto a ghost;
And this thing you call your armor
Will not clothe you in heavenly warmer;
Flesh but lodges for an hour
Seeds that burst into a flower;
Even as they bloom are lost
To you alone, that is the cost!
Earth earth you from me once your parent
And sent you forth upon an errand
That is finished, trees and sod
Bear you back again to God;
Severed from this earthly air
You have entered the atmosphere;
And my keen two-edged sword
You forged yourself; I have your word!"

MEXICO IS BIDDING FOR THE TOURIST TRAFFIC OF THE CONTINENT. Splendid highways are being constructed through Mexico where formerly little more than dirt trails existed. Mexico has become so tourist-minded that it is planned to extend the scenic highways across the Panama Canal, down through South America taking in Rio de Janiero, Buenos Aires and other picturesque and historical places and on down through the Argentine, even unto Patagonia, up through the Andes where "The Christ of the Andes" majestic splendor welcomes all the world to the wonders of the southern republics and the hills and valleys sloping down to the sea. Tourists will be invited to visit the homes of the Montezumas, the battlefields of Cortez, Pizarro and other Spanish Conquisadores, and other attractions. Canada must open up the gaa if it is to hold the tourist traffic rightfully belonging to this country.

The Rev. A. L. Geen was present at a banquet given by the Retail Merchants' Association of Peterboro recently, at which he spoke on "The Power of Organization."

Mr. W. Armstrong, who is connected with the fish hatchery at Newcastle, was in the city yesterday and in company with Mr. J. E. McIntyre, proceeded to the salmon trout fry in the bay here. Tomorrow Mr. Armstrong will deposit 100,000 salmon fry in Consecon Lake and also the same number in the bay at Picton.

Master George Cornish spent yesterday in Kingston with friends.

Dr. Harper, Reeve of Madoc, was a visitor in town today.

Mrs. Frank Trastack, of Montreal, is visiting relatives here.

40 YEARS AGO

May 15th, 1898.

The time has arrived to put a stop to the practice indulged in by reckless drivers, of driving out of scorching upon their wheels.

Bearers are about the hardest to study of all our wild animals. To know them as they are, one has to start at observing and deducting, for seldom, if ever, will you have a chance to watch the animals by themselves. You see their work and the results of such work, but the work that you draw your own conclusions.

I live near several beaver colonies and thus have an excellent opportunity to study the sly animals. The beaver is dark-brown in color, having a body shaped much like that of a modern automobile. Since the entrance to their den is about as large as the mouth of a rain barrel, you can form a good idea of their size. They have long sharp teeth, webbed hind feet, and powerful flat tails, used to steer by and give warning of danger.

If they happen to live in lakes that have plenty of water for their requirements, but if they dwell in rivers they must build dams. The method of constructing these dams is very interesting and shows vividly the knowledge and wisdom of the little engineers. First a wide and deep hole in the bottomed part of the river is chosen as site. Then the workers cut hundreds of small saplings, trees in size from mere twigs to the thickness of a brown bundle. These are stuck securely into the river bottom, butts first with the tops leading, and are kept in place by rocks, sods and mud. Forked branches are placed ahead of the floating tops to keep the water from carrying them downstream. Soon there is an intricate network at the water's edge to entagle and hold the brush in the centre of the stream. After this layer has stretched across the river, actual logs are floated down the stream, entwined with the brush and kept firmly in place by rocks and mud. This wall is raised to the height of four or five feet, and the resulting dam is often hundreds of feet long. Then, too, the bottom is lowered, passages and archhouses are tunnelled, so that in the centre of the dam the water is sometimes seven or eight feet deep.

Beneath the surface the beavers have their homes. Here they sleep, eat, and do their living. Here, too, are their nurseries, for the young, inexperienced beaver may lodge his life in the den, but never in it left there? Not on your life! Either another tree is felled, or branches cut off the branches, dried and the tree into suitable lengths and low the pieces to the river. Some times they build canals for this work, but generally they trust to their own strength to move the wood.

The beavers are just as industrious in their dam as in the woods. Both in summer and autumn daily inspection is carried out to make sure that there are no leaks in the dam. They are very clean animals and they hate to have fish, mink and such in their home, although they never interfere with their muskrat cousins. If you observe their runs in winter, you will notice small holes at regular intervals across the ice. As the beavers swim along in the water they blow bubbles, thus maintaining his oxygen supply while in the water.

Like humans, beavers have various classes of society, their rank depending upon the work they do and does another's work. There can be no leadership or assistantship because of the duty of one depends on the safety of all.

The engineers are the most important, for the protection of the whole colony depends upon how well the dam is constructed. Once only once — did we see engineers at work. I had been duck hunting and was resting on an old fallen log when suddenly there was a thud cleave the water of the dam. The next moment I sighted the dark-brown head of the beaver moving swiftly towards the edge of the dam. Arriving he peered cautiously around him for several moments, then apparently satisfied that no living on his hind feet he gazed long and admiringly at the fine dam structure, as if debating the best means of repairing it. Suddenly he dropped flat on the water and swam. By this time my curiosity had reached such a pitch that I crept cautiously to get a better view. Crack! With a terrific slap of his mighty tail on the water, he vanished. I realized, though, that my presence had not been the cause, brought the old fellow out in daylight.—John Ritchey in Montreal Herald & Weekly Star.

That Body of Yours

Low Blood Pressure May Mean Long Life But Not Buoyant Health

Of four brothers in a family, three died between the ages of 50 or 60. The remaining brother was asked what he was that he still alive at the age of 76 and he replied, "Well, you see, I am the runt of one of the family, always underweighted and never had a good appetite."

One of the big points about this "runt" was that he had a poor appetite is that the blood pressure is likely to be low. Persons with low pressure usually are not robust, do not feel like doing much mental or physical work, which, together with eating small meals, means that they get so much work on the heart, bloodvessels and kidneys.

Dr. A. Blaine Brewer, Dayton, in the Ohio State Medical Journal, says "Low pressure does not mean that one is not a disease, and if no symptoms are present, treatment is not required. When there are no symptoms nor complications it is unwise to attempt to bring low pressure to a higher level by the use of drugs. It is a comparatively good sign that the patient will live beyond the normal span of years with low pressure of the blood, there is less strain on the heart and bloodvessels.

"About 70 per cent of-those with low blood pressure live to old age without due to frequent attacks of influenza taking less exercise than normal, infection or other trouble in the body".

As mentioned above then, if there are no symptoms nor complications it is not necessary that low blood pressure is a family characteristic. I have in mind a brother and sister, both over 70 years old, who have blood pressures twenty points below what is considered normal for their age, and they enjoy excellent health.

However, the individual who is in his thirties or forties should not be over-optimistic about his health when a low blood pressure just because of low blood pressure means a longer life. He should be doing all he can to have his physician and dentist go over him at least once a year. If his blood pressure, why he is underweight, why he is never hungry, and so on, he will be found that some low infection is present from which he suffers, such as sinusitis, teeth, tonsils, or sinuses. The individual with low pressure should have some infection or gland deficiency may live a long time but he will not have the vim and vigor and ability.

After removing the cause of low blood pressure, treatment consists of "plenty of sleep and rest, avoidance of fatigue, avoidance of infections, proper diet and graded exercise."

FARMER'S PROFIT MARGIN

The name Sandy Fraser is well known to readers of The Country Advocate, and many fine articles come from that pen. In the last one he wrote one entitled "The Margin of Profit" In this article, Sandy tells of the disappearance of the farmer's annual income. The writer quotes Professor Ellis regarding the truth of the statement that "the average farmer pays himself for the use of his labors on a hundred acre farm $363—not quite a dollar a day.

Often have we wondered just what that farmer does get out of his labors. Such matters as depreciation and assets on hand are not usually figured on the average farm as they are in most other lines of business. For the purpose of this article we shall use Sandy Fraser's estimated figures. You see, Sandy and the scribe mentioned sat down with a wee scrap of paper and a pencil between us, (it's the editor's) and did a bit of "figuring." They put down a group of estimated figures that read:

Average income from milk $400, average income from cream $100, average income from hogs $170, average income from hens $150, a total of $770, as the average that comes for the man on a hundred acre farm.

Of course, there are those who will scoff at these figures. They probably handle twice that amount of money but, as Sandy points out in his article, they have to over pay the profits"

Stacked up against this income are the following: The wife would have it, on the debit side of the ledger, $100 for food, $200 for clothes, $150, upkeep of car and gasoline, $40, taxes, $40, church $15, a total of $700, the said Scotchman was mighty close to the mark. Add to this, which, we suppose, the farmer might take in a Fall Fair or two and there you are.

If, as we have said, the estimates are left in the expenditures and receipts, the farmer's income gaps are left in the expenditures for the wife, and the newspapers, interests on mortgages? Frankly, we fear the picture we have painted is true of those we like to admit. What difference if that farmer does get only $363 so long as the profit balance is no deficit?

Do these figures explain why so many farmers are doing the best they can with the help available this Spring, when they know full well that they should be hiring another man? Do they explain why farm-raised boys are to be found in city jobs? Do they explain why probably 20 per cent of rural Ontario is for sale today, and at figures that would not pay for the buildings on the farms? They do.—Rustician in Stratford Beacon Herald.

Three Killed, Two Drowned Over Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Three persons met death in motorcar accidents and two were drowned in weekend fatalities in Ontario.

The Minister of Highways, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, issued an appeal for a "safe and sane" weekend next Sunday, which precedes the May 24 holiday. The Minister announced his department will conduct a campaign toward cutting down dealing accidents and injuries in the holiday weekend.

Yesterday Harry Smith, 23, and Fred Miller, 17, were drowned when their canoe capsized a mile from shore in Bronte Harbor. They near Harrie. Seven small boys in a rickety boat gave Toronto lifeguards a scare as they crossed Toronto Bay but all landed safely.

Frank Parrell, a Caledonia farmer, died at Hamilton from injuries received when struck by a bike. Gerald Rodney, 13, was killed at Sarnia when struck by a car as he was riding his bicycle.

Another Toronto boy was killed by a car in Toronto as he stepped off the sidewalk.

Bergen's Brazen Blockhead

Within a year after that impertinent blockhead, Charlie McCarthy had been "discovered" by Noel Coward at an Elsa Maxwell party and he and his master had won a following of millions, the finished wise-cracks were quoted everywhere, and, in addition to his fortune, Charlie, he had been signed at $12,000 a week for a Coldwyn picture. He even got a contract in vote, for Mayor of New York in the election last fall.

Charlie has revived world-wide interest in ventriloquism. Forgotten practitioners of the art now win applause in metropolitan night clubs; counting, amateurs have started on parlor careers; correspondence schools are digging ventriloquism courses out of cold stock; dummy-makers are back at their work benches, and manufacturers are turning out thousands of Charlie McCarthy dolls for children.

The appeal of the talking dummy is universal because people delight in seeing and hearing themselves insulted by something inanimate. The ventriloquist's dummy can get off impertinences no human could dare to utter and can take pin prick pomposity, lab at false dignity with reckless impunity as we may think of but are too repressed to utter.

For current-generation youngsters know anything about ventriloquism is due to the vaudeville days with the decline of vaudeville. Yet talking dummies pop up in the earlier pages of history. Thousands of years ago they were used by Chinese priests, who would question them against their stomachs and ask them questions, answered by dummies would answer in deep sepulchral tones.

The great oracles of Greece, historians Suspect, went in for the same sort of hocus-pocus with the moving of a gullible public. So did the high priests of the Pharaohs in the Louvre has a dummy of Rameses, the Egyptian god bulls along McCarthy lines, moveable jaw and all.

Almost anyone can learn "near" ventriloquism (where a dummy is used), the degree of success depending on one's natural aptitude. The illusion of throwing the voice from the lips of the dummy is largely normal speech, keeping it within the glottis. That vocal distortion which is in the throat is "in the grunt", is one of the things that makes audiences think it is the voice of Punch, and children and sad adults all over the world have been rolled in the sides by it for centuries.

For distant work — where the voice actually seems to come from the dummy — considerable study and practice is required. The basic sound for that is called the "drone" The farther it is made to seem back in the throat, the more distant it seems.

Radio is easier on the ventriloquist than stage work. When playing to a visible audience, he must restrict his mouthwork. He can't for example, keep his lips stiff with a line like: "Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers"; he avoids b's and p's as much as he can.

Charlie McCarthy's success because his master, a keen wit who has studied from kindergarten to university, had the foresight to subordinate his own personality to the blockhead. That was sound psychology and perfect press-agentry. Even in rehearsals Edgar Bergen maintains the pretence that his red-thatched dummy is an individual. Before Charlie is taken out of his valise, studio hands can hear the screaming profanity for release.

In one rehearsal Bergen called for the script the usually works without one—and Charlie a bit. The dummy refused. Bergen looked at the lines and prepared to go on. Suddenly the boy got to the door, Charlie McCarthy called after him sharply, "Bring that back. I want to see it myself." Without a second thought the human hurried back and Edgar Bergen waved him away. Charlie chuckled.

When W. C. Fields signed the contract for his radio appearances with Bergen, Charlie was looking on. The comedian, hat tilted over his glowering eyes, was chewing a sodden toothpick. "Ah, there, my diminutive little pal," said Fields, "I think you need a haircut." Charlie eyed him, leered. "Okay, Fatso," he said in his usual lisp, "but you could do with a new toothpick." Fields was so startled he almost swallowed the toothpick.

Whenever Bergen gets a telegram from his uncle, Charlie will try to horn in on it. "Let's have a look at it, Mac," he'll say. "It'll be for me." He always treats Bergen as something less than human, and Bergen encourages the idea.

Bergen accidentally discovered his gift for ventriloquism while talking with another boy when a dummy was near. He said seemed to have come from far down the hall. Even when Bergen was Fabbergasted he gave him an idea and he sent off for a correspondence course and book on ventriloquism. Like most professionals, he is self-taught. He has developed a "dumb" character. The head was made by a doll carver from a Charlie McCarthy cartoon of a Chicago newsboy he knew.

Charlie McCarthy's main stock in immaturity for his sheer impudence. He has the vital spark other ventriloquists lack because whom he is talking, he never pulls his punches. He is as bad egg—a little vulgarian, a brassy, blustering, cheeky blockhead—but we wouldn't have a splinter in his hollow head.

A Municipal Hansard

Municipal councils spend a great deal of time talking but now that they will accept the services of a stenographer taking down every word, they may express themselves a little more carefully and in plain English and possibly have some of them tongue-tied entirely.

The move of course is not aimed at the press but eliminating errors in quotation in the press.

It will pin councilmen down to what they have expressed in past council meetings will always be available and they will become inclined to leap nimbly from view to view between council meetings will be given more thought to the problems which come up before committing themselves.

Wife Tells Of Mate's Infidelity

Writes of Sufferings When Old Sweetie Lured Man

By VIRGINIA LEE

I FREQUENTLY have letters from young women who are very much in love with married men, as you know.

One peculiarity of most of these women is that they seem to think that the wife should step out of the picture because the husband no longer loves them—or thinks he doesn't. "Would you want to hold on to a man who no longer wanted you?" asked one girl of me.

Circumstances alter cases, of course, and we can lay down no rules that will cover every case, but after receiving this letter from a wife, I wondered if it wouldn't be a good idea to print at least part of it to show the wife's side to these young women who seem to think their own love is the all-important thing.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I must write, as I cannot keep back any longer, as I read about girls who write telling of a love for a married man. I am not in love with another man, only my husband, but he became enamored with an old sweetheart. Our home was happy until this started and God knows who was to blame, if it was he or she. One thing is certain they both have denied.

"My heart has ached constantly and dripped blood," as it were, for a number of years, ever since this started, and I still believe they are such other, but not to be together.

"Their hearts ache, too, because of the sin, but mine became of the first broken home. I have gone through hell. He was a loving, considerate husband until he played the fool; now his heart condemns him and he is miserable.

"At times I was so distracted I would almost lose all control of myself and an most uncontrollable urge would possess me and I would ... of taking my own and the children's lives, but thank God that he does, over-rule such thoughts. Such conduct as theirs is robbery, and it has caused suicide or murder what would they think?

A DROOPIFIED WIFE."

"I wish I could scream these words into the ears of those who are guilty of such conduct."

There you have the feelings of a wife whose husband had temporarily, at least, deserted her for another woman. Reading it may be some girl strength to take herself out of the path of a man who seems attracted to her and she to him. It is not pleasant to think of causing another woman such mental anguish is it?

'Round the Clock Dress Ideal For Business or Campus Wear

By LISBETH

THIS FROCK is perfect for office or campus wear. Its designer is Florence Roberts, a senior at Washington university, in East St. Louis, Ill.

It is a dress that would serve for any hour of the day, a real "round the clock" frock, and is made of navy sheer rayon crepe with a sharkskin jacket. It can be dressed up for informal dinner dates, or any other social afternoon function, by the addition of dress accessories.

More than a thousand college girls, representing one hundred and twenty-six colleges in all parts of the United States, entered a "design for living" contest sponsored jointly by a magazine and a large New York shop, to design a summer outfit for Emily Tucker, the smart and successful young business type of woman who is the heroine of a recent novel.

This dress is the winner. Ever since Miss Roberts, the designer, read this book she has hoped to go to work some day for a large New York shop, and she has had the ambition to become a dress designer at the back as she can remember. Miss Roberts' prize is a dress made from her design by a manufacturer.

Style Whimsies

Wine tones and copper rust are favorite accessory colors for wear with beige and French blues.

Among the summer dark skirts a popular model is of black rayon faille alpaca pleated all around, with a side-fastening closing.

The very newest wrinkle for beach and sports wear is the yellow burlap boxy jacket with fish buttons, lined with oil silk. The pastel burlap jacket is another version of this type of beach coat.

One of the more formal versions of short slacks come in printed silk crepe, matched by a multi-color floral scarf and topped by a rather long fly-front jacket in white spun rayon.

Tree guards for birds.
Tree guards for birds

BIRDS ADD much to our enjoyment of the out of doors both in the beauty of their appearance and their song. Aside from these reasons we should also encourage them to nest in the garden, for they are of great assistance in keeping annoying insect enemies.

When we place feeding stations and bird baths we invite the home grounds or garden, we should take steps to protect the birds as we are trying to attract.

Any type of tree guard should be placed high enough on a tree to prevent the cat from reaching the birds from jumping above it from the ground.

Respect of a Child Must Be Won

Useless to Attempt to Force Youngster to Honor Either Parent

By LISA GRENELLE

"YOU MUSTN'T speak that way to your mother."

"Show a little respect for your father."

"Remember all your mother has sacrificed for you."

"Remember, you owe everything to your father."

Those phrases sound familiar, don't they? And they all are very true and right. But children so seldom react, well to such reminders. Certainly they are very seldom think more of Father because Mother tells them they don't appreciate him sufficiently. If Mother has not earned and herself demanded the children's respect, Father's reproaches will not be likely to win it for her. Perhaps he can teach them to be courteous to her in his presence, but hardly more than that.

Stand on Own Feet

Each relationship must stand on its own feet, supported and nourished alone by the two individuals concerned. It shrives better without outside interference, even Father's or Mother's.

Of course, example helps, but not reproaches. The children, for instance, will be the more ready to honor and respect Mother and Father if the parents show each other respect for the sake of the children — not comrades each other's orders or criticize each other in front of the children. On the other hand, it does children no harm to hear Mother sing Father's praises, and vice versa.

Shouldn't Reproach

But for Mother's sake, Father must not reproach Mary for her disrespectful attitude toward her. Mother must do that herself. Mother must lead John to appreciate and understand Father's sacrifices, without reproaching him for ingratitude. You cannot force gratitude. Quite the contrary, when you try it is almost sure to have the opposite effect. If Father reproaches Mary for her attitude toward Mother, inwardly at least that antagonistic, disrespectful or ungrateful attitude will only increase.

We all instinctively resent interference in our personal relationships. Even a six-year-old does not like to be told "You must love Mother." Children are loyal though passionately loyal to Father, does not like to be ordered to be a grateful son.

Moon Madness

By PERNA KRICK

Only one jump from the sublime to the ridiculous—

Madia Thorne sat on the cement edge of the lily pond and trailed her fingers in the cool refreshing water. Madia was forty, her plump curves straightened by her fifteen inches of pleated chiffon petticoat, her lovely face shielded by her ten-year-old hat. Though passionately loyal to Father, does not like to be ordered to be a grateful son.

Madia Thorne sat on the cement edge of the lily pond and trailed her fingers in the cool refreshing water. Madia was forty, her plump curves straightened by her fifteen inches of pleated chiffon petticoat, her lovely face shielded by her ten-year-old hat.

But the night shadows were kind. An inquisitive goldfish warm near investigating the ripples her fingers made, but Madia didn't notice. Her eyes were glued to the starlit windows of the mansion through the trees. A masquerade dance was in full swing. The music wailed a low sweet cadence—a whispering sadness—there had been a time when Madia was young, but nine children and Jim Thorne—romance had all but perished in Madia's heart.

Madia and her husband, Jim Thorne, were caretakers at Kimberly Lodge and tonight youth and beauty would hold carnival; behind the silken masks chivalry would bloom again and gay Knights would woo their ladies fair—and tomorrow Madia would gather the dance programs as full—return a gray compact or two when she did the cleaning.

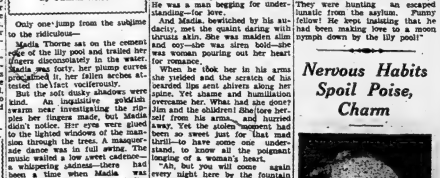
The low whine of a plaintive violin, the throbbing, poignant notes of a cello brought an ache, a trembling urge to be one of the gay throng; just for one night to dance in silver slippers and coiffure and laugh again in the thrilling passionate words of love.

Madia's lips writhed in a bitter smile at the incongruity and her glance strayed to her thick ankles and her clean starched apron.

With a sigh of patient resignation she started to rise when she called. Perhaps she had lingered too long now. They would be needing her to help with refreshments. But wait! One of the guests was approaching. A tall man in the disguise of a laborer or tramp, if you please. A picturesque individual in worn trousers and flapping shirt sleeves, swinging jauntily along the graveled walk. He wore no mask, had perhaps put it aside for this moment of supreme privacy, stood by the lily pool.

Madia never as if to leave, but the stranger spoke: "Don't go! Stay and talk to me. I'm so lonely and this night was made for lonesomeness." Then in a voice as subtly bewitching as the mellow strains of it, "It was made for love and loving."

With a courtly gesture, "Oh, fair lady, are you more nymph or creature of my own imagination?" Without more ado he flung himself on the grass—at Madia's feet, almost touching the hem of her voluminous skirts. His hair, whether real or artificial, was a maze of matted dark curls. Madia could not pull out her hand and touched their fascinating feet. Propped on an elbow, he nonchalantly lighted a cigarette and for a few feeble glow Madia could have sworn the twinkle of his cleft chin was real.



A dance personified. Would that she were so artistically impersonified! A moment for Cinderella and glamour and mystic moonbeams, and a fairy dance. Madia moved a trifle more in the shadow. Why shatter the illusion? Madia tipped the scales at two hundred and twenty-five.

But the stranger waited not for her answer; he continued more to himself than to her. At first he vaguely begged the privilege of kissing the hem of her frilly apron, then growing bolder he covered her hands with the fiery famished kisses of a man half-starved for love. On bended knee he struck the attitude of a knightly Romeo—it was court jester—he was king. He was a man begging for understanding—for love.

And Madia, bewitched by his audacity, met the quaint daring with shrunk skin. She was maiden slim and coy—she was siren bold—she was woman pouring out her heart for romance.

When he took her in his arms she yielded and the scarlet of his bearded lips sent shivers along her spine. Yet shame and humiliation overcame her. What had she done? Jim and the children! She tore herself from his arms, and fled away. Yet the stolen moment had been so sweet just for that mad thrill—to have some one understand, to know at last the poignant longing of a woman's heart.

"Ah, but you will come again tonight. Say you will, my sweet," he pleaded. And Madia knew that she would. Together they would sail enchanted seas and go gypsy voraging to castles in Spain.

Back in her little kitchen Madia had the fantastic sensation of a lovely dream, but her bright eyes and burning cheeks were only too real. Romance was not dead! Once again she had a lover, an adorable prince to worship her.

Madia busied herself 'til her husband came in.

"Well, how goes the party?" she asked casually.

"Oh, all right, I guess," lighting his pipe with weary indifference.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Sills of Chicago, Ill., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Boyd, 44 Catharine Street.

Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., has left for Dorchester, Mass., to attend the funeral of his uncle, Mr. Joseph Nicholson.

Mrs. J. Cooke and Douglas, of Lindsay, were in the city over the week-end the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Morden, Trent Road.

Mr. J. T. Barry, Ottawa, spent the week-end in the city.

Mrs. James Haggerty, 226 Church Street, left for Montreal on Saturday where she will be the guest of her daughter, Mrs. R. Drake.

Mrs. Leonard Masterson, 56 North Front Street, who underwent a serious operation recently at the Belleville General Hospital, is progressing favourably.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Scriven, 101 Dundas Street West, gave a delightful birthday party on Saturday and white with a large birthday cake. Many beautiful and useful presents were received from her little friends. After supper, games were played by the children, returning to their homes, tired but happy.

A news item in a Bermuda paper received by friends in this section announces that "Mr. and Mrs. William Collins Inkster of Toronto, Ontario, Canada, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mabel Alberta, to Donald Edward, eldest son of Captain E. L. Prewen, Royal Navy, and Mrs. Prewen, Piccadilly, London, England, marriage to take place in Canada early in September". Miss Inkster, Reg. N., has been following her profession for some time past in Bermuda and is a former Marmora resident.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Foolish Pride, the Road to Unhappiness

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm as independent as the devil, and I know it. But I've got to spill my troubles to someone, and you, being a disinterested party, can give me an unbiased answer. My wife and I are now separated. We had been married for two years, and each of us loved the other devotedly.

I know I'm the cause of the trouble; I insisted on living with my family after our marriage, which is an absolutely wrong arrangement. My wife has always had a very good job, and makes more money than the average woman. I have a good job too, and my reason for living with my family was so we could save. We made a good job of saving, but a poor job of marriage.

Finally, she had all she could stand, and left. I can't get used to living without her. I've seen her several times, but my pride prevents me from asking her to come back. I have felt that inasmuch as she left home, it was her place to return. Since she's gone, I have done quite a bit of drinking, and my work is beginning to show bad results of this.

Could you advise me how to go about asking her to come back? She wants to come back to me just as badly as I want her.

Heart-Broken Husband

Don't let another sun set before you go to your wife and ask her to return. You tell me you know the separation was your fault on insisting that she live with your family. So, stop walking around on stilts and ask your wife to came back to you.

A Lonely Girl

Dear Fairfax:

Last summer I had a splendid vacation in the "wide, open spaces". I was on a dude ranch, and did a good deal of horseback riding over that country. In our party was a young man from the East who became very attentive to me, and we drifted into a sort of engagement.

That is, if his breath became better, and he got a looked-for raise, we were to marry, and I was to keep on with my job as private secretary for two years. We lived in distant cities, and he wrote several times and asked that I "wait" for Christmas. He suggested a diamond ring, a bracelet and a very expensive pendant.

I told him to get me something less costly. Meantime, I began paying on a watch for him—a very expensive one—on the installment plan. Christmas I got nothing from him, not even a letter, and a few days later his wedding cards. And then rather a shabby little note saying that he had mistaken his feelings in regard to me, that he would always be my friend. As if anyone would want a creature like that for a friend.

His hash't even returned the watch.

Disillusioned

Thank goodness, you've shedding no tears over this very unpromising specimen. And it's worth more than a watch for a girl to have escaped the fate of being married to a human weakling.

He Seems to Love Them All

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There are two girls in my life, and as I love them both and could not decide between them, I began to go with a third girl so as to stave off committing myself to either of the former young ladies. Now I don't love this third girl, I'm only afraid of her. She is so masterful, and the first thing I know, she began telling her friends we were engaged.

I never proposed to her, though, of course. I kissed her a few times because she seemed to expect it. I know the former girls and their families are indignant with me. And I live in a small town, so the place seems getting to be a hot spot.

Tell my job is here—$25.00 a week as bookkeeper—and I hate to give it up as I may not be able to get as good a job anywhere else.

Repentent

Beyond pitying a general laugh over your susceptibility to the gentler sex, I see no reason to your quitting your job and the town where these three girls reside.

Take a vacation from all girls for the present, and tell the masterful young lady she is under a misapprehension regarding your engagement to her. Stick out your chin and face the music.

Wants Her Music Back

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When we were engaged, we bought sang in the same choir. We used to lend each other our music. Now that the engagement is broken, I need him back all of his songs, but he hasn't sent me back mine, and I really dont want to lose this music, as it is extremely valuable. My brother lives in the same town with him. Would it be all right for me to ask my brother to call for my music, as he has paid no attention to my written requests?

Choir Singer

When people disregard the conventions and decline to answer letters or send back property when requested, it seems to me that it is mistaken courtesy to let them get away with that sort of thing. Your brother could call on him and tactfully ask for the return of your music, saying he has evidently overlooked its return.

Marriages Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Sir year ago I came to this Pacific coast city from an Atlantic coast city. I met a man and married him in less than five months. I was away from my person. My husband had just received his final decree of divorce a few months before I met him. We thought it best to keep our affairs quietly a few of our friends present, and to send out announcements. When I ordered announcements, however, I was informed me that it was proper to have them read like this:

Mr. John Smith

and

Mrs Mary Smith

Announce their marriage

etc.

I have felt that my parents felt hurt about this. Was this form proper for me to use? If not, how should I thought It was, but now I "wonder".

Reader

Since this was your first marriage, and since your parents were living (even though they were not in the ceremony), it would have been best form for you to have sent your marriage announcements in their names. Did you explain these circumstances to the person whom you ordered from? If you did, he did not give you the best advice.

Now that you used is used correctly when the bride and groom are of mature years and there is no one else who could appropriately make this announcement.

Engagement Calls

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Is it correct to announce one's engagement before receiving the congratulations?

2—I am the oldest daughter in the family. Would it be proper for me to give the engagement luncheon?

Reader

1—Usually, if there is to be an engagement ring, the engagement is announced after the bride-to-be has received her ring. However if there has to be an engagement ring, or if the giving of the ring is necessarily to be postponed for some time and the young lady wishes to announce her engagement before she receives the ring, there isn't any real reason why she shouldn't do this. After all, the symbol of the engagement isn't so important as the fact of the engagement!

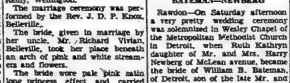
2—An engagement luncheon is usually given by the mother of the bride-elect. If, for any reason this is not possible, it would be proper for the eldest sister of the bride-elect to give the engagement luncheon.

Morning

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

I have received so much conflicting advice as to the length of time that a son-in-law must wear a black tie that I am appealing to you for the correct answer.

I can well understand that you may have received "conflicting advice" about the length of time that a son-in-law should wear a black tie after the death of his mother-in-law, for there is no definite rule about this. His wife's suggestion about this, and the opinion of the community in which they live would be the determining points. In general he would wear a black tie only a month or so.



NEXT to freshness, there's nothing so irresistible as a clear, fine skin . . . To keep your complexion glowingly young, "baby" it regularly with Lifebuoy's gentle, thorough lather. That same special purifying ingredient in the lather which stops "B.O." also makes Lifebuoy milder — "Patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women prove it's over 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps" and "baby soaps."

Warning: Warmer weather increases the danger of "B.O." So bathe regularly with Lifebuoy and be safe!

Weddings

Reilly—Hoff

On April 30th at 8 p.m. at the home of the bride the marriages was quietly solemnized of Norma Gertrude, daughter of Mrs. Kathleen Hoff, and the late Howard Hoff, Massanoga, to Hugh M. Reilly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Reilly, Wellington.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. D. P. Ker, Belleville.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Richard Virtan, Belleville, took her place beneath an arch of pink and white streamers and flowers.

The bride wore pale pink satin long princess effect and carried red carnations and fern. The bridesmaid, Miss Maude Abyea, cousin of the bride, wore pale green lace and carried pink roses.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Howard Reilly, Toronto. Miss Bessie Post played the wedding march and Miss Kathleen Cook, Toronto, was "O Promise Me" during the signing of the register.

A dainty lunch was served by relatives and friends of the bride, Miss Bessie Post, Miss Jean Wannamaker, Belleville, and Kathleen Cook, Toronto.

The bride wore for travelling a green suit with brown sable fur and brown accessories.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti for Toronto, Simcoe and Windsor.

Mr. and Mrs. Reilly will live at Simcoe.

(Picton and Trenton papers copy).

BATEMAN—NEWBERG

Rawdon—On Saturday afternoon a very pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized in Wesley Chapel of the Metropolitan Methodist Church, Toronto, when Hazel Kathryn daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Newberg of McLean avenue, became the bride of William B. Bateman, of Detroit, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Bateman of Spiritwood, Sask., with Rev. Charles B. Allen, officiating.

The bride's sister, Miss Edith Newberg, was her attendant and Mr. Lorne Bateman of Peterborough, assisted his brother.

After the ceremony about seventy guests were entertained at a reception and supper at the Bellcrest and later the happy couple left by air-plane for a honeymoon in Chicago on their return they will reside on McLean avenue, Detroit.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Newberg, grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Newberg and son, James, all of Manitoba, Penbrigan; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Larson and Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson and son, Clarence, Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Postlewait, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Murray of Oak Park, Illinois, Mr. Harry Bateman and Mrs. Hiram Mumby of Springbrook, brother and sister of the groom.

CHANGING HUE OF HAIR

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

SINCE THE dawn of civilization women have been dyeing their hair. Some dyed it to get a more becoming color, others dyed it to hide gray or white hairs. In our grandmother's day women went right on dyeing their hair but it was a secret that they guarded with their reputations. To accuse a Victorian lady of having dyed her hair was the ultimate insult. Modern women are no exception, but they have lost that false pride that made hair coloring such a guilty secret.

Ginger Rogers

Has lovely natural red hair.

We come right out in the open and talk about dyeing our hair just as we talk about getting a different colored hat.

To dye or not to dye is, of course, a question that you have to settle for yourself. But this department has compiled some information on hair dyes which we thought might be of interest to those of you who are considering a color change for your crowning glory.

There are at present on the market over 300 hair dyes or various kinds. All hair dyes are grouped under some one of these four general classifications: Vegetable colorings; metallic preparations; compound dye stuffs and synthetic, organic compounds.

Vegetable colorings are: Camomile; plain henna; indigo; logwood; sage; and nut extracts such as walnut juices.

The metallic preparations are: Lead dyes; silver dyes; copper dyes, some containing iron; and nickel dyes.

Compound dye stuffs consist of vegetable products which usually contain copper and iron salts or both.

The synthetic organic compounds are all aniline derivatives.

Take Dye Test

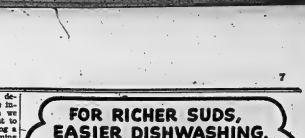
There is one important fact to bear in mind before having your hair dyed. Be sure to ask your hairdresser to give you a preliminary test. This does not mean that the dye themselves are not pure. It simply will show whether you are allergic to the particular dye. If you find that you are allergic to a certain type of dye, then take the test with another dye. In this way you will find one that is suited to the chemistry of your body.

The predisposition tst is usually given in this way. The operator puts some of the dye on the underside of your upper arm, covering a space about the size of a quarter. When it has dried she will cover it with colodion. Leave this on your arm for 24 hours. If in that length of time there is no redness, or rash, you can safely use the dye on your hair.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

"I am very fond of a certain brand of perfume, but whenever I put it on my clothes it stains them. Naturally, these round perfume stains look most unpleasant.—so I was wondering if you could suggest a stainless perfume for my use. Because I'd rather give up my favorite than continue to stain my clothes. LUCILLE."

There are a good many stainless perfumes on the market at present, and all you need do is to inquire at a good shop. However, perhaps you should not be spilled in dabs to frocks, if a subtle effect is desired.



Fabrics, you know, have scents of their own, and when you wet them with perfume, the two odors intermingle, and the final result might be anything but pleasing. Apply perfume always to your skin. The warmth of your skin will hasten the evaporation of the alcohol in the perfume, and bring out the rich, fragrant sweetness of its precious oils.

Just about the smartest hat of the month is a flat, medium-brimmed white toyo sailor with band and enormous bow of shiny waxed black satin ribbon. The bow loops come to the brim edge.

Looking ahead to warm days in town, one girl has ordered a grand tailored dress and basero of dark blue linen. The high cut suspender skirt has a wide belt encircled in red at the white daisies and the tucked white blouse has blue daisy buttons.

It is impossible to have too much color this season, especially for tweeds. A lovely suit has the fitted jacket in light green, with a check in violet and deep pink, the skirt in plain green. The suit is worn with a violet sweater, gloves, pocketbook, with hat and shoes in deeper green.

PICNIC TIME IS HERE, NEW SANDWICHES TIMELY

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

PICNIC LUNCH

Sandwiches Pickles

Fruit Cake

Coffee in Thermos

Cold Water or Fruit Juice

Now is the time of picnics. I like to eat out of doors, all year around, except, maybe, in a blizzard, or when the thermometer hits around zero. But now is the accepted time of picnics, so it is timely to give you a few not too usual sandwich recipes. Maybe you have found, as I have, that if you put the cream and sugar into the coffee before you fill the thermos bottle, it does not taste as good, but maybe you and yours prefer your coffee black, anyhow. But I don't, and I take cream to a picnic in a little glass j.r with a light screw top, and wrap it in a cloth along out of cold weather and with several folds of paper on the outside of that. Lump sugar always goes in one bundled for the picnic lunch. Of course, if you make a fire and boil or percolate your coffee over it, you don't need this suggestion. This picnic however, is the my lunch this noon, in a place where you can't build a fire and cook, but can get out of doors and eat a ready made lunch.

Today's Recipes

SAVORY SANDWICH FILLING —One pound American cheese, one-fourth pound beef, one can of condensed tomato soup. Run cheese and beef through the chopper then moisten with soup. This filling keeps moist and fresh if stored in refrigerator.

HEARTY SANDWICHES—Onehalf pound boiled ham, three hard boiled eggs, one stalk celery, one green pepper, one cream cheese. Grind altogether and spread on white or rye bread.

SARDINE SANDWICHES — One can sardines, juice of one lemon, one teaspoon melted butter, pepper, French mustard. Drain and skin fish and rub into paste, working the teaspoon melted butter in gradually. Add lemon juice and pepper and mustard to taste. Butter thin slices of bread and spread.

COLD MEAT SANDWICHES — One cup cheese, cream, salt, canned tomatoes, paprika. Mash cheese and moisten with cream. Season with salt and paprika. Work until smooth, then add one-fourth the quantity of canned pimentoes, finely chopped. Spread mixture between thin slices of bread. Cut in any shape desired.

HERMITS — One and one-half cups brown sugar, one-half cup butter, two eggs, three tablespoons sour milk, three cups flour, one teaspoon soda, one cup currants, one cup raisins, three-fourths cup nut meats, one tablespoon cinnamon and a little nutmeg. Drop on pan or cookie sheet and bake in 350-degree oven.

FACTS AND FANCIES

New for Sunday Breakfast

Squeeze a large, juicy grapefruit on a reamer, as you do oranges. Pour the juice in the ice-cube tray of the electric refrigerator and freeze. Then on Sunday morning when you squeeze the morning orange juice, remove the grapefruit juice cubes from the tray and drop them in the glasses of orange juice!

Bran Muffins

Three tablespoons shortening, one-fourth cup sugar, one egg, one and one-half cups milk, one cup bran, three-fourths cup corn meal, one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon salt, four and one-half teaspoons baking powder. Cream shortening and sugar thoroughly; add egg, beat until creamy. Add milk, bran and corn meal. Let soak until most of the moisture is taken up. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together; add to first mixture, stirring only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. This makes 14 muffins (two and one-half inches in diameter) or 12 muffins (three inches in diameter).

Heart Shaped Topping

Cut out heart-shaped biscuit or pie dough and use it to top creamed or scalloped mixtures. Bake until the hearts are brown.

For Place Cards

Buy plain white place cards of the folded type and put a picture in the upper right hand corner, using a pair of scissors. Into this put tiny clusters of freshly-picked violets, and the effect will be very pretty. Fruit blossoms or any small flower may be used and the color of the place cards varied. Insert flowers only a few minutes before guests arrive.

PRACTICAL AND PRETTY is the dress with its own full length coat, since both can appear alone, together, or with other garments. Such an ensemble has a silk crepe dress in a white and blue peacock design, the full length coat with tuxedo revers being of peacock blue woollen.

Don't Keep on Having Constipation!

If constipation's got you down—so you feel heavy, tired and dopey—it's time you did something about it. And something more than taking a physic from stock gets at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the sort of things most people do, the chances are you eat a very refined food—something concentrated—with not enough bulk in it to form a soft "mush" that carries food along. Lack of a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "mushy" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, eat crisp, crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the mineral iron and vitamin B.

Woman Says Feminine Influence Not Fully Used Except for Peace

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

MISS RUTH F. WOODSMALL has spent the greater part of the last three years in Geneva, Switzerland, as general secretary of the world's council of the Young Women's Christian Association.

She is now in the United States attending various meetings of her organization.

Miss Woodsmall thinks that despite their many years of freedom and opportunity in democratic countries, women have not succeeded in attaining that rise of their tremendous power in political economic and social lines. Only in the realm of peace, she avers, do women, at least on the shores of the Atlantic, live up to their potentialities.

Miss Woodsmall pays unhesitating tribute to the contribution which women are making to peace question by approaching this problem from the realistic and factual as well as the spiritual point of view.

"In almost every country of the world women are more conscious than ever that war is a twentieth century problem about which they can do something," she says.

"Peace is the focus of interest in practically all of their organized groups and in the graver problem of our time, they are ready to dedicate their full and creative effort. The power of women for world peace is a constantly rising tide."

Ruth F. Woodsmall

The Health Of Europe Improves

Even in Spain No Epidemics Have Appeared

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE JUST been hearing a report from a doctor who has spent some time in Europe studying various aspects of health conditions there. The most interesting aspect of this report has to do with the health situation in Madrid.

No epidemics have appeared in the government area of Spain since the beginning of the war. No smallpox and few cases of typhoid fever and dysentery have been seen. Quite generally the state of health has been in no wise affected.

The Spanish practice what might be called the French type of medicine, which has always insisted upon proper immunization. Among other things, the French have taught the Spanish government has been that gas gangrene, which was a great problem and a fatal in our soldiers during the World war, is now successfully treated by the use of serum, with recoveries in 75 per cent of cases.

In England and in Holland, a notable thing is the improvement in housing in the slums. In London the newly built workingmen's quarters consist of splendidly constructed and planned houses. A chief feature of it is that they are only partially occupied. The people of Whitechapel spear to like dark and crowded quarters, with four or five in one room, and frequently return from the new buildings to their old tenements. Obviously, not only new buildings, but also education in sanitary living are necessary before these ventures will be a success.

Holland and Switzerland are far ahead of the remainder of the world in the success of their new workingmen's homes, as well as in the construction of public hospitals and hospital shools for tuberculosis children. In Switzerland the hospitals are placed in the midst of great meadows, and every room has an outlook on trees and gardens surrounding the buildings.

Interesting Development

An interesting development in Switzerland concerning the use of a dry fuel product called "meta". It is put up in tablet form and represents in kind solid alcohol, which is a convenient generator of heat. It is, however, a poison, and since the tablets look like candy a number of cases of poisoning in children occurred. In order to prevent these occurrences, some inert repellents were mixed with the meta. The moment the child brings the whitish disc to his mouth with the idea that it is a nice piece of candy, the disagreeable odor which emanates from it prevents him from eating it.,

Yawkey Finally Hits Jackpot As Boston Red Sox March To Top of American Loop

Owner Has Spent a Million Trying to Collect a Team

GROVE GOING GOOD

"Lefty" Has Won Six Straight Games This Season

(By Sid Feder)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It was a long time coming, but the way things are moving now, it begins to look as though Tom Yawkey has finally hit the jackpot after tossing around a million into his Boston Red Sox.

Heading westward for their first swing 'round the circuit, the team Yawkey put together by turning over huge wads of cash to Connie Mack and various other ivory dealers, and there, are his first place in the American League and sporting an eight-game winning streak.

So far this Spring, everything Yawkey touched, even the last several seasons is turning to gold all at once. Everyone's doing his part in the drive. Five of the regulars are hitting better than .300; the pitching is clicking.

Foxx and Grove in Stride

But you don't have to go far to find the chief factors in the recent successes. They lie in the aging but still agile left arm known as Robert Moses Grove, and the long-range cannon known as James Emory Foxx, both graduates of the University of Mack (Shibe Park, Philadelphia).

Take Lefty, for instance. He was 38 last March. But he's still the greatest southpaw slower this generation has produced. He hasn't lost speed any more, but he's pitching with his stuff and his brains and is the No. 1 American League flinger with an undefeated run of six straight victories. He chalked up No. 6 yesterday by a 4-3 margin over Washington Senators, and is well on the road to his most successful campaign since his 31-game championship year back in 1933.

Foxx Hitting Hard

Then there's Foxx. What he's done to the American League pitchers this season is a caution. To date, he's hitting a mere .364, is the top League's leading home run hitter with eight round-trip wallops, But the most amazing product of his pounding is the fact that he's driven in 39 runs over in 22 games, nearly twice as many as anyone else in either league. If he could keep up his present rate, he'd have batted about 280 areas by the end of the season; and the major league record is only 190).

All in all, with champion New York Yankees, Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians showing signs of monkey-wrenches-in-the-machinery, the diamond studded floor may wind up as the surprise package of the year.

Through yesterday's defeat, the Senators dropped to fourth place in the league standings, and the Yankees and Indians, whose games with Philadelphia and Chicago were rained out, advanced to a tie for second. In the only other American league game, Oral Hildebrand allowed two hits for five innings and St. Louis Browns beat the Tigers 4-1 in a tilt cut short by rain.

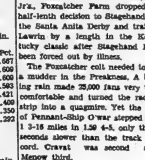
DAUBER EASILY WINS PREAKNESS

Comes From Last Place to Win Rich Three-Year-Old Stake

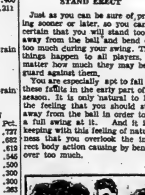


(By Orlo Robertson, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, May 16 (AP)—Lawrin Stagehand and Dauber — there's the big three of the three-year-old turf division in the United States.

Lawrin won the Kentucky Derby. Stagehand came through in the Santa Anita Derby Handicap, and last Saturday Dauber romped home in front of a big crowd in 1:49 2-5 over the muddy Preakness—richest race of the year exclusively for three-olds.

Dauber has bowed to both of his rivals but off his performance in the Preakness he appears worthy of giving them a race when they hook up again, probably in Arlington Park classic in July. The blaze-faced colt, owned by Mrs. Dupont Jrs., Foxcatcher Farm dropped a half-length decision to Stagehand in the Santa Anita Derby and trailed Lawrin by a length in the Kentucky classic after Stagehand had been forced out by illness.



The Dauber colt needed to be a mudder in the Preakness. A biting rain made 26,000 fans very uncomfortable and turned the racing strip into a quagmire. Yet the son of Pennant-Ship O'war stepped the 1 3-16 miles in 1.30 4-5, only three seconds slower than the track record. Cravat was second and Menow third.

STAND ERECT

Just as you can be sure of pressing sooner or later, so you can be certain that you will stand up far away from the ball and bend over too much during your swing. These things happen to all players, no matter how much they may be on hand against them.

You are especially apt to fall into these faults in the early part of the season. It is only natural to have the feeling that you should stand away from the ball in order to get a full swing at it. And it is in keeping with that feeling of naturalness that you overlook the incorrect body action causing by bending over too much.

Number 18

An excessive forward bend does away with any chance of producing the proper body and leg action. Without these things there can be no co-ordination between your body and hands, and without this co-ordination you are better off right away from the golf course. It is well worth while setting aside your pride and objections to standing closer to the ball.

If you find difficulty doing this during a game, then work it out on the practice ground, but in one place or the other make sure that you stand close enough to the ball so that you are decidedly upright in your posture. This upright posture encourages the proper body action which in turn will lead to the much desired co-ordination between body and hands.

TWIN BILL WON BY THE LEAFS

Defeat Baltimore in Weekend Schedule Held up by Rain

By the Associated Press

Within the next few days, Rochester fans may be able to decide whether the Red Wings will be among the real contenders in the International League, when and if St. Louis Cardinals provide them a little more assistance.

The Red Wings face Newark Bears in a series which opens today weather permitting. And like any other club that plays the Bears, they have to show whether they're good enough to perform in the same league.

Rochester's last pair of games against Jersey City Giants was rained out yesterday along with the rest of the league program, but during last week's brief action the Wings won four out of five games and once were as high as four in front.

Today the Red Wings are sixth, but only two games behind the second-place Buffalo Bisons. If they can make any sort of showing against the Bears, now 4 1-2 games ahead of the third field, it should move them up a notch or two in the standings, as well as show they are due to be found in the pennant chase. They lost three out of four when they played Newark a couple of weeks ago.

Toronto Maple Leafs took both ends of a double-header from Baltimore Saturday, 12-6 and 7-5 while Montreal was idle. Jersey City and Jersey City defeated Rochester 5-3. Buffalo lost 8-6 to Syracuse.

EDMONTON GRADS STILL CHAMPIONS

Expect One More Challenge This Year With Cleveland

Edmonton, May 16—(CP)—Victors in three straight games over Chicago All-Stars in their first defence this year of the Underwood Women's International Basketball Trophy, Edmonton's famous Grads expect only one more immediate challenge —from Cleveland Flites Ford.

Grads swept the Chicago series with a 40-31 victory Saturday night before a crowd of 3,500. Coach Percy Page's great team took the first two games of the best-of-five series 40-35 and 43-26.

After the final win Page announced the Cleveland series would open here May 24 and that no further challenges were in prospect.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Grossinger's Lake, N.Y., May 16 —(AP)—This is one of those old days, friendly training camps.

The beautiful spot where Barney Ross is preparing for Henry Armstrong reminds you of Loch Sheldrake, near here where Jimmy Braddock got ready to win the title from Baer; of Grand Beach, Mich., where Jim prepared for his losing battle with the Louis and of Pompton Lakes where Jack Dempsey had a regular at old Tom Luther's place.

Barney Ross laughs off reports from Chicago that he'll quit after this bout, win, lose or draw.

"I'm just beginning to make real money," he says . . . First thing after knocking out Mann, Tony Galento visited Jim Braddock's place . . . A waiter passed around a tray of beer . . . Our hero took two and downed them in four gulps.

Ross was cheered when Jimmy (Bow-Tie) Bronson flatly predicted he would knock out Armstrong May 26 . . . Bronson, one of boxing's shrewdest judges of condition, visited camp yesterday, and after watching Barney step through six fast rounds with three sparring partners he went right out to the end of the limb for the champion.

"He's the smartest fighter in the world today," declared," said Bronson.

"Unquestionably he's the sharpest hitter in his division and proves his smartness in his anticipation of the other fellow's moves . . . And he's tops in pacing his opponent in a disadvantageous position . . . I'll say for the record that Ross will knock Armstrong out and that he'll do it with his right uppercut . . . Here's hope of a champion today than ever before."

KATAN TO MEET MCDOUGALL HERE

First of Proposed Elimination Bouts For Canadian Crown

Although Yvonne Robert, the French Canadian wrestler, is generally recognized champion wrestler of Canada, John Katan, the former tinbender from Winnipeg and Scotty McDougall, the veteran Scotchman from Goderich, both lay claim to the Canadian honors of maidom. In order to clarify the Canadian wrestling tangle, however, wrestling promoters all over the Dominion are considering an elimination contest to actually determine the rightful holder of this important sports crown.

One of the first moves towards the proposed elimination came when it was announced today that John Katan, the serious-faced Winnipeg grappler and former champion, had been signed by Bellerville promoters to meet McDougall in the main bout for Wednesday night's wrestling show at the Hume Arena. The wrestling qualities of Katan and McDougall are somewhat similar, modern grappling of the pachyderm category has been replaced by more of the rough and rugged type, but McDougall's ability to absorb punishment perhaps makes him a worthy opponent for the ex-champion.

Wednesday night's Katan-McDougall bout is one of the most important ever held in Belleville as the winner will be closely watched and will ultimately get a better position at the forthcoming Canadian wrestling eliminations to determine the championship. The outstanding supporting bouts will make a splendid program, that should prove the most popular ever appearing in Belleville.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

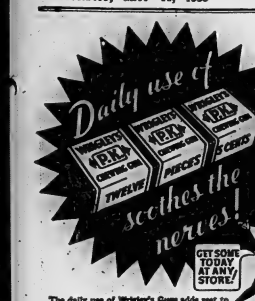
Saturday will see the seventy-ninth running of the King's Plate. It is the oldest horse race fixture of its kind to be run continuously on this continent and that includes the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. The King's or Queen's Plate as it originally was called, was not always run in Toronto. Its first four runnings were, at Carleton, Ont., now West Toronto. Local sport fans may be surprised to know the Queen's Plate, as it was known at that time, was once held in Pickon, that being in 1879 and upon the opening of a new driving park and race track in the Prince Edward County town. Moss Rose won the plate that year. The Plate was also run at Whitby in 1870 and at Kingston in 1871. Since 1883, however, the Plate has been continuously run at the Toronto Woodbine track.

The King's Plate is one mile and a furlong for three and four year olds foaled, trained and raised in the Province of Ontario, and it carries added moneys besides the $2 guineas and the King's Plate Purse, $1,000 by the King Majesty of the British Empire. This Royal donation was first made by Queen Victoria in 1859 upon application of the Toronto Turf Club, through Sir Edmund Head, then Governor-General. For four years, 1860-1863, the race was run at Carleton, Ont., and subsequently at Kingston, Hamilton, at Guelph, Ottawa, London, Brantford, St. Catharines, Whitby Kingston, Barrie, Woodstock, Preston and Picton, but since 1883 it has been run on Toronto under the auspices of the Ontario Jockey Club.

Former Governor-General of Canada, the Earl of Minto, stated publicly once: Nothing in my opinion, has done more good for horse breeding in Canada than the King's Plate run at Toronto. This race has steadily grown in importance and has been run annually without interruption since its inception in 1860 and is the oldest established fixture run continuously in North America. In 1887 the distance which had previously been one and a half miles, was reduced to one mile and a quarter, but in 1924 it was again reduced to its present distance of a mile and a furlong. Last year H. D. Hatch's Goldtop won the honours. This year a total of 35 thoroughbreds are eligible for the Plate. The track record for the Plate under present running distance is held by R. S. McLaughlin's Horometer, running the distance in 1.54 1-5 in 1934.

Getting back to the Queen's Plate race held in Pickon in 1879. A tragic blight was cast over the running of the Plate that year as early on the morning of May 11th 1879 fire broke out in a stable housing a number of the entries, the blaze advancing with such rapidity that firemen were unable to successfully check the raging inferno with the deadly results that seven valuable horses were destroyed along with the buildings. Although records are not available it is believed only seven horses started in the Queen's Plate that year Moss Rose winning. One of the largest crowds of sports-loving persons in the history of Toronto and from all parts of the Province were on hand to witness the running and also the opening of the new Prince Driving Park.

Experts today are of the opinion that the seventy-ninth running of the King's Plate this year will be the most open race ever held, as there are many outstanding horses entered. Incidentally we understand H. C. Hatch has a personal wager of $4,000.00 with W. P. Morrisey, Hatch betting his entry Sefem will lead Morrissey's Bunny Lawless in a horse for horse bet, regardless as to their finishing positions. Other horses to be factored for the big prize are Isworth, Carsook, Aldwych, who ran last year, Cabin Gal, Skycat, Red Pirate, Grand Dame and Skyrce. Step up gentlemen and pick a winner out of this bunch of Canadian breds. A long shot should be Cabin Gal.



The race is open to fillies, entire colts and geldings, although fillies always like the strong part first, but fillies to have won that event include Sally Paller (1923), Sally Salisbury (1927), Young Kitty (1928), South Shore (1932), Ladder of Light (1933), Belle Maione (1917), Shimonese (1909), Lydelle (1926), Better Luck (1899), Ron Ice (1898), Bonnisfield (1895).

Dauber, the horse to finish a length behind in the Kentucky Derby a week prior, proved a superior muddler, as well as a great piece of racing luck for the Preakness at Pimlico on Saturday, notwithstanding opposition for the mud with a thrilling finish to win by seven lengths after being in seventh place the first turn. Lawrin, Cravat, a 60 to 1 shot and rank outsider, Stagehand second and third while favorites were not even placed.

Tom Yawkey's millions expended on the Boston Red Sox in previous years appear to be paying dividends today. The Red Sox are getting a swell return on money in baseball, good pitching and hitting at the same time, a combination hard to beat. Old Lefty Grove hurled his sixth victory of the season for the Red Sox yesterday, elevating the Bean Town squad to the leadership of the A.L.

HODGE PODGE: Congratulations to Sports Editor Bill Walshe of Kingston, his sailing efforts having resulted in the Canadian-Canoe Association championships to be held in Kingston this year.....Jack Dempsey picks Barney Ross to beat Henry Armstrong for the welterweight title on the 22th, the Manhattan Beach boy in perfect condition.....Hockey is all over for the current year—the Detroit Red Wings and Les Canadiens being on the ice rink scramble immediately after a successful barnstorming series over the pond . . . Edmonton Grads, Underwood International champion cagers, were forced to come from behind before repelling their Chicago adversaries, Saturday.

Here the latch string is out . . . newspapermen, their telegraphers and almost everyone else is free to come and go, any time . . . Quite different from Schmeling camps where Max buries himself far away from the centre of things except for the ten minutes he grants the press after each workout.

The daily use of Wrigley's Gums adds zest to your work and play, because it refreshes and keeps your up-wires helps guard your health. Delicious, tasteful flavors. Keep a package in your pocket or purse just for that tired moment. Keep some in the home too—the children love it.

DANGER IN THE MIST

By

Martha King Davis

"I've always driven cars. Say—Mr. Truckman! Why not take all the road and why yourself? Judy —did you ever dance a 'Virginia Reel' or a 'Paul Jones.'"

"No."

"Pity—gee—you're in for some time! I just wonder if you're going to like it."

He needn't have worried!

We drove into the quiet little village straight to the Town Hall. Cars of all makes and description lined the curb. Wagons, too—drawn by many farm horses.

A group of men stood visiting together about the entrance. Several called out a greeting to Mac.

I found a warmer hall with small rooms on each side. In one of them I deposited my coat, but there was no mirror to be found. A group of girls chatting in one corner, were dependent upon each other's opinion as to personal appearance. Your slip hangs badly, Tess." "I'm there with powder on my nose Maude—you look swell."

I found Mac waiting for me when we went into the main room. Settees and chairs on either side, were occupied by the guests. Down at the end of the room was a sort of platform arranged with green boughs and shrubs and garden flowers.

I'd never felt more embarrassed in my life as Mac and I walked the length of the room, for conversation on all sides abruptly ceased, and our clicking heels made the only sound.

A gray-haired man held out his hand—"Hello, Mac—my boy! Glad to see you."

"Hello, Mr. Ramsey. How-do-do-do, Mrs. Ramsey? This is Miss Judith Marsden. Are you well, sir? I want you to meet Judy Marsden."

Yes, she was pretty. She was more than pretty—she was lovely, and I just hated the way she clung to Mac's arm and looked up at him.

They were certainly nice to me. Of course—they began talking at once about the case. "Aren't you the pair of huckies?" sighed Jane Ramsey. "Just think of being handin-glove with murderers!"

"If you don't mind—we're off the subject tonight," said Mac. "Even murders get rather boresome. We'd log rather talk the mysteries of the deep with Captain Jonathan, or simply become wise with Aunt Cynthy. Ah—here's the band! This will be a real old-fashioned walk, Judy. Game?"

There was no formality from then on. Everybody mingled with everybody—without introduction, and oh, wasn't it fun!

The "band" consisted of the village musicians, and boy! if they just couldn't make your toes tingle to "Turkey in the Straw" and "Money-Musk."

I was initiated into the "Virginia Reel"—and that dance which began so sedately, an ends in such a riotous romp. I was caught up by old Uncle Ephaldus Jones, and away in the air until my head spun round and round like dizzy dishes. I laughed until I ached. I had all sorts of partners ranging in age from twelve to seventy.

The Ramseys were as gay as their guests, even Janet—trying her best to divide her favors impartially. But she danced more with Mac than with any one else, and when I saw them deal out and not come back for two whole dances, I nearly passed out with jealousy.

It was then that Mrs. Ramsey came to me and suggested that—"we sit out one."

I expect, if I'd really been a maid, I might have been terribly flattered by Mrs. Richard Ramsey. But she was a type I knew very, very well; in fact she wasn't very different from Lucile in Marsden! A bit formal and conventional and reserved on the outside, but underneath—the warmest heart in all the world.

"Mac said—" I waited to ask you. I know you'll tell me the truth—is there any real danger for Mr. Caldwell?"

"Danger mean—is Mac Stewart in danger?"

She hesitated a moment. "We have known Mac—a long time—we are all fond of him. I would be worried—"

"Of course, Mrs. Ramsey—we do not know. There have been many strange, unaccountable happenings."

"Yes—I know a little—but I feel there's a great deal I do not know. Mac makes so light of it. That's often the case—when you young people make it a point to treat something very lightly, we older people should begin to investigate."

That's what worried me, I caught my breath.

Mrs. Ramsey smiled. "You have not always been a maid, have you, Judy?"

"Well—no—not always," I stammered.

"Gone—on a Western trip—I met a Mrs. Lucius Marsden, of Philadelphia—a very charming woman."

No use! I felt her looking right straight through me—back to my Aunt Emma ancestors.

"She told me of her daughter—Judith, just entering—Wellesley—I think."

"Oh—Mrs. Ramsey—you won't tell Mac, will you?"

"Why?"

"Because—if he knew I wasn't really a maid—you see—" I became most fearfully involved.

"Yes—I see. But I don't see why your mother is letting you do this —stay on—"

I had to tell her everything.

"You young people!" she sighed. "You'll try—anything!" And then she said—"Do you realize that Mac is very much in love with you, my dear?"

I expect that my eyes told her a lot more than my murmured—"I'm a bit crazy about him."

"But—your family—"

I straightened. "If my family need a harder rap than they're getting right now to teach them manners, then they are a pretty dumb lot."

She patted her hand over mine with a little nod of approval.

Mac and Janet came across the room, and I saw—Janet making a couple, but when Mac looked at me I knew her line was still dancing.

Mrs. Ramsey asked him some thing about refreshments, and they went away, and two lads made a scoop down on Janet and me.

We had sandwiches and coffee and cake and ice-cream, and somebody proposed a toast to Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey and everybody cheered, and the band played—"For he's a jolly good fellow," which we all joined in the sing of our lungs.

"You liked it, didn't you, Judy?" We were driving home. "Umm—I simply adored it. But I didn't like one thing, mister—I didn't like the way Miss Janet Ramsey worked her stuff!"

"Janet? Silly—she's just a kid. Say—were you really jealous of Janet Ramsey?"

"Green." And I could not then quite understand his burst of laughter.

A bit later, he asked me about Mrs. Ramsey. "You had a long talk with her, didn't you?"

Of course, I could not tell him the details of that conversation. "She's awfully nice, Mac, and she seems to think a lot of you."

"They've all been pretty nice to me," there was a hint of bashfulness in his deep voice. "Especially—Mr. Ramsey. Me—they don't make you any finer than Mr. Richard Ramsey."

We reached home a little before twelve. Mrs. Caldwell and Peter Alcott came out to the kitchen to meet us. They were interested in our evening and we told them all about it.

Mrs. Caldwell's eyes clouded. "It's genuine things like that which make life worth while, Oh—if only—sometime—" Peter slipped his arm around her.

"Has everything been serene around here?" questioned Mac.

"For all we know," answered Peter. "We stayed over home—in the house. I thought it best. And we didn't even get back here by the path, but around the road. We—"

The kitchen door opened and Barry staggered in. There was blood streaming from a cut on his forehead.

CHAPTER 24

A Sleeping Tablet

Mac and Peter got him to a chair, and I rushed up to our bathroom for first-aid remedies.

"Most—got him—" said Barry, but we had not let him talk until we had fixed him up. The wound was not deep and after it had it cleansed and bandaged.

"Everything was O. K. the first part of the evening," he began. I kept a lookout on all the paths and around the outside of the buildings. Parker was inside, so I didn't have to fuss about that. He went off to his place at ten-thirty or so. I saw you, nodding at Peter, "and Mrs. Caldwell come in soon after eleven and I knew you were in the library. The lights were banned and gone to their rooms and their lights were out."

I went down the path to the boathouse and then I noticed there was a light in that room over your garage, Mr. Alcott."

"Peter," broke in Mrs. Caldwell, "there was no light there when we came in. You know we spoke of it because Eddy was not in the house."

"You're right," said Barry, "I saw it as soon as it appeared. I thought I'd go over, and perhaps I could just creep up the stairs. Your brother was talking to Peter and Mrs. Caldwell. I couldn't make out exactly what he said but it was about—fooling everybody—playing some game. I thought I'd know knew she wouldn't like it—mustn't let Norma know—or Peter. Peter is my friend."

"I strained my ears for that queer voice—but could not hear it—whispered or he did not answer. Then I heard a kind of mutter-ing and low laughter.

"Then I banged good and hard on the door—and I heard a chair fall. The sheriff will bawl me out for this—but I'll take it on the chin. I tried the knob, I found the door unlocked.

"It was too late. Eddy was alone, sitting on the floor playing with a revolver. He looked up and didn't tell me who he had been talking with, but I'm sure there was no one there. On the table was the remains of a good-sized meal—some fruit, bread and cheese and drinking."

"I couldn't get a thing out of Eddy. I went to the open window and I thought I heard some one moving cautiously on the ground below. I was out and down those stairs in a jiffy, but I couldn't find a thing. I looked all over the place—flashing my light everywhere.

"Then I started along the path up here to the house, when—all of a sudden I felt a hit me right on the beam! For a minute I was dazed, but I was conscious of a noise in the bushes. I got up—looked all over, but I found nothing."

We had all been holding breath-lessly on his every word.

Mrs. Caldwell broke the silence. "We will get Eddy to come here at once. He must tell everything he knows."

Peter and Mac started for the door. It was a long time to wait so far. As they stepped out, there came the sound of some one sobbing, and Eddy rushed in and threw himself at his sister's feet.

"He hurt me—he hurt me!" he cried. "My arm!"

Mac pulled off his sweater. There was a black bruise on his arm.

"Who hurt you, Eddie? You must tell Norma. Who hurt you?"

But she could get nothing from him. He just sobbed and cried and begged them to keep him from harm.

"There's no use fussing with him any more tonight," she said when she returned. "Tomorrow, when he is quieter, I'll see what I can do with him."

We might get Parker to go over that room for prints," suggested Barry.

But Mrs. Caldwell spoke quickly: "Oh—please—not tonight! Let's wait until Sheriff Wilson comes."

Soon after, Mrs. Caldwell and I went upstairs. We knew that the men would stay up until daylight.

On—if we only had stayed up with them!

"This is the end, Judy. It's just as I told you in the beginning. We're driving home to Boston at evening." Norma Caldwell sank into a chair with a sigh of utter depression.

I couldn't say anything. I brushed back my hair with my hand from her. It did seem—the end.

"And mother asked me never to let any harm come to him," her voice choked. "I have only one hope left. The sheriff will be just before he went away that Eddy was not out of it. I needn't give that another thought."

A whirled around. "Then it's true! Sheriff Wilson would never have said that unless he absolutely knew it to be a fact."

"That's just what Peter whispered to me. He told me to go to bed and to sleep and not worry."

"He's right. If I'd known the sheriff told you that—"

"But—tonight, Judy. Who is that man?"

"Sheriff Wilson knows, and Eddy will not be involved. Good heavens Norma!" for she had saked me to call her that, "I feel happy, and so should you."

"I was terribly relieved—until this last."

"Forget it! Everything will be cleared up when the sheriff Eddy back tomorrow."

She lifted her arms up over her head with a gesture of relief. "You're a blessed comfort, Judy. It's great having you here. Why didn't we think of it before? I suppose we ought to turn in. It's awfully late and Lydia will be routing you out early."

"She'd have a fit if she knew the 'maid' was sleeping between the best linen sheets," I giggled as I turned down the covers.

"Poor Lydia! Sometimes I feel rather sorry for her. She makes life so hard. Judy—does Mac suspect who you are?"

"Mercy—no!"

"You like him a lot, don't you?"

"Um-umph—more'n a lot."

"You don't know much about him!"

"No—and I don't care. He's Mac —and just a peach." Poor old Janet Ramsey threw out a line tonight."

Norma looked at me, a funny little twinkle came into her eyes. "You're sweet, Judy. I'm glad always be as happy as you do after—"

She lifted a small envelope from the table beside her bed. "I don't know as I need any more sleeping tablets tonight. With you here, I feel so safe. Still—I suppose I might take one. It will quiet my nerves. Mac and Barry take them." She went to the bathroom and came back with a glass of water and the tablet.

"I think I'll leave this light on, unless it disturbs you, Judy. I've always left it on since that time. Goodnight—room-mate."

"I lay wide awake. I had told Norma to forget it, but I could not forget. Mac and Barry were on the grounds keeping guard. At any moment, that maniac—failing in his first attack, might attempt another.

What the sheriff had told Norma was probably true. This man might be using Eddy, but no doubt Eddy knew little of what was going on. I'll must be a maniac—an insane person, as Peter had suggested.

I tried not to think of it, but to put my thoughts on the happy part of the evening. What fun it had been! I did like Janet Ramsey, Oh, dear—I rather wished I hadn't drunk two cups of coffee! Perhaps I should have taken one of Norma's sleeping tablets, after all.

I turned and looked over at her. She was lying very still and quiet. I sat up and leaned toward her bed.

She was lying on her side—facing me, and she was breathing in that short gasp-sobbing kind of sobs.

I cried: "Norma—Norma! Are you all right?" but she did not move.

I sprang out of bed and went over and put my hand on her shoulder. I could feel the open window shook her. Then I bent down and saw that her eyes were partly open and that her face had a strange bluish pallor.

Lonsdale

Lonsdale—The frequent showers of rain have been welcomed by the farmers as the seeding was badly in need of some rain.

A quilting and "pot-luck" dinner in connection with the W. A. social, was held at the home of Mrs. John McRae on Tuesday. There was a good attendance and the day was enjoyed by all.

The neighbors in this community regret very much the passing of Mrs. W. Waddingham, who has been a life long resident and a very prominent worker in church, missionary and society circles. A large funeral was attended in the home on Sunday afternoon. Much sympathy is extended to Mr. W. Waddingham and family.

Confirmation service was also attended in St. Jude's Church, at Kingsford, on Sunday afternoon when five new members were confirmed by the Bishop.

A few young people enjoyed a pleasans evening at the home of Mrs. D. J. McEleny on Wednesday.

Miss Angela Hays, who has been ill, is on the gain.

Mrs. M. McCullough has returned to her home after spending a couple of weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Leavens, Gilead, who has been ill.

Haggerty favored with a solo, "Harry of Argyle" and as an encore, "Dear Little Shamrock."

The ever popular massed team, Miss Irene and Harry Whyte, sang, "Sunny Tennessee," and as an encore, "Little Green Valley," with Harry playing the accompaniment on the guitar. Mrs. F. J. Mickle was called on for a reading, but instead, spoke a few words of appreciation after which Miss Lillian Artell and Mrs. Ken Holmes rendered a guitar selection and an encore. Mrs. Albert Howey favored with a solo, "Beautiful Dreamer" after which Gordon Pigden, editor and publisher of the Eldorado Echo, Y. P. newspaper, gave some interesting items from the local current gossip which was very much enjoyed.

Everyone was asked to join hands and sing "Auld Lang Syne," to close and "God Save the King." Closing with the Mizpah Benediction.

THE NEW Findlay

Like many another keen housewife, Mrs. Adams was quick to appreciate the perfect balance and controlled heat of this range. Designed to stand alone or be built into planned kitchens, it is the last word in electric range utility.

The elements are placed in the centre of the big table top, leaving a handy working space on either side. When in use the center section of the top folds back to form a splash-guard. The new Findlay Super-Speed elements are durable as stainless steel and fast as Science can make them.

A marvellous oven control regulates the heat in the big roomy oven. A pilot light in the radio-type dial tells you when the oven is ready to use.

Completely equipped with warming oven, two utility drawers, electric light, minute minder and condiment shakers. Two finishes, ivory or white, with a choice of red, green or black trim.

Available on Easy Terms—Ask for a Demonstration.

Food Worries Over for a Few Days

Two youngsters who know they may well eat, for a few days at least, while the rest of Cleveland and other cities in Ohio suffer the largest hunger crisis in years. The kiddies were pictured in their carriage which is laden with cabbages and potatoes and, wonder of wonders! Two pounds of butter. Over 20,000 Cleveland families are facing other large crises of ineligibility for federal WPA grants. Glass and automobile workers, recently laid off in Toledo, Dayton and Cohasset because of the slump in the auto industry face the same fate. Failure of the Ohio general assembly to make provisions for the unemployables, on relief is blamed for the pitiful situation.

WAKE UP LIKE A CAVE MAN

Feel Full of Life—No More Tired, Dull, Heavy Mornings

Keep your liver healthy and you'll feel good every morning. When you wake up feeling "rotten" your liver is out of order. Your liver clears the blood of poisons, separates the essential part of your food from the waste. Supplies energy for muscles, tissues and glands—gives out bile, the body's disinfectant, helps stomach, kidneys and intestines to work properly. A more liquid movement isn't enough. Drink—liver made from fruits and herbs, will strengthen and build up your liver like nothing else will. You'll be amazed how well you are every morning. Try Fruit-a-tives. All druggists.

SECOND SKELETON FOUND

St. Thomas, Ont., May 16 (CP)—A second skeleton was found on the Floyd Kipp farm in South Yarmouth and will probably lead to abandonment of the pit, where sand is dug for use in the mental hospital being built near there. Earlier a previous human skeleton was found with a horn affair that looked like a powder horn. Both skeletons are to be buried in a district cemetery. Coroner Dr. D. L. Ewin estimated that the bones of the first skeleton had been in the shallow grave for 75 years or more.

Lady Astor's Parties Influence World Politics?

Lady Astor, American-born member of parliamcny, has issued a denial to assertion by British Liberal, and Laborites that world affairs are obeing "settled" at Cliveden, the huge Astor estate on the upper Thames, to the detriment of the democratic nations. Lady Astor husband, Lord Astor, is chief owner of the London Times.

She favors conciliation with the German Nazis and supports the Franco cause in Spain. Lady Astor belongs to the English group which

Blossom Queen of Niagara Peninsula Crowned

Amid much pageantry Miss Florence Stevens, of Stoney Creek, Ont., was crowned Blossom Queen of the Niagara Peninsula at the blossom festival which was held in Grimsby.

Thirty Injured In Street Car Crash

Thirty persons were injured, some of them seriously, as a result of a collision between two Los Angeles street cars. The crash occurred when the "U" car, going west, was struck by the "J" car, going west. Windows of both street cars were smashed and the passengers tossed helplessly about until rescuers succeeded in extricating them.

Little Benny's Note Book

It was me's turn to have the bridge game this afternoon, and after school I saw the ladies in the front room and quick started to go out again, and ma came out in the hall saying, Benny, I want you to run upstairs and wash your hands and face and comb your hair and then come down and help Nora pass the tea and cakes.

Aw G, ma, why? I said. Every body's going to ask me how old I am and tell me how big I'm getting holey smokes, ma, it'll be terrors, I said, ma said, Now there's no use inventing obstacles, I've told you to do something and I want you to do it without any further ado, now get started.

Which I did feeling against it, and I washed my hands and face with the white soap and then I started to wash them all over again with ma's special pink soap, thinking, O well, I might as well take a long time and make a good job of it. And then I washed them once more with the white soap to take a little longer and make sure I wouldn't smell too loud of pink soap, and then I combed my hair careful, thinking I wonder if it would look better combed strate back for a change?

And I combed it that way to see, and it looked worse instead of better, so I did it the regular way again, and then I did it strate back once more just to make sure I wasn't mistaken which I wasn't, so I did it the regular way again, and then I blacked my shoes for good measure, and then I went downstairs slow and Nora was carrying a tray full of empty cups and things out of the front room, and just then ma came out in the hall and I said, G, ma, am I too late, I was extra careful getting washed and everything, so it took me longer, and ma said, no doubt no doubt.

Meaning she knew why.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford By Financial Service

MARKET COMMENT

Taking the attitude that this is no such thing as "normal conditions" for the stock market, Drury & Thompson point out that the investor or trader must also be alive to changing conditions in business which, sometimes come so rapidly nowadays. For example, there would seem to be little present inducement to buy the stock of a railroad or a trunway company, both issues being "over the hill" as far as future expansion is concerned and subject to increasing competition from the motor car, the truck and airplane. During the 1923-1937 bull market many were amazed at the steady advance in International Nickel, but the stock is now discounting the steadily increasing use of the company's product. As time goes on more industries will fall by the wayside and others will take their place. The saying that "eternal vigilance is the price of safety" applies particularly to the security market.

R. C. Forbes is Confident That an Improvement in Business is on the Way

Despite the current very unsatisfactory volume of business and the continued failure of President Roosevelt to restore confidence, R. C. Forbes, the well known American financial writer, is hopeful that the next decisive movement, both in securities and in industry, will be upward. "Sell now" may soon come before the Fall.

United States Has Huge Investments in Canada

The total investments of the United States in Central and South American countries approach $4,-000,000,000, including $753,000,000 in Argentina $682,000,000 in Chile, $633,000,000 in Cuba, $537,000,000 in Brazil, $272,000,000 in Colombia $234,000,000 in Venezuela, etc.

On The Street

There may be no Summer slump in stocks. The sentiment on St. James Street is improving. Underwriting of issues is active. Gains may be actualized more by the desire to have balances abroad so as to meet payment will on hand for buying the goods necessary for Spring trade than demand for the Abitibi 5 per cent. bond has been of an excellent calibre lately. . . .

HOG QUOTATIONS

Tuesday, May 16 (CP)—Gains of 10 to 15 cents were posted for seven-hog prices at Hull, Peterborough and Chatham today. Offerings totalled 1,000.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, May 16—Heavy dairy produce exports were made from the port of Montreal during the week. They aggregated 2,009 boxes of cheese, 501 boxes of butter, 1,922 cases of eggs containing 30 dozen each and 50 cartons of eggs containing 15 dozen each, all to the United Kingdom. In the corresponding week last year exports were 5178 boxes of cheese to the United Kingdom and 60 boxes of butter to the British West Indies.

Receipts for the week, with comparisons, were posted at the Board of Trade as follows:

	Eggs	Butter	Cheese	Cases	Boxes
For week	12,185	14,027	2,326
Week ago	10,835	11,698	748
Year ago	14,638	4,000	4,500

There were no sales at the Canadian Commodity Exchange. Spot butter, Quebec fresh 92 score was quoted 27¼c to 28¼c at the close. Cheese, Ontario No. 1 spot price for No. 1 butter was generally 28c. Small lots in the retail trade are quoted by jobbers at 28½ to 29c for solids and 29-29½c for prints.

Small shipments of eggs were offering in used fine cases at 24-24½c, extras 23-23½c for A-medium, 22-22½c for B and 20½ to 21c for C.

Members of Staff Present E. V. Illsey With Oil Painting

Tangible appreciation of the many happy associations, made between manager and staff was shown in the office of the Canadian Bank of Commerce on Saturday afternoon, when members of the staff of that institution presented Mr. E. V. Illsey, departing manager, with a splendid oil painting of a scene at the Carrying Place near Trenton.

In a few well-chosen words, Messrs. R. Knowler and D. R. Cleland, senior members of the staff voiced their appreciation of the many years spent in harmony between Mr. Illsey and his office colleagues. Mr. S. Gandier, in making the presentation on behalf of the staff, voiced the general regrets at losing such an able associate, and wished Mr. Illsey every success in his new environment.

Mr. Illsey taken by surprise, thanked his former associates for the lovely gift for the splendid cooperation given him during his tenure as their superior.

"You will I am sure, give my successor the same splendid cooperation and help that you always gave me," he said.

JOHN DEACON TO SING OVER CBL

Mr. John Deacon, noted soloist of Belleville, will sing over CBLT, Toronto, at 7.30 Tuesday evening.

WATCH THE CHILDREN WARNS St. PARKS BOARD

Drowning of a small boy who fell off the edge of the Bay Shore link's deep water on Saturday afternoon, and rescued when a south ward resident jumped to his rescue in a punt, is warning is given by the local parks management that children fishing from the park wall should be accompanied by an adult capable of looking after their safety. Many times, it is pointed out, very immature children are permitted to be gone all day, generally flocking to the park where they become a worry to parks workers. The water in the harbor is deep this season.

DIAGONAL PARKING SOON IN EFFECT

Local motorists who have learned the art of backing while parallel parking ruled along the city's streets will soon receive the old style of diagonal parking following the drying of the new traffic lines on which painting was commenced today by workers of the public works department. The diagonal regulations will be in effect on Front Street from MacAnany St. to the new McCarthy Theatre on the east side and from the same location north on the east side to the Cities Service Station on the south.

GOVT. DOCK WIRING EXPECTED THIS WEEK

Preparations were being made this morning by workers of the local Harbor Commission for the rewiring of standards as the first move toward the lighting of the Government Dock this year. The present sections of all cable are being removed prior to their replacement with new specially waterproofed cable, while new standards are also being erected.

PRIZES TO BE GIVEN FOR GROUNDHOG TAILS

Prizes will be awarded at school fairs in some districts this year for the largest collection of groundhog tails, according to a bulletin issued by A. H. Leitch, agricultural representative for Northumberland Co.nty. It is expected that some 5,000 groundhogs will be cut out of existence in this county alone through this collection. The animals this year are reported to have increased in numbers and become more troublesome than in other years.

HON. NORMAN ROGERS SENDS PRIZE MONEY FOR CHEESE EXHIBITION

Success of the coming "Empire Cheese Exhibition," which is to be held in this city during the next week, and at which cheese from throughout the British Empire will be exhibited in the city hall, has been assured by the offer of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association of this city, now busy on arrangements, of a prize list that has been shown among Members of Parliament in Ottawa, and leaders of the province and Dominion everywhere.

Typical of the co-operation offered have been the personal cash contributions from the local officers.

This morning a communication from the office of the Hon. Norman Mck. Rogers, Ottawa, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, in which a cheque was contained, for $25, this Empire Cheese Exhibition is sufficiently deserving of support as to allow me to make my contribution to the prize list. I have set of limiting my contribution to the request made from my constituency, and I have the pleasure of enclosing my cheque for the prize fund. My best wishes for a successful exhibition", wrote the Hon. Norman Rogers.

Previously donations have been received in the sum of $25 each from M. P. for Hastings-Peterborough, wishing every success, and from others.

MR. GEORGE FOSTER MOVED TO KINGSTON

Mr. George Foster, Charles street, who is with the Transportation department of the C.N.R. here has been appointed as special officer for the company at Kingston station. He will be taking the place of Captain James J. Graham of Kingston who retired recently.

ADJOURNED INQUEST TO BE CONCLUDED

The adjourned inquest looking into the death of the late Frank Hazlewood, killed in the city, will convene at the police court, this coming evening at the hour of 7.30 p.m., Coroner Dr. Hector Harman, considers in charge, announced today. The late Frank Hazlewood was found dead upon the C.P.R. right-of-way two weeks ago yesterday, after having been missing from his home for a passing train. The inquest will be presided tonight.

CIVIC BEACH FILL STILL BADLY NEEDED

Fill material for the civic beach is still badly needed, and donations of gravel, clay, filler, loose stone, rubble or other disposable refuse, excepting garbage would be welcomed by members of the Quinte Bay Beaches Association, it was stated by President Ted Vanderwater, this morning. Officials of the Beaches are anxious to get a good start on this project this Spring.

MANY MISSING.

Collapse of Roof

Collapse of the roof, plunging debris through charred floors to the basement, cut off hope of survival for any who were trapped. Only the walls were left standing.

Hotel attaches said "at least 50" were registered when the flames broke out with an explosion in the basement kitchen. Fire Chief O. J. Parker said he was informed 60 were in the back and frame building.

Watched Fire in Pyjamas

E. K. Gulley, 48, special agent of the Department of Internal Affairs, said his wife were awakened by the smoke and heat and fled down the fire escape from the fourth floor.

"Two minute more," Gulley said, "and we would never have made it. I don't see how any of the others could have got out alive."

Mrs. Gulley was removed to another hotel. Gulley, with a borrowed raincoat over his pyjamas, stood in the spray of the firelins to watch demolition of the structure where he had made his home.

Had to Leave Elevator

Mrs. Guy Coleman, employed at the Fulton (Alberta) County courthouse, was found semi-conscious on the second floor.

Charlie Lahon, bellhop at the hotel for 20 years, was on duty in the lobby when the fire broke out. He said a messboy in the basement kitchen screamed "Oh, Lawdy, Oh!" and he felt a muffled blast from below.

"I ran to the elevator," he said "and tried to get to warn some of the guests but the flames spread so quick I had to jump from the elevator cage on the second floor level.

Whole Family Burned

Firemen described the death of what was apparently a family, father, mother, young son and daughter. The woman was found sitting in a chair. The little girl knelt in the hall. The boy was small boy was lying on the bed, all were unidentified.

The hotel, an old structure, had been remodelled several years. It was situated near the centre of the Atlanta railroad yards, about five blocks from the patrols, the heart of the city.

the Dominions by Lord Stanley, former parliamentary Secretary to the Chancellor.

Lord Harlech—the former William Ormsby-Gore—succeeds Lord Stanley as Parliamentary Secretary for the Colonies. This was a result of his entering the House of Lords on the death of his father and his succession to the title.

Walter Elliott, Secretary for Scottish affairs, succeeds Kingsley Wood as Minister of Health.

Colville Secretary For Scotland

Lord Colville of Culross, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, joined cabinet rank, becoming Secretary for Scotland.

Lord Swinton, in a letter to Mr. Chamberlain, said that his health required difficult because he sat in the House of Lords and was unable to speak for his department in the Commons.

Lord Swinton's letter said he was "quite content to leave the work I have tried to do at the Air Ministry to be judged at the right time in the light of fuller knowledge than can obviously now be made available."

He said that by resigning he would be aiding execution of the air program and maintenance "of public trust" in it.

Public Spirit

Replying to Lord Swinton's letter, Chamberlain wrote he was touched by the "generosity and public spirit" Lord Swinton had displayed.

"While the responsibility for the administration was mainly yours," the Prime Minister continued, "it was from time to time determined by the cabinet as a whole.

"Recently the cabinet came to the conclusion that the program ought to be considerably accelerated."

Other Cabinet Members

In changes among the junior ministers, Captain Evan Wallace, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, becomes Financial Secretary to the Treasury; Roland Cross, a government whip, succeeds Captain Wallace at the Board of Trade; Lieut.-Colonel A. J. Muirhead, Under-Secretary for Air, becomes Under-Secretary for India, succeeding Lord Stanley; and Captain Harold Balfour, previously a private member, becomes Under-Secretary for Air.

The Air Ministry under Sir-Kingsley Wood will have at its head a man of tireless energy. Known as the business man of the cabinet, he reorganized the Post Office Department between 1931 and 1935, modernizing Britain's telephone and telegraph system and carrying out widespread improvements in the postal system.

Sir Samuel to Old Post

London, May 16—(CP)—The Associated Press quoted usually reliable sources as predicting that Viscount Samuel, 66, Liberal leader, will announce a cabinet reshuffle within a few days, with Sir Samuel going back to his old post as the Air Ministry.

London, May 16—(CP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain was confined to his bed today suffering from a slight attack of the gout. His indisposition caused a postponement of a visit to Dundee he was to have made tomorrow.

Conference With HalIfax

Mr. Chamberlain also conferred with Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, on the rupture in diplomatic relations with Mexico. An importance also was said to be consideration of oil sources if war should come, but the Foreign office gave no indication of what it had in mind.

Until Mexican expropriation of 17 British, American and Netherlands oil properties March 18, Mexico furnished Great Britain only six per cent of her oil imports—but in war time that amount might easily be larger, with the probability Iran (Persia) Iraq and Rumanian sources would not be so accessible.

The British government broke off diplomatic relations Friday night, "in view of the unfriendly attitude of the Mexican government following Great Britain's increasingly sharp protests over expropriation of the British-owned properties.

"The Cardenas-Avila government have announced that the new minorities statute is already drafted, that they are ready to enter now into negotiations with the Sudeten Germans and other interested parties. That is satisfactory news."

"The reluctance of the Praha government to agree to Separatist demands is fully understandable and it is indeed foreseen by Herr Henlein himself, for he is credited with the intention of turning later, in the event of refusal, to the issue including Czechoslovakia. With a proposal that they later it upon themselves to arrange for a plebiscite to be held under an international guarantee of freedom in the manner which answered so well in the Saar.

"Herr Henlein, as leader of an important election of the population, is within his rights in advocating this re-direction of national policy.

"A great many arguments must also be adduced in favor of the neutralization of Czechoslovakia, approximating to the role which has been assumed by Belgium or the status which Switzerland has now finally secured for herself."

A wise men once said there are two ways to save money: "Increase your income, or cut down your outgo."

Much as we'd like to, few of us can regulate the amount of money we take in each week... But all of us have control over what we spend. And many a family bank account has been made possible by CAREFUL SPENDING.

That's why it will pay you to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Day after day they show you where to get the things you need . . . where to get the fullest dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

A careful reading of the advertisements . . . today, tomorrow, and every day after . . . will help you to do something that we'd all like to do:

BUY WHAT YOU WANT — AND HAVE MONEY LEFT OVER!

ABANDONMENT OF LINES SHOULD BE COMPULSORY

Fairweather Says C.P.R. Has Not Abandoned One Mile Parallel Main Line

COMPARISON OF STAFFS

Organized Labor on Both C.N.R. And C.P.R. Paid Same Wage

Ottawa, May 17—(CP)—Emphatic opposition to unification of the Canadian railway systems was voiced before the Senate special committee on the railway situation here, by Fairweather, director of the Bureau of Economics of the Canadian National Railways.

He said he could see no possible economies under unification which could not be effected by co-operation between the two separate systems and no real difference between unification and amalgamation. Further, he said, the risks inherent in unification were great.

Fairweather Ends Evidence

Mr. Fairweather ended his evidence today after some five days before the committee which will receive evidence to examine C.P.R. officials who are expected to submit definite proposals.

Ottawa, May 17—(CP)—Compulsion was desirable if railway lines were to be abandoned with a reasonable promptness, S. W. Fairweather, Director of the Canadian National Railways Bureau of Economics, told the special senate committee on

ONE TRAIN FLAGGED

Schreiber, Ont., May 17—(CP)—When a Canadian Pacific Railway freight train failed to make a curve near Selim yesterday, the engine and two cars plunged over a 10-foot embankment and killed three men.

The accident occurred at the east switch near Selim, about six miles west of Schreiber. A west-bound freight was flagged by Trainman W. Simons, despite injuries, and the train therefore probably prevented a second accident.

The dead: Ben Turner, engineer; S. Pelzie, fireman; H. Kennepieser, trainman. The engineer and firemen died instantly as engine

20,000 Aerial Practise Bombs For R. C. A. F.

Ottawa, May 17 (CP)—National Defence Department officials disclosed today that an order for 20,000 practise aerial bombs had been placed with the firm of Parmenter and Bullock at Gananoque, Ont.

The bombs contain no powder and do not explode but are identical in shape and weight with the regular 11-pound type. They will be used by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. E. Thiessen

Science Behind Meteorologist Rainfall and earthquakes! Stonehoth, the great naturalist-traveller, wrote early in the 19th century that it would be difficult for anyone residing in lower Peru to deny the connection between these two phenomena. Darwin, in "The Voyage of the Beagle", writes, "The natives of certain parts of South America always connect earthquakes with subsequent passage. It seems very probable that after long-resisted rainy, one inch adding 113 tons to every acre, the equilibrium of the inner layers would be disturbed and an earthquake would result. Also, after a long dry spell, the ground would have less tons of moisture and aided by the pressure the equilibrium would again be disturbed and an earthquake might result. But earthquakes do not produce rain.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 17—(CP)—Synopsis: The disturbance near the coast of Maine yesterday morning is now centred over the Maritimes with decreased intensity and a widespread low area covers the Lake States with high pressure over northwestern Ontario and to the southward of it. Lower Lake Showers have occurred in the Maritime Provinces and Northern Ontario, also light to moderate showers in Alberta and in some parts of Saskatchewan, but it has been fair in Manitoba and over the greater part of Ontario.

Lake Superior: Moderate northwest to northeast winds; fair today; Wednesday, fresh easterly winds; cloudy with showers.

Kenora and Rainy River: Easterly winds; partly cloudy, followed by occasional showers in the latter part on Wednesday.

Manitoba: Easterly winds: mostly cloudy tonight and Wednesday with occasional showers late tonight and changes in temperature.

Saskatchewan and Alberta: East to northeast winds; mostly cloudy and comparatively cool today and Wednesday with occasional showers.

COLUMNS CLOSE TO CITY OF SUCHOW

Japanese Troops Within Eleven Miles of Strategic City

Shanghai, May 17—(AP)—Japanese reported today that three columns of their rapidly advancing columns were within firing distance of Suchow, vital central China junction, encircled by a tightening steel ring.

One column, the Japanese said, had completed the seizure of Chuching, eight miles west of Suchow. Another column pressed southward to the northwest and the southwest were within 11 miles of the strategic city.

The vanguard of the column approaching from the southwest, reported it had occupied positions on a low mountain range within sight of Suchow. It was "only a matter of hours," the commander said, until his force would rumble rubber guns on the city.

The Japanese came within striking distance of the Chinese stronghold after weeks of terrific fighting, chiefly north and south of the Lunghai railway, China's "lifeline". They were approaching from every side hopeful of producing another "Nanking"—the capital destroying Chinese resistance "with one blow".

The Chinese continued to deny the invaders had severed the Lunghai and insisted that Suchow was not surrounded.

Sir Gerald Campbell Named British Commissioner to Ottawa

London, May 17—(CP)—Sir Gerald Campbell will be the new British High Commissioner at Ottawa.

Already well known in the Dominion as a result of occasional visits while serving as Consul General in New York and San Francisco, Sir Gerald, in succeeding Sir Francis Floud, will continue in Canada a career of public service that has won him widespread popularity in the United States.

Since his appointment as Consul General in New York in 1930 Sir Gerald has worked unceasingly for the promotion of Anglo-American friendship and trade, and has won fame as a public speaker.

He will take up his new appointment in the autumn, in the meantime probably spending several months in England on leave.

FIVE KILLED AS 2 UNDERGROUND TRAINS COLLIDE

Some of the Victims Trapped For Hours in The Wreckage

WORST IN HISTORY

Jarring Impact Followed by Blinding Showers of Sparks

London, May 17 (CP)—Five persons were killed and twenty-nine injured in the collision of two packed underground trains near Charing Cross station in the heart of London today, Leslie Burgin, Minister of Transport, announced in the House of Commons.

The minister, whose statement followed official communiques which had first placed the death toll at seven, announced some of the injured were in a critical condition in London hospitals. He said the cause of the collision had not yet been determined by official investigators probing the wreck.

Some of the victims were trapped for hours in the wreckage after an eastbound train smashed into the rear of another between the busy Temple and Charing Cross stations.

Forty firemen and policemen worked 1-2 hours to extricate four passengers from the big red first class coach nearest the

$100,000,000 IS PAID FOR ESTATE

Largest Real Estate Deal Ever Closed in England

Cardiff, Wales, May 17 (AP)—One of the largest real estate deals ever closed in England was announced here today when the Marquess of Bute sold the suburban section of this teeming Welsh metropolis to a figure understood to be about 20,000,000 pounds, ($100,000,000).

Neither the purchaser nor the selling price was disclosed, but the property included residential districts, shopping centres and docks.

The Marquess, considered fabulously rich, is the largest land owner Scottish family which has long owned large estate in Wales, especially in Cardiff, which has a population of 223,646.

The Marquess retained his two historic residences here, Cardiff Castle in the centre of the city and Caerphilly Castle, a few miles out-

Party, Told of Plane, Grave, In 6-Day March Thru Jungle, Fails in Search, Says Guide

Alexander Gilbert, Guide-Interpreter, Says He Heard Indians Tell Waldeck Party Last Winter of Grave of White Man—Searchers Start But Give up Quest —One of The Indians is Said to be Known as Lawson.

Georgetown, British Guiana, May 17 (CP)—Story of a British Guiana guide-interpreter struck at the mystery that has veiled the fate of Paul Redfern, United States aviator, since he vanished while on a South American flight seventy years ago.

The guide, Alexander Gilbert, said that when he accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Waldeck of New York to the Venezuelan border in his wilder, he had been told by Indians he would find the plane and grave of a white man six days' journey farther on.

Waldeck Expedition.

Waldeck led an expedition into the British Guiana hinterland in search of Redfern last December. At Devil's Hole Ile, he, in the three-cherous Cayuni River, the party's native porters deserted, leaving Waldeck, his wife, William Chanler, also of New York, and Dr. Frederick Fox, Ontario-born scientist, stranded.

Then a rescue party reached them Dr. Fox died and was buried on the lonely island. Chanler, weak from exposure and fever, returned to Georgetown by stages; the Waldecks accepted the offer of a passing boat and went on to the Venezuelan border only to be conquered by the jungle in the end.

Unable to Make 6 Days' Journey.

Unsuccessful and weakened by privation, they too returned to civilization. Gilbert said he had been told in journey southwest for six days and the party would come to an Indian village where the aeroplane was.

Without Food for Six Days, Woman of 78 Found Alive, Well

Timmins, Ont., May 17 (CP)—Mrs. Margaret Watson, 78, lost for six days in the dense bush country of Fallon Township, was found alive and well today by searchers. She had been found by a dog or shelter since wandering from her son's home.

Mrs. Watson was found several miles from Bartle mine, near where she became lost last Wednesday night while taking a stroll. Searchers said the point where she was found is about 36 miles southeast of South Porcupine.

Standing on a slight knoll, she waved her handkerchief to a group of men led by Melton Bertrand, a Fire Ranger, broke through heavy underbrush and saw her. They had been followed by dogs they hoped were Mrs. Watson's since late yesterday.

Bertrand picked up the trail shortly before dark yesterday about a mile and a half from Bette mine. He followed the trail until dark and picked it up again this morning. He found Mrs. Watson shortly after 8:30 A.M.

The community, which believed she had fallen into a nearby river or had perished for want of food in the bush, was astonished to learn the aged woman apparently suffered few ill-effects.

Taken to her mine home she was put to bed but was able to talk to relatives. She said the nights were chilly but she had bundled herself up as well as she could and slept a few hours at a time.

The attending doctor said Mrs. Watson would be kept in bed several days for a rest and to guard against pneumonia which might follow her lengthy exposure.

Mrs. Watson walked into the bush down a little-used road, grown over with grass and shrubs. It is believed she wandered off the trail without knowing it and was unable to find the road again.

SEARCHERS USE GRAPPLING IRONS TO FIND BODIES

Finding of Articles Leads Searchers to Believe Men Are Drowned

MAY HAVE CAPSIZED

Pitawy Harbor, Ont., May 17 —(CP)—Searchers used grappling irons today in an effort to recover bodies of four Ottawa men believed to have been drowned when their passenger motorboat capsized in the Ottawa River near this village last Saturday night.

Finding of a pair of oars a small can of gasoline and a green-covered vacuum bottle strengthened belief that Lieut.-Col. Donald Cail Peguin, Russell Radcliffe and Wilfrid Bolduc drowned in the powerful eddies of the river. A boat seat and a piece of gunwood from the side of a boat also were found.

Intensive Investigation of Death of Former Jail Governor Continues

Cornwall, Ont., May 17—(CP)—Ten days of intensive investigation have convinced authorities Ralph A. Cook, former Governor of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Jail, took his own life, Police Chief Fred Seymour said today.

Eight thousand troops already are concentrated in the central, Bren gun and military pilots are being held in readiness for action.

Preparations were under way today to move the mechanized cavalry north to an unannounced destination. Even half of President Lazaro Cardenas' personal bodyguard has been gone to San Luis. Nevertheless, Cardenas has declared the situation is "no danger" that San Luis "strong man", General Saturnino Cedillo, will lead his peasant following into revolt.

The general's friends, likewise, continue to insist that he has no wish to start a revolution. He is politically a Cardenas opponent.

BEAVER PELTS SEIZED

North Bay, May 17.—(CP) —Ninety-one beaver pelts valued at more than $1,500 were seized here today on a southbound train by O. M. Parks, district superintendent of game and fisheries, on information supplied by Overseer C. E. Binsley of New Liskeard.

Ownership of the pelts, en route to Toronto, in a trunk shipped as baggage, was not claimed when Parks said they were the largest haul he had seen in his district.

Beaver trapping and possession of beaver pelts is illegal.

Hon. Colin C. Campbell Makes Plea For Monetary Reform

SPEAKS AT LONDON

Hamilton, May 17—(CP)—Banking has been the only business in Canada to have increased its assets since the war, Hon. Colin Campbell, Provincial Minister of Public Works, told a service club here today.

He charged that "usury had become the greatest business in Canada today."

Mr. Campbell's charge was made in a vigorous plea for monetary and financial reform as the "greatest national and most urgent need in Canada."

While bank assets had increased, national wealth, national income, agricultural investments, and wage raise had decreased with a "staggering" increase in the national debt.

Great Britain's Worst Drought Since 1815 Definitely Broken

By GUY RHOADES

London, May 17 (CP) — Great Britain's worst drought since 1815—the year of Waterloo—today appeared definitely broken as rain fell generally for the first time in many weeks.

The Ministry of Agriculture, unable to estimate damage to crops and loss to farmers from drought and early morning frosts, said it believed growth had been retarded rather than snuffed out, but private estimates have placed the loss as high as £500,000 ($2,500,000) a day for several weeks.

London newspaper correspondents' surveys have indicated damage as heavy. Soil drifting was reported from Yorkshire where thousands of sheep are said to have died. Po-

OFFICIALS PLACE VARIOUS DETAILS BEFORE MISSION

Costs of Operation And Possibilities of Expansion Submitted

AIRCRAFT BUILDING

Any Contracts Awarded Will be 'With Long Term View'

Ottawa, May 17—(CP)—Executives of several Canadian aircraft construction companies were in Ottawa today, conferring with the mission from the British Air Ministry.

The Canadian company officials, it is understood, supplemented yesterday the particulars set forth in the various memoranda placed at the disposal of the overseas party yesterday.

These covered the equipment, personnel, and capacity of the various plants, together with details relative to costs of operation and possibilities of expansion.

Aircraft Building Industry

Commander J. G. Weir, head of the mission, said last night that Canada's aim would be to have built before the return of the party to England. He was chiefly interested, he said, in the activities of the primary aircraft building industry.

The commander said that if contracts were awarded the Canadian companies, they would be given "with a long-term view." The British were not concerned with a rapid turning out of machines so much as with an assurance that there could be a steady output from Canada over a period of years.

LOCAL BANDSMEN TO MEET NOTED SOLOIST

A number of members of the local Salvation Army Band will leave Belleville Wednesday for Toronto to attend the welcome festival of the noted cornet soloist, Bandmaster T. Ohlss, L.R.A.M., of London, England.

FIRECRACKERS UNSAFE UNLESS CARE TAKEN

Young Belleville has taken up the matter of fireworks in earnest. A little earlier this year with the use of yes-among firecrackers along city streets, but a word of caution is in order regarding their use, compiles a local resident. Reference to his parked automobile on John Street last evening, the resident discovered four or five small boys busily engaged in lighting firecrackers and tossing them under his car. A flash from one of the crackers gave fair promise of igniting the oil soaked drip pan and the car itself.

MAY SHOWS GAIN IN CONSTRUCTION PERMITS

At the present mid-month mark, number of building permits issued by the office of the city engineer indicate that the month of May will be one of the best building months of the season. To date an estimated cost of $2,150 in new construction has been authorized. Permits have been issued to Mr. Swift Canadian company for a plant addition estimated at $1500; R. G. Coulter, North Front Street for kitchen addition at $150; Good Rich Oil Company, office alterations at $200; J. W. Holmes, garage at $200 and W. Bean, store front at $100.

LOCAL FISH HATCHERY HAS BUSIEST PERIOD

Employees of the Government Fish Hatchery east of the city counting their blessings in the low flowing tanks by the millions lately, are experiencing their busiest seasonal period of the year.

It is estimated by Mr. G. K. Manzer, manager of the hatchery, today that during the latter part of last week and this week a total of one million fry—five hundred thousand lunge fry will have been liberated in the waters south this north central district. Two trucks are at present busily engaged transporting the fry-filled cans to the numerous red re-stocking lakes.

Recent districts include 50,000 lunge to Rice Lake, while lately other shipments have been to the Stavebank and Green lakes. The hatchery at present is concerned only with the culture of the lunge fry.

SLIM OFFERING AT CITY MARKET TODAY

Pressure of Spring work and the usual activities in the preparation of ground for planting was given as the reason for the slim display of Spring flowers at vegetables at the city market today.

Only a light offering of asparagus onions and other vegetables were noted with price remaining steady at wednesday quotations. Eggs were offered at 23 cents for "A" selects.

FIRST SEASON'S WORK AT TOURIST CAMP

Though no official season opening has been announced as yet, preliminary work on the city tourist camp was expected to commence today by George Wilder, caretaker for the coming season. Some shrubbery and lawn will be given the first work.

CITY'S WATERFRONT BUILT FOR FUTURE

Hundreds of extra yards of new territory are being built up along the city's waterfront as the result of Maurice Gallaghan's property. It is estimated by Alderman Thomas Ewing, chairman of the water and City Property, following a this week inspection of this dumping site that Tons of garbage daily are being unloaded at this location, stretching the new territory across the strip marshland into the bay at a considerable height which allows for land re-stocking lakes.

Recent districts include 50,000 lunge to Rice Lake, while lately other shipments have been to the Stavebank and Green lakes. The hatchery at present is concerned only with the culture of the lunge fry.

COOL WEATHER SLOWS ASPARAGUS GROWTH

"There isn't the least doubt that residents of this city and district are receiving the benefit of a vendor of the Spring delicacy stated today the city market.

"Right now our chief trouble is securing sufficient of the vegetable to supply the demands, the cool weather of the past few days has deterred growth and suitable sizes are difficult to procure. Our stock was rapidly taken up by the public on Saturday, while today our supply lasted but a few minutes."

"A few days of real warm weather, however, will result in the usual growth that will, we hope, supply the demand that now we are unable to fill."

HIGHWAY CONTRACTS SAME AS YEAR AGO

Contracts for the construction of the various sections of highway under governmental jurisdiction have been let to the same contractors as last year, according to advices received in this city yesterday from the Department of Highways. Districts and contractors in this county are Tweed, The Holdcraft Construction Co.; Sidney North, The Routley Construction Co.; Belleville East, The Rondbuilders Ltd.; Belleville North, The Storms Construction Co.; Actinolite West, Harold Harvey.

BLACK FLIES INVADE BELLEVILLE DISTRICT

Black flies, the bane of the early season fisherman and vacationists are reported to be invading the district according to reports being gathered by residents in various parts of the city.

Thought to have been blown south by the strong northerly winds of the past few days, the pesky "pests" are making life miserable for anglers and others out of doors who have been enjoying the comparatively balmy days of outdoors during the past few days.

VITAMINS PLAY IMPORTANT PART FOR HEALTHY LIFE

Prof. G. A. Evans Addresses 65 Rexall Druggists at Convention Here

The important part vitamins play in the modern drug world and the vital necessity for them in every day food was graphically described in an address given by Professor George A. Evans, Toronto, head of the Pharmacy College of Pharmacy, Toronto, to sixty-five Rexall druggists today at the district convention held in the Hotel Quinte.

Delegates representatives of Rexall stores from Oshawa to Brockville, this convention, this morning, assembled and reached its climax this afternoon with a practical demonstration of what work and its many phases proved to be a highly educational nature to those in attendance.

Aided by the use of luminous projection machines Professor Evans also brought out the new territory across the country marshland into the bay at a considerable height which allows for later settling. A vista of a modern, beautiful waterfront along the city's south shore in ten years is seen by Alderman Cushing, who is also to the present filling as but the first step toward this realization. With only this one disposal centre now authorized, work of filling in has been considerably speeded up, it is pointed out.

COOL WEATHER SLOWS ASPARAGUS GROWTH

"There isn't the least doubt that residents of this city and district are receiving the benefit of a vendor of the Spring delicacy stated today the city market.

"Right now our chief trouble is securing sufficient of the vegetable to supply the demands, the cool weather of the past few days has deterred growth and suitable sizes are difficult to procure. Our stock was rapidly taken up by the public on Saturday, while today our supply lasted but a few minutes."

Conservatives Name Delegates Also Set Date for Convention To Select Riding Candidate

South Hastings Association Holds Meeting in This City

LENGTHY DISCUSSION

W. M. Nickle, K.C, of Kingston Gives Principal Address

Conservatives of the Federal riding of the South Hastings attend to put a candidate to contest the riding at the next Dominion election on or before September 15th at a convention to be held, it was decided at an enthusiastic meeting of the South Hastings' Conservative Association held last evening.

Called for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend the Dominion convention being held at Ottawa on July 5th, 6th and 7th, the following were named to represent the members of the South Hastings constituency.

Belleville — Harry Rollins, alternate Mrs. H. Naylor.

Trenton — Dr. D. Graham, alternate, Ross Burtt.

Tweed— Hungerford, Deseronto and Tyendinaga, R. Hollins, alternate Loral Clement.

Sidney, Thurlow, Frankford and Stirling—Fred Alternate J. McCullough.

Representatives, it was pointed out, will pay their own expenses.

PM Vacancy

Filling the vacancy of vice-president of the Association caused by the death of Mr. J. C. Metcalfe some time ago, Dr. J. J. Thompson of Tweed, was named to that office at the meeting.

Considerable discussion, pro and con, was held prior to the naming of the convention date at which a candidate would be selected, it was launched following the reading of a communication from the Tweed Conservative Association asking that aconvention for the purpose be held prior to the Dominion convention as Ottawa.

Writer of the communication read at the meeting, Dr. Thompson, secretary of the Tweed Association, called to the fact that as all mediate work on the part of the executive and supporters of the riding.

"We to Tweed feel, that whoever the candidate is should be announced soon. He would be given a chance to get acquainted with the people he is to represent and would be better known before the delegates went to Ottawa. This action may be sprung on us at any time. We don't know what the King is liable to do; we never knew before," added the Tweed secretary.

Suggestion Supported

Support to this suggestion was given by Dr. J. W. Elmsee of the local group. "I believe that they are aspiring as candidates should make themselves and their intentions known," he said. "It would be a good idea to have a half dozen or so announce their intentions before accepting the nomination. Let us field a candidate at the earliest opportunity and give him time to work on the matter," he urged.

"As far as finding this convention before the Ottawa convention, I don't believe we should," objected Secretary R. H. Ketcheson, "I believe we should have our leader selected at first before we hold any local convention. How is the candidate you are liable to make know how to stand if he is named before a leader is selected or a platform has been announced? Let us come out flat-footed and elect our own man, when the leader is named. Let us have our say".

Speaking on behalf of the Belleville Association, president of the Senior Club, Harry Rollins, pointed out, that the association's candidate was named "the better". "We need a lot of organization work before July 4 and 5 if we are to the convention for the riding held before September so we can pick our candidate. He should be in the field as soon as possible. September is the earliest date I can see".

"Well, let us not go blindly into this matter of naming a candidate," urged Dr. Kinnear again. Let us know something about the man before we pick him. Select a good man and then create the enthusiasm and drive. I don't believe that a candidate myself, but I'd like to know who he is so that I can get out and do something."

"I'm willing to leave this matter of a convention date with the executive of the riding", stated John A. Ker, city, "I believe that before the Ottawa confention is too soon. And I move that we leave this matter in the hands of the executive."

"The reason for this letter from Tweed", pointed out Mr. R. D. Arnoot M. P. P., chairman, "is that Tweed conservatives want to know the feeling of the members south on the matter. I'd be all in favor of the convention for the riding being held within the next three or four weeks, except for the fact that the Ottawa convention is going to interfere."

"Whoever is the candidate should be named at the earliest opportunity", maintained Dr. Thompson of Tweed.

Mayor Thomas Trenton, declaring his belief in the value of an early campaign, stated that the holding of the meeting prior to the Ottawa convention, in his opinion, would not be a good move.

"In the past we have been bound to take part in the by-election. The riding convention is held before the Ottawa one, then the candidate goes to Ottawa, he is bound to assume the responsibility of following whatever action was taken. He would also be pledged to support the platform as it is announced—which will be the most important part of the convention and this without knowing. Then the leader will be or the platform to be announced.

"You need a man of independent thought as your candidate. A man of independent thought can decide this. I hardly feel I could accept a nomination without knowing the leader or the platform, and I think you should have some of the right type of candidate to go into this blindly."

"While I don't agree with Dr. Kinnear or that letter from Tweed I'm pleased to see that it is that is has been sent, because it shows that the supporters and workers back at Tweed are not dead."

"If there was time to hold this meeting convention before the Ottawa one then I'd be willing," expressed Mr. A. R. Watson. "But I can't see how we are to get this convention going before July 5th."

Date is Named

"If Mr. Kerr will name a date in connection with his motion that the convention be held then I'd be glad to support his motion," declared Mr. O. A. Reid.

"And I move this meeting go on record as asking that this local convention be held not later than September", agreed Ray Zufelt.

Then I'll move that the riding convention date be named before September 15th", was words of Mr. Kerr.

But to standing vote, this motion carried.

Taking over the duties of chairman for the remainder of the evening, Dr. Harold Welsh, M.P.P. Rosiln in a few words spoke of the possibility of there being a federal election as early as this can be arranged.

"I agree with Mr. Graham that date be named for the meeting of candidates, when the convention date has been set and as declaring themselves before the date is named as a leader is picked, it is a personal matter with them. Any date after the Ottawa confention is quite suitable, though it does not appear to be altogether wise that a man be chosen before the Ottawa date. It does not seem quite fair to the candidate thus selected.

Sincerity Keynote

As guest speaker of the evening, Mr. W. M. Nickle, K.C. of Kingston, who visited the district with Mr. W. O. Orucker, President of the Kingston Conservative Association, briefly last evening, gave an outline of the true aspects of Conservatism in his few remarks.

Introduced by Mr. C. A. Payne, K.C., and President of the South Hastings Conservative Association, Mr. Nickle said he appreciated the excellent turnout of supporters and work being accomplished by the South Hastings officers. Mr. Crooker brought greetings from the Kingston Club and extended the invitation for members of the riding to visit at any time.

One of the first meetings of Conservatives of the Federal section since the regretable death of the late Hon. Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, it was fitting that last evening's gathering should go on record as passing a resolution of sympathy to be forwarded to the Conservative leader, pointed out Mr. Nickle. This was greeted with a unanimous expression of agreement.

Mr. Nickle outlined a plan for solidarity of the Conservative party, for the drawing of all supporters of the general good and urged his hearers to recognize the fact "there was room for all within the ranks of the Conservative party."

"Our Conservative government carriage, the thought and action of the old Tory party," declared Mr. Nickle, the party. Let us carry any grievances we may have, one against the other, to the work in this community and accord with the party as a whole, and not let our individual own opinions and convictions—that our best work is done by this class—and not by the few discords. Our sincerity is the key note of public life," charged Mr. Nickle.

Full Leave to be Given Recruits Who Wish to Go to Summer Camp

Recruits of the local Argyll Light Infantry Militia Battalion, anxious to attend the regular summer camp of the militia this summer, will be given full leave irrespective of the leave period granted workers in the plants and factories, it is intimated by officers of the battalion. This assurance that their period away from their jobs would not affect their employment, many more recruits would be secured.

At a meeting held last night of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, at which a communication from the Minister of National Defence was read, urging co-operation in the matter of allowing leave periods from work among manufacturers of the Dominion, unanimous approval and co-operation of Belleville manufacturers and shop managers was voiced.

FIRE DAMAGES METAL GARAGE

Fire of undetermined origin caused slight damage to a metal garage at 12 Wilkins Street shortly after four o'clock this morning. Starting inside the building, the flames were quickly extinguished by city firemen. The building was empty of cars at the time.

OPEN PARK WITH CIVIC HONORS

Parks Board Planning Gala Day's Program For Victoria Park

Negotiations to officially open Victoria Park with civic honors, including city notables and the Belleville Municipal Band providing the entertainment, are understood to be opened by the City Parks Committee of the Belleville Parks Board, meeting held last evening. With the return of waterway traffic permitted on Victoria Park and the innovation of floodlights to assure adequate lighting for land and water front, the Parks Board are planning a gala program for the official opening when His Worship Mayor Harmon Morrison will officially open the park in the afternoon while the new lighting system will flood the park during the first time at night.

Chairman W. A. Woodley and the members of the Parks Commission will be present to assist in the day's activities in the various water sports off the park in the afternoon. The buildings on the park have been renovated, while the swimming pool accommodations are also to be improved. The Board hopes to paint and make attractive the Canadian Forest Unified Church and will esteemed in the community.

Surviving him are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Harry Cecile Stoliker; his mother, Mrs. Annie Bolton, Belleville; two daughters, Mildred and Eleanor and two sons, Herbert and Frank, all at home; four sisters, Mrs. Ernest Dockeil, Camilton, and Mrs. Ralph Hamilton, Belleville; Mrs. Harry Day and Mr. William Day of Belleville and one brother in the United States.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

EXCURSION BOAT TO PLY ON BAY

Captain C. E. Redfearn to be in Charge of The Craft

Many persons in Belleville will be pleased to learn that an excursion boat will be plying the bay waters this season, it was announced today by Captain C. E. Redfearn, who sailed the Bay of Quinte on the old and well known steamer Hamilton. Toronto and Hamilton and later on the steamer Kingston, Toronto through the 1000 Islands to Prescott and Ogdensburg.

Captain Redfearn will be associated with his son, Captain Jack and 2, as Commodore of line from Belleville to Picton, Consecon and a sight seeing boat, which will accommodate about thirty passengers and will be available for excursion or private parties about June 1st.

The boat is similar to the craft that plies through the waters of the Islands and is comfortable, safe and speedy.

Battery to Demonstrate Open Field Tactics

A novel departure from the usual will take place on Sunday next when Major Walter Stenburg, officer commanding the 34th Battery, Canadian Field Artillery, will demonstrate open field tactics and manoeuvres before the critical gaze of district inspecting officers.

The rough terrain near the property of the Canada Cement Company at North Ann's provides an ideal location for the artillery scheme and if present plans materialize the tactics will be held under the direction of Major Stenburg, officer commanding the unit this morning.

Taking over the duties of chairman for the remainder of the evening, Dr. Harold Welsh, M.P.P. Rosiln in a few words spoke of the possibility of there being a federal election as early as this can be arranged.

LATE BARTON A. PALMER (Thurlow)

The funeral of Barton Adelbert Palmer took place Saturday afternoon, May 14th., from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Ernest Bonisteel, in the 4th concession of Thurlow Township, to the United Church at Gilead where service was conducted by the Rev. W. R. Merrick of Canifton.

Interment was made in Victoria Cemetery. The service at the graveside was conducted by the latter minister.

The bearers were Messrs. Ernest Huffman, Charles Huffman, Clarence Martin, Harold Martin, Blaze Way and John Rils.

FRANK B. DAY (Of Ameliasburgh)

Death came suddenly to Frank B. Day, a resident of the Second concession of Thurlow Township, while he was engaged at work on the night shift at the Canadian National railway yards, Toronto in the east end of the railway yards Shortly after one o'clock this Tuesday morning he was stricken with a heart attack and passed away gloriously before the coming arrival Dr. E. O. Kennedy. The chief coroner for York was acquainted with a heart attack and passed away gloriously before the coming arrival Dr. E. O. Kennedy. The chief coroner for York was acquainted with the circumstances of the case but was notified, and he decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The deceased was apparently in good health when he arrived to perform his duties at the railway.

The late Frank Bolton Day, who was in his 48th year was born in Belleville, his parents being Mrs. Phoebe Day and the late Robert Day. All his life was passed in Belleville and Thurlow Township. When the Great War commenced he enlisted in the month of August 1914, at Belleville with the 34th Battery, which was amalgamated with the 2nd Field Artillery at Ottawa under the command of Col-

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 17.—(AP)—Negligible declines and advances were about evenly divided in today's stock market.

There was a little demand for selected specialties, Motors, Utilities and Specialities, but numerous issues were unchanged or down fractions near the day's bottom.

Today's Pennsylvania Primaries, brokers said, inspired many buyers to keep commitments at a minimum, pending the new deals set up in strength in the Keystone State.

Transfers were about 500,000 shares.

The trend was indecisive in today's stock market but real selling pressure was again lacking in virtually all departments.

The list slipped at the start. Mille support appeared later and several Airrafts, Motors, Utilities and Specialities succeeded in getting up a shade. Near the fourth hour, however, minor declines were plentiful.

Most Canadian shares moved forward, led by an advance of around a point in Dome Mines. Fractional gains were turned in by Distillers and McIntyre Porcupine while Canadian Pacific was slightly lower.

In the backward division the greater part of the time were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Kennecott, Woolworth, Great Northern and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, May 17 (CP)— Stock trading came to holiday proportions tempo today on the Toronto Exchange and the only active group was unchanged to slightly higher while declines were general in the other index groupings. Only about 400,000 shares or fewer were traded in the session.

Another scaling down of metal prices on the London market put a damper on the base metal shares and most of the others off fractionally including Nickel, Noranda and Ventures.

Strength in the industrial list was confined mainly to the steels and the senior oils.

Some interest was showing in the steels on the news that British orders might be placed here for war planes. Both Canadian Car and Foundry stocks advanced fractions and National Steel Car gained about 3-4. Dominion Bridge also firmed moderately.

Weakness was the most pronounced in the base metal issues of 1-2 to a point or more were lowered. Lake Shore, Hollinger, Consumers Gas, Gatineau Pfd., Shawinigan and Union Gas, in the food, Fanny Farmer and Maple Leaf Pfd. posted gains and Canada Packers and Canada Bread declined 3-4 to a point each.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford By Financial Service

Buffalo Ankerite Profits High in First Quarter

Shareholders of Buffalo Ankerite Gold Mines, Limited, are in receipt of a quarterly report which shows that the recovery per ton was $8.458 per ton; operating costs $4.114; exercise office expense, $.167; depreciation costs $.441 per ton, a total of $4.722 per ton.

Net profit from operations for the three months' period after making provision for depreciation and taxes was $296,479.04. This is at the rate of $1.89 per share per annum.

Capital expenditures for additions and improvements to buildings and equipment during the three months' period amounted to, $44,155.79.

The shaft sinking is progressing satisfactorily and by June 1st the compressor and hoist house should be completed, the large hoist installed and the new headframe erected.

There is some ground for an optimistic attitude towards the market at the present time. Admittedly, the outlook for an improvement in business for the second half of the year is bright, this applying particularly to Canada in view of the very promising outlook for a bountiful wheat crop. The market, as a rule, begins to discount any pending betterment a few months ahead of time. On this reasoning, therefore, better prices should become noticeable in the comparatively near future.

For the past few months we have been experiencing a "creeping bull market," unaccompanied by any publicity. For example; the recent low of Brazilian Traction was 9½ and the stock is now at 11 1-4; Dominion Steel B touched 9 and is now 12; Atlantic preferred sold down to 9 is now currently selling at about 16½; National Steel Car has recovered from 31 to 42; Winnipeg Electric preferred from 7 to 10; Canada Bread preferred from around 35 to 42; International Nickel from 37 to 47; etc. etc.

In connection with the above advances, however, the bull market has not been heard. An appreciable enthusiasm on stock ratings from their current prices will have to take place before the public realizes that a bull market has been in progress for some time, and after many stocks have discounted the pending improvement, only then will it take step into the market confidently.

It holds as true today as ever before that the time to buy stocks is when nobody wants them and they are available at one's own price; and the time to sell stocks is when everybody is clamoring for them. It requires courage, however, to purchase securities in a falling market.

Many Girls Willing To Become Brides, London Man Finds

Windsor, Ont., May 17—(CP)—Reginald McLeod of London, Ont., regrets now that he asked Mayor E. S. Wigle of Windsor, for assistance in finding a bride. He informed Mayor Wigle today that he's sorry he started the whole thing and may leave for Vancouver shortly.

The Mayor up to today had forwarded twenty-five applications from girls in various western Ontario centres on to McLeod in London. McLeod answered today, "Received your letter with the enclosed letters. Please don't send me any more letters. Return them to their owners."

Consequently he will not get the latest letters. One from a 23-year-old London girl, said "tons of loneliness and ounces of nerve force me to write to you." Another from a 25-year-old would-be bride of Delhi said "I can only hope I may prove to be the right girl." She added she was "more or less refined."

The letter from the London lass noted that "the writer of these lines has followed your story" and asked that McLeod meet her on a designated London street Friday night at a specified time. Description of clothes she would wear was also given.

"If you have not yet found the girl you are looking for, I wonder if we would be friends?" the letter asked, "I mean, go places together; meet other people."

"Tons of loneliness and ounces of nerve force me to write to you" the letter said. "Please let me state this is not a marriage proposal.

TORONTO TO CONSIDER SUB-DIVIDING LAND

Toronto, May 17 (CP)—Toronto's Board of Control asked today for a complete report on the amount of city-owned land that could be divided into lots for sale to suitable builders.

Employment would be increased and low-cost housing provided by extensive building, the controllers believed.

Livestock

Toronto, May 17 (CP) — Cattle trade was generally at steady prices on the Toronto livestock market today though some weakness appeared in weighty steers and plain butcher cattle. Calves held to former levels while some grades of sheep and lambs were easier. No hog price was set, by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Monday was sixty head.

Receipts reported by Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 1,500, calves 700, hogs 1,300, sheep and lambs 100.

Weighty steers sold from $3.75 to $7 with most sales from $6.75 downward. Butcher cattle and heifers brought $5.25 to $6.75. Good butcher cows were $3 to $5.50, plain as low as $3.75. Bulls ranged from $4.50 to $5, bologna from $4 to $4.50. Choice lambs were mostly at $7 to $7.50. A few lots of light stockers made $4.50 to $5.25.

Choice veal calves were priced at $8 to $8.50 with some lots at $9. Common light vealers ranged down to $4.

Previous close on off-truck bacon hogs was $10.10 to $10.25.

Most grain-fed lambs sold at $6 to $9.50 each with odd tops reaching $10. A few good light sheep were steady at $5 to $6 cwt. Heavy fed sheep were slow and lower at $2 to $3 cwt.

Montreal, May 17—(CP)—Prices showed steadiness in sales sessions of Montreal livestock markets during today's early trading.

Receipts: Cattle 141; calves 1,782; hogs 574; sheep and lambs 47.

Cattle: Good cows $5.50, medium $4.50-$5, common butchers $3.50-$4.25. Canner cows cutters $2.50-$3.25, common bulls $3.50-$4.75.

Calves: Good-medium drinkers $4.50, common to medium vealers $5-$6.50.

Hogs: Bacons, fed and watered, $10.10, the basis of the Iowa $7.65. Selects drew $1 per hog premium with the usual cuts on off grades.

Sheep and lambs: Spring lambs $4-$6.50. Sheep $4-$5.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, May 17—Butter futures were stronger, while the spot market ruled firm, and small lots to the retail trade were at maximum levels of a half-cent range quoted at the week-end. Cheese was market again advanced. An official review from Ottawa said that it would not be surprising if Britain was obliged to import some eggs next fall as storage was very light owing to the heavy export volume overseas. Receipts were 1059 cases of eggs, 56 boxes of cheese.

Spot butter was quoted there at the close at 27½ to 28c for choicest fresh 92 score and 26¾ to 27c for Quebec specials of 38 score. The open spot market was 28c. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 28c for fine and 29¼c for prints.

Graded shipments of eggs were selling on spot in used free cases at 24½c for A-large, 22½c for A-medium, 22½c for B and 21c for C.

Simpson and other officers and committees will be heard and officers elected.

ABANDONMENT

railway conditions in Canada today.

Senator Dandurand, government leader, had asked him to express an opinion as to whether or not compulsion is necessary in order to reach a conclusion as regards the abandoning of duplicating lines of railway.

Reasonable Prosperous

"If time is not a vital factor," he said, "then, in my opinion, ultimately agreement might be reached as regards most line abandonments, although the Canadian Pacific has not yet agreed to abandon a mile of any of its main lines which parallel Canadian National main lines."

"If it is the desire to obtain the line abandonments with the greatest possible expedition, then I feel that in some way an element of compulsion might with advantage be brought in."

Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative Leader, said he wanted to know if the Canadian National was overloaded in employment. He had heard suggestions to that effect.

Compulsion

Mr. Fairweather said he could give the number of employees per mile on the Canadian National for comparison with other railways but warned comparisons might not be valid because it was difficult to distinguish between capital and operating labor and accounting systems of railways differed.

"I am personally convinced that the Canadian National Railway is not overstaffed having regard to the problems with which it has to deal and that it is efficiently operated in comparison with other railways," he said.

Organized Labor on the C.N.R. and C.P.R. recently practically had name wages, he explained. Clerical staffs on both lines were also paid on the same basis but executive officers on the Canadian National were on a lower scale.

"How About Members?"

"How about the number of clerks?" asked Senator Meighen.

"The number of supervisory officers is proportionate to the mileage," said the railway official.

"And the average traffic per mile," said Senator Meighen.

"Yes," he replied, "but we have the whole Canadian National machinery set up for traffic and any increase could be handled most cheaply. Any advance in the prosperity of the country would be reflected in the Canadian National returns."

That would be so if costs did not go up, said Mr. Meighen. If costs were going up on declining revenue it was to be expected they would go up on increasing revenue.

C.N.R.'s Budget.

Mr. Fairweather said he presumed the reference was to the increase in costs for the first three months of the present year but there were sound business reasons for that increase. Last fall the railway was faced with increasing wages and increasing material costs. It knew returns were falling off and could have cut costs by closing the shops. But there were locomotives and cars which needed repairs and it was better to equalize from year to year labor and material costs advanced labor.

The company has budgeted for an eight per cent. increase in material costs in 1938 over 1937.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL FOR THEFT

R. Y. Buglass Charged With Theft And Attempted Suicide

Beaverton, Ont., May 17—(CP)— R. Y. Buglass, former manager of the Bank of Commerce branch in Lake Simcoe town was committed for trial yesterday on charges of theft and attempted suicide.

The theft charge involved three $1,000 Dominion Bonds, property of the late Neil Robertson.

High Constable Clark of Ontario Provincial police testified that Mr. Buglass' office just after the bank manager had given a statement to the inspector of trial Criminal Investigation Department of The Ontario Provincial police. He rushed in and found Buglass on the floor with a revolver in one hand and a revolver wound near his heart.

3 Condemned Men Escape Prison

Columbia, S.C., May 17 (AP)— Three of six convicts under death sentence for killing Olin Sanders, penitentiary guard captain in a frustrated jail break last Dec. 12, escaped from the Richmond County jail here early today.

The trio, George Wingard, 22, of Columbia, Herbert Moorman, 41, of Detroit, and Clayton Crane, 28, of Rochester, N.Y., were found missing at the early morning checkup.

PARLIAMENT MAY ADJOURN SOON

Would Re-assemble Later to Deal With U.S.-Canada Pact

Ottawa, May 17 (CP)—Rumor parliament may adjourn shortly to be re-assembled later this year to deal with the new United States-Canada trade agreement are not outside the boundaries of possibility but the government so far has not considered such a contingency, it was learned today from official sources.

The government still has hope the negotiations at Washington will be sufficiently advanced, if not entirely completed, to be dealt with in the approaching budget. While reports from Washington have suggested the administration there would await the adjournment of Congress before making any decided progress on the pacts, the Ministry here has no intention to bear out such a suggestion, it is understood.

The negotiations covering as they do, the proposed United States-Great Britain and the United States-Canada pacts are the most far-reaching ever attempted, it was explained. They cover not only the three countries but, through the most favored nation features, they affect scores of other nations. It is said the treaties cannot be forced and Asia are to some extent hindering the progress towards an understanding.

LINDSAY ARSENAL TO BE REOPENED

Defence Minister Mackenzie Makes Announcement in House

Ottawa, May 17—(CP)—The government arsenal at Lindsay, Ont., will be reopened, Defence Minister Mackenzie told the House of Commons last night. New equipment will be purchased and the plant renovated to make shell cases. It will involve $130,000.

Bruce McMeren (Lib. Victoria) suggested the whole plant at Lindsay should be put into operation because it was modern and in a safe position in time of war. He suggested all sorts or military equipment could be manufactured there.

Canada could not go on exporting its gold and borrowing from sources whose credit had been established, by Canadian gold, Mr. Campbell said.

"We admit defeat when we admit that we must sit by idly while our national debt increases and the amount of interest to be paid out in servicing debt increases," he said.

Cloaked in Mystery

Money had been cloaked in mystery in Canada and the examples of Europe's paper money and managed currency were always thrown out when a suggestion of monetary was made, he continued, but "this situation is entirely different. These European countries had not gold reserves."

"We can have that money, the same money which the orothodox bankers have been talking about for years, based on our gold if we insist that it shall not be exported from the country," he said.

WRITING HISTORY

Students of history have never had so excellent an occasion to study history that is being written in front of their eyes. With modern newspapers every day carrying world news in every home, a cosmopolitan outlook has been created, even almost at times to the degree of weariness it may seem of reading of foreign events. But nevertheless the reader comes back to the newspaper and reads what is going on. The reason is very clear—mighty events are taking place, events far more interesting when war is not pitchforked in, for war is an unnatural method of diplomacy. There is much interest in watching the diplomacy of say, two dictators. One going human nature in it, than in war. One going to the motion pictures today can realize how unreal seem to a modern audience the middle age sword play, and the not-long banished duel with pistols. The audience feels that these settle nothing, that it is a brutal way and that it doe sno show that honor always wins. But in the fine fencing of statesmen over matters which may mould the world for centuries or merely for a few months, there is interest. Here the student of history sees possibly darkly at first because he does not know all the events but almost the full light of knowledge ultimately comes. In this diplomatic world is suspense, the true essence of dramatic interest.

EDUCATION FROM MAGAZINES

One has but to consider a little the hours which parents spend on their children's education, what day school teachers do for them in education, what Sunday school teachers teach them, what the churches do for children and adults, and what the state spends on secular education and good citizenship and then it is not to be wondered at that some magazines which have crept unawares into this country have failed to pass the censor. The latter applies the yardstick of common sense to books and magazines. That seems to be the fairest yardstick so that reading may be wholesome and leave no possible evil influences.

Some magazines have been laid under the censor's refusal because of excessive frankness in certain matters. There are some magazines which seem little worth reading, trashy in the extreme.

There is a vast opportunity in literature for good and there is a vast amount of trouble which may be caused by undesirable articles and any result from such readings is very insidious and in many cases may not be eradicated. Parents who are thinking of their children's reading and also of their own reading are anxious about what reading comes into their home. Magazine literature may be made the vehicle of high moral tone and readers may come to look upon some things as natural which are really to be avoided. For instance some of this "literature" is prone to give the wrong notion of marriage and divorce, when they may be very insidiously worked into a story or a magazine.

There is a vast number of good magazines which should satisfy the taste of every reader.

One can imagine what would happen were there no censorship of publications. Conditions would be much worse than can be imagined. This means that the people must get behind the censor in his work which is so important to the healthy outlook of the people. The work of churches in putting up a vigorous front against undesirable magazines which no doubt interfere greatly with the progress of the churches, is to be commended and supported.

JUBILEE

The theater, which has often represented age as decrepit and worn out, is now proving, in the most practical manner possible, that advancing years need not mean any diminishing either in vigor or ability. This fact is brought home by the preparations that are being made to celebrate appropriately the fiftieth anniversary of the first appearance on the stage of Miss Irene Vanbrugh.

Miss Vanbrugh has played a great part in the history of the modern English stage. She has taken leading roles in the plays of most eminent dramatists from Barrie and Pinero to Mr. Noel Coward. And she is so bright and popular a star as she has ever been during the last half-century.

Yet, striking as is Miss Vanbrugh's achievement, it is by no means unique. Her sister Violet celebrated also her own stage jubilee a year ago. A little earlier Miss Marie Tempest who is now the chief player at one of London's most famous theaters, the Haymarket, marked the conclusion of her fiftieth year on the stage; while Sir Seymour Hicks did likewise a few months ago with one of the longest runs of his extremely successful career. All these players are among London's favorite entertainers of today, entering their second half-century of service with unabated ability and charm.—Christian Science Monitor.

MY WORK

"Let me but do my work from day to day,
In field or forest, at the desk or loom,
In roaring market-place or tranquil room;
Let me but find it in my heart to say,
When vagrant wishes beckon me astray;
This is my work; my blessing, not my doom;
Of all who live, I am the one by whom
This work can best be done, in the right way;
Then shall I see it, not too great, nor small,
To suit my spirit, and to prove my powers;
Then shall I cheerfully greet the laboring hours
And cheerfully turn, when the long shadows fall
At eventide, to play and love and rest,
Because I know for me my work is best."
—Henry Van Dyke.

BELLEVILLE BUSINESS MAN who has had occasion to cross the border several times within the last year or two, has this to offer on the altar of a Greater Canada: Canadian motorists entering the United States are received at entry ports like long lost brothers and sisters and made to feel that they are more than welcome to the land of Uncle Sam. Entering Canada, however, the American tourist, or returning Canadian, encounters an atmosphere resembling hostility, rudeness to say the least, and in many cases made to feel like a criminal while the Canadian official is figuring up whether the returning motorist has executed legal amount of purchases. Admitting that the tourist business means millions to Canada and can be expanded wonderfully the Belleville business man referred to gave it as his opinion that reception at the border from Canadian customs officials would have to be a big deal chilly or many of the American tourists would not return another season. Something should be done, said he, to train government officials in politeness, courtesy and the art of making visitors feel welcome. It would even be worth consideration of having official greeters at the entry ports, where most American tourists come in, to make the welcome a real one and take some of the stiffness out of that irritating Red Tape which is so apt to strangle the human instincts of political appointed officials.

WHEN A MAN IS DEAD HE CANNOT EXPLAIN clauses in his will which seem ambiguous or obscure to those whose interests are brought in to interpret the meaning of the person who left the money. Miller Stork Derby and other famous will court interpretations may be remembered. A recent case of this nature in Belleville affected the will of a Civil Engineer of Louisville, Charles K. Needham, a sentimental bachelor who died ten years ago aged 80, bequeathed money for an annual prize ($100 to $200) for the healthiest white Louisville baby, nine to 12 months old, "nourished by its mother for a period of at least nine months." Trustees of the prize money asked the court to give the money to a milk station, but the court declined the application and decreed that Needham's wishes be carried out to the letter.

GERMANY IS VERY MUCH PERTURBED because the United States hesitates to supply that country with unlimited quantities of helium gas for zeppelins. Count Hugo Eckener, master-maker, designer and pilot of passenger zeppelins, visited Washington personally to try and sell the idea to President Roosevelt of supplying helium gas for Germany's zeppelin fleet. Why not, some day the favor could be reciprocated by a zeppelin fleet dropping a few bombs on Washington. Without helium gas zeppelin development is doomed, says Dr. Eckener, and the United States is the only source of supply.

SUITED AT LAST

The new minister, on a round of visits, arrived at a farmhouse. He was asked if he would like something to drink—a cup of tea, perhaps?

"No, tea for me, thank you."

"Coffee, perhaps"?

"No coffee for me, thank you."

The old farmer whispered: "Whisky and soda"?

"So soda for me, thank you."

PRACTICAL

The train drew up at the tiny station and a tourist put his head out of the window and said to his friend: "Isn't it salubrious?"

"I think it's exhilarating," was the answer.

"We're booth wrong!" said an old local sitting in the same carriage. "It's S'cocombecumCosh."

That Body of Yours

Treatment of Gall Bladder Trouble May Require Surgery, Medicine, or Diet Alone

You may wonder why a physician in treating gall bladder trouble sends some cases into hospital for operation, treats others by medicine, and still others by medicine and diet to be followed strictly. You have perhaps thought of the gall bladder as a small bag which should be removed if it contains any stones; whereas if all cases of gall stones underwent operation, all surgeons could be kept busy.

As a matter of fact the gall bladder is removed only when there is a new growth (cancer), excessive stone formation causing frequent attacks of colic, or when the symptoms of indigestion—nausea, vomiting, and painful gas formation—make life hardly worth living, and the results from the operation—when the patient follows diet and other instructions—generally are, in most cases, very satisfactory.

However there are some borderline cases, that is those in which a person would like to use medical and diet treatment, if he could manage alone, and thus try to avoid operation, and there are other cases the last are severe enough to require operation but for various reasons—bad heart, age, generally poor condition of the patient, unwillingness to undergo operation—in which diet treatment offers the best help.

The usual symptoms of gall bladder trouble are "pinching" of pressure, distress in the upper part of the abdomen coming on after the taking of food, biliousness, sometimes nausea and vomiting, occasional jaundice, constipation, and loss of appetite". To prescribe a diet to prevent or relieve these symptoms requires much thought and knowledge, not only about food but about the patient himself, his surroundings and his likes and dislikes.

The foods to be used are the nonirritating foods—fruits, some of the leafy vegetables, milk and fish once a day—never fried, very little butter, no gravies, no fried meat or fish, plenty of water, dilute fruit juices, milk, buttermilk, and weak tea.

The foods to be avoided are—cream, alcohol, coffee, fat pork, rich meats and fish, cheeses except cottage cheese, corn, cabbage, cauliflower, onions, raw vegetables, gravies, pie, nuts alcoholics, pastry.

THE OFFICIAL CENSOR

For 19 years Canada's official censor, G. Sydney Roe, has been poring over confession magazines, horror tales, "spicy" stories and pornographic pictures and rules by his decision in each case whether or not censorship is "good common sense"

Recent banning of a magazine containing pictures of a nude baby directed attention to the world-renowned job he performs as examiner of publications in the national revenue department. Decisions, said Canadians, may read and what they mustn't.

In pursuit of Mr. Roe judges each book and magazine that passes through Canada Customs. He reads and bans few of the hundreds that are sent to him as allegedly immoral. Only a few of the books and magazines were referred to him. Most recommended may be refused entry to Canada. They didn't measure up on the common sense yardstick.

Despite his contact with risque reading, Mr. Roe remains unperturbed still thinks the world is "a pretty good place to live in." He begins his day's work at 9 o'clock and leaves at 5 o'clock. He looks his files of suggestive trash and forgets all about it. He reads biographies and works on political science in his leisure.

Mr. Roe believes the faster tempo of the modern today has caused the breakdown of inhibitions. Obscenity goes in cycles, he says. "You get the worry and the be about indecent postcards and novelties, then the interest wanes and trashy magazines taking up the time.

Often he discovers that the old saying about one not being able to tell a book by its cover is true. In a book innocently titled Lives of the Saints he found hundreds of sweepstake tickets where the lives of the saints should have been. Another magazine with a bold bearing jackets proclaiming them "views of religion" turned out to be about anything but religion.

Mr. Roe's office, once a year he No "collectio erotica" clutters and a confidential messenger tres down in the basement of the building with a wheel-barrow of books and magazines which are burned then in the flames of the furnace. —CP

AMPHIBIOUS FARM

A Kennebec farm is an unmistakable thing of the sea. In it, first of all, and trees and plow horses are trained to shorten up on one side. It isn't as bad as Paul Bunyan's crew getting to be longlegged to port that caused them from cutting a mountain section, but something like that. It has to matter what way you go, you have to go uphill or down. And that igning grin into living there. There

Fifty scrapping men and women plunged into the cellar of a house in Hamilton, Ont., when the floor on which they were standing during an auction sale gave way. Only five, however, were injured, the most suffering cuts and bruises.

The auction sale conducted at the home of Arthur Meppin, Queen St., had been under way a few hours when the joists cracked and the linoleum and furniture in the room were hurled into the cellar. The picture shows the floor after the collapse.

Calcium Chloride And Cars

The use of calcium chloride on highways has cost motorists many thousands of dollars in damage to their cars. It is used to keep down dust and also to mix with sand used for sprinkling on roads in the winter to keep the sand from freezing. It makes the roads much easier to handle no doubt, but it also causes even greater damage to cars than in the summer months.

The calcium chloride causes damage in a number of ways. It causes brake and clutch to corrode and stick to the rod on which they operate so that they will not work properly and sometimes not at all. At least six 1938 cars in the Belleville area were temporarily put out of commission and many older ones also had to be repaired from the same cause. Quite a number of mufflers have been eaten through by the calcium chloride and have had to be replaced and the paint or enamel has also been damaged in many cases. Any garage mechanic in this part of the Province can give many instances of damage to cars due to calcium chloride.

On the other hand it is not nearly as effective as oil for keeping down dust. Two or three weeks is usually as long as it has any noticeable effect either on No. 7 Highway, east or west of Marmora or on No. 14. It is safe to say that oil will keep down the dust from three to four times as long as calcium chloride, for each application, and would also keep the road in much better condition. It may be true that some sections prefer the calcium chloride but in Hastings county a week would probably show 20 to 1 in favor of oil to keep down the dust—Marmora Herald.

Art of Living Lost

I'd like to know, but somehow I don't get time."

Ever heard that phrase? If you haven't you have not been around. It's in constant use. With all the hustle and bustle, this seems to be getting more and more an age of "I haven't time."

At every social or public function nowadays, the chairman always invariably says, generally, of course, "Mr. So and So 'phoned me that he regretted exceedingly that another engagement made it impossible for him to attend."

Men don't seem to have time to spend an evening at home with their families; women don't seem to have the time for the domestic chores of their children that mother had a generation ago.

The business and professional world has got to the stage where there seems to be time for nothing but chasing the elusive dollar. Time was, and that not so many years ago, when a funeral in the community was a sign for drawn blinds and a day's rest from all the obsequies. Now a great man or a financial pillar must fall in our midst before the week-a-day world takes much notice. Many of the finer and nobler sides of human nature are being blurred and spoiled by the cry "I haven't time" to do those things which bring out and develop the finest traits of character.

It will be noticed, however, that people "have time" to do the things they want to do most and if they are losing sight of the finer things of life it is largely because material interests are paramount.

"Where people find a way, they have time," are losing the best in life. They have to take time to do some day.

Army Worm Starts Its March

Reports from Eastern Ontario are that the lest caterpillars are appearing in great numbers. A few years ago this pest was known only in North-western Ontario, but through this section from the West, moving down from the area about the Manitoba border.

Two summers ago it seemed to have had its peak and the extent to which it swarmed over the vegetable growing districts gave rise to possibility that a similar increase in number the next season, 1937, would see vast areas of crops entirely destroyed. Confirming these facts, the pests were to be observed about the city during the fall and winter. There were many of them on Christmas trees during many city homes.

The same season, however, the pest was not as bad last year as the previous year. The explanation was not definite. Nature, which acts and does not talk, is probably looking after itself. This seems comparatively little thought about the possibilities of a 1938 plague. There will probably be some of the army worm, which is in the poplar areas, but, it is hoped, not as bad as last year.

Meanwhile Eastern Ontario which two years ago could only read about the lest caterpillars or army worms now knows them by acquaintance. The usual damage are going up that the government are looking about it. Truth is that the government is doing something. It has its entomologists at work and a campaign parasite which will feed on the eggs of the army worm, month. What degree of success it will have is only a matter of conjecture. —Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

JURY'S VERDICT ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Frank VanNorman Killed on May 1st Near Railway Bridge

Frank Van Norman, late King Street resident, died from injuries received after being struck by an unidentified westbound Canadian Pacific Railway train between the Front Street crossing and the Moira River bridge on May 1st, a jury empanelled to probe into the cause of his death decided last night after hearing evidence of several witnesses at an inquest held under Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson.

Questioned by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, who conducted the Inquest, Thomas Barry, 71 Church Street, told the jury, Van Norman had spent the evening of April 30th at his home, leaving shortly before 2 a.m. on May 1st. James Rushlow corroborated witnesses' evidence.

Charles Summers, C.P.R. signalman on duty at the C.P.R. tracks at the place, where the accident occurred, testified that five trains had crossed the bridge between one and five o'clock that morning. He had discovered the body lying in the tracks east of the bridge at 5.35 a.m. and a dismembered foot, some forty or fifty feet away.

No blood or other evidence has been found on the equipment of the trains, that had crossed the bridge that morning, making identification of the train that struck deceased impossible, James Stinson, C.P.R. investigator told the jury. Sergt. Harman and Police Constable C. Arnold testified to visiting the scene of the accident after being notified by Summers. The jury deliberated ten minutes before returning their verdict.

CANADIAN GARDEN SERVICE 1938

BY GORDON LINDSAY SMITH

Bare Spots In Lawns

Disfiguring bare spots in an otherwise good looking lawn can be removed, though the job will require a little patience. Like a disease the cause must be analyzed before treatment can be attempted. There may be various reasons, such as short cuts by children, milkmen or dogs, sour or poor soil under-drainage, or starvation, or shade.

If the grass is simply worn thin by traffic then the owner must decide whether the path is going to be continued. If so experts advise giving up the attempt to grow grass and paving with flag stones, cinders, brick and or similar quick drying material. If a path is not wanted then it may be necessary to protect by wire or a hedge and make sure the practice of short-cutting is discontinued.

If soil is poor or sour underneath, it will be necessary to dig up, remove any gravel or stones, filling up with good earth and sowing thickly with a good quality of Canadian grass seed. For this purpose and for new lawns it is always best to get a good mixture of high quality packaged grass seed blended, by experts.

Sour soil can be corrected by an application of garden lime once or twice every few years. Moss is usually the sign of sour soil or too much shade. For partially shaded positions it is advisable to use a special shade seed mixture. Every big seed house puts up such. Of course close to the north side of a house or under trees or shrubbery it is difficult to grow good grass in any case and sometimes rather than make the attempt it is advisable to fill in with shrubbery or pave the areas with flat stones or plant wild flowers.

Where weeds are the cause of the grass dying the remedy will be digging out the offenders, adding rich soil and treading once or twice with a liberal application of commercial fertilizer or manure. Grass is a crop just like vegetables or flowers and must have good soil, and suggestions for greater expenditure. French-Canadian members took little part in the discussion.

Lacking, too, was the customary attack of Miss Agnes Macphail (UFO-Labor Grey-Bruce) on the item for cadet training. For many years Miss Macphail has opposed this expenditure but she has been ill and was not in the House yesterday.

One item was left over to enable later discussion on any of the defence projects.

Questioned on every phase of the expenditures Mr. Mackenzie told the committee recruiting for the non-permanent forces was proceeding at an encouraging pace and that eventually Canada would have to rely on Canadian manufacturers for essential materials for an emergency.

In sharp contrast to the defence debate of last year, when French speaking members moved to decrease the expenditures of this department, the members yesterday satisfied themselves with questions

Showers of Sparks

Passengers told of the jarring impact of the crash followed by blinding showers of sparks in the pitch black tunnel.

Screaming women and blood-spattered victims jostled in the darkness in a mad scramble to escape through the splintered windows. Charing Cross station, in the heart of London, was turned into an emergency hospital. Dozens of doctors, nurses and stretcher bearers rushed there. Ambulances and motors choked streets around the station.

The crowded coaches were twisted, and plunged into darkness. There were scenes of panic when a battery beneath one train sent a shower of sparks through the tunnel.

Fought Way to Tracks

Women screamed, thinking the train was on fire. Crowds smashed windows and fought their way onto the tracks.

Norman Birkett, K.C., the noted barrister, struggled out of one coach.

"Everyone in my compartment was badly shaken," he said.

"It was an eerie and upsetting experience to see stretchers going by along the line for the injured."

One passenger on the first train said: "We had not quite stopped and were just crawling along when suddenly there was a terrific jolt as the train in back crashed into us. I was flung off my feet. Our guard had a broken leg, and we helped him down. The driver of the oncoming train had a miraculous escape, for he didn't seem hurt."

Leading Train Almost Stopped

The leading train was almost at a standstill when that following crashed into it. Its lights were extinguished and passengers, thrown around in the cars, struggled in the darkness. Men lighting matches revealed injured with broken noses and gashes caused by scattered glass.

A battery blew out under the car with a blinding flash, the sparks accentuating the blackness.

Four of the injured were impris-oned for 2 1-2 hours. All efforts were compelled to remain in the cars till the power was cut off for fear they would tread on the third rail and be electrocuted. Finally they were allowed to disembark in the pitch black tunnel in which rescuers struggled to light them. Those who could walk stumbled a quarter-mile to Charing Cross station where they reached the surface.

Cut Out Sides

Wrecking cars jacked up the cars and cut out the side to release the injured. Operations were hampered by the low ceiling of the tunnel, which allowed only two feet clearance.

The conductor of the leading train was uninjured despite the fact his car and the rear car of the first train telescoped to the extent of six feet.

Among the dead were: D. M. Norreys, a resident of Mallow Castle, County Cork, Eire; David Frank Sturdee, Earl's Court, London; Eric Gallatly, New Cavendish Street, London; Major Richard Pardon, Royal George Road, Burgess Hill; and a man whose season ticket bore the name of G. Wallis, Hassacks.

Leslie Burgin, Minister of Transport opened an investigation.

"Girl of the Golden West"

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy have reached their topmost heights to date as the screen's queen and king of song in "The Girl of the Golden West" which the Belle screen today and Wednesday matinee daily.

An excellent blending of charming music and the romance of California in the early tribald gold camp and pastoral mission days, the new operatic production has been recommended for theatre-goers and music lovers of all ages. The picture is based on David Belasco's memorable stage play.

Miss MacDonald pays Mary the orphaned owner of the Polka Saloon, a dance hall, gambling and all, is in love with her but Mary falls in love with Ramerez, romantic bandit who is wanted by the young army officers. A jilted sweetheart betrays Ramerez to Rance but the bandit escapes, wounded to Mary's cabin where he is captured. Mary promises to marry Rance if he frees Ramerez and a very dramatic climax culminates the lovers.

Interspersed through the romance are numerous new and beautiful tunes by Sigmund Romberg and Gus Kahn. They are Senorita", "Who Are We to Say", "Shadows on the Moon", "The Wild Colt of Mexico", "Sun-up to Sundown", "Soldiers of Fortune" and "Mariache". Miss MacDonald also sings Gounod's "Ave Maria" and Liszt's "Dream of Love". Buddy Ebsen sings "The West Ain't Wild Any More", one of the comedy highlights in a picture packed with entertainment.

The Belle News of the Day, precedes the feature attraction.

The annual meeting of Kingston church hall.

Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church was held in St. Andrew's Church, Gananoque, on May 12th with a very fine attendance of members. The executive met at 11 o'clock. The open meeting in the afternoon in charge of the president, Mrs. W. A. Hunter, of Madoc, who gave the call to worship and the worship period was taken by Mrs. Duff and Mrs. Preswarden, of Kingston. This was followed by a moment of silent prayer in memory of two devoted officers who died during the past year, Mrs. Alex Fargey, of Stirling, and Miss Moore, of Kingston. An address of welcome was given by Mrs. Bain of Gananoque. The recording secretary, Mrs. Cameron, of Pittsburg, read the minutes of the last presbyterial meeting and also of the executive meetings in Belleville and in Kingston. The corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. Ranson, of Belleville, gave the roll call and each auxiliary gave an interesting item from the year's work. The reports of the secretary treasurer and departmental secretaries were given and Mrs. Bailey gave the prayer for dedication of the year's work. Mrs. Gaston, of Kingston, read the report of the provincial meeting held in Galt, which had been prepared by Mrs. Keith Wilson of Kingston. Mrs. Hunter also gave some interesting items from the provincial. The offering was taken and Miss Rose Mowbray, home on a furlough from Jhansi, India, gave a delightful address in which she told of the work on an inland inany trip around the compound and among the workers.

Mrs. Wm. Weeb, of Gananoque, brought greetings from the Anglican Church. The afternoon session was closed with singing and prayer. The ladies of St. Andrew's Church served a delicious supper in the

Child's Heart Often Too Tender

Grenelle Tells About Youngster Who Fled Scenes of Suffering

(By LISA GRENELLE)

After the puppy bit one of George's rabbits, George announced that he hated the puppy. He announced also that he didn't want the rabbit any more. It was no good now; his father was welcome to it.

There was nothing new about this attitude. George had reacted the same way when his mother was ill. The sight and fear of her contorted illness and suffering became too painful for him, so he refused to visit the sick room.

It's perfectly natural for a child to run away from what hurts him, to avoid the signs of anything that frightens him. George deserted his sick mother and discarded the crippled pet, not because he was cruel or cold-hearted it was his excessive warmth of heart that was his undoing.

A less tender, less impressionable nature might have behaved better. It would have been easy enough for George to have said he grieved, in the case of both his mother and the rabbit, if he had felt their suffering less. Not much self-control is needed to watch another's agony if it awakens no sympathetic agony in your own heart.

Teach Him Control

Nevertheless George should be taught to control himself in such circumstances. Such shrinking and desertion may be natural and understandable in a child of his highly sensitive temperament, but in a man, regardless of his temperament, it would be condemned.

Although in your heart you may understand and even extuse George's conduct. George himself should be made aware of the more certain terms that he is behaving badly. He should be told that it is his mother and not he who is hurt when he runs away. He should be told that it is his mother who is in pain or in trouble. Make it very clear to him that your reason for deserting him is the same as his reason for deserting his mother and his pet in their hour of pain and trouble.

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

The monthly meeting of the W. A. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Ivey Craig on Thursday afternoon May 12th, with sixteen ladies present. Scripture lesson was read by the treasurer, Mrs. Claude Clarke. Interesting items from each group were in charge of the meeting and gave a reading entitled "Prayer and Response." Rev. Mr. Craig led in prayer, Mrs. C. Boultbridge read the business, Mrs. Clarke "Mother's Day."

Mrs. E. Bennet read a letter of thanks from Mr. L. E. Mill, to the society for the card sent to him on his birthday. Mrs. Clarke also expressed her thanks for the card sent to her when she was ill. Mrs. Ben Gilroy also thanked the society for the card sent to Carter. A dollar and a half was sent to Miss Florence Terry to carry on this work.

Mrs. Harry Murphey gave a humorous reading which was much enjoyed. Mrs. Frank Doxtator agreed to act as the delegate to the convention in the fall. A solo by Bowe, at which the minister's wife is to be one of the speakers, arrangements were made for those who wished to go. Mrs. Robertson gave a Mother's Day reading after the closing hymn all repeated the Lord's Prayer in unison. Collection amounted to $1.89. Ladies were then invited to the dining room where a delicious lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants, and a social time enjoyed. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Craig for her kind hospitality.

Hairdress Styles Follow Trends in New Fashions

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

CLOTHES go, so do coiffures and hats. When the "high priestess" of fashion resurrected the quaint styles of the nineties, the merry widow hat and the Recamier hairdress were revived—naturally. Fancy a boyish bob with those old-time duds!

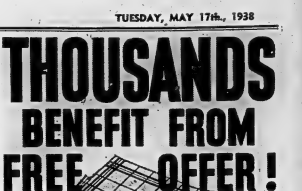
LOLA LANE

Who likes the new trend in smart coiffures.

There are exciting possibilities in new upped coiffures. Every one can have an original arrangement. If you have a wayward curling that hangs because a bang roll is into a puff and use it to fill in. Should you be so unlucky as not to have a full-sized bang of hair, you can purchase demountable curls and nobody will be the wiser. Tuck 'em in where they'll do the most good.

Sailors and wide-brimmed, flappy hats look better with hair done high than with locks flowing. So perhaps the swept-up coiffure will become a permanent feature and will be worn day and night. The business of having a two-day arrangement, fixed for the fish, for night, is altogether too confusing for a busy woman.

To contract enlarged pores and to keep the skin from being excessively oily, sponge the face with witch hazel that is ice cold. Put it on with cotton or gauze, let it dry.



Use a light powder, don't rub it in; fluff it on. Scouring the skin with a powder pad enlarges sebacious glands. They spout something awful.

A shaft of hair is like a glass rod. The coloring cells are inside, show through. When those cells disappear, the hair is white.

What causes their disappearance has not been determined. Doctors who have made surveys claim that prolonged worry will undoubtedly cause depigmentation of the shiny shafts. Inheritance has something to do with it. If mother and father are prematurely gray, the chances are that the children will face the same problem.

Scalp massage is a preventive agency against loss of hair. After the shower, brushing place the fingers and thumbs outspread over the head and rub briskly. Don't be gentle. What you are attempting to do is to start blood rushing and galloping, to make the scalp tissues healthier. By being careful, the hair can be kept in place without destroying the finger wave.

BRIDAL SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—A high school friend of mine is to be married next month. Would one month before the wedding date be all right for a shower?

2—The shower will have to be given here. What colors should the decorations be?

3—She is planning a chapel wedding. Another wedding present expected from the girls who attend the shower?

4—Should invitations to the shower be written by hand on paper like this, or on printed forms?

R.

1—Yes, about one month before the wedding date is a perfect time for a bridal shower.

2—Pink and white are very often chosen for the colors of decorations for pre-wedding parties, because they give a delightfully "bride-y" appearance, and too, for a color scheme the bride's favorite color is featured in the decorations. Whichever color scheme you choose, you should, appropriately, predominate the favorite flowers, especially loved for your table scheme.

3—The wedding present is the important thought and if the budgets are trained by two gifts (as they so often are), the girls should give a simple inexpensive gifts for the shower presents. This kind of gift is the fun of fact, always appropriate for a shower gift.

4—Every formal invitations to the shower. If you have visiting-cards these are correct to use for your shower invitations, with the information written as you would write it for an invitation to a tea. Or you may, with taste and propriety, use the white double-fold letter-paper on which you wrote to me.

Extra Escort

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—We are two girls, ages sixteen and seventeen. Our school is to give an informal dance very soon and we girl friends would like to have a boy friend of hers who lives in a town two very far from here. She is also going to the dance. Would it be for me . . . a friend of the first boy, to ask all girls? Will the boys get the idea that we are short on boys and have to ask them?

2—Should we pay for them, should we buy the tickets ahead of time and give them to the boys to keep, or should we let them buy tickets after we get to the dance?

Two Readers

1—When a girl is to have no escort, a partner invited for her by this hostess is correct. There is no way of knowing how the boy will interpret the invitation. However, in this instance, I think it is very often done, and if the boy doesn't like the idea of being an extra—a third-person he certainly has the privilege of regretting the invitation.

2—Since you and the other girl are inviting the boys to be your guests at this dance, you should, as co-hostesses, should buy the tickets and either keep them to give to the boys when they arrive at the door or send them to the boy who is taking the girl who is your guest friend. In fay event, you should not, in fact, ask the boys to buy tickets for the dance to which you are inviting them.

Must Gift

Dear Mrs Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if it is bad form for a couple, who while not formally engaged now expect that to be the case soon, to give a joint wedding present to another young couple with whom they are very well acquainted?

M.

The couple might send the wedding present jointly, since they would be married soon, but since they are being married, but it would be far better form for them to send separate presents.

The Umbrella

By Ella Rogers Rollings

"Yes, Sarah, it has been an exciting morning. Never in thirty-nine years of my lifetime has so much occurred in the space of a few hours. No, Sarah, I said thirty-nine, not forty-nine.

"Of course, I was almost late for church. Just as I was about to start, one of the wings dropped from the bird on the front of my hat. It took me quite a while to decide whether I should go back and change or let the bird have only one wing. I finally let it go.

"I made up my mind that I had better take my umbrella. You know, Sarah, that looked like a kind of threatening thy morning, although it didn't rain. As things turned out, it was fortunate that I took the umbrella with me.

"Although I've played the organ in our church for twenty years, Sarah, this morning I became forgotten my glasses. No, Sarah, I said twenty, not thirty.

"When I opened my hand-bag to take out my spectacles, to my astonishment, there upon appeared my there in the top. I knew in a minute that I must have placed my glasses in the sugar bowl. I could see things at a distance pretty well, but to see the notes of the music, I had to sit way back on the organ stool and throw my head back.

"Well, Sarah, things started right away. Jimmie Smith was there to pump the organ, but he was so interested in smiling at the perkins girl that he forgot to pump. Finally I got up, cry to play, a prelude, but no sound came. I had to reverse the pedals and look down at my head around with the curved handle. He began to pump immediately and I commenced to me usic, Sarah, it was a mighty good thing that my umbrella was right there beside me.

"From the beginning I felt quite nervous. Mrs. Stebbins was to sing a soprano in the choir and I had to accompany her on the piano.

"When the anthem started, old Mr. Stebbins, our only bass singer, was absent. He was always asleep. Playing the introduction I looked around for Mr. Stebbins, but he was not in the other and jarred at his feet, He jumped up wildly. 'Where is he, Miranda, I'll be downstairs in a minute.'

"The first part of the anthem wasn't bad at all, but toward the last nobody came in at all but the bass singer.

"By this time I was so flustered that I didn't know what I had to be soon was about. When it was halfway through, I suddenly saw a note pinned to the back of the minister's coat. It was just the right distance from me so that I could read it. It said: 'I can't preach no more things at a distance pretty well, but to see the notes of the music, I had to sit way back on the organ stool and throw my head back.

"Well, Sarah, I considered it my boundert duty to get that tell-tale note off Mr. Pritchard's back. It was pinned on with only one pin so I took the handle of my umbrella and tried to knock the pin up and make it drop out. Mr. Pritchard kept looking around at me queerly, and I suppose he felt some bumps from the umbrella; I kept right on until, finally, the note dropped off his back.

"I had planned to play Robenstein's Melody in F for a postlude. You know, Sarah, I often play that, as I remembered it years ago, especially after I memorized The Merry Widow Waltz. It didn't occur to me at all that I wasn't playing The Melody in F until someone said to me after church, 'What was that pretty piece in waltz time that you just played? Then I knew I had played The Merry Widow Waltz through instead of the usual recessional. Yes, I do seem to be getting a little absent-minded.

"Well, I felt quite calm down when I reached my yard and I walked up the walk. Suddenly the house very quietly.

"And there, Sarah, I could see my husband through a bay into which he was stuffing all my best silver that used to belong to Grandma Griffin. He plainly hadn't heard me enter so after almost rewarding up and unscrewing the electric light bulb, I threw it at him with all my strength and it hit him right on the nose.

"It was a loud explosion; the burglar dropped the bag and, yelling 'I'm shot,' ran out of the front door at a good speed. I picked up my skirt and ran right after him, calling 'Stop thief!' He went down the street until he stumbled over Thompson's cat which was sunning itself on the sidewalk. The cat's robber fell flat on his stomach and, as Thompson's cat arched its back, facing his feet, I whacked his legs as hard as I could with my umbrella. A crowd collected in just a few minutes.

"Take this hell-cat off me,' he roared.

"'Young man,' I said firmly, 'if with a whack, I'm a respectable woman and you can't call me names. Now apologize and be did!

"Well, Sarah, I have all my silver back and that misguided young man will be put where he can't steal any more. As I said, it has been anything but a quiet Sunday after all. I'm glad I took my umbrella if I expect to be able to play in church tonight as well as this morning. I was bothered when I found I had left my spectacles in the sugar bowl, I'm so glad now it wasn't my umbrella."

Many A Man Has escaped a nervous breakdown

It is now becoming generally known, by word of mouth from one person to another, that excess of nervous, worried business men attributed their many years of collapse to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Business cares and worries of recent years have made men old before their time. Almost daily you read of prominent men dropping out in the very prime of life.

Others have survived, because they learned in time of a way to restore nerve force to the body. As a result, weak, halting vital organs have again assumed their natural functions. Many a life has been made happier and more useful. If you find yourself slipping ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. In almost every family there is some one who has profited by use of this modern restorative.

Girls Ask What Is A "Past"

Is Woman Who Has One Necessarily Immoral?

By VIRGINIA LEE

TWO GIRLS who sign themselves 21 and 22 want to know what it means when a woman has "a past".

These girls do not smoke or drink and are "good sports". They have been out with a good many boys, dance well, shake fairly well and have strict moral standards.

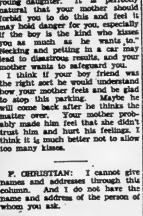
They have been told that a girl does not have to be "immoral" to be accused of having this mysterious thing called a "past", and they want to know if this is true. They wonder what the boys think of it.

To really have a "purple past" a girl is supposed to have "crossed the line." Are you put it, girls, and bad illicit relations with men. They may have been mothers without being married. That is the thing that haunts girls, and makes them fearful of discovery.

Anyone may be accused unjustly of having been immoral, however, if they have kept fast company, whether they have actually done anything or not. That is why it is much wiser for them to go only with other young people of good character. It is easy to acquire a bad name, and then hard to prove that you have done nothing wrong if you go with a swift crowd without good moral standards.

A FAITHFUL READER is 18 and has been going with a boy steadily.

When they came home at night they were in the habit of parking down the road for half an hour or more. The girl's mother told her not to do this any more, and she told her boy friend. Now he has stopped coming to see her.



Our faithful reader wants to know if she has been in this "parking business," and also if she should allow a boy to kiss her as much as he wants to.

If you and the boy friend are of good character, my dear, there is no more harm in having a visit in an automobile than there is in your mother's living room. But there always is a danger in every motor car mind as to how far any young man may be trusted with her young daughter. It is perfectly natural that your mother should forbid you to do this and feels it may hold danger for you, especially if the boy is the kind who takes you as much as he wants to." Necking and petting in a car may lead to disastrous results and your mother wants to safeguard you.

I think if your boy friend was the right sort he would understand how your mother feels and be glad to stop this parking, because he will come back after he thinks the matter over. Your mother probably made him feel that she didn't trust him and hurt his feelings. I think it is much better not to allow too many kisses.

Watch Wilt On Asparagus

Asparagus wilt

Asparagus wilt

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Central Press Garden Expert

EVERY HOME gardener is eager to feast upon his own "home grown" asparagus, but do not make the mistake of continuing to cut it over too long a period or next year's yield will be reduced.

All cutting of asparagus should stop around June 30. This allows the plants to grow and strengthen the crown for next year's supply.

Once an asparagus bed is established it requires but little care; keep wich, however, for signs of wilt. This Garden-Graph shows how wilt affects the asparagus stalks just after they have shot up above ground. If many of the plants show this wilting, new healthy shoots should be started in another location. If just one or two plants show wilt they should be destroyed, roots and all.

Swimming for Beauty Makes One Symmetrical

Exercise Is Good Fun and Develops Grace

Eleanor Holm
One of our better swimmers

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

HERCULES MODELS are going to the beach than lolling on the sand! You can SWIM for beauty. This is an idea that has been expounded by experts, and it certainly appeals to this department. There is nothing that makes us happier than enjoying ourselves and still knowing it is good for us...Fun is so seldom healthful.

Swimming, official National Swim for Health week point with pride to prominent female swimming stars. These girls have certainly got everything—glowing complexions, graceful posture, and perfectly developed bodies. On the other hand, many famous movie athletes who are tops at other sports do sometimes have over-developed unfeminine muscles. In many cases girls who participate in other sports go for aquatics just to keep their bodies symmetrical.

Diving refreshing will give you those longed for perfect proportions, there's no reason why it can't work whether you are thin or fat. It's a real boon to the underweight and the overweight. By exercising the abdominal muscles, you will drop those dreaded rolls of fat around the waist. Flabby arms and legs will be transformed into lithe and shapely appendages, as smooth muscles replace the flesh that formerly marred your appearance.

To Develop Chest

Naturally, if you are too thin, you won't automatically put on weight by swimming. What will cause you to lose that emaciated look is the development of muscle which will give your arms and legs rounded contours. You can, however, produce some fat to fill in those neck hollows. Swimming calls for an equal distribution of flesh to resist the pull of the water, and nature answers this call. The swimmer's appetite improves and provides material to build those neck hollows. Gradually many of these hollows, disappear as you find your muscles are improved in tone and your posture corrected. Postural defects accentuate all your figure shortcomings, but when you are erect and poised, you appear to be perfectly proportioned even if you do have a few defects.

If your chest measurements are too small, instead of swimming various strokes, concentrate on the breast and back strokes. These movements have a noticeable effect in developing flesh around the bust and strengthening sagging breast muscles.

The sport of water babies will make you have fine complexions and good health, too. A clear complexion is a sign of a purified digestive and circulatory system. The use of the important muscles in this exercise creates a need for additional oxygen in various parts of the body. In order to supply this oxygen, the rate of your blood circulation is increased. This increases respiration, and as the blood travels more frequently to all parts of your body it removes impurities. Your digestive action is improved as the internal organs begin to function properly.

Needless to say, this good clean fun will put you in top form for the evening's entertainment.

Poems That Live

SERENADE

Softly, O midnight Hours!
Move softly o'er the bowers
Where lies in happy sleep a girl so fair!

For ye have power, men say,
Our hearts in sleep to sway,
And cage cold fancies in a moonlight snare.

Round ivory neck and arm
Enclasp a separate charm:
Hang o'er her poised, but breathe nor sigh nor prayer:

Silently ye may smile,
But hold your breath the while,
And let the wind sweep back your cloudy hair!

Bend down your glittering urn,
Ere yet the dawn returns,
And star with dew the lawn her feet shall tread;
Soon the air rain balm,
Rid all the wrath be calm,
Ambrosial dreams with healthful slumbers wed.

That so the Maiden may
With smiles your care repay,
When from her couch she lifts her golden head;
Walking with earliest birds,
Eye the misty herds,
Leave warm 'mid the gray grass their dusky bed.

Green Onions
Sponge or Angel Food Cake With Sunshine Topping
Coffee

Have you a satisfactory recipe for angel food or sponge cake? I have given you both in this column. Try topping one or the other with this marshmallow topping when you want to be extra spiffy.

Today's Recipes
SUNSHINE MARSHMALLOW TOPPING — Four eggs, one-third cup sugar, three-quarters cup pineapple juice, one-fourth pound marshmallows, one-fourth teaspoon vanilla extract. Beat the egg yolks until light. Add the sugar slowly, while beating constantly. Then add pineapple juice. Cook over a low heat until thick (about eight minutes.) Set aside to cool slightly. Cut the marshmallows in small pieces, using a pair of scissors dipped in water. Add these and the vanilla extract to the egg yolk mixture, blend lightly, and chill. Then fold in the egg whites, beaten very stiff. Keep in the refrigerator until ready to serve. Then place a generous spoonful of the topping over each slice of cake.

Flowers Trim Small Girls' Bonnets

Hats for Young Follow Trends of Adult Lines

By LISSETH

IT'S A TRUTE saying that when a woman is low-spirited she can snap out of it by buying a new hat.

Buying a new and becoming hat always does raise one's spirits, I admit. But what a thrill is a new bonnet to the wee girl? Do you remember your own emotions when it happened to you? I do. Small girls like their mothers and big sisters, very often go hatless these modern days. But that does not mean that they do not possess, or want to possess, smart chapeaux.

Little ladies follow their elders in hat trends, too, as you can see by looking at little Juanita Quigley, baby screen star, who is all dressed up in a pretty bonnet of beige straw with poke brim and some pretty forget-me-nots under the edge. Dark blue ribbon ties this becoming hat under the little girl's chin and encircles the slightly raised crown.

Ensembles for Children

The ensemble idea is as strong in children's fashions this year as it is for adults. And just as much style and interest, as well as sophistication, must go into the designing of these clothes as for those of grown-ups.

This ensemble idea is carried out in their play clothes as well as in their dress ones.

There are beach coats, boleros or jackets to accompany play suits, and often bonnets or berets or other types of headgear as well.

The dirndl is also as popular a type of frock for the little girl as it is for her elders. It is shown with angular neck and buttons down the front; or with round neck and slide or button closing down the back. Very often these little frocks are shown with matching scarf, cap or bonnet.

Even the laced girdle is reproduced in play clothes for children. Skirts are full over shorts or sunsuit or rompers. And the gayest of prints are used—with horses, children, mountains and trees, etc., in bright colors.

Pottery colors are favorites with the youngsters, too, and it is said that the more extreme the color combination the better liked these gay clothes are.

Style Whimsies

Silk and rayon jerseys continue popular for day and evening wear.

Elastic suits with multi-colored floral effects are being used extensively for summer bathing suits. Also, seashells printed in color on white ground are effective, and different.

More Space for Clean Towels

An extension towel bar with two extra arms is a marvelous convenience for bathrooms with limited wall space. It can be hooked onto the towel bar temporarily to furnish additional space for guest towels, or be permanently attached to provide room for the individual towels and wash clothes that are prime cleanliness requirements for every member of the family.

Little Juanita Quigley wears a spring bonnet of beige straw with poke brim, forget-me-not trim and dark blue ties.

Damaged Liver Gives One That 'Morning After' Taste

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE MAN in the street frequently refers to "biliousness". The Englishmen, more often than his American brother, speaks of being "liverish". But your doctor is liable to "pooh pooh" when you say you are bilious. The medical profession has not taken very kindly to the idea that there are functional capacity of the liver) on which can be recognized and identified by their symptoms.

It is somewhat surprising, therefore, that Sir Arthur Hurst, senior physician at Guy's hospital, London, should choose the subject of "Biliousness, and Wind Around the Heart" for the very swanky Harveian lecture in 1938.

The symptoms, according to Sir Arthur, are that a man wakes up with a dull headache, a dirty tongue, no appetite for breakfast, and the conviction that life is not worth living, tells his wife that his bad temper is due to his liver, and the doctor be damned.

The liver is well provided with means of taking care of poisons, but it is not always capable of destroying them when they arrive in excess.

Among the poisons that most commonly derange the liver is alcohol, and according to tests reported, even the small amount that causes perceptible liver damage. Five young men were tested with the levulose-test (which tests the functional capacity of the liver) on different occasions, once on Friday morning after the night before, and again when they had been abstemious for several days. In spite of the fact that "the morning after" consisted of only a slight case of indulgence, impaired liver function was demonstrable. Sound was noted, compared to the normal morning in all five of these human guinea pigs.

Liver Damaged

Continuous and habitual use, of course, is liable to lead to more extensive liver damage. Chronic drinkers usually have a fairly accurate knowledge of the surface anatomy of the liver because they can feel their own livers, and aching livers among them are not uncommon.

The liver makes a remarkable cone-back, however, under favorable circumstances. We have the record of a man who drank a bottle of champagne a day for 20 years. He was thought to be dying from some obscure abdominal complaint; his liver was large, hard and very tender. After three months on a strict diet his liver could no longer be felt and he returned home, perfectly fit, able to play tennis and golf for the first time in five years.

Another one had drunk from one to three bottles of whiskey a day for over a year, but also recovered completely.

The relation between magraine (sick headache) and biliousness has often been emphasized. What is called an attack of biliousness in a child is about the same thing as an attack of migraine in an adult.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

MRS. F.: "My cat, who had kittens some weeks ago, bit and scratched my little girl very badly a few days ago. Since then the cat hasn't eaten, and acts very strangely and also vomits a lot. Do you think there is any dangerous effect following these cuts? They are healing and don't bother her. However, I heard some time that it is not like a person he should be destroyed. ✓

Answer: The only dangers are ordinary pus infection and hydrophobia. It is very likely that there is no danger of hydrophobia. Several mothers, even cats, are likely to have uncertain temper, but to make certain, the cat should be kept where it can be watched, and if it develops convulsions or difficulty in swallowing, it should be killed and the brain examined to see whether hydrophobia is present.

MODERN SHOWER CURTAIN IS LACE

Treated cotton lace shower curtain, left; centre, tulle curtains with incrustations of pearls in frozen glass; right, two-tone lace curtains in beige and brown.

THE VOGUE for interior decorations invariable follows, or goes hand in hand with fashion trends.

Because lace is so high in fashion favor, then, the interior decorator designers are doing new and interesting things with lace in the home.

Lace is being used for upholstery, draperies and lamp shades, for some but a few of its uses in the up-to-the-minute home.

Lace for the shower curtain in the bathroom seems a bit paradoxical, but at our left you see shower curtains that are actually made of cotton lace, which has been treated for water repellancy. It is, you see, perfectly practical as well as charming and different.

In the centre of the picture tulle is used as the medium for curtains that add distinction to windows. Tulle hangs and drapes effectively, and these curtains, designed by Lucien Rollin of Paris, are intrusted with pearls in frozen glass.

Two-Tone Curtains

Two-tone curtains look like curtains, and draperies, at the window at the right. They are carried out in two colors of lace so that they present a contrast of harmony. The curtains shown are in soft beige and brown lace.

Lampshades of lace are posed over crepe, the lace usually in a floral motif, half sheer and half solid, and the pattern is brought into sharp relief when the lamp is lighted. This type of lamp is appropriate for the boudoir, living room or study.

A solid fabric type of lace is used to upholster a chair. It is made of rayon and wool yarns.

Parents Are Guided By Mother

Many Do Not Teach Child Life Facts, She States

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

AN IOWA mother writes: "Dear Dr. Myers: I'm writing to you, feeling as though you will understand some of the things I ponder in my heart. I read your articles daily and attended your lecture while in this city.

"Our children will soon be the future adults and it doesn't look very favorable for some.

"How why can't we get busy in our public schools and teach our children to know real responsibility concerning marriage, and what is a good father and mother? You can't wait until they are graduating from high school; you've got to teach them much earlier. Send the statistics of child marriage. They're alarming.

"The poor kid goes blundering along the way, realizes and sees a change is taking place. But few parents explain, and most kids discover when they have grown into middle age that if life and marriage and responsibility had been taught to them in their earlier years, many of their happiness could be saved.

"A few of the parents today are worthy, but the majority are not. They either are absorbed in their misery or else they don't care. . . .

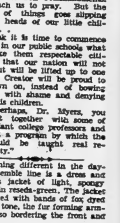
For four years the P. T. A. here has tried to organize a child study club. Why, we couldn't even get a dozen parents.

"Some time if you are not too busy, though I suppose you barely have time to call your soul your own, go into the beer taverns and see for yourself some of the people are today. Mothers, God how I hate to call such creatures that lovely name, sitting drinking away with babes in their arms. The little tots are wandering the streets, and then we expect such creatures to be able to educate these children. What a pity we are so stupid!

Institutions Filled

"Our institutions are filled to capacity with mentals and criminals, and the tax payers must provide for them. I often wonder if we will soon be locked in them, from worry caused by taxes.

"We can't depend on our churches to teach these things. They teach there is a God and they teach us the Ten Commandments, but teach us to pray. But the meaning of them is fast slipping over the heads of our little children.



"I think it is time to commence to teach in our public schools what will make them respectable citizens, so that our nation will not perish, but will be lifted up to one that our Creator will be proud to look down on, instead of bowing his head with shame and denying us as his children.

"So perhaps, Dr. Myers, you could get together with some of our leading college professors and work out a program by which the child could be taught real responsibility."

GIANTS MAULED

Phillies Score 12-3 Victory, Schumacher Being Knocked Out

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

According to no less an authority than despite Vincent McCarthy, who is pretty sure his New York Yankees will finish on top for the third straight year, the 1938 baseball season is the darndest to win the American League pennant. Right now there are three eastern clubs setting out to accomplish that feat.

Joe's reasoning isn't quite clear in the light of current standings, for Cleveland is the only western entry in the league's first division. Boston Red Sockers head the parade and the Yanks and Washington are running first and fourth, all within two games of the lead. Likewise the eastern clubs won 22 out of 32 games during their recent home stand against the west.

Giants Fire Games Up

On the other hand, New York Giants have practically the same idea about the National League flag and everything seems to be in favor of their contention that they can virtually settle the issue in the next couple of weeks. Breezing along under a comfortable five-game lead the Giant four eastern clubs trailing along behind them.

They open their home stand today against Chicago Cubs, considered about the most dangerous of the group, and if they can take three straight from Chooly Grimm's crew, there'll be hard to overtake.

Cleveland's Indians began the east-west series yesterday at the same time they sounded a warning to the invaders when they turned back Philadelphia Athletics 4-3 in 10 innings and moved into second place. The victory gave the Tribe a half-game up on the Senators, who suffered their fourth straight defeat at Detroit's hands, 13-7.

Badly Drubbed

The Giants, idle for four days, got a few bad plays out of their systems before facing the Cubs as they took a 12-3 drubbing from the collar-wielding Phillies. Manager Schumacher had practically nothing on the ball and his opponents adopted his system of throwing home-run tosses. Chuck Klein, Gene Corbett, the former Wheeling maroon Phil baseman, Herschel Martin and Pinky Whitney each contributed four-ply wallops for the Phils.

Deacon Danny MacFayden pitched and batted Boston Red Sox to victory over Brooklyn in the day's only other game. He limited the Dodgers to six hows and cracked out a double to start the winning rally in the seventh.

Where's Sam?

Many fans are asking what has happened to Sam Snead. His name hasn't been on the Masters' entry blank reports from the tournaments. And by my readers who recall that I expected the young Virginian to be among the leaders for the next three years are reminding me of the things I said about him a few months ago. Those who know the players through newspaper accounts have a right to be somewhat puzzled by his apparent reversal of form. Well, I can be wrong, but everything that brings success to other players is so strongly implanted in Snead's lineup that his supporters can rest assured that he will come through with flying colors eventually. During the past winter he expressed a desire to rest. He wanted to get back to his home in the hills and perhaps his fiancee, but tournament officials stressed the fact that his appearances in many cities had been advertised, that it was his duty to play in the various events. So he tried to carry on, as it might be expressed, without having his mind on the race.

He can be side-tracked by poor advice but up to date his technique, his swing and competitiveness are miles ahead of what any other player has had at his age. He should be more than live up to the expectations of his best boostgrs. He may hit his stride in the coming Metropolitan open or the National open. If not, then certainly before the summer is over.

War Admiral Will Be Strong Favorite Over Sea Biscuit in Race

New York, May 17 (AP)—Barring accidents, Sea Biscuit no longer seems any doubt that War Admiral will go to the post a firm favorite over Pasadena's little $100,000 match race May 30 at Belmont Park.

Money backing for the Biscuit so far has been more evenly divided in the largest wager yet recorded on an eastern sportsman placed $30,000 on War Admiral in the high expectation of winning $12,000. As a direct result, the odds against Seabiscuit were stretched out to 7 to 5.

There has been nothing about the workouts of the two horses to indicate the winner or to set the odds so pointedly in War Admiral's favor. Both are working perfectly and are in fine condition. Neither has been let loose over the race distance. But Seabiscuit's trainer have been no exciting time trials to chronicle.

BUNTY LAWLESS PRIME FAVORITE TO WIN PLATE

Bobsworth, Grand Dame And Suffern Given Chance Of Experts

BASED ON RECORD

Best Jockeys in America Will be up in The Feature Race

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 17—(CP)—Battle between Bunty Lawless, Bobsworth, Grand Dame and Suffern was mooted today, as training for the 79th running of the King's Plate, Canadian turf classic, ignited to more conditioning trials.

Each of eight 13 thoroughbreds expected to start in the race May 21 at Woodbine Park, received an Lake Ontario shores in Toronto's east end, has been virtually completed. Trainers are expected to put their charges over the mile-and-a-furlong plate route just once more and then ease the burden.

Installed Favorite

Bunty Lawless, Willie Morrisey's sturdy brown colt, has been installed over-night as a two-to-one favorite in the $7,500 added purse and 50 gallon medal, donated by the Plate. On basis of workouts and 1937 two-year-old records, the honors belong to the colt. Railbird's great juvenile days have been forced to hold a snug rein to keep him from getting his head.

Also helping sway public opinion to Bunty Lawless has been the enthusiasm—two bets totalling $4,000 —lodged on Colonel Hendrie's colt. He was for $2,000, taken by a syndicate backing H. C. Hall's Sunspiller.

Experts couldn't pass over Grand Dame and Bobsworth altogether. Unplaced as a two-year-old, Grand Dame will carry the brown and yellow colors of George M. Reach of Hamilton. Bobsworth will be H. R. Bain's only hope.

Installed to be Up

Although victories in the plate by fillies have been few, the last in 1926, Grand Dame's chances have been enhanced by the fact Canada's leading rider, Pat Remillard will be aboard. Pat was top jockey in Canada during 1935-36-37, but has never ridden a King's Plate winner.

Grand Dame was put through her early paces at Hamilton along with Northern Maid. Both colts, Bound, also nominated for the big race, The quarter stretch proved at Woodbine Park for final preps and have yet to be tested over the distance.

George Seabo, one of the top-ranking riders in the United States has been requisitioned to ride Bobsworth. He arrived from New York during the weekend to look over the horse and returned home yesterday.

Kingston 'Locos' Accepted as Member of Bay of Quinte Loop

Team Will Play Their Games at Cricket Field

OPEN HERE MAY 24

Kingston "Locos", a baseball club sponsored by the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston, was accepted into the Bay of Quinte Baseball League to fill the vacancy left by the withdrawal of the R. C. A. F. when the League held a special meeting at Napanee last evening. With the exception of a few changes in the league schedule the "Locos" drawn by Jimmie Arniel, veteran Kingston Pony catcher, the newly acquired entry accepted in full the bylaws and regulations governing the Quinte loop and should add strength and prestige to the league in general.

The "Locos" managed by Jimmie Arniel, veteran Kingston catcher and former C.O.B.L. player will open the Bay of Quinte League schedule in Belleville versus the local team on the morning of May 24th. The Kingston club was represented by Tommy Boyd, secretary of the C.L.C.A.C., who made personal representation in quest of admittance to the league. After discussions relative to the league regulations, the Kingston entry was accepted. Secretary Lyn Crossman.

Play on Cricket Field

The Kingston entry will play its home games on the inside-scored Cricket Field in Kingston and named Pat Corrigan, Kingston's veteran and colorful umpire, as their official umpire for the season. Only one change was made previously in the Bay of Quinte bylaws by the admittance of a Kingston entry however. The Belleville and Picton clubs must give the "Locos" a four point per-game penalty relative to the cancelling of a scheduled game due to rain or wet grounds, instead of the three hour ruling covering this question between Picton, Belleville and Napanee.

The new schedule drafted for the Bay of Quinte League upon the acceptance of the Kingston "Locos" reads as follows:

May 24—Kingston at Belleville (2 p.m.)

24—Napanee at Picton

June
1—Picton at Napanee

Games at Belleville, Napanee and Kingston will be played at twilight, unless otherwise stated, while games at Picton are scheduled for Wednesday afternoon.

NO IMPORTS IN S. HASTINGS LOOP

Delegates Vote to Rigidly Enforce Rule This Season

Unanimously voting to rigidly enforce the "no importation" rule, South Hastings baseball league held its annual meeting in the Canniffton Town Hall last evening to reelect Ed Bowery as president of the league for his second term. Four of the original clubs to institute the rule, were represented and accepted into the loop, including Shannonville, Canniffton, Foxboro and Latta.

"If we are to succeed and give the baseball patrons of South Hastings baseball as they desire it among their own, this practice of importing ball players from the larger and outside centres must be terminated. When this league was first organized it was not the intention of those at the helm to provide recreation for our own grown-up boys and for the amusement of those residing in our community," stated Secretary Art Hall in addressing the meeting on behalf of the Latta club. The remaining three sister clubs commented favorably upon the suggestion and voted to use "home brews" in their entirety for the current baseball season of 1938. President Ed Bowery expressed his opinion as being in favor of the exposition of "imports". "I believe the league has taken a step in the proper direction. This move will give our own boys an opportunity to play baseball and after all that is what we are in the game for—to provide recreation for the good of our own small communities," added President Bowery. The league will swing into action on June 10th, with the league schedule being left in the hands of Secretary Art Hall.

The club delegates present were —Shannonville, Ken Vivian, Dr. H. E. Eckardt; Canniffton, Jack Bush; Latta, Dr. Harold Welsh, Art Hall; Foxboro; Ken Ashley and C. Hamilton. The league schedule will be presented for approval at the next league meeting.

KI-Y Softball

Some surprising upsets were registered in the Juvenile section of the local Ki-Y softball league last evening when a triple bill was made. At Queen Mary School grounds a tidy tackle was seen when the Beetcats defeated the O.S.D. "Juveniles" by a 6 to 4 score. The Beetcats yesterday proved to be a purely defensive game and pitchers' duel. Some exceptionally fine fielding resulted as the game progressed.

The remaining two games saw heavy hitting predominating as the Warbirds trounced the Wesleys 21 to 13 at Q.A.S. grounds and the Lucky Strikes rode rough-shod over Zeta Pi 16 to 4 at the Q.V.S. grounds.

ORIOLES' CLOSEST TO NEWARK BEARS AT PRESENT TIME

Defeat Montreal in 13 Innings While Rochester Beats Newark

TORONTO DOWNED

Earl Cook, Former Hurler For Leafs, Allows Only Five Hits

(By The Associated Press)

But for the fact that there are only three games separating second place and seventh in the International League standings, the current position of Baltimore Orioles might be considered quite as amazing as last season's comeback when they climbed from the cellar to the playoffs after Bucky Crouse took hold in mid-August.

Right now the Orioles are closest to the first-place Newark Bears after moving up from Fourth in little over a week and from third on the strength of yesterday's 13-inning victory over Montreal Royals, 4 to 3 decision. It is not however is that they have had only four starting pitchers but the route to 22 games, one of them repeating, and that the famed Orioles long-distance pitching has been evident only in spurts.

A Busy Stanza

They had a busy struggle yesterday, knocking Cpl. Poill out with four runs in the fifth only to have the Royals come back with three in the next. Ormie Agnew off the bill then tie the score in the second. The count was knotted twice more before Pete Punzelelli, after six futile trips to the plate, smacked a single to bring home Bill Clancy with the winning run in the 13th. Incidentally, the Orioles got one hit, Punzelelli's, off Ormie Agnew, their third flinger, John Wittig, who set the Royals down with six hit in 6 2-3 innings.

Elsewhere the Birds ahead of Buffalo Bisons, who went down 10-3 before a Jersey City blast which included home runs by Lazi Lee, Tom Winsett and Roy Joiner.

Rochester Downed

Rochester's comebacking Red Wings got credit for the day's biggest upset when they defeated the usually advanced to fifth place, when they pounded out seven runs off what was the Bears' fifth loss in twenty games and a four-run assault in the eighth turned the trick for young Teddy hold the League leaders in check until the last inning.

The cellar-dwelling Syracuse Chiefs turned on their tormentors and defeated the All-Stars 8 to 7 over Toronto in the day's other tented candidate. Syracuse has nine wood job, holding the Leafs to five hits after trailing until the nine shelled Don Brennan and John Berly for seven runs in the third.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

Back in circulation with four clubs again at the wire, the Bay of Quinte League accepted the Kingston C.L.C.A.C. team in the fold at a special league meeting last night. The Kingston squad, to be known as the "Locos"—no pun intended—consist of many veteran C.O.B.L. ballsters, interspersed with a number of up-and-coming youngsters in and around Kingston. The acceptance of the "Locos" into the loop assured the Belleville entry of an opening league game here on May 24th, a traditional sports event, with the exception of 1937, in this city. A few changes in the league schedule were necessary owing to Kingston having two baseball clubs, a senior and intermediate. The "Locos" desired home games on Friday for the greater part, which made little difference in the original schedule, however. Incidentally while the meeting was in progress, Coach Alex Weir had the locals out for their first real good practice of the season last night. A number of new faces were seen, but there is still room for more material, especially pitchers, as two players who can back it up are with a vengeance. They work out again Wednesday night.

Jimmy Ariniel, who for years was the mainstay of the Kingston Frontenac backing department and field general of the Ponies, has been named manager of the Kingston "Locos" in the Bay of Quinte League. Jimmy gave up his post behind the plate at the conclusion of last season, stating he no longer sufficient service in an active player. The appointment of a player the calibre of Jimmy Arniel to the post of manager of the Kingston intermediates speaks highly not only of Jimmy's ability, but knowing him as I do, it speaks higher of the caliber of the team to represent Kingston in the fast, competitive ranks. We also understand that "Tammy" Jamieson will hurl for the Locos, while still another veteran member of the old Ponies will be out with the Kingston intermediates. They will play all of their league games at the Cricket Field in Kingston.

So open is the King's Plate this year, that we find much controversy over the starting gate. Down at the sports rialto, Frank "Six-bit" Selby says—"It's the Hendrie entry." we presume he means Grand Dame, however, Charles "Horses" Ayres goes out on the limb for Bunty Lawless, the Morrisey-owned candidate. He says the colt is going to be a real "boss race." In the 1936 King's Plate the two boys favor Wicklow, while the down-town boys like Bobsworth, Suffern and Bunty Lawless. Verily we say the 1938 King's Plate is the most open race of its kind to be staged in years.

Apparently the local wrestling promoters are bound and bent to wrest the grunt and groan business, even if the gate receipts are anything but encouraging. Directly on the heels of the Zaychoff-McDougall draw of last week we find two more wrestling attendians in the heavyweight ranks' business slated to tangle at the Home Ice arena on Wednesday night, when John Katan, the village Winnipeg heavy, meets Belleville while-haired grappler, Scotty Macdougall. Katan is no playboy, as local fans know, and just what the reaction of the fans will be of tonight's tangle over the McDougall, will be interesting to note. There are really hops in their field.

After dropping Nathan Mann in two straight recently, "Two-ton Tony" Galento, the beer-drinking cigar-smoking heavyweight, is matched to go to the mat with Joe Louis, Max Baer or Max Schmeling, "I'll knock them all out just as easy as I did Mann," boastfully shouted "Two-Ton Tony," who must have clipped a hard one by Mann. However, it took Louis seven rounds to dispose of Mann by the way, so maybe Galento has something there. No doubt we will see Galento tangle with Baer in July with the winner getting a shot at the title along in September.

Did you know that Gallant Fox, winner previously of the Freakness Stakes, finished the classic United States racing double by winning the Kentucky Derby eight years ago today. The three-year-old went down in history with the Canadian-owned Sir Barton who accomplished the feat in 1919, Burgoo King and Omaha duplicated the trick in 1932 and 1935.

Understand the local softballers made a fair sum clearing their day Saturday taking in something like $100.00, which will be spent to erect more bleachers on their Coleman Flats diamond.

In the Major League finals over at the Recreation Alleys, the trundlers were surely going to town last night with top scores. The Deacon "Sportswear" quintette drew first blood in the series by taking all three games, but the vanquished Belleville Fruit say it will be a different story next time. Tony Morrell and Pat Belnap were tops in the bowling over at the maples, as both teams bowled well over the 3,000 point game.

It looks as though the South Hastings Baseball League really hit the ball on the nose last night when they voted "amateurism" for the current season. Ed Bowery has been at the helm apparently saw the result of too many importations before that year took its toll. This year the S.H.L. is to be purely "home-grown" and we believe the league will not only benefit, but thrive under the present set-up. In the future the patrons of the S.H.L. will not only know their favorite players, but will have a personal interest in the club.

Deacon Sport Wear Trundlers, However, Win Over Belleville Fruit

Some tall scores were recorded and strenuous trundling seen when the Major League bowling "get-together" knockers took the first game of the Major League finals at the Recreation Alleys last evening, when they defeated the Belleville Fruit quintette in the first game of the Major loop finals.

"The ultimate losers were well up in the evening's bowling and running close until the final game, when they bowled poorly in the main and fell before the steady bowling of the Deacon outfit in the last round, when they lost some 200 points.

Even in defeat Tony Morrell, of the Belleville Fruit squad, was the top bowler of the night with 849 for the three string. Pat Belnap set the pace for the Deacon outfit with a 787 for his three string. The series is the best two in three with the winner of the series clashing again this week in the second finals set in which the Belleville Fruit expect to fare much better, however. CHAPTER 25
POISONED

I didn't walk a moment. I ran out into the hall to telephone and called Central and asked her to send Dr. Dallas Dafoe, who is near. Mrs. Caldwell was very ill. If she could not get him to send some other doctor, but—hurry—hurry!

Miss Lydia's door flew open as I hung up the receiver.

"What is it? What is the matter?"

"Mrs. Caldwell—she's dying."

I saw Miss Lydia running to Norma Caldwell's room. Grace Linnell came out into the hall, and hurried after her. I was at the head of the stairs, called frantically to Mac, and he was there almost instantly.

"Mac—I can't wake Norma up."

We found Miss Lydia standing beside the bed and Grace Linnell covered close by. Mac slipped his arm under Norma and lifted her.

"Looks like an overdose of sleeping tablets—poor some amnesia on a cloth—hurry!"

Dr. Sully said that our quick action probably saved her. That and the fact that she had had taken a larger dose.

"Larger dose of—what?"

"Those sleeping tablets," said Miss Lydia, pointing to the crevices on the floor. "I put a new box here in taking medicine to make one sleep."

"She was in the habit of taking several every night," put in Grace Linnell.

"She didn't tonight," I said. "She took only one."

"Why, Judy—how do you know that?" asked Miss Lydia.

"Because I slept with her tonight and I know she took only one tablet."

Dr. Sully had emptied a few of the pills into his hand, and was smelling of them. "You're all wrong a dozen of these wouldn't harm her to that extent. Why—I prescribed them. No—she took a pretty good sized dose of morphine."

"But —she didn't," I said stubbornly.

Norma Caldwell stirred—gave a little moan. The doctor motioned us all from the room.

Mac and I went down the the kitchen. Barry was there waiting for an explanation.

"Somebody tried to poison her," he said, when we had told him all about it.

"Good!" breathed Mac. "If you didn't happened to sleep in there, Judy."

I put my hand to my forehead. "Barry, you don't understand it at all. I saw her take that tablet out of the envelope. She said she didn't think she needed to take but one."

"Perhaps another kind of pill got mixed in, although that doesn't seem possible. Dr. Sully will have them all examined. If one got in there are probably more."

"Your people are on the wrong track," said Barry. "She took something else when you weren't looking, Judy. Wasn't she alone—out of the room at any time?"

I thought a moment. "She went for a glass of water—"

"There you are! Suicide, all right—I guess."

Tears came to my eyes. "I'll never believe it."

Dr. Sully called me and I went back upstairs.

"She'll be all right now, Miss Caldwell said she would stay here, but she wants you. I think she'll sleep. I've left some medicine for the nurse to give her every teaspoon."

"Don't let her talk."

So I had my first night of nursing—a real night of it, for I did not close my eyes, but sat in a chair beside her, and held her pulse in my patient's slightest move. She obediently took the medicine at the stated times, but was made no effort to talk, and finally dropped into a quiet sleep.

Nothing in all the many things I had done prepared me—seemed so baffling as this. Of course some one must have put morphine tablets into that envelope, hoping Norma would take several, as she usually did. But if they were mixed with others, she might not have noticed them one. Barry's theory was not worth a thought. She had taken only one—I knew that. Had she simply tried to still my fears? Had she known the pet was always close about her?

I could not think anything through. The more I thought, the more confused I became.

About four o'clock I was startled at hearing the hotel nurse at the door. For an instant, my heart stood still. I dreaded news!

Then a voice called, "Normie—Normie!" and I went quickly to the door.

He looked up at me in his queer way, as I put my finger on my lips and shook my head.

"Normie—Normie sick!" he cried, and before I could stop him he was over beside the bed.

She opened her eyes—looked at him and smiled and put out her hand. He caught it in both of his and carried it to his cheek. "Normie—Biddy not be bad any more!" The tears rolled down his face.

With a little sob, he kissed her hand passionately—let her go, and dropped it, and ran from the room.

"Normie sick, Biddy sick, poor Biddy, and—poor Judy! I am making log of trouble. Did I take poison, Judy?"

"You were poisoned."

"It was rather nice, I fell so happy and then so comfy and sleepy. Wouldn't I ever have waked if you hadn't been here?"

"You might not. Here—take this, and try to get to sleep again."

She swallowed the medicine. "When morning comes we please send for Peter." She turned over and tucked her arm under her head and fell into a deep slumber.

Mac came to the door before six bringing me a cup of hot coffee on the old precious!

I gave him Norma's message. "Well Peter he will have to stay with her while I am in the kitchen. I do not trust—anyone, and she must not be left alone an instant."

"Judy, darling—you look like a little ghost."

"Go take a squint at the mirror yourself. Your eyes are in the back of your head, mister."

But if Mac and I looked donefor, we were nothing compared to Peter. He knelt beside the bed and, putting his arm around Norma, held her close.

I slipped out and went to my room, Heaven knows—I needed a pretty complete going-over. I was if old look like the thirty-second day of the month!

When I was bathed, and clothed again in proper habiliment, I went down to the kitchen. Miss Lydia was already there—her face grim and set. She simply nodded to me. "Mrs. Caldwell is lots better." I volunteered.

"I have seen her," she said coldly. "She seems to be well taken care of."

Oh—Peter!

I almost laughed in her face as I turned to the stairs.

Peter was sitting beside the bed holding Norma's hand, and they were talking earnestly as I entered.

"Oh, out of here, Mr. Alcott!" I scented. "Miss Lydia Caldwell is scandalized at your behavior!"

"Miss Lydia Caldwell can go where all meddlesome, suspicious old maids of both sexes congregate. Gee whiz—what an assembly it'll be! Well, I suppose I shall have to obey the command. The precious lady is going to stay in bed today."

"Nonsense, Peter—of course I'm not going to stay in bed."

"You are—until the sheriff gets here, anyway. And I'm going to send Mother over to play with you. Now, you just mind your 'going-to-be-better-bait' about this."

She made up a little face at him as he went out of the room.

Mrs. Alcott was a short, plump little woman with the loveliest snow-white hair. I could see right away that she loved Norma Caldwell and that Norma loved her. I felt them with a sigh of glad relief.

Parker was in the kitchen talking with Miss Lydia. "You are she took an over-dose of sleeping medicine?"

"It looks that way," nodded Miss Lydia. "I suppose she realized there was no other way out of this. It is a dreadful, dreadful thing, and I never thought Miss Caldwell name would be dragged through such terrible scandal! She shut her teeth together with a little snap.

"What's all the rumpus?" inquired a dear, familiar voice.

Henlein Did Not Interview Ministers

London, May 17 (CP-Havas)—No member of the British government talked with Conrad Henlein, leader of the German minority in Czechoslovakia, during his week end visit to London, Richard Butler, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told in the House of Commons in response to a question from Arthur Adams, Conservative.

"I am aware that Herr Henlein paid a visit to this country," Butler replied. "The visit was, I understand, a purely private one.

"Herr Henlein was not received by any members of the government. I may add in particular that the report of a meeting between the Secretary of State for the Dominions and Herr Henlein is without foundation.

"Was Herr Henlein at the Foreign Office at all?" Mr. Adams asked.

"No, sir," the Under-Secretary replied.

"Did Herr Henlein see Sir Robert Vansittart?" asked Emanuel Shinwell, Labor.

"I understand that Herr Henlein saw Sir Robert Vansittart chief diplomatic adviser to the government," Butler replied. "He was already acquainted, and there it was a private occasion," Mr. Butler said.

SENTENCED TO 30 DAYS

Stratford, Ont., May 17—(Can)—Robert Funnell, Sr., was sentenced to thirty days in jail by Magistrate J. A. Mskins Monday on a charge of drunk driving. On a charge of reckless driving he was fined $50 and costs or an additional 30 days in jail.

Funnell pleaded not guilty a week ago, but after several witnesses had been heard today he changed his plea to that of guilty.

The charges arose out of an accident on May 7th.

Rawdon

Rawdon—Springbrook Women's Association sponsored a very successful banquet in the Orange Hall commemorating the twenty first anniversary of their aid. The dining tables looked attractive with bouquets of flowers and tapers with yellow serviettes, a bevy of young ladies were the appealing meal wearing pretty aprons and caps of yellow. The hostess served birthday cake with pink trimming graced the centre table and over the honoured guests, Rev. and Mrs. Woodger of Cobourg took charge of the lighting ceremony. The Woodgers were on the circuit at the time the organization was formed.

When all had partaken of the delicacies the toast to the King was replied to the auditorium and Rev. A. W. Harding, pastor of Springbrook circuit, in the matter of procedure. Mrs. Harold Elliott, president of Bethel Ladies Aid presided for the community singing. GREAT BRITAIN'S tato crops in many districts are ruined and prices have trebled in some markets. London has experienced a shortage of fresh vegetables and prices have shot up.

Sell At Heavy Loss.

Farmers bereft of feed supplies and lacking pastures have been forced to sell livestock at heavy losses. Sowing has been delayed over wide areas where the ground is baked so hard as to make ploughing impossible.

The Ministry of Agriculture said, however, it believed crops might still be raised on the dried land, although the harvest would be later than normal.

Flower gardeners reported nightly ground frosts killed many shrubs while orchardists said blossoming trees were nipped and crops would be light.

Vineyards Hard Hit.

Rain spread slowly across the country, starting May 12, when the drought appeared broken west of the line from Plymouth to Liverpool to Tynemouth. A week-end heat wave in London, however, sent temperatures up to 77. Thereafter cool cloudy weather spread eastward, bringing a steady light rain, with occasional downpours.

Rain penetrated northeigh Europe and the Danube basin in the drought caused untold damage to the growth vine-yards are reported hard hit.

SEARCHERS USE

Parts Found Identified

Rowing their skiff along a boom in the river, Leo Lebrun and his brother William, of Quyon, noticed a wooden box jammed against the boom and discovered it contained a can half-full of gasoline. Later they noticed the stern of a boat freshly broken away from the rest of the craft. The equipment was identified by James Wiseman, carter, who had seen the men depart.

Villagers saw the fishing foursome on Saturday near the Chats Falls power dam but none noted signs of distress.

Belief that in manoeuvring the boat it may have got caught in the turbulent backwash was discounted by A. A. Lindsay, an old resident of Pilgrov who maintained that Paul Paquin was familiar with every foot of the river. Theories that it may have struck the boat might have capsized during a sudden squall, common to the Ottawa River, or that the boat may have struck a "dead head," or floating log, and capsized along the treacherous undercurrents.

Bodies Under Boom?

The boom at which the objects from the boat were found extends from McGillivray Island close to the Ontario shore to the Quebec side at Quyon. The broken parts of the boat and other articles definitely identified by Wiseman, were found about 100 yards from the Quebec side of the river.

KING AND QUEEN LUNCH AT HALL

Making Four-Day Tour Through Busy Industrial Lancashire

Preston, England, May 17 (CP)—Starting a four-day tour through busy Industrial Lancashire, the king and queen breakfasted at the Crewe Hall here today as guests of the Earl of Derby.

They left the royal train which brought them from London at Colne. From Colne they drove, acclaimed all along the route by cheering crowds, through Nelson, Burnley, Accrington and Blackburn.

In Colne, week-day windows were beflagged and garlanded, schoolchildren chanted "Here is Life to England's King, Pride of All the Nation!"

At Nelson James Allen, 83, oldest inhabitant of the town, was presented to their Majesties.

In Preston they went first to Moor Park, where a deputation stood with standards of the British Legion. In the afternoon they visited Blackpool to St. Annes. Blackpool, Lancashire's fun-side holiday resort, and Prestwood. There they rejoined the train.

Tomorrow the royal party will leave the train at Leigh. They will drive through Worsley, Swinton and Salford to Manchester. In Manchester the king will open the new extension and council chamber of the town hall.

Former Commander German Army Refuses Invitation to Return

Berlin, May 17 (CP-Havas)—Baron Werner von Fritsch, former commander-in-chief of the German army who was forced out in the purge of Feb. 4, has been placed under house arrest at a castle in Hanover pending the outcome of a conflict between him and high Nazi officials, it was declared today in immorality, it was reported here today.

Baron von Fritsch, the report said, was cleared of the immorality charges by a military tribunal of honor. He demanded punishment of his accusers. Unable to obtain satisfaction, the former Reichswehr chief refused to accept an invitation from Chancellor Hitler to return to the army.

He was then assigned to reside in Hanover castle, accompanied by an aide, and put on his honor to remain there until his case is settled.

plane and grave of a white man would be found. They were unable to go.

The Indian, Gilbert said, was called "Lawyer" either on account of his white man for whom he had spoken. Lawyer Wood did not own the plane or grave, but relatives of his in the village had told him of it.

Redkern, about whom legends have grown up, was declared legally dead by a British court last winter. Expeditions have sought him vainly. Many hopes aroused by reports of a "white man who dropped from the sky" was being held a prisoner by interior tribes who believed him a god. Some of the tales said he had had been broken so that he could not escape.

coordination of supplies and production, aimed at a goal of 3,500 first line planes by 1940. Up to now critics of the air program have levelled much of their fire at alleged lack of coordination in "shadow factory" production. These factories are additions to existing plants, built at government expense to make various plane parts.

The union of intelligence and shipbuilding workers arranged to meet with employers May 26 to talk of ways of meeting the demand for labor in the arms speed-up.

New Post Foreseen

Lord Swinton's resignation, because of parliamentary clamor that the program had lagged under his direction, was considered to be the first step toward speedier reinforcement in the air.

Sir Kingsley Wood, 67, portly and known as "Cherub" to his intimates, advanced from the Ministry of Health to replace Lord Swinton.

The next step may be creation of a post of Minister of Supply. The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) hinted this in an editorial praising the new cabinet.

"The immense expansion of the defence forces which is now in training demands direction and coordination in the business of supplies which cannot effectively be discharged by anything less than a separate Department of State, with a cabinet. however, as chairman of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Lord Swinton's resignation, it was understood Earl Winterton who acted as the Minister's Deputy in the House of Commons, had relinquished all Air Ministry duties. He remains in the

As Fatal Blaze Swept Through Atlanta Hotel

With twenty-four bodies recovered, firemen surround the smoking ruins of the Terminal hotel in Atlanta, Ga., in the belief that at least that number died or crash in the fire that converted the downtown hos-telry into a flaming torch. When firemen arrived the five-story structure was wrapped in a sheet of flame from which men and women jumped in blazing clothing. Floors collapsed and many were crushed.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and I said, Say pop?

Do you mean me? pop said, and I said, Is there such a thing as a number nine, I mean is none a number?

Well, ruffly speaking, I should say it was the absence of a number, pop said, and I said, Sure that's just what I thought, so Cousin Artie owns me 2 marbles.

I don't quite get the connection, but no doubt there will be a flood of explanatory details at any moment, pop said, and I said, If none is no number at all, then Artie couldn't of won the bet, could he?

Couldn't he, what bet? pop said, and I said, Well, he came running up with his coat pocket ratsling as if it was chock full of marbles and I only had 2 marbles in my pocket, and I offered to bet him all the marbles in my pocket against all the marbles in his that he had a bigger number than what I did, and Artie took the bet and undumped everything out of his pocket, and what was in there but about 30 buttons and not a single marble, so he didn't have any number at all so how could it of been a smaller number than my number, but he argued me out of my 2 marbles just a same, but I'm going to make him give them back.

You're going to do nothing of the kind but a speculation. On the stock exchange it would be known as selling marbles short, and you've learned your lesson very cheaply for 2 marbles if it's taught you that speculation don't pay, he said, and I said, Well jimminy, pop, it said Artie, didn't it?

Artie wasn't speculating, he was taking advantage of the wild mistake of a reckless plunger and betting on a sure thing, and now do your lessons, pop said.

Fashion Flashes

(By ALICE ALDEN)

Gala nights demand gala frocks. A lovely evening frock is made entirely of navy blue and white striped satin ribbons, with a brassiere top, closely fitted waistline and wide floor-length skirt. The stripes are narrow from the high waist and widen out to the floor.

Circus Artistes, clowns and animals are used by Schiaparelli for her prints and gadgets. For war over summer evening frocks she makes some lovely jackets embroidered with circus themes. One jacket has men flying on a trapeze of jewel-cut mirror glass.

We predict a successful career for Maggy Rouff's fortune-telling gloves. Of white or black kid, they have the heart and head lines embroidered across the palms.

A good companion to a simple suit is a bag of orange-brown box-calf with white saddle stitching and white leather lining.

Glory of Pre-War Days Recalled at Doorn

Alfred in the glittering panoply of his days as the great German warlord, Wilhelm von Hohenzollern, former Kaiser of the German Empire, is pictured with his grandson, Prince Louis Ferdinand, and the latter's bride, Grand Duchess Kyra of Russia, after their wedding which took place at the ex-Kaiser's Dutch sanctuary in Doorn. It was the great dream of the former Kaiser to unite the mighty houses of Romanoff and Hohenzollern. Ironically his dream is realized when the Romanoffs and Hohenzollerns no longer have a throne between them.

TWIN MAYORS OF DIZZY DISNEY

The owner of the smile on the RIGHT is Billy Baker, cafe operator, former circus dancer and now, for 30 days, mayor of Disney, Okla. She will run the town on a "whoopee" scale for her term of office, dancing and merry-making being her idea of the perfect state. At LEFT is Mrs. Vera Sibar, grocery operator, who will take over the mayoral chair after the 30 days of whoopee to give her program a tryout. She advocates a curfew law and rest program. A referendum of the citizens will then decide which of the two programs they desire permanently.

Nazis Ousted from Hungarian Cabinet

Dr. Bela Imred, RIGHT, former minister of economics in the Hungarian cabinet, became premier of the country to succeed Koloman Daranyi, CENTRE, who resigned in the purge of Nazi elements that followed the rise to power of Premier Imias, Hungarian Hitler, LEFT. Following the resignation of the Daranyi cabinet, Imred immediately formed a new cabinet which included Daranyi as foreign minister.

AUTOGIRO LANDS MAIL ON POST OFFICE ROOF

The first mail to be received at Chicago's new post-office was flown from the airport to the roof of the building, in an autogiro, as part of the program to celebrate the U.S. Airmail Week. Postmaster..... Ernest Kruckgen is shown receiving the mail from Pilot John Miller.

Mediates Princes' Quarrel

P. S. Young, British inspector-general of the Jaipur police, is shown on his arrival in Sikar, India, in an attempt to settle the dispute between the rajah of Jaipur and the neighboring Maharajah of Sikar, who owes allegiance to Jaipur. It seems that the Sikar ruler had refused to permit his son to accompany the Rajah of Jaipur on a trip to London. Incensed, the rajah sent his private army and cannons into Sikar, where the maharajah had locked himself up in his palace. Up to the present we don't know who is getting the best of the argument.

U. S. AMBASSADOR?

For the first time in history a woman is under serious consideration for appointment as ambassador to a major diplomatic post, Mrs. Charles C. Broy, pictured ABOVE in court dress, has been recommended by the chairmen of the United States Finance Foreign Relations committee, for the embassy post at Moscow, recently vacated by the transfer to Brussels of Joseph E. Davies, former U.S. ambassador to the Soviet.

British Air Minister Offers Resignation

Criticized severely, in the House of Commons, for the slowness of British air rearmament, Viscount Swinton, British air minister, LEFT, has offered his resignation to Prime Minister Chamberlain, it was reported in London. At the same time it was reported that Earl Winterton, RIGHT, deputy and spokesman for Viscount Swinton in the House of Commons, Swinton, being a member of the House of Lords, cannot speak in the Commons) has also offered his resignation. Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, and former air minister, CENTRE, is being prominently mentioned as a likely successor to Viscount Swinton should Chamberlain accept his resignation.

Flames Destroy French Liner

An aerial view showing the French liner Lafayette blazing at Havre, France. The vessel was deemed a total loss after firemen fought the blaze for more than four hours. The fire started when oil blazed from a tank, which an engineer was tending at the time, and spread to the entire crude oil stores. Thirty firemen narrowly escaped being burned seriously trying to save the ship.

BELGIUM'S PREMIER

Paul Spaak, former Belgian foreign minister, who was called upon by King Leopold to form a new cabinet following the resignation of Premier Paul Emile Janson and his cabinet, as a result of budget difficultacs. A strong Socialist, the new premier is expected to retain his foreign minister's portfolio.

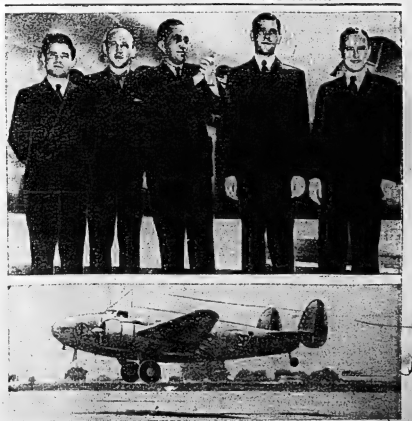
ANGLO-MEXICAN RELATIONSHIPS SEVERED

Diplomatic relationships between England and Mexico have been severed as a result of the heated controversy between the two countries over the seizure of British-owned properties by the Mexican government. Owen St. Clair O'Malley, British ambassador to Mexico, LEFT, and Primo Villa Michel, Mexican ambassador to England, RIGHT, have been recalled by their respective government. Anxiety is now being felt in many Canadian financial circles as much Canadian capital is invested in Mexico.

COMMISSIONER HONORED

John A. Stiles, of Ottawa, chief executive commissioner of the Canadian Boy Scouts' association, was awarded the "Silver Buffalo" for "distinguished service to boyhood" at the annual meeting of the National Scout Council now being held in Cleveland.

MULTI-MILLIONAIRE TO WED NURSE



Harold Fowler McCormick, multi-millionaire machinery king, LEFT, whose engagement to Miss Adah Wilson, RIGHT, Los Angeles nurse, was recently announced. Miss Wilson, former nurse to the late Jean Harlow, met McCormick while he was a patient in a Los Angeles hospital.

C. P. R. Takes Responsibility for Delay in Abandoning Line

Freight Service Revenue Shannonville to Darlington is Noted

Ottawa May 18 (CP)—The Canadian Pacific took full responsibility for delay in moves for abandonment of its line from Shannonville to Darlington, Ont., in the Brockville-Belleville area, John E. Armstrong, assistant engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, told the Senate Railway Committee today. The C.P.R. had already practically withdrawn its passenger services under pooling arrangements but did not wish to abandon a freight service which represented a revenue of $2,000,000 a year. The Canadian National was anxious to proceed with this unit suggested abandonment of a 12 line between Bala Park and Wasaga, Ont., would make a fair exchange.

"Switching" Discussed

Ottawa, May 18 (CP) — Distinct and conflicting interests of Canada's two railways would make for delay when they attempt to co-operate in effecting economies, John E. Armstrong assistant chief engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, told the Senate Special Committee on the Railway condition of Canada today.

The Canadian Pacific, however, he thought, had ample facilities and the power to carry out the provisions of the Canadian National-Canadian Pacific Act of 1933 which directs the railways to co-operate.

Like S. W. Fairweather, of the Canadian National, the previous witness, Mr. Armstrong was quiz-

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Hailstones shattering crops killed by hailstones would not be much fun for a real sports man, but it was an easy way of getting fresh meat. How large must such hailstones be? Scientists nowadays would take calipers to measure the greater and lesser diameters and a balance to weigh the stones. Darwin is the writer of the above South American story and says that the stones were as large as small apples and even larger. Fowls killed not only deer but ostriches and many other animals and fowls. Even a cow fell another witness who said hail of such size fell that vast numbers of cattle were killed.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 18—(CP)—Synoptic: A well-developed low now centres the western States with high pressure over the western Provinces, northern Ontario and the St. Lawrence valley. The weather has been fair over the greater part of Ontario, western and northern Quebec and the Maritimes, but elsewhere in the Maritimes and east Quebec. Heavy rain has fallen in southern Alberta last night in showers in southern Saskatchewan.

Lake Superior: Fresh or strong easterly winds; cloudy and rather cool with showers late tonight and on Thursday.

Manitoba: Northeast winds; mostly cloudy tonight and Thursday with showers in southern districts; fairly warm.

Saskatchewan: Northeast winds with showers in southern districts; fair to cloudy Thursday, mainly fair with not much change in temperature.

Alberta: Northeast winds; cloudy and cold with rain in south portion, Thursday, partly cloudy and a little warmer.

Illiteracy Highest in N. B., Blame is Placed on Education

By CARL REINKE

Fredericton, N.B., May 18 (CP)—Illiteracy in New Brunswick is the highest in Canada—due to inability of the province to maintain a proper standard of education—the Rowell Commission was told today.

There are 30,636 people more than fifteen years of age, or 7.1 per cent of the population, who cannot read or write, the provincial government said. There were no rural high schools, only a small secondary school equipment and teachers were generally poorly paid. Average salary, $479.

The government urged federal grants-in-aid to education because of its national importance. Equality of educational opportunity should obtain throughout the nation. National progress depended upon a country's human resources. The burden of education should be distributed as evenly as possible throughout the nation; otherwise equality of opportunity will not be established or a complete development of human resources obtained.

Through the disparity between the provinces in this regard, the government showed the average valuation for each classroom in New Brunswick was $67,500 with only Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia lower while the average in British Columbia was $170,000, Ontario $169,000, Ontario, $133,000 and Alberta each spent twice as much per pupil as New Brunswick did.

Under present conditions, rural schools had but efficient teachers but were costly and uneconomical because classes were small.

An estimated $600,000 additional annual revenue was necessary to give New Brunswick an educational service corresponding to that of Ontario, the government said.

NEW SECRETARY OF AIR IN BRITAIN MEETS CABINET

Discusses With Colleagues Coming Debate on Armament

NO DISAGREEMENT

London, May 18—(CP-Havas)—The reshuffled Cabinet held its first regular Wednesday meeting today with Sir Kingsley Wood, the new Secretary for Air, discussing with his colleagues next week's House of Commons debate on air rearmament.

Sir Kingsley as a result of the resignation of Viscount Swinton, Winston Churchill and a group of Conservatives withdrew their motion calling for an investigation of the air rearmament plans to be done, opposition is determined to press a similar request.

Meanwhile, rumors concerning supposed differences between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Sir Samuel Hallfax, Foreign Secretary, were the subject of an article by the political correspondent of the Daily Telegraph (Conservative).

"During the days before the reconstruction of the cabinet a report was current suggesting that friction had developed between Lord Halifax and Mr. Chamberlain" this commentator said. "The fact that the recent cabinet changes do not affect the foreign office would in itself be sufficient to dispose of these rumors.

No Friction

"I am able to state that no friction did in fact develop between the

ATTEMPT TO ROB COST A DOLLAR

Bandit Fled From Hosiery Store, When Clerk Armed with Him

Toronto, May 18.—(Special)—A nervous hold-up man not only failed to gain any money at hosiery store here today; the attempt cost him a dollar.

The man tendered a dollar bill in payment for a pair of hose and when the girl clerk went to open the cash register he grabbed it, only to find it empty.

He argued with the girl and got her excited enough to cash, but clerk, Miss Marion Hart, tailed him out of it. "He was just a kid and didn't know what he was doing," she said. "He was terribly nervous."

Police believed to be the same bandit who got small sums in the hold-up of two other hosiery stores in the past few days, fled without his dollar bill.

Noted Child Specialists Declare Quintuplets in Perfect Health

Callander, Ont., May 18—(CP)—The Dionne quintuplets, born practically no chance of survival at their birth four years ago, today are in perfect health and are "perfectly normal children in respect to psychical development," according to three noted child specialists.

Cecile, Emilie, Annette, Yvonne and Marie yesterday went through a rigorous physical examination and as children ever undergo. For two hours, one at a time, the quints paraded before the battery of medical checkup, 11 days before their fourth birthday May 28.

The examiners were: Dr. Alan Brown, Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Toronto and physician-in-chief of the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children; Dr. G. E. Hill, one of Toronto's best known eye specialists, and R. William A.

ALL ABOARD DEAD AFTER WRECKAGE OF PLANE FOUND

Missing Lockheed Located by Rancher Near Mint Canyon

SEARCH HAMPERED

Machine Probably Burned Up On Crash in Mountains

Los Angeles, May 18 (AP)—The sheriff's office received a report from a Mint Canyon rancher today that he had sighted the charred wreckage of the missing Lockheed airliner and all nine persons aboard were dead.

The discovery was made by Walter Wetzel two twenty miles south of a gas and one and a half miles off the Mint Canyon highway in a rugged area where a two-day search, hampered by fog, had been in progress.

Peterson said the plane "was all burned up". He peered through the cabin, he said, and counted seven bodies. The two child passengers escaped his notice.

He reached the crash scene in about 5:30 a.m. (8:30 a.m. E.D.T.), having decided to make a search after a neighbor woman told him she had heard a roaring an airplane motor afternoon.

The fog Monday was so thick, he said, that it was impossible for any aircraft could not have been seen 100 yards away.

14 DAY SENTENCE FOR DRUNK DRIVER

Reckless Driving Charge Brings Same Term But Runs Concurrently

Trenton, May 18. — (Special)—Found guilty before Magistrate R. Butler by police court evidence of being intoxicated while in charge of a car, John J. Ryan, Toronto, was sentenced to a term of fourteen days in the Hastings County gaol. A second conviction of reckless driving drew a similar sentence to run concurrently.

Ryan was found to be in charge of the car which left the Dundas Street road near the bridge at Frankford on the 12th and ended its career against a railing.

Provincial Constable H. Caldwell Sergeant Walter Probert of the Trenton police and Constable John Taylor testified the defendant's car had been under the influence of liquor when an accident was made. This testimony was corroborated by Dr. A. E. McQuade of Trenton.

Wm. F. Duggan Newspaperman Dies at Windsor

Windsor, Ont., May 18 (CP)—Tribute to William F. Duggan, 37, as an "outstanding newspaperman and a gentleman" was paid by members of the bar and bench in police court today. Mr. Duggan, member of the editorial department of the Windsor Daily Star the past twelve years, died yesterday.

Among those paying tribute were Magistrate David Brooke, Magistrate Arthur Hanrahan, Crown Attorney James Allan, Patrick Clancy, Claude Renaud and David Croll, K.C., M. L. A., Windsor-Walkerville, on behalf of the legal profession. Mr. Duggan was police reporter of the Star the past eight years and only two weeks before his death had taken over the position of editor on the night shift.

Funeral services will be held here tomorrow night. Burial will be at Ivanhoe, Ont.

Sees Movement Towards Christianity In India

Kingston, Ont., May 18—(CP)—The final annual meeting of the Women's Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of Eastern Ontario and Quebec opened here last night. The main feature of the service was an address by Rev. A. Gordon of Falkonds, India, who spoke of the great mass movement among the "common people of that land towards Christianity. He declared the methods of reaching these people who throng the innumerable villages.

SEAMEN DESERT FROM CRUISER

H. M. S. Dorsetshire Was Visiting Australian Ports

Hong Kong, May 18—(CP-Reuter)—Fifteen seamen deserted H. M. S. Dorsetshire while the cruiser was visiting Australian ports in connection with Sydney's 150th anniversary celebrations, it was disclosed today. Four of the deserters are being brought here from Australia.

When the Dorsetshire was officially entertained early this month, it was learned, leading seaman Hobbs Hutchinson was found dead in his bunk. Another seaman was placed under naval arrest.

The Australian authorities declared they had no jurisdiction in the case as the deaths occurred outside the limit of territorial waters.

The Admiralty in London said that according to wireless messages received "four another only eight seamen deserted."

Expert Says Sense of Money May be Invested in U. S.

London, May 18—(AP)—Lord Hobart Crichton-Stuart, son of the Marquess of Bute, whose sale of property in Cardiff, Wales, yesterday was one of the biggest real estate deals in history, sailed today for the United States aboard the Queen Mary.

Final details of the sale were announced after the latter's 28-year-old son to leave. With his brother, the Earl of Dumfries, Lord Hobart directs many of his father's properties.

Reports, not confirmed, said Lord Robert planned to invest some of the proceeds of the sale in United States securities which he is believed to regard now especially as safe.

Lord Bute, who shuns public life, has been in Canada, Tangier, Morocco where he owns a hotel, for several weeks.

The Cardiff property, said to have involved half of the important West port was bought by an

BELIEVE MAN ON PAROLE FROM JAIL

Abandoned Car Near Hamilton And Police Find it Was Stolen

Hamilton, Ont., May 18—(CP)—District police said today they were looking for a man, who they believe, is on parole from Sing Sing Penitentiary and who abandoned a stolen automobile in Burlington Township near Toronto Monday.

When Chief Constable Howard Nickling of Hamilton beach visited headquarters here yesterday to obtain a summons against a man for speeding and failing to produce an operator's license, he found a description of the man he wanted tallied with that of a paroled Sing Sing prisoner. The license of the car belonged to one found abandoned in Burlington Township.

Nickling stopped a speeding automobile driven by an Italian. The car belonged to one found abandoned in Burlington Township.

Nickling stopped a speeding automobile driven by an Italian. The driver was greeted with apologies from the driver for breaking the speed laws. The motorist said he was hurrying to Toronto on a business deal, he had changed his clothes hurriedly and neglected to take his operator's permit from the pockets.

Martha Raye Seeks Fame As Glamor Girl

Los Angeles, May 18.—(AP) — Martha Raye is determined to be a public regard her no longer as a wide-mouthed comedienne, but as a glamorous girl with elegant ways.

She said as in a suit asking an injunction to restrain a picture magazine (Look) from possibly publishing a photograph of her and a companion smiling large and toothy smiles.

Miss Raye's complaint said that the picture was taken two years ago, after she boarded, she had entered "higher sphere of culture" and is renowned for the "shapeliness and elegance of her legs".

Garbage Horse Induces Mate To Run Away

Chatham, Ont., May 18.—(CP)—Bill and Gertie have been separated. Bill, a handsome horse, was pounded by Dog Officer Lee Campbell less than two months ago to help Gertie pull a garbage wagon. Bill was too high-spirited for his job.

He induced Gertie to run away with him recently, but they were both attached to the wagon, and Bill got into difficulties with the whiffletree, and was lamed. Council are purchasing another horse to help Gertie, and Bill will be sold as soon as he recovers from his wounds.

Safe Recovered but Nearly $1,200 Taken From Lakefield Creamery

Lakefield, Ont., May 18—(CP)—Thieves broke into the office of the Lakefield Creamery early today, carried off a 300-pound safe and got away with $423 in cash and $811 in cheques.

The latter were recovered by Provincial Constable David Silverleaf, Peterborough, and Constable Wallace Hendren of Lakefield, on the Young's Point road near the 11th concession of Smith, with the stolen safe lying beside the road a few yards farther on. The bottom had been pried off and the safe emptied.

Entrance into the creamery office had been gained by lifting a window with a tire iron. Once inside the thieves lifted a small cash register and an adding machine off the top of the safe and, then took the latter out through the side door of the office.

The robbery was discovered during the night by Victor Brown who noticed the side door of the creamery was opened and notified Charles Hunter, proprietor of the creamery. In a short time a hunt in which Provincial Officers Silverleaf, McClure and Broughton co-operated with the Peterborough Police Force and Provincial Police leading in to Peterborough were patrolled and the officers travelled many miles over the district in an effort to locate the robbers.

FRANCE MOVES TO REINFORCE HER AFRICA DEFENCES

Action Takes After Conversations With Italy Bog Down

RECRUIT MORE TROOPS

Paris, May 18 (AP)—France moved to reinforce her African defences today as her friendship conversations with Italy were reported in political circles to be bogging down over differences on Spain and Tunisia.

Recruiting of 60,000 additional native troops ordered almost immediately by General Jules Buhrer, Chief of Staff of Colonial armies, to bring the colonial forces now under 190,000, of which 60,000 are Europeans.

Diplomats reported conversations between Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, and Count Charge d'Affaires in Rome, and the French Ambassador, Andre Francois-Poncet, Ciano had come to a deadlock because of Premier Mussolini's demand that Generalissimo Francisco Franco as the master of all Spain be assured of equal advantages with Italy in the Tunisian Protectorate.

BURGLARS' TOOLS FOUND IN CAR

Toronto Youth Captured in Stolen Car And Elects Trial

Gall, Ont., May 18—(CP)—Murray Jones, 20, Toronto, was held in custody here today on a charge of having burglars tools. He elected trial at a higher court when he appeared in police court. He was caught after a wild chase today, in which his three companions escaped.

Within an hour after their flight two cars were reported stolen. Sergt. Cronin saw a car speeding around in a car and when he went to stop them, they made a fast break. The officer followed in a high-powered car which overtook and with the pursued car going into a ditch, the latter's wheel came off. The officer made sure of getting one man, Jewett, who it was thought had suffered a broken neck. The car was stolen from Hamilton, property of Dr. T. Cronin Clark.

Police reputedly police found a variety of burglars tools.

"Teacup Guns" Shoot at Unseen Targets Placed Miles Underground

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

Tulsa, May 18—(AP)—A world record in marksmanship was claimed today by the light artillery of the oil fields, the queer "teacup guns" which shoot at unseen targets miles underground.

The score was all shots, all striking within one-eighth of an inch of the target 5,300 feet underground in an Oklahoma City oil well.

The target was a piece of wood, pipe, or casing, whose operator wished it perforated at certain exact depths. The perforated pipe was shown here today at the International Petroleum Exposition.

This is strictly a peace time artillery, but its fire is done with remote control and one of its gun units took part in a secret army

SUCHOW DESERTED BY CHINESE ARMY REPORT STATES

Japanese Blast Way With Artillery Assault For Tank And Infantry

SOME TROOPS TRAPPED

Shanghai, May 18—(AP)—Japanese today blasted with artillery a path for tanks and infantry advance on the strategic city of Suchow which they said had been deserted by General Chiang Kai-Shek's Central government army.

The government troops, the Japanese reports were removed from Suchow before the invaders cut the Lunghai railway and encircled the city. These forces were said to be moving into position around Hsuchow, Kuomintang capital, west of the important junction of the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow railways, preparatory to a counter-offensive.

It was reported, however, that about 30,000 Chinese troops, mostly provincials, were trapped in the Japanese ring about Suchow with many trying to escape.

3 YRS. GIVEN ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Stiff Reprimand Given Accused Man by Magistrate

Cobourg, Ont. May 18—(CP)—Edmond Gordon of Windsor, Ont., was sentenced to three years in penitentiary when he was convicted yesterday by Magistrate W. A. Campbell on a charge of bigamy.

Gordon said he had domestic trouble with his wife in 1931, then left her. Believing her dead he married an 18-year-old Codrington girl last September, he said.

"You were old enough to be her father," the Magistrate said. "There is too much of that. Middle-aged men and children being cast adrift in the world. The Attorney-General is right in taking a strong stand on this matter."

Police evidence was introduced relating to three charges of fraud following the "wedding" last year. Gordon served a reformatory term for issuing worthless cheques to a taxi driver who drove the wedding party, a merchant who sold him wedding garments and a photographer who took a picture of the nuptial party. He also gave a false cheque to the officiating clergyman, Accepted by Provincial Constable A. L. Menie.

25 LB. LAKE TROUT FISHERMAN'S PRIZE

Weighing twenty-five pounds, 15 pounds short of a record, a trout caught a few years ago by a Main Duck fisherman, the record lake trout of the season caught by commercial fishermen off Point Traverse, was hauled in the other day by W. J. Ostrander of the Prince Edward fishing colony.

Some years ago the largest whitefish believed to be taken from the waters of Lake Ontario was caught by Willet Palmateer, while fishing off the Point. Tipping the scales at sixteen and one-half pounds the fish was the largest of its kind ever shipped to Cape Vincent, N.Y.

CITY WANTS LOCATIONS OF WORM NESTS SENT TO WORKS DEPARTMENT

That caterpillars so numerous this year as to create considerable damage to trees and shrubbery in the rural areas has spread to trees and shrubs on streets within the city it has been found by officials of the city works department who have ordered their destruction. Burning has been the method used today to rid the streets of the unsightly nests. A request for cooperation on the part of citizens in ridding the city of this pest has been made by the department which suggests early morning or evening as the best time for burning or clipping while the tents are filled with the worms.

"If citizens see these tents on city property we would like to have them phone the office for their removal. We have a man at this work all week," requested City Engineer Chas. Mott.

EXPERIMENTAL FARM PLOTS LOCATED HERE

EXPERIMENTAL FARM ... ...AS

Four Dominion Experimental Farm plots have been allotted this district by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, as an object lesson to farmers of the section who are invited to visit these plots when the grain matures and compare the various varieties under actual growing conditions.

The plots this year have been planted on the farms of Miller Carl, Stirling; J. A. Alexander Miller, Prince Edward County; Ray Perry, Napanee and Gordon Hancock, Frederick.

All plots have been sown with twelve varieties of barley and oats, and eight of Spring wheat. Two or three varieties of standard seed have been sown in rows paralleling other varieties of new type, which are merely seeding. These are experimental varieties, some of which have not as yet been named but are known only by numbers. From these plots it is hoped to select the best varieties suitable for local growing conditions.

N. B. RECEIVES PARASITES SHIPMENT

According to a report of R. E. Balch, head of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Fredericton, N.B., that province has received its first shipment of 300,000 microplectron from the Dominion Entomological Laboratory in this city. This consignment of parasites of the European Spruce sawfly, Lophyrus Abietis, was sent to the Forest Experimental Station in Stanley County.

Of the 8,800 square miles of valuable timberland in Eastern Canada heavily infested with the saw fly, 1,300 miles are in New Brunswick, it is reported. All efforts must be concentrated on stopping the spread of the epidemic in New Brunswick. The early hope appears to be the parasites bred in the Belleville laboratory, the report adds.

CHEESE BOX STRIPS USED FOR BRAKE LINING IN NORTH

Settlers using outmoded cars in the northern sections of Hastings and Renfrew counties, counties have been using strips of wood from cheese boxes for brake lining in their cars according to the finding of one garage owner who from time to time replaces this emergency brake material.

"The common way when the brakes wear out is to cut a strip or wood from the cheese box and let it soak water until it is pliable, then wrap it around the brake drum when it soon fits into shape. It makes a fairly satisfactory, if not completely safe, brake lining", declared the garageman.

CHILDREN ENJOY EARLY SEASON SWIMMING

Despite the continued cool weather numbers of juvenile bathers have been hopping in the waterfront season open since the chilly start in this the last two weeks ago. Last evening several were observed diving and swimming near the old Allen Dock, while in the later afternoon a few bathers also ventured from the shelter from the end of Victoria Park.

LIVE-BAIT SALES ARE REPORTED SLOW

Live bait sales have been slow so far this season in the city by the local licensed purveyors, indicating a slow wishing season up to the present. No Contracts Awarded State Plant Managers

Gov't. Inspectors Have Visited Local Factories to Make Surveys

MANY RUMOURS

Dominion Government inspectors have been making inspection visit through local manufacturing plants, notably the Corbin Lock Manufacturing company, the Belleville-Sargent and others, but so far no contracts for the manufacture of munitions or accessories in that manufacturing line have been awarded, it was stated by two plant managers today.

"There is no truth in the local story, outside press reports to the contrary, that we have been or are to make caps for shells or bombs, and you are the first who has asked this question today," a reporter of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer was told by Mr. L. R. McLean, manager of Corbins.

"We have had inspectors thru' the plant, but there has been no further information," he stated. Mr. H. Sanders, manager of the Belleville-Sargent Company. We have had no application for the manufacture of work but there have been no contracts signed," it was added.

No Information On Re-opening of Lakefield Quarry

No confirmation from the plant of the Canada Cement Company at Lakefield could be gained this morning regarding rumors that the present Lakefield quarry operations at the old Lakefield quarry in Peterborough district in order to supply cement for the Lindsay plant.

Local information would have to come from the head office at Montreal," stated Mr. Ed. Hamilton, superintendent. "We know nothing officially here."

The limestone quarry at Lakefield is just east of the village and is said to contain the best rock in the area for cement purposes. A number of men are reported to be given work this week on preliminary operations of quarrying there.

Barbara Parkhurst Not Seriously Injured

Three year old Barbara Parkhurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Parkhurst, 343 Pinnacle Street, was knocked down and run over by a motor car driven by Mrs. Hollins on Saturday afternoon after the little lass had run directly from the side of a moving vehicle while playing on the street. Little Barbara was taken to the surgery of Dr. C. B. Stobie, where following medical examination it was found she had only sustained a cut on her thigh, and minor body bruises.

Barbara was playing with other children near her home, when she ran out from between automobiles and upon investigation accompanied her to the office of Dr. Stobie.

P. C. Taylor investigated and was informed the little girl had run from the motor car. She was not seriously injured however.

It is estimated that the average life of an automobile is 2,100 hours. If the car is driven at an average speed of 20 miles an hour its life may be figured, in miles, at 43,000.

Obituary

WILLIAM W. PURDY (Thurlow)

After a lengthy illness William Wesley Purdy passed away at the residence of his brother, Mr. H. Purdy, in the 1st. concession of Thurlow Township, this Wednesday morning, May 18th.

The late Mr. Purdy, who was in his 74th. year, was born in the 1st. concession of Sidney Township and resided there for many years. For the past fifteen years he made his home in Thurlow Township. He was a member of the United Church and well respected in the community.

Surviving him are three sisters, Mrs. S. Ray, Ivanhoe; Mrs. Bert Gill, Belleville, and Mrs. Howard Barber, Rochester; three brothers, Hiram Purdy, Ivanhoe; Thomas and Jacob Purdy, Windsor and Francis S. Purdy, Thurlow Township.

The funeral arrangement is made elsewhere in this paper.

MRS. SAMUEL SIMPKINS

Death which followed an illness of about six months past, on Tuesday evening, removed another one of the district's oldest and best known residents, Mrs. Samuel Simpkins of 122 James Street, this city. Widow of the late Mr. Simpkins, she was 83 at the time of her death.

The late Mrs. Simpkins was born Sarah Camill, daughter of the late Allan Camill, at Stoco and had resided in this city and district up to the time of her death. A member of the Alliance Tabernacle Church, she was an indefatigable worker in the interests of her church and was a regular attendant each week. Hired as a safety move by the Parks Board, Semark has been responsible for the saving of the lives of at least a half dozen inmates of bathers who have ventured beyond their capabilities since assuming the job.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. James Hallett of Demorestville; by Mrs. George Dawes, Belleville, and Mrs. Ferguson Rose of Northport; five brothers, all of Picton, is a brother-in-law. Two other sisters, Mrs. Henry Moss of Chicago, and Mrs. David Parks, predeceased Mrs. Simpkins some years ago. The brothers, Miles Camill and Anson Camill, both formerly of Tweed, also predeceased her.

The funeral will take place from the family residence at 122 James Street on Friday afternoon at 1.30 to Picton Cemetery where interment will take place.

LATE MRS. SARAH M. CAUGHEY (Prince Edward)

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Maria Caughey took place Tuesday afternoon, May 17, from her late residence in the Second Concession of Sophiasburg Township in Prince Edward County. The service in the home and at the graveside in Pleasant Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. H. A. McGee, assisted by the Rev. L. Burr.

The bearers were Messrs. S. Calnan, E. Roebeck, F. Purtelle, C. Pyne, D. Fox and V. Bongard.

KIWANIS CLUB TO TAKE PART

"Sports Day" by Oshawa Club Will be Held in June

An appeal was made by Eddie Shapiro for a large attendance at the annual "Sports Day" at Oshawa, which will be held the week of June 15th in speaking before the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon held in the Green's Hotel on Tuesday. The club last year did and sent a large representation and a special invitation has been extended to compete in all the events and this will be done. Harold Bone will collect the lawn bowling team, Jack McGinnis will look after the golfers, Ross Silver will muster the horseshoe pitching squad and Bruce Latimer will have charge of the softball team.

Dr. Robert A. "Dick" Flynn presided as chairman of the luncheon with Fred H. Deacon as special speaker of the day. Deacon spoke on "On his Impressions of Europe". Mr. Deacon has delivered the address on several occasions to different organizations in the city since his return, while this paper carried a lengthy interview on the subject shortly after his arrival home.

Mr. Deacon is a fluent and interesting speaker and his subject matter was well assembled and the members thoroughly enjoyed the address. He was introduced to the club by Bruce Latimer and Kiwanian appreciation was voiced by Sid Howell. James Cowan was sergeant at arms but quite lax in duty shooting in the members.

Police Blotter

A passing motor truck crashed into the plate glass window placed for the protection of the newly painted parking sign on Front Street, breaking one of the city lanterns placed for the protection of the public that night. The driver of the transport did not stop at the scene of the accident police reported today.

Police today revealed six 22 dog licenses have been purchased in Belleville this year. "Last year there were over 600 sold and unless owners of the canines in this city procure their dog tags within short notice, summonses will have to be issued," police officials declared today.

No arrests being necessary in Belleville yesterday left the city block available for 21 transients, who sought shelter there last night.

Tomorrow: East Lynn

By WILLIAM JULE

Wilbur Wright, his handsome features live with intense emotion, pointed an admonishing finger. "Now you listen to me, for a change! Keep still! One more word and I'll climb over that desk!"

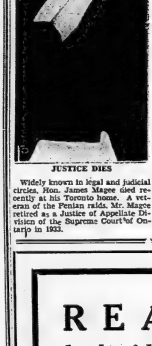
Wilbur chuckled grimly at the amazed expression on Jergerson's face. "I'll do the talking now!" he shouted. "Do you hear me? I've waited weeks to tell you to your ugly face what I think of you. Put me out of your hotel will you? Well I guess not! Hold my trunk for back rent, will you? Try it — that's all, just try it! I'm a rotten actor, am I? How do you know? You provincial penny pincher, what do you know about acting?

"I'm in arrears, am I? Of what? I tried to be fair with you, Jergerson. I tried to give you a chai.e, but you wouldn't listen. No, You were only interested in money. That's what you said yourself, wasn't it? Well, you'll get your filthy money. You'll get every penny that's coming to you. I'm not the penniless bum you thought I was. Do you get me? I can buy your hotel and use it for firewood!"

Wilbur's confidence assumed a soft intensity. "Jergerson," he almost hissed, "you don't know what it's like to be broke, do you? You've always had money, lived in the lap of luxury, but what enjoyment did you get out of it? Did you ever experience the warm friendliness of a bottle of wine and congenial companions? Did you ever know the ecstasy of soft, white arms around your neck? Why, you big lummox, when I first came to your hotel I had high hopes. Who wouldn't have had? A first-class company presenting only the finest Broadway successes. How were we to know that the yokels wouldn't have sense enough to appreciate the better things in the spoken drama? And the productions! When have you or had anyone else ever looked at such stage settings? And you tell me I'm a rotten actor, eh? Did you ever take a look at my press notices? Here, take a peep at some of these—see what they think of me in Joplin. And look what Albert Lea has to say about my performance. How do you like this notice from Chippewa Falls—pretty bad, eh?"

Well, when you get your curiosity whetted up to fever pitch I'll tell you that I came by it honestly, Mr. Sherlock. I happen to be the sole heir to one of the largest estates in America. How do you like that? "I've enjoyed this a lot, Jergerson, —joining a show troupe and pretending to live on the stingy salary that's been paid. Oh, not that the show wasn't good—it was. The best popular priced opera in the country. The business was bad, that's all. But the idea of me—me, a multimillionaire, getting away with the stall that I was broke. You know, Jergerson, I like to pretend. Ever since I was a kid I've lived in the land of make-believe, always posing as a poor man. It's been great fun. Of course you wouldn't understand that, you money grabber!

"I wouldn't let you in on this secret, Jergerson. If you hadn't threatened to hold my trunk. There are keepsakes in that old box that even I couldn't buy with all my money. Hey, that's a laugh! You holding my trunk!



"I've waited a long time for this moment, Jergerson, and you'll have to pardon me if I seem to gloat a little over my triumph. It's a funny thing—"

The harsh jangle of the telephone roused Wilbur from his meditative oratory.

"Hello—who? Yes, Mr. ergerson—why, no, I'm—I'm very but simply can't raise the money, Mr. Jergerson ." No, I can't do that. I haven't a friend or a relative in the world . . . Why—yes, I'm all packed. I'll be out of the hotel in five minutes, sir. Yes, I'll leave the trunk—and—thank you, sir."

FREE FROM SCIATICA FOR 35 YEARS

In Perfect Health at 73 —Thanks to Kruschen

Thirty-five years ago this septuagenarian was helpless with sciatica. Then he heard of Kruschen, Since that day, he has enjoyed perfect health. Here is his remarkable story:—

"Thirty-five years ago, I had a severe attack of sciatica, and could scarcely move for about six weeks. Then I started taking Kruschen—about half-a-teaspoonful every morning in hot water. In a few weeks, I got rid of the awful pain in my hips. I have never had to consult a doctor since, and am still in perfect health at 73 years of age, which I can only attribute to taking Kruschen Salts every morning."—T.A.

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need of internal cleanliness. Eventually, they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then, probably for the first time in their lives, they start getting rid, every day, of all waste matter from the system. The result is renewed health and vigor. Ailments due to clogged systems vanish, youth returns, and life becomes really worth living.

Wilbur struck a Napoleon-at-Austerlitz posture, cleared his throat and proceeded: "I was always considered a good actor, Jergerson. Why, even in the grades I was the star reader of the class. In high school I won all the declamatory and oratorical contests. My elocution teacher told me I possessed a dramatic talent which would some day make me famous. If I didn't have to stay in the show business long before company managers everywhere recognized the fact that I was the most versatile juvenile on the stage—and you tell me I'm a rotten actor. What do you know about acting. Why, you don't even know how to run a hotel.

"So you were going to put me out of your hotel because I owed a measly two weeks' rent, were you? Well, fix your glasses you old skinflint, and take a sqhint at my bank roll. Kinda bowls you over, eh? I thought so. Where did I get all the money? Wouldn't you like to know?

OVERSUBSCRIBED IN HALF AN HOUR

$140,000,000 Dominion Loan Subscribed For Soon as Books Opened

Ottawa, May 18—(CP)—The new $140,000,000 Dominion of Canada loan which went on the market today was over-subscribed half an hour after the books opened, the Finance Department announced.

The official announcement said: "The subscription books of the new Dominion of Canada loan which opened at nine o'clock this morning were closed at nine-thirty Eastern Daylight Time in respect of cash and conversion subscriptions for both maturities of the new loan. The loan was over-subscribed. Wire subscriptions have been allotted information will be released in regard to the allotments in each of the two maturities of the new loan."

The loan was for a maximum of $140,000,000 of which $90,000,000 was conversion and $50,000,000 cash subscriptions.

It took the form of a six-year, two-per-cent bonds due June 1, 1944, priced at 99.375 and secured interest, to yield approximately 2.1 per cent to maturity, and 20-year, three-per-cent bonds due June 1, 1958, priced at 99 and accrued interest, to yield approximately 3.07 per cent to maturity.

Practical Joke Nearly Ends Lives Of Four People

Kalgoorlie, Australia, May 18 (CP) —A practical joke that ended with four people in hospital is reported from Cwalia, 180 miles from Kalgoorlie.

A 34-year-old unemployed Italian miner, Felica Amanasco, was drinking wine with his landlady and another boarder, according to the police account. For a joke Amanasco put what he thought was alum in their wine, to make it taste sour. After drinking the wine, however, the two fell to the ground unconscious. They had been poisoned.

Overcome with remorse, he seized a butcher's knife and tried to stab himself through the heart. A bone deflected the blade and he then turned only in making a deep gash over his heart.

In the meantime two other Italians also living in the boarding house went off to seek medical aid. The car in which they were driving collided with another and one of the Italians was seriously injured.

The four victims of this practical "joke" are now in hospital where it is stated they will recover.

"Wise Girl" and "Love Honor and Behave"

A romantic drama of Park Avenue and Greenwich Village with an exciting underworld is presented in RKO Radio's "Wise Girl", with Miriam Hopkins and Ray Milland in top roles, and announced as one of two features coming to the Belle Thursday and Friday, matinee daily.

The efforts of an elderly millionaire to gain custody of his orphaned grandchildren is the motivating influence behind the story. When his methods fail to secure the two youngsters, who live with their young and struggling uncle in a Greenwich Village tenement, his daughter decides to do the job herself, without regard to ethics.

Miss Hopkins as the "Wise Girl" is said to combine her dramatic and comedy talents for one of the most effective roles of her career, and Ray Milland last winning popularity, is considered an ideal selection for the role of the independent and defiant artist.

Along with the romantic theme, its abundant humor and its heart interest the picture presents a side of Greenwich Village that is seldom revealed on the screen. The "Village" has its sincere brush and pen wielders, who eventually rise to prominence, and this aspect is faithfully shown in the film, with Milland, Walter Abel and Guinn Williams as three such unknown but genuinely talented aspirants.

Two young girls who have never been seen on the screen also have prominent roles in the offering. Betty Philson, a youngster from the New York stage, and Marianne Strelby, a twelve-year-old Hollywood amateur, are cast as the two children about whose custody the action revolves.

Henry Stephenson, Alec Craig, D'Arcy Corrigan and other well-known players are in "Wise Girl."

"Love, Honor and Behave"

"Love, Honor and Behave" an engaging comedy about young married life, and co-starring two sensational young actors, Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane, is announced as the companion feature.

You'll remember Morris as the "Kid" of that recent success, "God Gakhad," in which he sky-rocketed to stardom. Six-foot-four of blonde and grinning manhood, he's the answer to any maiden's prayer and a swell actor besides. As for Priscilla Lane, she's the small armful of crooning dynamite who vamped her way to fame in "Varsity Show." The team is said to be one of the most romantic and delightful pairs the screen has ever had.

In the supporting cast are Dick Purcs, John Litel, Thomas Mitchell, Barbara O'Neil, Mona Barrie and Dickie Moore. The last complete show begins nightly at 8.30 p.m.

Jeanette MacDonald Departs

Lovely Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are appearing in the romantic adventure musical "The Girl of the Golden West," at the Belle for the last times tonight. Two complete shows will be presented at 7.00 and 9.00 p.m.

CANADA TO BUILD BOMBERS LIKE THIS FOR BRITAIN.

With Britain's furious drive for a larger air force already overtaxing production Canadian industry stands an excellent chance to secure contracts for the construction of heavy long-range bombers, as soon as the air mission, now in Ottawa, headed by Comm. J. G. Weir (inset) has made its report to the British Air Ministry. Investigation of American production possibilities is believed to have revealed that private and government orders, plus the likelihood of neutrality enactments in the event of war, ruled out the republic as a source of supply. Some of the heavy bomber types now being added to the R.A.F. are shown above. Top left is a big Avro machine, and below, one of the heavily armed Handley bombers. Top, centre, is the Bristol Blenheim, considered the most advanced machine among British bombing airplanes. At right a group of the airplanes are photographed during a trial flight. In the event of construction in Canada, patent rights now held by the British Air Ministry would be granted to Canadian manufacturers.

SOLOMON'S SEAPORT

Today there is talk of this empire and that empire and of ancient empires and apropos of this popular theme comes word of the discovery of the port of King Solomon's trading ships in the days of his empire. It is found on the eastern arm of the Red Sea: Ezion-geber, referred to in the Bible, has been dug up by American archeologists. Reports made public by Dr. Burrows in giving details of the find read: "The exact location of Solomon's seaport has been long unknown, but recent exploration near Aqabah and subsequent excavation laid bare the site which is now known to the Arabs as Tell el-Kheleifeh. Aqabah is located at the northern end of the Gulf of Aqabah, which is the eastern arm of the Red Sea, the Gulf of Suez being the western arm."

Bible readers and those who neglect this greatest book concerning world civilizations as well as the world's greatest record of religious and spiritual outlook of individuals and nations must be interested in this find as it calls to the attention of the people of the twentieth century events of long ago in the Red Sea, which even today in this century has been in the light of public interest in the new Anglo-British treaty concerning the Suez and the Red Sea, Arabia and the route to India. Centre of world influence in the days of Solomon and his father David, this great trade route by water is still one of the greatest highways of the world so great that two great powers Britain and Italy, felt that any differences should be eliminated by treaty. It is thought that the visit of the Queen of Sheba, which followed the building of Solomon's seaport fleet was inspired by her fear that Solomon's marine enterprise might diminish her revenues. A century later the King of Judah's fleet was destroyed at Ezion-geber by a storm.

The story is profitable from the tenth to the eighth century before Christ occupied itself with sea trade, ship-building, fishing, copper smelting, manufacture of copper implements, weaving and pottery making.

The seaport is about half a mile from the shore today, as a result of an unceasing flow of sand in sand storms, causing the sea to recede at the rate of about a couple of centimeters a year. The presence of the ruins of the smelting works explains why the site was chosen. This smelting and refining plant was the largest in all the ancient Near East.

The discoverers say: "On the very north end of the mound are a series of four small rooms, in which were pottery crucibles, In the south walls of these rooms are flues, some of which penetrate to channels running through the middle of the walls and others of which go clear through the middle of the walls to some large rooms, which have flues in each wall.

"Great masses of burned wood and ash and pulverized burned brick were found in these rooms.

"By placing one's hand over any of the flue holes at the south end or one of the walls of any of the rooms one can feel the strong draft that still comes through these flues. One of the main reasons, therefore we feel, that the ancient inhabitants chose this particular site was because they needed a constant draft from a known direction to help work their smelting and refining furnaces."

"The main period of this site and the best buildings belong to the period of King Solomon. In addition to owning and working the copper deposits in the Arabah, he, together with his subjects, apparently engaged extensively not only in the smelting and refining of the ore but in the manufacture of copper articles. One thinks again of the description of Palestine (the Arabah) in Deuteronomy viii, 9, as 'a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills you can dig copper'."

The Bible refers to the port and the building of the merchant fleet of Solomon with which Solomon carried on trade with Arabia and India. The Bible also mentions Hiram, the great King of Tyre, in connection with the building of Solomon's merchant marine.

It is not the number of books you read, nor the variety of sermons you hear, nor the amount of religious conversation in which you mix, but it is the frequency and earnestness with which you meditate on these things, till the truth becomes your own and part of your being, that ensures your growth.—F. W. Robertson.

THAT THIS IS AN AGE OF SPEED AND MORE SPEED IS APPARENT to anyone who cares to Stop, Look and Listen. A man, high in the councils of state, once remarked that "he had his ear to the ground" and heard momentous things not audible to the common herd. Others listen to the murmuring in the mulberry bushes and get forrader faster, or otherwise. However, it is no longer safe to have one's ear to the ground, especially on a railway track, lest a streamlined train appear suddenly from nowhere and amputate that ear with or without the rest of the head, or otherwise. Speed, then, is the order of the hour—motor madness, giant clipper planes which fly across the continent in a few hours where it took months for the pioneers of the Covered Wagon Days to negotiate the same distance over prairies and mountains. Clipper airships annihilate distance in their flights round the world, making stops at once distant foreign ports, now but a few hours or days away, not months. The development of the air mail is an interesting epic. From Belleville to Vancouver is twelve speedy airmail in two days which is some travelling. Between Los Angeles and New York air mail makes record time, and a test now being made by Mr. G. M James, of the James Bicycle Company is very interesting. Mr. James is at present touring the States and posted a letter in Los Angeles on Saturday, May 14, at 12.30 p.m. (three o'clock Belleville time) and the letter arrived at Belleville postoffice Monday, May 16 at 12.30 p.m. which should constitute a record. Mr. James on his journey across the continent has been posting letters in the regular way and also air mail letters in order to obtain a comparison in time between the new way and the old way.

Mr. James reports that since leaving Belleville on April 16 he has enjoyed a splendid trip with unsplendid weather, pleasure, visiting Detroit, Chicago, Kansas City, Denver and other important business centres. Temperatures recorded in various places on the trip included 65 at Detroit, 91 at Chicago, 94 at Kansas City, 50 at Denver due to a recent blizzard of icy winds and snow sweeping down from the Rocky Mountains near by.

Passing over the desert 500 miles east of Hollywood, a temperature of 98 was encountered. Millions of various varieties of cactus in bloom turned the desert into a garden of beauty concealing this desolation of death which is the desert.

Traces of the flood are still in evidence in Los Angeles emphasizing the serious nature of that disaster. The streets are thronged all day by good-looking prosperous people, and the weather is bright and warm, around 70 degrees. Flowers of all kinds are abundant and cheap. The hotel room of Mr. and Mrs. James is bright and beautiful with huge bunches of cut flowers after at an expense of about twenty-five cents a week, with sweet peas and roses predominating.

BRANTFORD RATEPAYERS VOTED FOR A SYSTEM OF MUNICIPAL BUSSES to supplant the street car service. Then a vote was taken on the issue of debentures to pay for the civic bus line. The ratepayers emphatically rejected the proposal to issue debentures for $70,000 to pay for the bus system. All of which seems to indicate that the ratepayers of Brantford are in favor of a bus system if it does not cost anything.

CLAUDE W. COLE, "KING OF THE MAIN DUCKS" IS DEAD. Claude Cole was the owner of the largest of the Main Ducks, islands in Lake Ontario, which have been the scene of many shipwrecks and suffering and loss of human lives. Since Mr. Cole acquired the island a lighthouse was erected and every effort made to protect mariners unfortunate enough to be blown ashore in the vicinity of the jagged rocks of the Main Ducks. Front Page publicity was won by Mr. Cole when he placed buffalos and other animals on his island and created an interesting zoo, although the buffalo did not thrive in the island environment. With his winter home situated at Cape Vincent Mr. Cole made frequent trips between the island and the main land in his commodious motor boat. He was an outdoor man, bluff and hearty, who enjoyed life as only outdoor men can, an interesting man to know and a friend one could be proud of and always depend on.

Rest the Main Treatment in Acute Heart Disease

A physician friend telephoned me recently and stated that he was going into hospital that evening for a rest as he had had a slight heart attack an hour previously. As he expected to be there for two or three weeks he asked me to drop in and see him. It would be just a social call as he contracted his heart condition in France during the War and was naturally under the care of the military physicians.

As I thought of his large practice and of his many responsibilities I wondered how he would ever remain in bed during the four or eight weeks that is usually prescribed. He informed me that the electrocardiogram showed the distance ance present.

As expected, his first statement was, "I've decided to stay in bed here two weeks, then go home and rest in bed for three weeks."

I asked him if that would be the way he would treat a patient with an acute heart attack. He admitted that he would insist upon the patient remaining in bed for at least a month, but of course he was not treating a friend.

"Well," I said, "you know that rest is the only thing that will heal the condition. But it can't heal if you are not a complete rest".

"I have to attend to the seriousness of the condition and that undue effort, a large meal, or too much excitement might be fatal at this time, and was disturbed in bed as he would be if he had the habit of returning home in two weeks.

Fortunately the heart specialist, after making another cardiogram, advised that not less than six weeks rest should be prescribed, day and night, in bed.

Immediately afterwards, another physician dropped in and casually remarked, "What's the trouble? Had his coronaries blocked?" Nothing. I've had three attacks and simply go to bed for a day or eight weeks, take things easy for another six weeks, and here I am, doing my first heart case."

To see this sturdy acquaintance, a big man, apparently in the stands of coronary occlusion—blockage of a bloodvessel by a blood clot) due to failing at any time, was enough to give the heart and bloodvessels a rest chance to heal, was just what was needed to make my friend willing to remain in bed for six weeks and to take it easy for the time for a couple of months afterwards.

I am telling the above little story, that physicians, to give the heart a rest chance to get the power, do not always prescribe medicine, but upon complete rest in bed, should be an objective. Quinine is the specific largely to heart patients who may have, and frequently do, rest is the big factor in treatment.

MARCH OF TIME

The march of mechanization does not always show itself openly. In London, Ontario, recently the clock which has been a familiar landmark to scores of generations of merchants who have had business to transact at the Customs House was removed to the office of the Port of London Authority. Today it stands in the office of Capt. Alfred Hale of Clerkenwell placed it in position. Then he pressed a button and realise that the clock has recently been equipped with a motor and that it is one of its old weights and pulleys.

Recently, as John Thwaites installed it, has had an innings of a hundred years. It is a reminder anism may live as long again to give the time of day to merchants who come to the office to clear their drugs, curios, silks, cigars, and all the odds and ends that are carried in the Outlet street warehouses. The work of John Thwaites is typically commemorated in the face of the clock and its hands.

Well was it that the firm of John Thwaites was well over 60 years old, for today, after a lapse of over 200 years, the business still flourishes in Clerkenwell under the title of Thwaites and Reed.—London Times.

New Yorkers Go to a Circus

When a circus rolled in a small city in Vermont, Nebraska or South Carolina, a generation or so ago, it was an event. The whole town poured out to see the parade, the acrobats, the clowns, the trick bicycle riders, the performing horses and elephants. Even the grandest people in town gathered on the curbstones to watch the parade—the dazzling chariots, the gilded cages, the glittering performers, the gaudy band wagons, the cavalcade of camels and elephants, the clowns cutting capers in the dust. Then they trooped into the tents and paid their money and saw the show.

Today, in New York city, the circus is a different story. New Yorkers, as is well known, are extremely sophisticated. They are not easily astonished. Most of the elements of which a circus is made are available to them during the year; animals in the zoos; dancers and acrobats in the theatres of the day or night; funny men in the movies and stage shows; jugglers, acrobats, tumblers, freaks and parades on Broadway, Fifth Avenue or at Coney Island or elsewhere.

The New Yorker need not even pay an admission charge to see people walking their lives in the same dreary manner at any congested street intersection. He may watch the erection of a new office building. Or he may in the evening splash the lights or descend into the subway at the rush hour, risking as much and suffering as much as Captain Frank Buck himself.

Yet a good many New Yorkers get as excited as children when even the circus comes to town. With some, no doubt, this is a tradition—an atavistic remnant, perhaps, of a primitive simplicity. Jocularly to the impression the lamentable P. T. Barnum made on their ancestors. With others the impingement of the circus is unique.

There are the circus fans, who love the smell of animals and swallow more than the perfume of Araby, and who would follow the big top all over the country if they were not detained by their business, professions or families. There are the multitudes who can forget circuses between seasons, but who turn to them with bated breath and glittering eyes during that interval between the last snows of April and the opening of the baseball season.

What they like, one guesses, is pageantry without a meaning, the pomp and parade of war without bloodshed. It is the circus in its midriff without indecency, risks skill, the noise, the confusion, the drama, completely divorced from everyday life, triumph without victims.

In short, the circus is what Mr. Will Hays, in his high-brow language, describes as a manifestation of escapism. For three hours we evade reality—for after all, there is no reality in a circus—and for three hours we are transported to the Golden Age of Make Believe, when animals may live as long again to give the time of day to merchants who come to their cages with bags of drugs, curios, silks, cigars, and all the odds and ends that are carried in the Outlet street warehouses. The work of John Thwaites is typically commemorated in the face of the clock and its hands.

Viewing the Cost of Marriage

"The man I marry must be earning between $125 and $150 a month," a majority of Sault girls told a reporter in answer to a query on the subject. "A man should a man be earning before he gets married. He must have money in the bank to buy furniture and other necessities, and he must have insurance."

Some girls had much bigger ideas. They were girls who have never worked themselves. Girls who are working now all think they can manage very well if the prospective bridegroom is earning from $100 upwards.

What do men think? Well, they won't talk as readily as girls do, and their ideas are high....until they meet the right girl....and then they drop considerably. One young man, who has a lady wilting, says he will not marry for a year the day comes when he is making $200 a month and has $2000 in the bank. His future wife is going to have a long wait. Others said it depends on the girls as to what she is used to, and if she is willing to start from the bottom as they were, and work up. They told us they'd get married when they were making $150 or more. They're sure they could save money on that sum.

A miss, whom we are quite sure is confirming some of our own ideas, she wouldn't think of marriage until the better half of $200 per month presented itself. "Why we'd have to live in a small apartment, all home and no fun. We'd have to say entertaining at all on any scale. We'd have to watch the pennies that people can live on $80 a month although she does think from $100 to $150 is better. "You can't save money on $80 a month but you can on a little more," she ventured.

Each girl was asked got into quite a discussion on the subject. They all said they could get married on $125 a month. And said they think of insurance, which is really a necessity, amusements, food, rent and the many little extra items that always crop up....Dentist and doctor bills, which must be paid. Then there's a family. Yes they thought of that too, and money had to be saved for it....so, $125 a month would look better to them.

As a sort of a wind-up we conversed with a couple of young housewives, and they had some sound advice and ideas. The girls with the big ideas will change them suddenly they said. If young married couples today have everything and nothing to look forward too, life is dull they think.

"Why I got the biggest kick out of buying the odd piece of furniture when I knew we have saved for it and can afford it," one said. "We appreciate everything we get now as much, more than ever.

Every time this Mrs. walks into her apartment she has the grandest feeling to think that it is all theirs and all purchased on an instalment plan. They don't deny themselves anything either...have their fun and nothing for

MINSTREL SHOW DELIGHTS CROWD

Trenton Talent Presents Fine Program in Stirling Theatre

Stirling—Shades of the old fashioned minstrel show and its popularity were revived in Stirling on Monday evening when the Stirling Theatre was filled to capacity for a splendid musical concert presented by a group of talented artists from Trenton. This group under the direction of Jos. Macauley and known as the Kenlocky Minstrels are gaining renown throughout the entire district by virtue of the excellent performances. They are booked to appear in several towns of Central Ontario and their reputation assures them of packed houses. Their Stirling appearance was under the auspices of the Stirling Agricultural Society and the event was registered as one of the most successful held here for some time. The programme committee of the Stirling organization headed by H. P. Ellis, convener, worked in co-operation with the advance agents of the Trenton group and secured all necessary stage properties from local merchants.

This is the first Minstrel Show to be presented locally for over fifteen years and the large attendance proves that the popularity of this type of entertainment has not waned. This program was one possessing wholesome humor, and versatile musical selection of old and modern tempo. The end men, Gene Behan, Jack Hewlin, Rostrand Sprague and Maurice Pecleau, were truly purveyors of mirth and laughter particularly among the youngsters present. The dignified duties of master of ceremonies were very capably executed by the musical director, Mr. Jos. Macauley, who displayed fine musical ability in his presentation of the Negro passion song "Chloe."

Southern atmosphere was given to the concert in realistic fashion in the presentations of the Cotton pickers singing "Old Black Joe." Comedy of the best quality also had a part in the program as well as the nimble foot work of tap dancers. The group consists of capable soloists who each contributed largely to the program in trety pwn fashion with the thirty voice chorus adding power to the five-piece orchestra that played the accompaniments.

The Cast

Among those prominent on the program were: The orchestra, C. D. Morris, conductor; Mrs. Barr, L. Yassau, Tony Giosoffeio, and Len Pearce. The Quthie Quartette, a vocal trompe that have been heard several times on the airways of the Canadian radio consisting of Glenn Metz, Lloyd Metz, Frank Wilson and Claude Hoffman, and the following soloists and choristers, Ken Dougan, Aubrey Rumpes, Wm. Taylor, Chas. Willard, Geo. Belsin, B. Langmuir, J. Lamoire, O. Ward, D. Donaldson, Thos. Player, Ed. Macleod, C. Barfoot, George Shaw and B. Lamoore.

Representing St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, and West Huntingdon at the meeting of the Kingston Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, delegates especially with the call extended to Rev. J. A. Kolfend by the congregations of Tweed and Elzevir Corners in the Brockville Presbytery; Mr. T. J. McGee, clerk of the Kirk Session of St. Andrew's Church and Representative Elder accompanied by Messrs. Bolter Johnson, Harper Rollins and Vernon Matthews each expressed their regret at the decision the congregation they represented in the future departure of Rev. Kolfend from the ministry of the charge. During the past five years his services to the community have been recognized by all citizens.

Annual Meeting of Stirling Women's Institute

The annual meeting of the Stirling Branch of the Ontario Women's Institutes was held recently at the home of Mrs. Thomas Cranston. Mrs. W. C. West, president of the organization, presided over the meeting and Mrs. R. H. Williams, secretary-treasurer presented a detailed report. The president briefly outlined the accomplishments of the branch during the past year. The election of officers for the coming year was conducted by Mrs. M. Vanderwoort, District Representative of the Federation with the following ladies being duly elected to direct activities for the coming year:

President—Mrs. W. C. West.
1st. Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Thos. Cranston.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. Morrison
Secretary—Mrs. F. Bessey.
Treasurer—Mrs. Roy Woodbeck.
District Director—Mrs. A. Gordinier.
Directors—Mrs. R. H. Williams; Mrs. Louis Rodgers, Mrs. W. Mr. Freer.
Pianist—Mrs. Nora Wescott.
Song Leader—Mrs. J. J. Wilson.
Auditors—Mrs. J. West and Mrs. N. Heath.

The kind invitation extended to the ladies to hold the June meeting at the home of Mrs. Mathieson was accepted and the program and luncheon arrangements will be directed by Mrs. Roberts. The appreciation of the organization for the kind hospitality of Mrs. Cranston was voiced briefly by Mrs. Woodbeck.

The members of the W.M.S. and W.A. from Ridgeview met at the home of their May meeting at the home of Mrs. Arthur Andrews on Wednesday evening, May 11th, with a good attendance. The president of the W.M.S., Mrs. M. Pidgeon and Mrs. Harlow presided. Among the numbers on the program was an address by the pastor, Rev. M. Tristran, and Mrs. R. Christie, leading, read a letter from her sister, Mrs. (Rev.) Simmons of China, which told of some of the war conditions which the missionaries experience. Mrs. Andrews was a former president and life member of the Ergeton Society and was delighted to welcome members old and new.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Conley of Prince Edward were Sunday guests of Mrs. Conley's mother, Mrs. H. Rosebush, River Valley.

Mr. Art Duncan was in Prankford on Sunday, and attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Jessie Bowen.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bennett and Harry; Mr. and Mrs. Armond Bennett of Belleville, and Mrs. Smith of Belleville, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Bennett, Frankford.

Rev. J. D. P. Knox of Belleville, was the guest of his sister, Miss Sarah Knox on Friday.

Friends of Mrs. Charles Devolin will be sorry to learn that she is seriously ill at her home in Stirling.

Madoc Junction

Madoc Junction—On Sunday last the Sunday School and Church services were combined. The church looked beautiful with potted plants, and vases of wild flowers.

At the beginning of the service, Rev. W. R. Tristran baptized the two small children of Mr and Mrs. H. Mudd. Then the S.S. Supt. Mr. Oliver Stapley took charge of the special Mother's Day program. "A Family Day in the Church School," all the girls and boys did their parts in a creditable manner.

A junior choir: Mary Chambers, Ella Wannamaker, Marcella Stapley, Vera Stapley, Laura Wannamaker, Rosella Pilchett and Gladys Clarke came up the aisle singing and took their places in the choir. The introduction of theme was given by Mr. Stapley and following this the "responsive Scripture reading." Mrs. Tristran read the "Seventh Parsonage Fire." "For the Beauty of the Earth" was sung and following this responsive prayer.

The offering was then taken by Messrs. Donald and Ralph Stapley.

A short drama, "Scenes from the Wesley House" was then given with Miss Marion Micklejohn taking the part of Susannah Wesley and Pearla Pidgeon, Marcella Stapley, Mary Chambers, Laura Wannamaker, Vera Stapley, Ella Wannamaker, Hugh McMullen and Grant Stapley taking the part of the Wesley children. Between each scene Mrs. Pilchett took the part of the narrator.

Rev. W. R. Tristram gave a splendid address from Proverb, 31, 28th verse, "Her children arise up and call her blessed." Hymn, "O God our Help in Ages Past" was sung and Rev. Mr. Tristram pronounced the Benediction.

Rev. W. Tristram was welcomed into the community a new lad, Mr. John Walton, who has just come from Scotland and is employed at Mr. George Eggleton's.

Miss Lenora Stapley spent Sunday in Toronto with her sister, Miss Martha Eggleton.

Eggleton W.M.S and W.A.

The May meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held at Eggleton Hall on May 11th, in Stirling at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Andrews. Mrs. Andrews is a former president and worker in the local W.M.S. here and still has a keen interest in the welfare of Eggleton Auxiliary.

Mrs. Pidgeon Pidgeon, presided, and after the opening hymn, Rev. W. Tristram led in prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Harry Clarke and Mrs. Warren Hall read the minutes.

Misses Marion McMullen and Pearla Pidgeon contributed a duet. Then Mrs. Christie read a very interesting letter which she had received from her sister, Mrs. (Rev.) Simmons of China.

Mrs. Raymond Chambers then sang a solo, 'I have been alone with Jesus" and Mrs. O. Stapley gave a temperance reading.

Mrs. George Eggleton and Mrs. C. Pilchett each read a poem and Mrs. Harlow gave a reading on "Corn."

Rev. W.' Tristram gave a short address on "Gratitude" and Mrs. Andrews sang "Jesus Understands." Collection was received and meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction. Several Stirling ladies were present at the meeting and Mrs. Woodward who has just moved into the community was also welcomed into the Auxiliary. A social hour was then served a delicious lunch with some of the ladies assisting her in the serving.

Queensboro

Mrs. Fred Rollins was a Thursday guest of her mother, Mrs. J. Bailey at Cooper.

The play, "Going Modern" was given by the Actinolite young people's Hazzard's on Friday evening.

Work is left for you.
Others will not do it
They have desire to do.

Left for you is good work
Suitable though it be.

This be your endeavour
To toil honestly.

Much canades through worry,
Get had better rest.

Save up heavenly treasure,
It is safe from rust.

As you find depression,
Keep'nr others down
Seek to raise their spirit,
Smile against each frown.

In the Father's business,
Do his tasks or tire.

One day he will call you
To employment higher.

Carry on the good work
God will make it pay.
He's your Senior Partner,
Call Him up each day.

We, the Young People of Actinolite Church feel that we are losing a very dear friend, one who has always been willing to lend a helping hand, one who has given freely of his talents and one who has freely given us good advice, one who has always been our interest at heart. We have learned to know Mrs. Kolfend equally willing to give of her time and talent. When ever we ask her to help us with our program we always received the hearty acceptance that she would be glad to, even though at times it meant neglecting her work in the home. Mr. and Mrs. Kolfend are going to be greatly missed from our gatherings. But we feel that God was guiding Mr. Kolfend when he made his decision and we trust His blessing will go with you both to your new home.

Therefore as a visible token of the sincerity and heartiness of our appreciation of your faithful services we present to you this gift, trusting that it may be a constant reminder of our gratitude to you. Signed on behalf of
The Members and Executive of St. Andrew's, Presbyterian Y.P.O.

Mrs. Robt. McCoy, 94 Ridley Ave., is a patient at the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Anderson have returned to their residence, 44 Bleecker Street, after spending the winter months in Brantford.

Dr. O. A. Marshall and Mrs. Marshall were in Toronto this week where Dr. Marshall attended the annual convention of the Ontario Dental Association. Dr. Jack Marshall also attended the convention.

The condition of J. W. Pearce, ex-M.P.P., who underwent an operation at Belleville General Hospital, last week, is fairly comfortable today. Mr. Pearce who spent the winter in Florida, returned to the city last Monday.

Honoring this year's graduating class of the School of Nursing of Belleville General Hospital, the Board of Governors entertained at a reception and dance held last evening at the Bay of Quinte Country Club. About two hundred guests were present and the dance proved one of the most enjoyable social functions o fthe season. Patronesses for the dance were Mrs. Mackenzie Robertson, Mrs. J. A. Boyce, Mrs. E. P. Bernstein, Mrs. C. A. Morton, Mrs. Jamieson Bone, Mrs. G. H. Noble, Mrs. R. E. Fairfield, Mrs. J. P. P. Wills, Mrs. J. Marshall, Mrs. W. Leonard, Mrs. H. Larkin, Mrs. M. E. Hvans, Mrs. Van Blaklee, and Miss Marguerite Fitzgerald and Miss H. M. Collier who welcomed the guests. The Tripleders' Orchestra provided a splendid dance program and greatly appreciated was "the Graduates of 1938" and the prizes were won by Miss Dorothy and Miss Warren. A delicious supper was served at midnight and dancing continued until about two o'clock.

An enjoyable birthday party, honoring Miss Marie Lomas of Mimico, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ling, Monday night. The guests spent a delightful evening in games and dancing and dainty refreshments were served before the close of the party.

Friends and neighbours of Mrs. J. Thompson assembled at her home, 194 Pine Street, last evening and tendered her a delightful surprise party. Fifty eighteen were present and enjoyed an interesting series of games. A dainty lunch was served.

ROMANCE LIVES in the new evening frocks. A typical model is by Molyneux. It is pink taffeta, the neckline sloping from the shoulders. Her shoulder straps are made of tiny pink roses. The full, circular skirt is corded in three tiers.

HOW YOU CAN Attract MEN

OF course, you have no more friends than if you've let yourself become dull, cross, and nervous. Men like lively, pretty girls—girls with plenty of energy to go places and enjoy life.

Don't let love and romance pass you by. Help build up your pep and you, too, should have gay friends.

Here's good advice: Start taking time-proven, reliable Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and note the difference. This famous Compound, made especially for women from wholesome herbs and roots, helps Nature tone up your system and thus soothes jumpy nerves and gives you more pep to really enjoy life.

Tear out this notice NOW as a reminder to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound TO-DAY without fail.

For over 60 years no woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" distress from functional disorders with Pinkham's Compound. Let it help YOU.

Are Modern Mothers Becoming Rivals of Their Daughters?

Again the pundits have been applying a magnifying glass to the relative roles played by mother and dad toward their college sons and daughters.

For years professional well-wishers bent on injecting more sensitive into the home, have urged dad to become a real pal to his big boy. Less has been said about the existing rivalry between mothers and daughters. Here's the latest news from the front, for you to take or leave.

It seems that while dad has worked hard to be a pal to son, mother has sneaked up on daughter and has pushed deadly rivalry.

At the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Association of Military Colleges and Schools of the United States, Colonel A. M. Hitch, of the Kemper Military School, made a startling statement to an audience. It was a warning to dad to remember his age and stop trying to be a pal to his big boy.

And this, in the face of a country full of "Father and Son" organizations, urging Dad and Junior to dine, play golf and go in for heart-to-heart talks. According to Colonel Hitch, this relationship between father and son seems to have hurt the parties of the first and second part. He said: "Being a pal may be all right when son is about eight years old, and thinks dad can't say much in town. But after the old man mulls a few sprooners, the lad becomes amused and then embarrassed.

"You fooled him on Santa Claus and the stork for a while, but you can't fool him all the time. He's getting smarter, and the pal attitude only results in larger allowances of money, which does the youth no good."

Now comes a lady who has an important chair in a woman's colleges. She threatens me with dire happenings if I divulge her name or that of the college. But according to this authority, "Mom" is now as much concerned with being a pal to her big girl as she is to being her friend.

When she visits the college, she thins plenty of attention from daughter's boy friends. At dances she expects to be plentifully supplied with partners, and in a room many cases her greater worldly experience and charm, plus first, second and third aid from the beauty parlor, help her to "cut-out" daughter.

The frieze of chaperones around the ball-room floor reveal few visiting mamas. Their place is with the dancers. This doesn't mean that mother is a rival. It is what the Victorians used to call a Friday Maiden, which involved very gay implications. It means only that mother has become modern and delights in wearing the same shoes when she reaches her 40th birthday.

Strangely enough, according to this authority, mama's second blooming is not without its effect on poor old dad, trying so hard to be a pal. He takes his vamping at home and looks admiringly at his dancing wife with her string or youthful partner. The one member of the family who seems genuinely peeved is daughter, who has her hands full with classmate rivals and wishes ardently that mama would keep her fascinations at home.

No Mother Can Share All of Child's Interests

Best That She Participate Only in Activities Which Are Natural For Her

(By LIZA GRENELLE)

ONE MOTHER I know believed that the best way to keep close to her children was to share their interests, their enthusiasms, their momentary enthusiasms. This was difficult, at times. It took a good deal of forcing, on her part, kept her busy and exhausted.

It wasn't only their constant activity and change of activity that wore this mother out, but the effort to change herself and her natural preferences and prejudices to suit those of her children. It was most difficult to put on a show, pretend to enthusiasm and interests she could not feel. Pretending is a wearing business, as anyone knows who has indulged in it to any extent. It wears on the muscles, the nerves and the disposition.

As time went on this mother managed to keep smiling, but that was about all. There was a hunted look in her eyes, she stretched her smiling lips, and all her movements were too quick and tense to be natural.

Finally Gave Way

It was at a football game that she finally gave way. She was so tired, it was such a rough, raw crowd and she hated baseball—always had. Though she'd tried for years to understand it, for the children's sake, it never had made sense to her.

To cap it all, in his excitement, Jack had gone ahead, forgetting all about her, and Mabel looked sulky and cross. "There's no use looking for Jack, Mother," she said, "he can take care of himself. He's probably got a good seat and is sitting in it, while we foot around and miss the first inning. Can't you hurry, Mother?"

It was Mabel's tone that broke her. It was as if she were keeping them back, handicapping them. Why, then, bother she hadn't come, both of them!

"Yes, I can hurry," Mother said sharply, pulling away from Mabel's arm. "You don't need to worry about me. We'll find Jack and I'll leave you with him. Then I'll go home. I'm just beginning to realize that more fun can be had without me dumb of me not to have know before, no doubt."

A Good Sport

"Oh, no, Mother, it isn't that, really! Jack and I—Jack and I think you're an awfully good sport."

"But you can have a better time without me."

"No, no, Mother! not—not at the theatre and—and things like that."

It was a lot of fun to go to the theatre and to concerts with Mother because she loved them. She knew something about music and about acting and was always interested. Her enthusiasm was genuine, her opinions intelligent and worth listening to.

And can't be expected to share all your children's life any more than you can expect them to share all of yours. It would be dreadful if you could.

See them off alone to ball games and such, and be waiting, rested and cheerful, to welcome them home in a new gown and with hot tea or lemonade at your elbow—and feel real enthusiasm in your heart.

Then do a little rooting around for some interests you and they can mutually share—there always is at least one—and share it, with much joyful shouting.

When a mother's enthusiasm is genuine, what a pal she is!

Christ Church Choir to Sing In Toronto

The choir of Christ Church, Belleville, under the direction of the organist and choirmaster, F. H. Meyhew will go to Toronto, Wednesday, May 25th, to take part in the School of Church Church Music Festival it was announced by the rector Rev. C. O. Wright. The Festival Chorus which will be composed of over nine hundred voices will sing in the Varsity Arena under the Direction of Dr. Sydney H. Nicholson, head of the organist of Westminister Abbey and now head of the School of English Church Music, who is now touring this continent. Dr. Healey Willan, F.R.C.O., organist of St. Mary Magdalene of Toronto, will preside at the organ. The local choir is to be congratulated on the invitation to take part in this outstanding musical event as it is the only choir outside of Toronto attending.

Rev. A. G. Sinclair Addresses C.G.I.T. Of Holloway St.

Holloway Street United Church C.G.I.T. met in home last evening to their mothers at a very informal party in the church parlors, from first-thirty to eight o'clock. Games, a sing-song and dainty refreshments served by Mrs. Ward were greatly enjoyed. At the close of the tea hour, Rev. A. G. Sinclair, minister of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church brought a most challenging and inspiring message to the mothers, leaders and girls.

His subject "Writing Our Signatures" brought home very forcibly the need of developing strong Christian character that would be our security in life's varied problems. Ruth Oliphant and Betty Higgins-sons expressed the thanks of the C.G.I.T. for this address that would linger long in the memory to challenge their best.

Thus closed the party. This function brought to a close a very active and successful term in which varied projects were carried through, training the girls to live the fourfold life "in health and strength, seek truth; know God and serve others." This group is sharing in a vital way in the church and community life of West Belleville.

Weddings

PETERS—CHADWICK

Kingston, May 17.—A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Paul's Rectory May 16, when Rev. E. Lindsay united in marriage, Loreen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chadwick, and Mr. William Abery Peters, eldest son of Captain and Mrs. William Peters.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of powder blue georgette with matching hat and shoes, and shoulder bouquet of roses and Killarney valley. She was attended by Miss Betty Moore, in a pretty frock of ecru georgette with hat, shoes and shoulder bouquet of roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. James Peters, as groomsman. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Later Mr. and Mrs. Peters left by motor for Toronto, the bride travelling in a navy ensemble of lighter tan and beige, with matching hat and accessories. On their return they will reside in Trenton.

HAACHE—BULLIED

Marmora, (Special)—A very quiet and pretty wedding took place in Havelock United Church on Saturday afternoon, when Gladys Bernice, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bullied of Marmora, became the bride of Harry Rost, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Haache, Belcro.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a beautiful ivory satin gown and a long veil.

Reverend S. A. Kemp was the officiating clergyman.

Mrs. Florence Clarke played the wedding March and Miss Winnifred Gillespie sang.

Mrs. E. Woolfrey attended her sister and Mr. George Kerr, brother-in-law of the groom, performed the duties of the best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Haache will resice in Marmora.

SIMPSON—COLLING

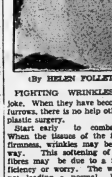
The wedding took place in Talara, Peru, Tuesday morning of Helen Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Colling of Bancroft, and Mr. Hugh John Simpson, eldest son of Simpson of Sarnia and the late Mr. Hugh Simpson of Petrolia. The marriage took place at the home of Captain Thomas D. Kelly and Mrs. Kelly and the bride was attended by Miss Margaret Thompson of Toronto. Mr. Hugo Holaran son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Holaran, Sarnia, attended the bridegroom as groomsman. The bride wore a travelling costume of beige roughtweed, with rosebud accessories and a corsage of roses.

Following the wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Simpson left by motor for Plata, and sailed on the S.S. Rena del Pacifico for Panama and New York. They will stay at Bermuda for a week and will arrive in Montreal early in June.

Hospital Auxiliary Adopts New Constitution

Increased enthusiasm in the newly-formed Auxiliary to the Belleville General Hospital was evidenced by the large attendance at the second meeting of the organization held in the Board Room at the Belleville General Hospital. Over sixty ladies were present and their interest promises a successful season for the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Ross Wood was in the chair and the chief business of yesterday's meeting was the adoption of a constitution, the clauses of which were presented by Mrs. W. C. Mikel, chairman of the committee appointed for this purpose, the meeting being Mrs. J. W. Sinclair, Mrs. S. Lazier, and Mrs. Mikel.



In view of her activities in an advisory capacity and her long years of experience in hospital work, Mrs. Mikel was unanimously elected honorary president. Mrs. R. A. Flynn was elected second vice-president of the Auxiliary.

Plans for raising funds included a magazine subscription project, and a tea and bridge at the Rotary Club in June, a committee being formed to take charge of the latter event.

Holloway St. Y. P. Union Ends Season

The Young People's Union of Holloway Street United Church closed the season's activities on Monday night with a very enjoyable party held at Mr. Arthur Collins' cottage, Gilmorsville. This group has been very active throughout the year and are enjoying an unusual fellowship under the capable leadership of Miss Mildred Hunter and her executive. While many outstanding speakers have been heard throughout the season it is gratifying to see the development of the young people themselves in preparing and presenting their own material in an interesting manner. The year had been

"At Home" Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a problem that is so unusual that I wish you would give me your kind advice about its solution. I am going to be married at a small informal wedding. My mother is dead, and my father is in a hospital for the treatment of mental diseases. For several years I have been living with a married sister.

I wish to send announcements of my marriage. Would it be proper to use my married sister's name on them?

2—Is it correct to send At Home cards with announcements?

Clara.

1—Yes, under these circumstances it would be the best form for you to send your announcements announcing in the name of your sister and her husband. This would do them honor for the other goodness to you in sharing their home with you during these years when you have been so troubled and sad for you.

2—The only best form for the announcement:

Mr. and Mrs. George Alan Forbes have the honour of announcing the marriage of their sister

Clara Anne Goodcow

to

Mr. Thomas Cranuel Hunter

on Tuesday, the third of June Nineteen hundred and thirty-eight

Fall River, Massachusetts

You may, if you wish, combine the second and third lines to read, announce the marriage of their sister

Also if there is a reason for doing so (and I hope that there isn't, for it is not such good form) the third line may read:

the marriage of Mrs. Forbes' sister

3—Yes, it is proper to send At Home cards with marriage announcements, and it is an excellent thing to do, if you have decided on the address of your new home.

The At Home cards enclosed with the announcement vary from the At Home cards enclosed with a wedding invitation, since, when the announcement is mailed, the form of your name had changed and you can send Mr. and Mrs. cards. Like

Graduation Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A relative of my husband's is to graduate from college this season, and I should like to send her a gift. He has military brushes and such things. But would like to spend about five dollars. What would you suggest? He expects to go to Europe in the Fall to study.

I.

For that amount you could send him a good-looking simple, convenient leather portfolio which he will find of special convenience when he travels and for next year. His name may be imprinted on it. Or he would appreciate a leather case equipped for hand handkerchiefs. Or a pencil or fountain pen (or the set) with the facsimile of his signature on it. Or a letter-paper case, equipped with a large-lab blotter, place for stamps, small address book, pencil, and perhaps a supply of thin letter-paper useful for foreign correspondence. And in the shops you will find leather wallets with compartments especially designed for foreign money.

FACIAL WRINKLES NEED EARLY CARE

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

FIGHTING WRINKLES is no joke. When they have become deep furrows, there is no help other than plastic surgery.

Start early to combat them. When the tissues of the face lose firmness, wrinkles may be on the way. This softening of delicate fibres may be due to a food deficiency or worry. The worried look is not leading a normal, healthful life; the results show in her face. When a woman fails into a rut, plows through the day's job without enthusiasm, doesn't get enough light or fresh air, she is bound to take on the marks of age.

Physical and mental health provide insurance against irrigation lines. A local treatment is also necessary. By daily massage and the use of oily cosmetics, the facial structures may be kept in trim and toned that youthful appearance will be retained until one is long past middle age.

Wash the skin surface clean. Spread on a heavy cream, using flattened fingers and working upward from the collar bone. Then vigorously with the finger tips. While the cream is on, skim over the surface of the flesh with an ice cube. Then say your prayers and go to bed.

If mama and papa are overweight, daughter is likely to live on "I Like Ike" and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The young woman who suffers from nervousness, caused by pains, the expectant mother who has no appetite, and the middle-aged woman who experiences "hot flashes" and nervousness, will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a boon. Write Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y., Dept. 10-C, for free booklet. During menstrual disorders, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives me a fine appetite, helped me sleep, relieved me of cramps, and strengthened me wonderfully. Before I took it, I was nervous, had no appetite, and suffered from cramps. Now I recommend it to my friends." Get a bottle of this tonic at your druggist's today. Buy one of your druggist's today. Dafoe, also of the faculty of the University of Toronto. Dr. Dafoe is a brother of Dr. A. R. Dafoe, personal physician to the quintuplets.

Dr. Brown reported: "Today I examined carefully the Dionne quintuplets and find their physical growth is excellent. Their muscular and bone growth is perfect. All their organs appear normal.

Great Improvement

"When I last saw them in January, six days, there has been a great improvement in progress. I think the progress during this interval has surpassed other periods of growth. They appear to me to be perfectly normal children in respect to physical development. Their diets are normal, containing all the essential elements necessary for growth."

The general appearance of the eyes shows improvement," Dr. Hill reported. "The interior of the eyes is normal in all respects for all cases. No damage to the eye by photography. None of the children require glasses at the present time and may never require glasses."

Dr. William Dafoe reported verbably to his brother. In his opinion, he said, the quintuplets are in the best of health and developing "at a great rate." He said he was perfectly satisfied."

It was necessary to examine each girl individually. The doctors found that when they attempted to examine one in the presence of the others, the four not being attended to complained matters by climbing upon the chairs in the consulting room to see what was going on.

Plainfield

Plainfield—The bicentenary anniversary of John Wesley's boyhood was the theme of the services held in the United Church on Sunday. At Zion Hill at 2:30 a choir of eleven young men led the singing and contributed "The Church in the Wild Wood." Laurison Ketcheson, Earl Ray, Maurice Ray, Roscoe Sine, Donald Sills, Douglas Sills, Jack Sills, Jack Ray, Gordon Ray, Howard Foster and Douglas Simpson. A male quartet four boys sang "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling." At Plainfield at the evening service, Margery Cullwater, Marion Prindle, Hazel Prindle and Zyrl Plaid sang, "The World Looks Very Beautiful." Irvin Moore, Donald Hall and Walter Elliott sang, "Children's Song of Praise."

Mr. Richard Yorke and Mrs. Shaw of Foxboro, were the guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Prindle.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. Ivory Denyes, who has completed his course in the Ontario Business College, Belleville, and has accepted a position in the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Regular services were withdrawn in Mount Pleasant United Church on Sunday on account of the scarlet fever epidemic.

Rev. George A. Williams, of Toronto, is to give the address at the service in the United Church next Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Creeper and Miss Margery spent Sunday the guests of friends at Northport.

PLAINFIELD W. I.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Orval Hall on Thursday, May 5th, with an attendance of 54 adults and ten children.

The president, Mrs. Donald Hall, called the meeting to order and all joined in singing, "The More We Get Together." The Ode was sung and the Lord's Prayer repeated. The minutes were read and the correspondence.

Instrumental solos were given by the Misses Olive, Irene and Audrey Hall. Mrs. Ralph Wilder favored with a solo, playing her own accompaniment on her guitar.

The luncheon cloth prizes were won by Mrs. Orval Rollins and Miss Audrey Hall. The financial statement was read and the auditors' report given.

The election of officers followed: Hon. President—Mrs. Donald Hall President—Mrs. Ed. Emmerson.

1st Vice-President—Mrs. Clarence Marshall.

2nd. Vice-President—Mrs. Ralph Wilder.

THREE ARRESTED AFTER SKIRMISH

600 Relief Recipients Become Unruly at Windsor Meeting

Windsor, Ont., May 18.—(CP)—Three men faced charges of unlawful assembly today following a disturbance by a crowd of 600 in front of city hall last night, which brought out police reserves who feared injury to Provincial Welfare Inspector Walter Wese.

The gathering which stood about in a driving rain for more than three hours, became unruly after city council approved a 20 per cent. reduction in relief which Mayor E. S. Wigle said had been asked by the Ontario Welfare Department.

The three men and a woman were taken into custody when they allegedly sought to interfere with police officers escorting Wesse from the meeting to his car. Men are arrested for unlawful assembly were Charles Newbury, Harry Burleigh, and Anthony Gotez.

No charge was laid against the woman last night and she was released after being treated for a hysterical condition. Police said, however, that the woman would be asked to appear in police court today along with the men.

Smeared Face With Cream

According to eye-witnesses, the woman was alleged to have streaked out her hand as Wesse passed and left a smear of cold cream or grease on his face. She later told police she had been pushed "by another woman."

Gardiner Envisions Steady Export of 200,000 Head a Year

Ottawa, May 18 (CP)—A steady export business of 200,000 head of cattle a year, fresh killed and sent to the United Kingdom in refrigerated boats, is envisioned by Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

Enthusiastic approval of the project came from all sides as the Minister outlined it in the House of Commons yesterday but from many members, representing Ireland constituencies as well as the Maritime Provinces, came protest at the proposal that those cattle should be killed in Toronto.

Mr. Gardiner told of arrangements to ship 25 head of fresh killed cattle weekly in refrigerated vessels as an experiment to ascertain if this beef could compete successfully with chilled beef from the Argentine.

Earlier Harry Leader (Lib. Portage La Prairie) had referred to early experiments along this line and suggested the killing should be done at Saint John or some other Atlantic port. Experiments carried out had proven that Montreal-killed beef had competed successfully with Argentine beef at Smithfield Market in London.

Mr. Gardiner said it was not alone the lack of facilities for killing at an Atlantic port that prompted the choice of Toronto but that the Ontario city was the concentration point for livestock where an adequate supply would always be available.

Restaurants charged as high as $1.50 a pound for a serving of steak that cost 25 cents a pound at the butchers, Mr. Leader said in opening the discussion. That, he declared, was something the government should investigate.

'TEACUP GUNS'

outfit.

The gun is steel, painted black, about 10 feet long and four to six inches thick. Its ends are tapered. It has neither breech nor muzzle. In a row down its side, like immense buttons on a thin man, are the shining steel "teacups."

Shaped Like Teacups

There are eight to 10. They are shaped like teacups and set deep into the gun barrel, their tops flush with its sides. These teacups are the real guns. Each contains one shot, a hardened solid steel projectile about half an inch in diameter.

Although the barrel is only three or four inches deep it shoots through nearly two inches of hard steel. On a small scale it has the penetrating power of a 20-foot long naval gun.

This gun is carried on a steel-hooded truck. Under the hood is housed the control room and the firing mechanism.

The mechanism is an instrument board facing a coil of steel cable two miles long wound on a huge drum in the rear of the truck. The operator backs his truck to some distance from the well. The gun is hooked to the cable and hung in the pipe at the mouth. The operator starts the drum unwinding.

Holes Carefully Placed

His problem is to shoot holes through the steel pipe in the well at specified depths. The holes are carefully placed. Sometimes as many as 10 are needed within a single foot of piping. Again they may be 30 feet to half a mile apart.

From his control board the gunner can fire any one of the vertical row of teacup guns. When he has placed one of these teacups at the exact level, he signals the crew at the well mouth. They reply "ready." The gunner presses another button connected with an electric wire and the teacup fires down the well.

SUCHOW DESERTED

Thousands Leave

Thousands of soldiers and civilians were said to have left the city by the East gate, pouring through the countryside to avoid the Japanese columns closing in on all sides.

Japanese communique said the West wall already had been seriously damaged by a systematic bombardment from Hill positions a few miles away. Concentration of the shelling on this side indicated the infantry intended to attack.

The closest Japanese columns were approaching from the west, northwest and southwest. A large infantry force was reported attacking sleeping Ox Mountain, just west of Suchow.

Another Japanese column was fighting a major Chinese force at Yaolu, nine miles southwest of the city.

Three Japanese squadrons bombed Suchow throughout the day dropping leaflets advising surrender.

Emphasizing the bitterness of the fighting for the important rail junction, Japanese forces received new orders that "no prisoners are to be taken so as to shorten the war's duration". The orders mean the Japanese must try to annihilate the enemy. The Chinese also have been instructed not to take prisoners.

Severed Railway Line

The Japanese reported at least six of their columns had severed the East-West Chinese railway between Lanfeng and Haichow, while other forces advancing on Suchow and the Lunghai were spread-eagled in an attempt to plug all holes in the gigantic net and prevent escape of the estimated 200,000 Chinese trapped in the Suchow zone.

Capture of Suchow would give the Japanese control of the Tientsin-Pukow railway for its full length from Tientsin to Pukow, across the Yangste river from Nanking, and link Japan's North China conquests with its conquered areas in the Yangtze Valley.

Meanwhile apprehension was felt for foreigners believed to be in Suchow, including 23 Canadian Roman Catholic priests and seven Canadian Roman Catholic Sisters. Outside the South wall, of Suchow, four United States Presbyterian missionaries, were in the path of one of the advancing Japanese columns.

Thomas A. Edison patented 1,150 inventions.

A new kind of cement is reported as having advantages over Portland cement, and as being useful in buildings to replace ordinary gypsum plasters.

Read what Ford Truck owners say about performance and economy
"My Ford V-8's consumption averaged 14 to 16 miles to the gallon over 15,000 miles with 5 to 6 ton loads"
"My 2-ton 157-inch wheelbase Ford Truck has travelled 47,000 miles, averaging 15 miles to the gallon of gasoline"
"For endurance and power, V-8 trucks can't be beat"
"Two of our Ford Trucks over 75,000 miles cost just $15 for service"
"There seems to be no limit to what a Ford V-8 will pull"

The famous Ford V-8 Truck engine is now in its seventh year of success. More Ford V-8 Trucks were sold last year than any other 1937 make.

With proof of Ford V-8 economy and performance still rolling in, it means a great deal to say that the 1938 Ford V-8 Trucks are the finest Ford has ever built.

Impressive new styling. More comfortable cabs with 3 inches more head room. Handsome new interior trim. Softer seat cushions. A new 122-inch one-ton truck. New 134-inch wheelbase with 60-inch cab-to-axle measurement. A new standard frame width for 134-inch and 157-inch units. New easier steering—roller type with 18-inch wheel. These and all the time-proved Ford Truck features combine to make the 1938 Ford Trucks the finest, most economical trucks in Ford history.

Prove this economy with an "on-the-job" test with your own loads over your own routes. Your Ford dealer will gladly supply the truck for this "on-the-job" test.

Hurlers Handcuff Hitters in Majors; Pedder Wins at Cleveland

Fancy Flinging in National Probably Due to New Ball Now Being Used in the Loop

Two One-Hitters, One Three And One Four-Hitter Game Seen

BAUERS UNLUCKY

Hurled One Hit Game But Loses to Boston Bees

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

The National leaguers finally have that new ball that was intended to give the pitchers so much help this season.

They were beginning to suspect the manufacturers of palming off some old spheres in place of the new fire-strand chick-covered ball after watching the flingers get their arms pinned back regularly, but the results of yesterday's games indicate the pitchers certainly had something. Maybe it was that helpful ball.

Four games in the senior circuit produced the following: Two one-hitters, two three and one four-hit hurling job, and some plain and fancy shoving in the day's major contest, a 13-inning duel between the league-leading New York Giants and the challenging Chicago Cubs. Carl Hubbell, the Florida Flash, finally won it.

Although all fingers lolled for the two teams before Sambo Leslie's pinch single in the tenth broke up the ball game and gave the Giants a 4-3 triumph, still it was a well-pitched game. The first inning produced seven runs and the scoring as the Cubs smacked Cliff Melton for two runs and Lon Warneke came back to Clay Bryant. Carleton's place and granted only six hits in 11 1-3 innings. Four were bunched for two runs in the fifth.

Melton tired and loaded the sacks with none out in the twelfth but Dick Coffman, per of the relief pitchers staged a successful rescue. Then the Giants went on to win when Bryant suddenly faded and let Mel Ott reach second on a pass and sacrifice. Leslie went in to bat against Jack Russell, came through with the blow that scored Ott.

One-Hit Game Lost.

The one-hit pitching feat came from Russ Bauers of Pittsburgh, who lost to Boston Bees 1-0 and thereby qualified for the second rank of hard-luck guys, and Fiddler Bill Mc-Gee of St. Louis Cardinals, who beat Brooklyn 2-1.

Bauers took his place right behind the five pitchers in big league history who have pitched nine-inning games for nine innings or more and lost them while at will per followed the only hit he granted and resulted in Boston's lone run. That was in the first inning. Mike Fischer led off with a walk; Debs Garms shot a single to right and Joe Cronin hit Wamer three toward third, the ball bounced off Fletcher's back, allowing the runner to score. For the Bees Billy Urbanski pitched three hit ball and escaped all trouble.

Reese Made Only Hit.

Goody Rosen, the Toronto lad who spoiled a no-hitter for Hal Schumacher earlier in the year, made the only Dodger hit off McGee and the usually reliable Joe Medwick was so surprised he let the ball roll past and Rosen came home. Leo Durocher who fanned nine, also made two of the Cards' hits off Luke Hamlin and figured in the scoring of both runs.

Paul Derringer pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 13-1 victory, limiting the Phillies to four blows while his mates collected 22, including a homer by Linus Frey.

The American League also got a share of the fine flinging in its only game as Cleveland's Earl Whitehill set the Athletics down with four blows and beat them 5-1. He received the benefit of Hal Trosky's first homer with aboard and of the wildness of his mound rival, George Caster. Three other contests, New York-St. Louis, Boston-Chicago and Washington-Detroit were rained out.

BLUBBER MALONE DEFEATS ROYALS WITH ONE-HITTER

Former Chicago Hurler in Fine Form to Win Second Straight

TORONTO WINS

Spot Chiefs Six Runs And Win Out in The Thirteenth

(By The Associated Press)

Old Blubber Malone, who has made plenty of trouble in his day, has bobbed up in the International Baseball League to create a few headaches for opponents of Baltimore Orioles.

"Old Blub"—they used to call him Pat in his days with the Cubs—was picked up by the Flock, desperate for pitchers, this spring. He won his second straight game yesterday, a nifty one-hitter, over Montreal Royals 3-0.

While the league-leading Orioles were going to town the first-place Newark Bears were losing to Rochester Red Wings 7-2 for their third straight defeat. On other fronts Buffalo Bisons plastered a 12-4 defeat on Jersey City Giants and Toronto Maple Leafs shaded Syracuse Chiefs 7-6.

Malone got plenty of support from Al Wright, the youngster for two of the Flock's runs with a single and double. The home hit-off Malone was a bunt beat out by catcher Gilly Campbell of the Orioles in the fifth. Malone walked three and struck out one.

Equalled Losing Streak

Defeat of the Bears equalled the Jersey City record (nine games) over a five-season stretch. The Wings garnered 12 hits in all with Dennie Cobb leading the attack with a double and triple. Al Glover scattered seven Newark hits for the Wings, who moved fourth place from Jersey City as a result of the win.

The Little Giants didn't have anyone to stop Buffalo's 15-hit offensive although they tried.

The Chiefs got away to a six-run lead in the first two innings but subsided thereafter. The Leafs won it with pecking away and pushed over the winning run in the 13th on Charley Sheetz's single.

Best Jockeys in United States to Ride in Plate

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—Topped by Pat Remillard, premier Canadian jockey, the best horsemen and gatherings of jockeys ever to meet in a race here will be engaged in thoroughbreds entered in the 79th running of the King's Plate at Woodbine Park Saturday.

J. W. Bailey, a wiry, strong-wristed horseman who put many good in foreign fields, will pilot the favorite Seattle Morrissey's Bunty Burke. Bailey started scintillating horses a couple of years ago, but never has got an opportunity to show his talent until he travelled to Europe. Many stables where he is now under contract.

"Nothing but the best," was Morrissey's mandate when he sent Bailey hunt for a jockey. Available Canadian Bunty Burke, to meet the requirements he journeyed to New York. There he found Bailey who piloted leading United States jockeys and finally landed Bailey to do the honors.

Stamina and speed of the favorite is not strange to Bailey. Engagements around Ontario tracks last year included the mount on Bunty Burke's two or three starts.

Remillard, top-ranking rider during 1935-36-37, will mount Grand Dame, a three-year-old filly owned by George M. Hendrie. Remillard's riding success has always evoked him to Canada's feature race.

Willie Garner, nephew of the late Eiaz Garner, former riding great, has been requisitioned to ride for Dr. Harold Carscie Hindle Dance. Brammer will be aboard Suffern, owned by Dr. Hatch entry.

Other jockeys who will come here for the race are Eddie Sasiseno, Sailor of New York, Albert Schmidt of Baltimore; Freddie Schelb of Chicago, and Pan Pacuma of New York.

Termites, or white ants, are not true ants and are in no way related to them.

Fifty years will be required to drain the coast of Lakehurst, according to estimates. The British Navy has started the job.

SPORT WEEK WILL PROVE 'IT PAYS TO PLAY'

Twelfth Annual "Sports Week" Begins Saturday, May 21

Three hundred and sixty-five days of the year, Canadians, of both sexes and all ages, exemplify the world famous slogan "It Pays To Play". Canadians are the most enthusiastic devotees in the world of the great god Play—so sold on the idea of healthful sport and recreation that a special period, designed to pointedly stress the dividends paid the sportsman, might seem superfluous.

Canadians who indulge in some form of sport all the year 'round find it quite impossible to comprehend a man who does not recognize the old saw that "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Desire for play is inherited in all healthy individuals; when Canadian Sports and Recreation Week was introduced to the public, twelve years ago, it was not necessary to convince Canadians that "It Pays To Play" was a slogan worthy of whole-hearted adoption. The idea of "Sports Week" was taken up enthusiastically all across Canada, and with each succeeding year that enthusiasm has grown and perpetuated until it now encompasses red-blooded Canadians in practically every municipality in the Dominion.

Only a few "weeks" have gained and maintained national popularity in the sort of manner that the popular—a "natural"—a pioneer in physical fitness—Sir Edmund Walker Recreation Week. Over a decade ago, he began to popularize sport through its early infancy by sterling co-operation on the part of all mediums—and publicity—and probably no "week" has made such splendid and practical progress.

With the spontaneous public response, the seven-day period has gained such early influence and results—in its efforts designed to promulgate the benefits of healthful play and recreation. The newspaper world, in fact, has been a force in giving the "week" Dominion-wide significance; many ministers, convinced that a sound body is most likely to house a sound soul, have delivered special "Sports Week" sermons, based on relevant texts; radio stations have consistently told the story with special series of sports talks, supplemented by "spot" announcements.

IT PAYS TO PLAY". This will be the slogan of Sports Week, again Saturday, May 21st, to Saturday, May 28th, when Canadians will again get an even dozen as they mark the 12th Annual celebration of Canadian Sports and Recreation Week—when they stress the story of "Sport for Sport's Sake".

Became Ill Enroute to Cleveland And Lost Four Pounds

Tommy Pedder, Belleville's member of the York Weight-lifting Club who won the Canadian weight-lifting championship in the bantam series just one week ago, was successful in winning the United States bantam weight-lifting title at Cleveland with apparent ease. It was learned in the city today.

Pedder, lifting the 123 3-4 pound class, was successful in all three attempts made, his lifts being the pounds the press 150 pounds for the snatch and 200 pounds for the clean and jerk. Second to Pedder in the United States weight-lifting championships, in the bantam series at 123 pounds, was Paul Snyder, of San Francisco, Cal., whose lifts were far in decrease to those established by the local lad.

First Canadian

At the conclusion of the exhibition at Cleveland it was announced that Pedder was the first Canadian to ever win the United States weight-lifting championship in his class. The local lad was reported to have been in a rather weakened condition for the Championship lifts at Cleveland, however, as he became ill en route to the Ohio city, and lost four pounds making the trip, but recovered in time with apparent ease.

Pedder's total lifts totalled 500 pounds, considerably lower than the record he established in Belleville during the Y.M.C.A. physical demonstration a few weeks ago. His closest rival Snyder, totalled 472 pounds.

Pedder was recipient of a large solid gold medal in recognition of his feat and the winning of the U.S.A. weight-lifting title.

DANGER IN THE MIST

CHAPTER 36
FOG

"Oh—Sheriff Wilson!" I cried hysterically. "I—I'm so glad to see you!"

He just smiled at me.

"It's pretty near time you were back," said Miss Lydia. "There's been more trouble here. Mrs. Caldwell tried to commit suicide last night."

"I'll—so Barry tells me. Well —that about finishes the case, don't it?"

"It does not!" I burst out. "She did not try to commit suicide. Someone tried to poison her. She only took one harmless little sleeping tablet."

"I've seen Sally," said the sheriff gently. "He's had all those tablets analyzed. No—nothin' harmful in 'em, Monte. Just somethin' else."

"Perhaps she took some other medicine," suggested Parker. "Judy wouldn't know about that. We might take a look in the medicine chest, sheriff."

"Come a few that very purpose. Let's you and me go up there and noss around a bit. Might find somethin' lurkin' around."

They were back in a few moments. My head throbbed. Detective Parker had a smile of triumph in his small eyes, and Sheriff Wilson held in his hand some white tablets. "Found these— guess they're the dope all right. Ain't they, Sally now? Take a look at those, Doc"

Dr. Sally took a couple of the tablets and crushed them in his hand. He smelled of the powder and touched it gingerly with his tongue. "Huh—anyone swallowing a few of these would make the undertaker very happy. Where'd you find 'em, sheriff?"

"Pest I didn't take poison. I have never possessed any tablets of that kind. I just took one of my usual sleeping pills—Judy can testify to that. How could such a thing have happened?"

The sheriff and I were in Norma Caldwell's room.

"Natural thing in the world," he said. "Ever since your husband was killed, the murderer has wanted to hand the job on you. Harmon was shot with your revolver. It made strong evidence. If Parker had been the head detective on this case, you'd have been arrested long ago. He just can't understand why I've held off. Well—right away I discovered a few things that didn't print your way sabl. I had to go to Boston, but I'd known this was goin' to happen—you'd a-hired one of those pesky air-planes and landed here yesterday."

"For you see if this scheme had worked everybody would have thought you committed suicide. You wouldn't have been here to say you didn't take poison. When the tablets were found right in your medicine cabinet—"

"But my dear Mr. Wilson — I didn't take one of those tablets in the envelope you found in the cabinet!"

"Yes you did. Because that envelope lay right on your table there and you thought you were taking the ordinary sleeping dose."

Norma sat up in bed and stared at him, while I uttered an exclamation of incredulity.

"You were out all the evening?" he asked.

"Yes. I didn't come in until after eleven. I was at the Alcotts'."

While you were out someone very carefully changed the envelopes on your table. That someone hoped you would take at least two tablets, which would have been fatal. That person also expected you to sleep alone—to have been discovered dead in the morning. They never dreamed you would sleep in here last night."

"Oh!" I exclaimed. "I begin to see it now. But—" I stopped short and thought: "The sleeping tablets were in the envelope Dr. Sally picked up."

The sheriff rose. "Sure they were. You think some about that, Judy. I've got to go now and dig out a piece or two more and my pumkin is done. Keep this young woman guarded—don't let her out of this room, and don't talk about this to any one. I've made some more moves in this case, but I had to get the evidence—I had to get it complete."

After he had gone, Norma and I looked at each other. "Of course, the envelopes were changed while you were in the hall telephoning, Judy. That—that person must have been hiding close by all the time. Oh, Judy!" she reached out to me with both hands. "Don't leave me for a minute! I'm terribly afraid."

We did not leave her all that day. Either the Alcotts or I were with her.

Fog had drifted again into the harbor, and we could hear the distant moan of the fog-horn. We stayed about the house more than usual. Several times he slipped down to Norma's room and sat quietly beside her, clinging to her hand.

Miss Lydia was more nervous and upset than I had ever seen her. She went about muttering to herself on her face a bluish gray.

"If something had happened to Gene Lidnell. She'd lost all her nervousness and fear and was actually flippant.

"Talk about night-clubs and speak easies—they're Sunday schools compared to this joint. What does our genial friend Wilson say about this last performance, Judy?"

But, remembering his admonition, I simply shook my head.

I was busy all day to see much of Mac, and he was busy too. I think the whole place was very closely guarded.

The sheriff told me that he wanted to do a little looking around upstairs while Miss Lydia and Gene Lidnell were at lunch. I found out him later, but he shook his head discouragingly. "Judy, I don't know. I'm looking for. Say, Judy—I want you to tell me exactly what happened to you on the path that night, and I want your version of the racket in Elisa's room."

But after I had told him as minutely as I could, he offered no comment—except: "Darn that Barry! I wonder who he keep an eye on more than this!"

So I knew the unknown person was playing a vital part in the tragedy.

I stayed with Norma in the evening while the Alcotts were home at dinner. She was in bed and on the room, and seemed quite her old self.

"How long do you suppose I'll have to stay a prisoner, Judy?"

"Not long. I have a feeling the net is closing—and—it's kind of exciting, isn't it?"

She looked so serious at this remark I tried to turn it off with a laugh. "Don't worry—it's the weather. The fog always gives me the blues."

"Same here—lately. I used to love the fog-horn and the light-house bell, Judy—when Peter and his mother came back, let's play a game of bridge here in my room. It will take up our minds—unless, of course, you'd like a game of—"

"I haven't. There's something doing outside tonight. Mac said the sheriff needed him—and he was terribly mysterious and evative. You —let's play."

BUNKO!

Mrs. Alcott and Peter thought the card-game a good idea, too. It would at least give us something to do. "And any person who mentions any of the happenings of the last week has to put a quarter in the pot," declared Peter.

We started playing soon after dinner, and we really had a lot of fun. Of course, we were all keyed up to such an extent, we were rather hysterical, and it was certainly reckless bidding and erratic playing. Fancy Fly or Cereal didn't go on that one," groaned Peter, having ruffed the wrong card. "Of all the dumb-bells—!"

I caught myself listening — listening—so, when the terrible racket began, it was as though I had been waiting for it all the time.

There was a loud crash—another and then another! There seemed to be running footsteps on the stairs — shouting—and then a startled scream.

Peter jumped up—ran to Norma, "Don't move—stay here!"

But I ran into the hall, for I had caught the sound of Mac's voice. The commotion was in Miss Lydia's room. I pushed open the door—

I shall never forget that scene. Furniture was overturned—pictures and bric-a-brac lay scattered on the floor. By the window stood Mac and Barry and a strange, red-faced sailor. Near me was the sheriff—a revolver held in his outstretched hand.

"Shoot!" cried the sailor. "It's the only thing—"

My eyes flew in the direction the revolver was aimed. Something leaping to the top of the closet door was a large object—a black-haired body—with bearded face and bright, crafty eyes. Suddenly it broke into a shriek after shriek of diabolical laughter!

The sheriff fired and instantly the object dropped to the floor. Dropped to the floor close beside another object—black-robed and motionless.

We were gathered in the living-room. A party shattered group, but we knew there was no sleep for anyone in the house that night, and we were all seething with hysterical curiosity.

Norma Caldwell was on the davenport, with Peter and his mother on either side of her. Grace Lidnell—at last, a white-faced, shaking wreck—was sunk deep in a big chair. I huddled as close to Mac as I could get.

The sheriff was pulling furiously at a long, black cigar, but there was a light of grave satisfaction in his blurred eyes.

Barry came to the door, followed by Parker.

The detective looked quite nervous, shaken, too. "Barry tells me you got it—a monkey!"

Sheriff Wilson nodded. "A bad one—a mighty bad one. We ough' to have had him long before this but that brother of yours has been pretty sly, Mrs. Caldwell."

"Eddy!" she cried. "Why— I don't understand!"

The sheriff carefully deposited the ash of his cigar in the stand beside his chair. "Well—I'll go back and tell the story as best I can. I guess I've got every detail straightened out now.

"The day before Eliot Caldwell was murdered, Eddy found that monkey out in the woods. How he ever got friendly with the animal, I don't know—'cause he sure was an ugly critter. He smelled it into the room over your garage, Alcott. I guess it stayed there pretty quiet most of the time, but at night it would climb out on the window ledge and play.

"It was out the night Caldwell was shot, and Eddy was terrible fearful for it. I suppose Eddy looked for it in the boat-house—even went up to Elliot Caldwell's room, and saw his brother-in-law dead. You can bet Eddy soon after, Mrs. Caldwell, and when he talked of blood and death, you kinda thought he was guilty. Isn't that so?"

She bowed her head, his lip caught between her teeth.

"Well, don't worry any more — Eddy hasn't gone to do any more shooting of your husband."

I heard her draw a quick breath, and I realized she had never quite been able to shake off that terrible thought.

"That monkey was certainly a devil," went on the sheriff. "I know now that he had been trained by Gerlich. He loved to frighten people as he jumped obut in the moonlight on the window ledges, and pushing up sashes and screens.

"He got in the house that second night and frightened Elisa. He got in your room, Mrs. Caldwell, and frightened you into a faint with a shriek.

"He led Eddy a terrible life, for the boy thought it quite the best play-mate he had ever had. It could do almost everything human but talk, and I imagine Eddy thought it did that. But the lad was wise enough to know that anyone discovered that he possessed such an animal, it would soon be taken away.

"I guess most of you had some experience with the beast. I probably should have given these happenings more thought and investigation, but I was so taken up with the murder clues. When I got home from Boston and found out what had happened to you, Judy, and Elisa, it began to look rather serious.

"Then Mac told me what he suspected, and today I was put wise that a sailor-lad was hunting for his lost monkey. Mac and I hunted up the fellow, and he told us the date he'd lost the animal, which coincided with events here. The sailor said the monkey ran away because he'd been obliged to give him a second thrashing, and he was mighty worried, for it was a sly, vicious little devil and apt to do anything.

"When we told the man about the goings-on out here, he said straight away—it was 'Bunko' all right.

"So we decided to round up the beast tonight. We gave Eddy a little dope, Mrs. Caldwell, so he'd be sure and go to sleep quiet in his room.

"We got the rest of you all located and then Mac, Kelly, the owner of the monkey, Barry and I gathered ourselves about the place to watch. Now we all knew what we were looking for, it was easier.

"We thought the monkey would make an attempt to get to Eddy's room—one reason, to find the boy—ani then it was probably through that room the animal had usually gained entrance to the house.

"So Kelly and I stood by the pinetree under Eddy's window, and how it ever happened I don't know, but after a while we saw the monkey climb out of that window.

"Kelly made an awful mistake. He yelled, "Bunko—come down here!"

"I suppose just the sound of his master's voice frightened and infuriated the beast. I ran up and broke the edge of the roof, then we saw it pushing up the window and climbing into Miss Lydia's room.

"We had a ladder ready, and the boys went up that, but I ran in and up the stairs.

"Of course we were too late. The monkey had made back for Miss Lydia's room in two seconds. Whether he sprang at her first and choked her—"

"What!" cried Parker, leaping forward. "What do you mean?"

"Why, I thought," said the sheriff. "The monkey choked Miss Lydia to death."

Get Wise to Constipation!

When you're constipated, it's a good temporary "fix" to be satisfied with quick relief. But proper treatment doesn't halt. And if you don't keep constipation from recurring, it may lead to serious ills. Find out all the cause of the trouble.

Then, if you are like most people do, eliminate the cause! Eat more "bulk"—and "bulk" doesn't mean just how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't concentrated in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat a Bitte Kidkraft All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B1. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Sold by every grocer.

SEVENTY-NINE KILLED IN BRITISH MINE DISASTER

In one of the greatest mine disasters in England, seventy-nine miners were killed and thirty seriously injured in a series of disastrous explosions in the Markham Colliery, Duckmanton, Derbyshire, England. Rescuers and nurses were rushed to the mine following the explosions. One of the ambulances is shown (right) leaving the pithead with some of the injured. Survivors of the disaster are shown (lower right) recovering from their harrowing experience in the hospital.

"AMBULANCES"

A number of suggestions have been received since a request was made that a new title be created which would obliterate the connotation attaching to the name of dog catcher, says the National Humane Review. It is felt in some quarters that "dog catcher" connects with the old public nuisance laws.

Among the titles suggested are: Dog warden, animal rescuer, animals receiver, humane officer, animal's friend, animal protector, assistant, inserver, shelger, collector, canine patrol, rescuer, confinant and ambulancer.

Contrary to popular belief, the carp is one of the healthiest of fish.

Pop and ma was going out to play bridge with Mr. and Mrs. Hews, and pop was sitting in his private chair smoking and thinking while ma was getting ready in her room pop saying. You gosh, what a day, I never had so many silly arguments with so many half headed people. Buddah was rite, and so was Confucious he said.

Why, what did they say, pop? I said, and pop said, They said it was a waste of time and a misuse of life to contribute people. They claimed the only contented man is the yes man, and by golles I believe they said a bookfull. Just agree with everything everybody says and have no opinion of your own, at least out loud, and the current of life will pass gently along as sweetly as a burbling brook. The man with the arguments I abe man with toe headats. From now on I'm a yes man and my life is going to be uneventful but serene, he said.

Aren't you even going to argue with me, pop? I said, and he said, Not only not even, but especially not.

Wish just then ma came in with her hat on, saying, If you're going to change your clothes, Wilburn, you better get started, and you better wear your new speckled tie that you're so fond of.

Okay, your wish is my law, pop said, and ma said, Why Wilburn, you dont actually mean you're actually going to wear it, do you? I never knew anyone so contrary, she said.

For jyet sake didn't you just finish asking me to wear it? pop said, and ma said, I know, but you always make a point of not wearing the tie I ask you to wear, and that speckled thing is an already of the first water.

Yee gods it's a woman's world and all a mere man can do is butt his head against the wall and never say die in spite of Zuddah and Confucious, pop said.

The result being he wore it.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, May 18 (AAP) —The stock market resumed its sleepy, indecisive performance today after rousing itself for a momentary spurt around the opening.

Near the final hour rallying tendencies had the upper hand by a slight margin and small gains predominated. But speculation on the whole did little more than mark time.

Transactions were about 400,000 shares.

The stock market put its foot forward at the opening today, reversing its previous stride, but was unable to get going on the upside.

Higher most of the time among stocks were Allis Chalmers, J. I. Case, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and International Paper preferred.

Canadian issues moved inconsistently in a narrow range. Hiram Walker dropped around half point while Dome gained as much. Lake Shore declined a minor fraction. Canada 4s were under mild pressure.

As early gains were pared or eliminated, losses appeared in Montgomery Ward, Texas Corp. and Chrysler. American Telephone was a conspicuous soft spot, although directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto May 18 (CP) — The Base Metals set the pace in the trade today on the Toronto Stock Market and gains up to a point or more were boarded by the group leaders. Gold came in second in the advance on good volume while the Industrials and the Western Oils showed little change and they were generally in slow trade. Volume for the day was around 300-000 shares.

Base Metals were in the spotlight from the opening, trading in good volume at wide price gains and the Golds also were active on the up side. Western Oils were slightly stronger in dull trading and the Industrials were barely firm.

Senior Golds, Utilities, Steels and banks were the firm groups of the Industrial section but they traded quietly. Among the Western Oils, Royalite and Okalta were gainers.

Near 100,000 shares of Wabr-Amulet were traded on the news that a new ore body had been found in the mine. The block advanced to 67 cents to 2.32 and closed around 2.24 for a gain of about 60 cents. Gains of about 1 3-4 were posted by Consolidated Smelters and Noranda, the latter advancing to a new high for the year at 63. Massey-Harris and Central Patricia were up 5 to 10 cents. Kerr-Addison and Macleod-Cockshutt sold off moderately.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, May 18—Butter prices turned easier yesterday, while the egg market held firm in recent advances. Receipts were 2,565 cases of eggs, 412 boxes of butter. Dressed eggs including 500 cases for export. Butter and cheese trends were largely indicative of the British market.

Trading was more active at the Canadian Commodity Exchange. Spot sales included 100 boxes of Quebec fresh 92 score butter at 27½c, 150 boxes of Quebec seconds 38 score butter at 26¾c and 200 boxes of the latter at 26½c. Closing spot prices were quoted at 27½c for fresh 92 score and 26½c for Quebec seconds 38 score. The open spot market for No. 1 butter became 27¼c to 27½c. Small lots in the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 29c for solids and 29½c for prints.

Graded shipments of eggs were selling on spot in used fire cases at 24½c for A-large, 23-23½c for A-medium, 22½c for B and 18c for C.

MARKET COMMENT

A considerable amount of stock is being taken off the market, a good demand having been noted for some little time in such stocks as Consolidated Paper, C.P.R., Canadian Car, Canada Steamships, preferred, McColl-Frontenac, etc. This is important for the reason that when the turn in the market does come, it will find the list comparatively bare of offerings and an appreciable recovery will materialize on a not too large demand.

Although the index of business activity last week halted in its downward trend, the prospects still are for a further radical curtailment of production this summer. The steel industry has about given up hope for improvement before fall, Detroit still looks for a complete shutdown by the leading motor manufacturers which may extend for more than two months. Consequently, there is no change in the prospect for something approaching a general industrial stoppage this summer.

Because of the likelihood of business curtailment achieving its maximum by midsummer the quite likely, widely entertained expectation is that stocks will approach an industrial low early in July. That may well prove to be the case, Yet it will have to be born in mind that the stock market conducts no specified "at home" dates for callers. On similar occasions the prudent course has been not to attempt to guess an exact bottom.

CHARGE BANKS WITHHOLD CREDIT

New Brunswick Government Brings Complaint Before Rowell Commission

Fredericton, N.B., May 18 (CP)—Canada's banks, with head offices mostly in Ontario and Quebec, were accused today of withholding credit from New Brunswick industries which might compete with industries in Ontario and Quebec.

The New Brunswick government made the complaint before the Rowell Commission here, contending that banking as well as manufacturing had been centralized in Ontario and Quebec by national tariff and freight rate policies.

"The result has been that industries in New Brunswick have not been able to obtain financial assistance in cases where such assistance would enable our local industries to compete with those in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec," the government asserted.

"Pertinent cases may be cited where local industries in this province have been destroyed because of the difficulty of financing and we submit that finances have been withheld as long industries might come into competition with similar industries in the last mentioned provinces."

Second Jabbing With Needle Reported

St. Catharines, Ont., May 18—(CP)—Second case of a woman being jabbed with a needle in St. Catharines streets was reported to city police who have launched investigation. The second case occurred Monday afternoon in a St. Paul East residential district, police said girl employee.

She told police that a man and woman passed her and one of them felt a sharp jab in her hip. An examination showed that the skin had been pierced. She was not effected physically from the jab.

Police said the description was woman, about 25-years of age, was jabbed with a hypodermic needle.

Live weights—Brantford $10; Barrie $9.75; Peterboro $9.90; Stratford $9.90; Stratford $9.75.

Dressed weights—Toronto $12.25; Hull $13.25; London $13; Peterboro $13.10; Stratford $13; Kitchener $13.

NEW SECRETARY

Prime Minister and his Foreign Secretary at Geneva. Mr. Chamberlain's decision was taken with the Foreign Secretary, urging that an immediate appointment be taken to secure prompt disposal of subjects on the agenda of the League Council.

"In responding to these communications Lord Halifax was frank in reporting the practical difficulties with which the British delegation was faced at Geneva.

"These, however, were exchanges of information rather than of views, and at no stage was there any hint of disagreement.

"While it was understood when Lord Halifax took over the foreign office from Mr. Eden that he would not wish to remain there indefinitely, there are no grounds for any suggestions that he is seeking to be relieved of his duties in the immediate future."

Weekly Crop Report in District

Extracts from Reports submitted by Agricultural Representatives issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

HASTINGS—Six to seven week old weanling pigs are selling from $5.50 to $6.00 each. A cold two day rain saved us from frost. Growth slowed down, but the extra moisture will be beneficial when the weather warms up. Land is being prepared for corn and roots.

NORTHUMBERLAND — Little progress was made in spring work this week due to the continued cold weather. The fruit and tomato district escaped frost the early part of the week although while frost was reported in northern sections of the county.

DURHAM—Practically all orchards show prospects of a heavy bloom. The cool weather this week has held back the development of the fruit buds which is an advantage as growers were fearing a late heavy frost.

PETERBORO — Spring seeding has been almost finished. While there has been some cold, wet weather recently, none of the crops have suffered very much. On the whole, the countryside promises a good crop this year. Fall wheat is good; spring grains are growing nicely, clover is showing an abundant meadows look well and most farmers are well advanced with their spring work.

FRONTENAC—The milk supply at factories is rather light at the present time. Milking stock is in good demand and very high prices are being paid for any that has been sold. Farmers are not anxious to sell unless prices are good.

LAITY CONDUCT SUNDAY SERVICES

Victoria Avenue Baptists Hold Own Services in Church

Sunday services at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church were conducted by the laity in the absence of Rev. A. G. Sinclair who was preaching in Brockville.

Rev. Mr. McKechnie, pastor of the Brockville Baptist Church and moderator of the Eastern Ontario Ontario Convention of Baptist churches, has been seriously ill and ministers within the convention are taking their turn in supply the Brockville pulpit during the pastor's illness and convalescence. Mr. McKechnie is a former pastor of the Belleville Baptist Church.

The morning service was in charge of the Belleville Baptist Young People's Union. The president of this organization, gave a very interesting discourse under the intriguing title: "What is Fifty Cents?"

Seven months ago the speaker had put this question to several people and had received a diversity of replies. To one man it meant a night at the theatre for himself and friend if they ask in the balcony and didn't eat afterwards. Another said they change from a dollar bill after a meal at the restaurant. Still another stated it was all he got for two bushels of tomatoes after the grader had done with them.

A Starting Reaction

To one elderly gentleman, however the fifty cent coin meant something entirely different and his reaction to the question was startling. "It was as though I had struck him," said the speaker, "and I was sorry I had asked the question for it evidently touched some chord that brought painful memories. Then the man told me that years ago when he was a small boy he had accepted a bribe of fifty cents and given information to a rival that was detrimental to his employer. Bitterly he regretted the action and for years afterwards every fifty cent piece he handled seemed to be tainted for he remembered that he had sold out the employer who trusted him for that amount of money."

"We must be careful not to sell our birthright," pursued the speaker. "We must hold fast to our Christian faith, the ideals of our British citizenship—things for which our forefathers fought and suffered."

Reference was made to the scripture lesson from 1 Kings 21:1-20, recounting the story of King Ahab who coveted Naboth's vineyard. Naboth would not sell the birthright of his inheritance for he had the command of God, though it meant death at the hands of the wicked king and his wife, Jezebel.

Hymns were announced by Mr. W. Hale. Mr. Bert Orr led responsive reading of a psalm selection while Mr. J. Blackburn led the scripture lesson. Mr. George Dixon led in prayer and also gave the benediction. Mr. Blackburn's recitete rendered two hymns in a very pleasing manner.

S.Y.P.U. in Charge of Evening Service

The Young People's Society conducted the evening service with Mr. John Jury of the B.C.Y.P.S. as speaker. Mr. Jury gave a very interesting address on the life of John (Wesley) Founder of Methodism, whose memory is being honored at this time.

Miss Edith Looker, president of the B.Y.P.U. was in charge of the service, assisted by Mr. Bert Orr, who led in prayer and Miss Jean Hardwick who read the scripture lesson. Hymns were sung by the choir. Vocal solo and an octette of girls from Miss Nurse's class. Mr. Bert Orr gave the benediction.

Bid for Power by John L. Lewis is Checked in Primary

Philadelphia, May 18—(AP)—The Pennsylvania bid for political power by John L. Lewis and the Congress of Industrial Organization faded today as returns from primary balloting gave the opposing Democratic State Committee slate a sizable lead.

Apparently turned back with Lewis, on the basis of incomplete returns, was Senator Joseph F. Guffey who joined the C.I.O. chief in supporting Governor Earle in the Democratic Governor's nomination and Senator Robert Myers, Jacob Wilson for the United States Senate.

The state new deal factional struggle, intensified by organized labor rivalries, was a feature of the primary-eve intervention of National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley.

Proposals Not Carried Out.

Mr. Armstrong went through reports on line abandonments which had been presented but not yet carried out, indicating in each case the attitude of the railways and their reasons for delay or reservation.

Many of these projects continued under study. Reports were coming in, and the proposals were still active.

tioned about co-operation in general and about particular projects.

Responsible For One Delay.

He said the Canadian Pacific could accept responsibility for delay in only one instance but agreed that they had been responsible for putting co-operative projects into effect.

Mr. Armstrong was questioned by Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative.

Mr. Armstrong was asked if he "would deal with the delay in giving effect to the reports of the joint co-operative committees."

"I must agree there have been serious delays in putting these projects into effect," Mr. Armstrong said. He had understood Mr. Fairweather to indicate that the C.P.R. must shoulder a large burden of responsibility on that point.

"The C.P.R. did everything in its power to carry them out," said Mr. Armstrong.

Senators Protest.

Several senators protested against Mr. Armstrong's understanding of Mr. Fairweather's evidence.

"My understanding is that insofar as certain lines were concerned, where agreements were made, there was no objection against the C.P.R.," Senator James Calder (Con., Saltcoats) said.

Senator A. K. Hugessen (Lib., Montreal) said Mr. Fairweather's understanding had been different on one point only. He had said the C.N.R.

suggested grouping lines, instead of considering individual sections, from which the C.P.R. rejected. Also the C.N.R. witness had said, according to Senator Hugessen, that the C.P.R. "never at any time agreed to consider any portion of its short line".

Mr. Armstrong said he accepted entirely the delay to one instance.

Estimates of the sum involved in the transaction ranged from $20,000,000 ($100,000,000) to $5,000,000.

Even Cardiff's anxious city council could not find out the identity of the purchasing syndicate.

Artistic Menuhins To Wed Wealthy Nicholases

London, May 18 (AP)—A musical-minded cupid has scored the best built-ups of many seasons in the midst of two sets of brothers and sisters—the artistic Menuhins and the wealthy Australian Nicholases.

Yesterday it was announced that Hephzibah Menuhin, 17-year-old sister of the violinist, would wed the brother of Yehudi's betrothed.

In the second brother-sister set are Lindsay and Nola, children of the Aspirin millionaire, G. R. Nicholas of Melbourne, Australia.

Making a clean sweep of the Menuhins, it was announced that Yatah, 18 and Yehudi's second sister, was engaged to William Blix of Washington.

Attitude of Railways on Abandonment of Lines Before Inquiry

C.P.R. SINCE 1932 ASKS TO ABANDON 150 MILES OF LINES

Col. Biggar Wishes to Find Out Why 5,000 Miles Not Abandoned

ARMSTRONG'S WORDS

In Places Savings Possible by Unification, Not by Cooperation

Ottawa, May 19—(CP)—Definite indication that the Canadian Pacific Railway intends to raise the question of unification before the Senate special committee on the railway conditions of Canada came today as John M. Armstrong, C.P.R. general chief engineer, continued his evidence on cooperation between the two railway systems.

Col. O. M. Biggar, counsel for the committee, asked the witness about 400 miles of thin traffic C. P. R. lines, included in an estimate of 5,000 miles of line which might be abandoned and submitted to the Duff royal commission on transportation in 1932.

Prefers Not to Discuss

Mr. Armstrong said that was based on unification and he preferred not to discuss it until the question of unification came before the committee.

Since 1932 the Canadian Pacific had applied to the Board of Railway commissioners for permission to abandon only 150 miles of non-competing lines and Col. Biggar wanted to find out why it had not moved to abandon the whole 800 miles comprised in the 5,000 mile estimate.

"There never was a 5,000-mile cooperation program," said Mr. Armstrong.

Savings Under Unification

At another point Mr. Armstrong said there were cases where no saving could be made under cooperation but savings were possible under unification.

Women Feed Mice, Inspect 'Subs' Are Air-Mechanics for U. S. Gov't

Washington, May 18—(AP)—The United States government hires women nowadays to do everything from feeding mice to inspecting submarines and keeping lighthouses.

The Civil Service Commission in a report today described marked progress for women in government jobs since 1867, when a contemporary writer indicated that for a woman to take a federal post wasscribed religion.

Among the usual government positions now held by women, the report listed telephone operator, blacksmith's helper, aerial airplane mechanic, surveyor's rodman, chairman of technical stores, boils and nuts."

More than 350 women rural mail carriers travel many miles daily by horseback or automobile in sparsely settled regions.

BLAME THROWN ON ITALY ON IMPASSE IN NEGOTIATIONS

Daladier Says France Will Defend All Frontiers Against Violence

SURPRISE STATEMENT

Paris, May 19—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier declared France would defend her frontiers against "all attempts at violence" in a surprise statement delivered today as France's negotiations with Italy approached a breakdown.

To nonparticipants whom he summoned to his office, the Premier said:

"France will persist in proving her close union, her calm self-possession. She can do it because she is strong.

"Peace will for peace is her first guarantee; her strength is her supreme guarantee."

Indirectly the Premier threw the blame for the impasse in the friendship talks on Italy, asserting France was "occupied with looking after interests of others" instead of a settlement, which however, demands loyalty, reciprocity and parallel action."

SUCHOW IS AFIRE, JAPS CLAIM CITY FULLY OCCUPIED

Main Munitions Storehouse Reported to Have Blown up

CHINESE 'DARE TO DIE'

Shanghai, May 19 (AP)—Large sections of Suchow were reported burning fiercely today as Japanese, claiming possession of most of the city, fought hand-to-hand with Chinese "dare-to-die" units in southern suburbs.

Japanese aviators said the strategic city, viewed from the air, was a blaze of smoke crossed by jagged flames.

They said naval planes bombing from a low altitude scored a direct hit on what apparently was the main munitions storehouse, sending flames and smoke hundreds of feet into the air.

Another tremendous fire, also apparently from a powder magazine, was reported in the southern section of the city.

All the city except the southern part, where fighting continued, was said by the Japanese to have been occupied within a few hours after the Japanese had crossed and entered into the vital central China rail junction.

They launched their first infantry attack during the early morning hours and captured the west wall. Later they reported they had taken

Debate on Military Aviation, Delayed for Premier's Gout, Will be Heard on Friday

Earl Winterton, Spokesman For Air Ministry in British Commons, Will be Relieved of Responsibility as Both Secretaries Are in House of Commons.

London, May 19 (CP-Havas) — Earl Winterton, who served as spokesman for the Air Ministry in the House of Commons while Viscount Swinton was Secretary for State for Air, will be relieved of that responsibility henceforth, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced today.

Now that both responsible men in the Air Ministry, Sir Kingsley Wood, the Secretary of State, and Captain Harold Balfour, Undersecretary are in the Commons, it will no longer be necessary to have an extra spokesman, he explained.

The debate on military aviation, postponed because of Prime Minister Chamberlain's gout, will take place Wednesday, Sir John announced.

HERRING FISHERMEN OF LONG POINT TO TURN TO MOTORBOATS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 19—(CP Cable)—The steam drifter for herring fishing has seen the best of its days.

Under a government bill, the second reading of which was moved in the House of Commons today by D. J. Colville, Secretary for Scotland, fishermen are to be encouraged to turn to motorboats as cheap, as by both cost and upkeep.

Herring fishermen investing in new motors, costing approximately £2,000 ($15,000), will receive a maximum grant of one-third the cost—Grants will not be available for purchase of new steam drifters. Under present conditions, Mr. Colville said, building of new steam drifters is not justified.

The British herring industry has been hit by the fall in export trade. Traditional customers, to Baltic countries, lously imported immense quantities of cured herrings, are now developing home supplies. Since 1929 Germany has quadrupled home production.

SEAGRAM COLORS TO GO IN PLATE

Youngest Member of Family Buys Tabbium And Will Start Gelding

Toronto, May 19—(CP)—Determined to see the black and yellow colors of the Seagram stable, long a power in Canadian racing, carried in the 1941 running of the King's Plate Saturday, E. P. Prentice Seagram of Waterloo, Ont., today bought Tabbium, a four-year-old from Jim Fair of Brantford.

When nomination blanks were mailed to Seagram he didn't have a horse to name and it appeared the famed colors would not be carried in the race for the first time since 1889. Fair nominated Tabbium, Seagram and Prentice signed for the mail-and-a-furlong event.

A. Lang, Christus in Passion Plays, Is Mourned in Little Bavarian Town

Oberammergau, Germany, May 19 —(AP)—This little village, in the Bavarian Alps, known the world over for its passion plays, was mourning the loss of its most famous character, 67-year-old Anton Lang, impersonator of Christ from 1900 to 1930.

Lang died in a Munich hospital last night after an operation for a stomach ailment.

The village will give "its great son and first burgher," as the Burgomaster's office put it, "a solemn homecoming."

Lang generally was considered to represent the traditional Germanic ideal of the Saviour. His expressive head with its long fair locks made a strong appeal as a veritable gentle Jesus, meek and mild."

His successor in this, role since 1930 has been Alois Lang, chosen to impersonate the Saviour again in the 1940 passion play. Alois Lang is not related to Anton Lang.

During the 300th anniversary of the passion play in 1934 Chancellor Hitler attended one performance and later told the Mayor he would do everything in his power "to ensure continuance of the play" and that he would be among the spectators in 1940.

TAXING INCOME TO GET AT WEALTH DAFOE SUGGESTS

Rowell Commission Hears How Frugality Helps New Brunswick

SOCIAL SERVICES

Fredericton, N.B., May 19—(CP)—Though the Dominion "has ceded" the income tax field as a war-time emergency and the emergency has since passed, Dominion collection of income tax is still a good thing in the opinion of W. W. Jones, New Brunswick government counsel before the Rowell Commission.

Mr. Jones' statement began presentation of the government's submission, in the course of which he suggested the Dominion should abandon the field.

It was pointed out to him by some of the commissioners that such a course would merely make the rich provinces richer and the poor poorer, it would do little to aid in the realization of the welfare of all the provinces, as he suggested, the paradoxical result of the nation's wealth around a little more evenly.

Mr. Jones recognized, he said, that income tax would produce

HERTZOG'S PARTY RETURNS TO POWER FOR 5 YEAR TERM

United Party Has Now 77 Seats Out of a Possible 150

SMUTS RE-ELECTED

Capetown, South Africa, May 19 —(AP)—Premier Minister J. B. M. Hertzog's United Party Government tonight was returned to power for a further five years. Returns from yesterday's general election, with 58 seats to be heard from, gave the government 77 members out of a total of 150.

The standing late tonight on the basis of returns from 91 seats was:

Government	77
Dominion Party	3
Nationalists	3
Labor	3
Independent	1
To come	59

Gerhard Jan Smuts, Prime Minister Hertzog's veteran collaborator, was expected in Standerton, giving 75 per cent of the poll in a straight fight with an independent candidate.

Other cabinet ministers returned were General Jan Christian Smuts, Agriculture; Deneys Reitz, Lands; Oswald Pirow, Defence; H. Hofmeyr,

ITALY AND FRANCE

Withdrawal of Volunteers by Categories From Spain Considered

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 19—(CP Cable)—Great Britain is moving to close the widening breach between France and Italy and end intervention in Spain.

In London the Earl of Plymouth, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, after talks with the French Ambassador, Charles Corbin, opened conversations with other members of the non-intervention committee.

Earl Perth Visits Count Ciano

In Rome the Earl of Perth, British Ambassador to Italy, interviewed Count Galeazzo Ciano, the Italian Foreign Minister, with a view to facilitating negotiations for an agreement between Italy and France.

Lord Plymouth's London conversations turn on:

1. Extension of frontier control between France and Spain and between Spain and Portugal;

2. Withdrawal of volunteers by categories;

3. The question of withdrawing volunteers from Spain by categories.

Fruit Anxiety Over Spain

For within the last few days fresh anxieties have arisen over Spain. Both the insurgents and the republicans have been getting war materials from outside. Barcelona is reported to have received new and more powerful anti-aircraft guns. The republicans recently moved new heavy guns up to the front. Russian airplanes are reported to have been flown through to Spain. General Franco, on his side, has new supplies.

A doubting Thomas bought a dozen eggs from Kensch and found the explanation. They came from a sparrow's nest built in a crany near the ceiling.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Meteorologist, Meteorological Service

Water waist-high, or more exactly, 36.6 inches of rain, was recorded on one of the mountain stations in Puerto Rico on Sept. 12-13, 1928, after the passage of a hurricane. Fortunately, such gales as heavy as this are more or less restricted in area, and the water really lies on the ground that high, because run-off and seepage reduce it considerably. Almost every hurricane is accompanied by torrential rainfall, but it has been estimated that a single hurricane passing over Puerto Rico in 1899 left behind rainwater estimated at 2,600,000,000 tons. This amount in the form of a cone would reach about 4,300 feet (four-fifths of a mile) on a side.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 19—(CP)—Synopsis: Showers have occurred in many parts of Ontario and light to moderate showers in Alberta, also in southern districts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, though elsewhere the weather has been fair. SAYS ADVANTAGE TO C. N. RAILWAYS

Efforts to Solve Abandonment End in Disagreements

Ottawa, May 19 (CP)—Reasons why the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways failed to pool their passenger train services west of Toronto to Sarnia and Windsor were told Senate Railway Committee members today as they continued their investigation of cooperative efforts.

John B. Armstrong, assistant chief engineer of the C.P.R., gave the reasons yesterday and today in the witness stand at two committee sessions.

The C.P.R. official declared heavy advantages to the Canadian National and to the shareholders of the C.P.R. would accompany the pooling. It had been impossible to work out an equitable arrangement for the division of burden and advantage between the two systems.

Pooling West of Toronto

S. J. Hungerford, then acting Canadian National President, had written to Grant Hall, vice-president of the C.P.R., in January, 1934, urging steps toward pooling west of Toronto.

In reply Mr. Hall had said pooling in that area would cut out 539,000 train miles, almost all on C.P.R. lines, and would seriously affect the position of that company in the important industrial area of Southern Ontario. He asked Mr. Hungerford to suggest some method of equitably distributing burden and advantage.

Later, Mr. Armstrong said, certain ed efforts were made to solve the problem but all ended in disagreements between officials of the two companies. The C.P.R. had contended the proposal would destroy its identity in one of the most im-

MRS. HERRIDGE IS LAID TO REST

Impressive Tribute Paid on Her Contribution to Canadian Life

Vancouver, May 19—(CP)—Mrs. W. D. Herridge, a leader among women workers who died in New York last Thursday, was buried yesterday in Mountain View Cemetery after impressive rites and tribute in St. Andrew's Wesley United Church.

Federal, provincial and civic governments alike attended the services which were followed by a lengthy funeral procession through downtown streets. The wife of Canada's former Minister of the United States and sister of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, federal Conservative leader, she was laid to rest by the grave of a sister; Mrs. Evelyn Coates.

Hundreds were unable to gain admittance to the church where floral tributes from all parts of the Dominion rested and where Mr. Bennett, former Prime Minister of Canada, wept beside his sister's coffin. Mr. Herridge stood motionless nearby.

Rev. Willard Brewing paid tribute to Mrs. Herridge as a woman who left her mark on the domestic and public life of Canada.

"During the difficult days of the Great War, Mrs. Herridge made this church her home and by her untiring zeal gave unstintedly her contribution to those services of consolation and healing which so distinguished the womanhood of Canada."

Rev. Peter Bryce of Toronto, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, read the prayer.

G.A.R. Veteran Refuses Women Place in Memorial Day Parade

Rochester, N.Y., May 19—(AP)— Women's organizations were up in arms today as Joseph Bauer, civil war veteran and long-time grand army of the republic marshal of the city's Memorial Day parades, renewed a stand taken last year in which he refused to permit women in the parade.

Charges of "dictatorship tactics" were hurled against the aged veteran by Edward A. A. Carroll, manager of the ladies' civic band, refused a place in the parade.

"The Memorial Day parade is a military parade for veterans and not women's parade," the veteran said. "When the G.A.R. men are gone, the others can do as they please."

44-YEAR WOMAN DOOMED BY COURT

Half-Blind Martha Marck is Called "Human Cobra"

Vienna, May 19—(AP)—Martha Marek, 44-year-old widow convicted of four murders, today was sentenced to death.

Although the prosecutor, Otto Wotowa, described the crippled, half-blind woman as a "human cobra who poisoned three gallows," the sentence did not indicate the method of execution.

This raised rumors that the guillotine might replace hanging for executions in Austria.

Frau Marek was convicted of the murders of her landlady, daughter, aunt and a woman boarder. Jenose Adonis, convicted of complicity in the killings, was sentenced to the three years' imprisonment.

R. C. H. A. BATTERY HOLDS NIGHT'S TACTICS

Members of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, preparatory to summer camp training, have been carrying out field exercises in the vicinity of Roblin. The brigade left Kingston on Tuesday night and proceeded to the vicinity of Roblin where the special open tactics were held during the night. The brigade returned to the barracks on Wednesday morning.

CAMPBELLFORD BOARD TO MEET SATURDAY

First meeting of the Campbellford Cheese Board for the season will be held in the board room of the St. Lawrence Hotel in Campbellford on Saturday, May 21, at 1 o'clock p.m.

Many of the factories of Campbellford district have been in operation for some two weeks and it is expected that there will be a comparatively heavy first offerings.

INFECTION ADDS PAIN TO INJURIES

Badly scalded about the legs a few days ago when a large pot of boiling water fell over her body, Mrs. Robert Royle, 303 Maitland avenue, was rushed to hospital later when infection added its pain to her injuries. Late yesterday she was in a special ward to the effect that the injured woman is progressing as well as can be expected.

SPLENDID SPECIMEN OF BREED IS SEEN

"Baron Eric Von Richthofen", name sake of the "Flying Circus", German aerial squadron that terrorized the skies over the Allied lines during the war, saw a different "Flying Circus" one night when he attended the wrestling matches at the Home Arena.

The "Baron", a beautiful specimen of a Dobermann-Pinscher dog, alternately whined and yowled his approval and disapproval as the participants threshed about the ring. In the dramatic climax of the main bout when excited fans charged the ring, the "Baron" sprang at his leash in an effort to join the festivities, but during the other events was content to watch the matches from his haunches, watching with keen interest every move made in the ring.

This aristocrat of blue-blooded dogdom was enroute to Brockville for delivery to a new master.

SIX EGGS WEIGH NEARLY 24 OUNCES

If the flock of White Leghorns that grace the barnyard of Mrs. Marvin Allen, Bloomfield View, hold their heads high with a regal air and throw disdainful glances at neighboring flocks of egg-producers, one cannot attach too much blame to them.

For in their weekly contribution to the breakfast table, and market basket last week, six eggs weighing nearly four ounces each were discovered by the family egg hunter. Ninety hens all told constitute this large flock, the efforts of which in egg contribution are the envy of nearby flocks."

NUMBER OBTAINED OF 'HIT-AND-RUN' CAR

Struck by an alleged hit and run driver, an automobile owned and operated by Dr. A. Walters of this city was badly damaged at the approach to the overhead bridge on North Front street last evening. Fortunately Dr. Walters escaped uninjured.

Dr. Walters was proceeding northerly at the time and reported to police a south bound car had sideswiped his automobile as it came off the overhead bridge. The license plate number of the alleged hit and run vehicle was procured by a passing motorist who gave chase after the machine left the crash. Sergeant Arthur Booth later checked the license plate number and afforded him what was informed the vehicle was owned by a Toronto party. Charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident will be preferred, police officials have stated today. Dr. Walters' motor car was badly damaged about the body and fenders.

THIRD STOLEN CAR IS STILL MISSING

Three automobiles, all of the same make and year of manufacture, have been stolen in Belleville during the past few days. Two of the vehicles were rapidly recovered by the police authorities, but the third, a 1928 Chevrolet sedan owned by Malcolm Wallbridge, Huff's Island, is still missing, police stated today. Mr. Wallbridge stated he parked his motor car in the Belle parking lot off Pinnacle street on Tuesday night, but upon his return the car was gone. The vehicle was of the closed type and carried Ontario markey plates number V-J-138. Two other machines were stolen in Belleville over the week-end, but later found abandoned. This practice is believed by police to be the work of joy riders.

SIX HUNDRED OF BOTH SEXES NOW REGISTERED

Constituting the largest number in years, upwards of six hundred men employed of both sexes are registered at present at the local Employments Office.

An increase of two hundred and fifty over the same period of a year ago, the difference is not directly attributable to a decrease in business or other economic reasons but rather to the fact that unemployed who failed to register last year have placed their names on the waiting list, and the office, officials asserted this morning.

Increase of this number is looked for, it was stated, until highway projects and other works of a like nature will relieve the congestion in the ranks of the unemployed.

PERSONAL LETTER FROM SCREEN STAR

Mrs. Grace Leeman, well known Belleville equilibrist, accompanied by a number of 46 Grove Street was recently in receipt of a letter from Miss Eleanor Powell, movie celebrity and world renown tap dancer. Mrs. Leeman, always a great admirer of Miss Powell's talents seen on the moving picture screen, had written Miss Powell a personal letter of congratulation and commendation on her splendid dancing. In recognition Miss Powell replied in a letter to the barrister which Mrs. Leeman today displays to her friends with prounced pride as personal letters from the celebrities of the Hollywood movie colony are receipted.

J. F. ORR CELEBRATES 80TH BIRTHDAY

Mr. James Franklin Orr of 7 Grove street, Belleville, celebrated his eightieth birthday at his home here on Wednesday. A family dinner party marked the day. Mr. Orr's two sons, Vernon and Leo were at home also his daughter Goldie. Mrs. Vernon Orr and Misses Marion, Jessie and Margaret Orr, grandchildren, completed the family circle. Mr. Orr enjoys very good health and is a most interesting character with his anecdotes of early life in Belleville and vicinity.

HUMANE SOC. APPEALS MAGISTRATE'S RULING

Notice has been given that the Kingston Humane Society has decided to appeal the decision of Magistrate F. J. Butler in Napanee in a recent case heard there. The Kingston Association through its inspector, Alfred Rickaby, brought charges against Roy Abbott of Enrestown, that he did fail to provide food, water and bedding and shelter for a bay mare.

Evidence was given at the trial by Inspector Rickaby that on visiting the Abbott farm he found the horse suffering and in such condition that he immediately shot it.

In giving his decision a few days ago, Magistrate Butler held that the charge as laid had not been fully established. He held further that Inspector Rickaby had exceeded his authority in handling a case in Lennox and Addington, and admonished him reporting the matter to the Lennox Humane Society.

SERIOUS SHORTAGE TRAINED DOMESTICS

While a large number of young girls have registered as inexperienced domestics at the local employment office, there is a serious shortage of trained domestics in this district, officials of the bureau stated today.

With a number of applications for trained help filled, there are still a number of vacancies for young housewives of the city naturally preferring trained girls to those with little or no experience.

ASPARAGUS HEADS LIGHT OFFERING

A slim offering of asparagus headed a light offering of spring vegetables at the city market today selling at 15, 20 and 25 cents per pound according to quality.

Onions at 5 cents per bunch, rhubarb at the same prices and new potatoes at two bunches for 15 cents were noted. Eggs maintained a steady price level with "A" selects selling at 22 cents per dozen and medium and pullets at commensurate prices.

No fish was available at the market today.

City Revenue From Tavern Sales Shows Increase

More beer was apparently consumed in taverns this year than last, if the increase in receipt this week of the sum of $1146.66 from the office of the provincial government, under the 10% tax on the beer purchase of the Authority Fees collected by the Liquor Control Board during the past year from hotels and taverns in Belleville, is any indication collected from this source was $10516.16.

How close the estimated percentage was guessed is indicated by the fact that this year the total sales contained the sum of $1,100.20 as expected revenue from this source.

City Committee Goes to Oshawa On Reassessment

First step toward the re-assessment of the City of Belleville will be taken this week when a special committee on reassessment consisting of Mayor Jamieson Ross and Aldermen Willis, Marshall, Lewis, Farrage, Jennings and Rickard will leave for Oshawa on Friday and confer with Mayor Alex McLeese and members of Oshawa city council on the matter.

Oshawa, it was pointed out, has just recently undertaken the complete revision of assessment of that city and considerable valuable data will thus be available for the assessors of Belleville in this matter.

A telegram received by Mayor Ross this morning from the Oshawa mayor contained an invitation for the local committee to visit that city on Friday, with the added promise by the mayor to call council of every help in the matter of re-assessment.

Police Bulletin

Potential speeders along the provincial highway adjacent to Belleville should take warning and govern their driving accordingly, as a day Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine took delivery of a new Harley-Davidson motorcycle, capable of attaining a speed of well over 100 miles per hour, if necessary, it was rumored throughout police circles.

Dog owners in this city who have been delinquent regarding the purchase of their 1938 dog license may soon find themselves facing police court charges. Several summonses were issued by police authorities today to persons known to be harboring dogs and not having already obtained their 1938 dog tags.

Dog pound custodian Thomas Theme today revealed he had found a wire-haired mongrel dog wandering at large. "The animal is in very poor condition, doubtless the cause of undernourishment," stated Mr. Theme.

Only eight transients sought shelter at the police station last night, a marked decrease in numbers being noticed.

Obituary

WILLIAM F. DUGGAN

William F. Duggan, Ameliasburgh, was born at Cooper in Hastings County and for some years past successfully engaged in farming work died after a brief illness in Grace Hospital, Windsor, Ont., on Tuesday, May 17th. To many old friends and acquaintances in this district his death has brought sincere feelings of regret.

The late William Francis Duggan was in his 71th year and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Duggan of Ivanhoe, Ont. At one time he was a member of the staff of the Provincial Examiner and for the past twelve years he was a highly valued member of the staff of the Windsor Daily Star. In the city of Windsor he was prominent in many activities and made highly esteemed. In Windsor on Wednesday tribute was paid to him as a citizen and as a newspaper man by Police Magistrate David Brady, Magistrate Arthur Bauruhan, Crown Attorney James Allan, Police Chief Wilfrid Wilson, Rev. Dr. David Croil, K.C., M.L.A., Windsor-Walkerville, and Col. Jas. Anderson, Presbyterian Church at West Huntingdon.

Surviving him are his parents Mr. and Mrs. Albert Duggan, Ivanhoe; one young son and one young daughter, Billie and Kathryn; two sisters, Mrs. Arthur Mahaffy of White Lake, and Mrs. John H. Craig of Tyendinaga.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his parents in Ivanhoe on Saturday afternoon, May 21st. at one o'clock.

LATE CHARLES ROLLINS

The funeral of Charles Rollins, who died at Amerold, Sask., Thursday, May 12, took place from the residence of his sister-in-law, Miss Winnifred Leslie, 28 Catherine street Belleville, on Monday afternoon, May 16. The service in the home and at the graveside in Cemetery at Cooper, Ont., was conducted by the Rev. W. J. Walker.

The bearers were Messrs. Bruce Phillips, William Phillips, Stanley William, Fred and Hark Rollins.

MRS. MERRICK RECEIVES GIFT

'Others' Adult S. S. Class at Cannifton Pays Tribute to Teacher

The "Others" adult S. S. class held their social evening in the Sunday School Rooms at Cannifton Church on Wednesday evening the 18th. A short devotional period was presided over by the President Mr. Miles Benedict, a scripture passage was read by Mr. Clarence Hall, prayer was offered by Mrs. Merrick, readings were given by Mr. Roy Pound and Mr. C. Hall, solo duets were rendered by Mrs. R. Pound and Mrs. Merrick, and Mrs. Farnham and Mrs. Wessels, this period was closed by singing a hymn. Games were then indulged in for an hour. The gentlemen members of the class then served a lunch consisting of pie, sandwiches, and coffee. At the close of lunch, Mr. Harry Twiddy said that he would like to read a letter on behalf of the class to Mrs. Merrick, who would soon be leaving for a new charge, this letter he said would not need any reply or any thanks—

Dear Mrs. Merrick—

"Not forgetting the many pleasant Sunday mornings we have spent together, we have gathered once more to show our love and appreciation. The memory of lessons, made more effective by your sweet, earnest, Christian personality will long continue to abide with us and we are asking Heaven's ration on our lives in the years to come. We hope and pray that some of us may prove a living example as a tribute to your untiring efforts in our behalf.

"Besides thanking you for all your kind endeavours, we ask you to accept our gift as an evidence of our lasting esteem and friendship. May this token convey our individual feelings in our wish.

"I'd like to be the kind of friend that you have been to me,
I'd like to be the help you've always been glad to be.
I'd like to do the big things and the splendid things for you,
To brush the grey from out your skies and turn them only blue.
I'd like to say the kind things that I so oft have heard,
And feel that I have made your soul, the way you mine have stirred.
I'm wishing at this time that I could but repay a portion of the gladness you've given me along my way.
And could I have one wish this year, this only would it be
I'd like to be the sort of friend that you have been to me.

Signed "Others" Class.

Mr. Harry Twiddy on behalf of the class then presented Mrs. Merrick with a Modern Electric appliette, and combination sandwich toaster." Mrs. Merrick expressed her deep appreciation in thanking them for the beautiful gift, and said she felt very humble over the gift, she had always enjoyed so much being with them in the class and felt they were all chums. The friendliness and cooperation of the class and teacher has been manifest at all times, and expressions of their love and friendship were made each Christmas by gifts from Mrs. Merrick, in the form of a nice gift.

Rev. Mr. Merrick also spoke in very appreciative terms of their kindness.

"STRANGE DISEASE" PROVES DYSENTERY
Riviere-Du-Loup, Que., May 18 (CP)—The "strange disease" that struck down Colonel Richard Conant and a hospital here and killed his two young brothers, Raymond, seven, and Roland, nine, at their Rte. Epiphane village home last Friday was diagnosed last night as dysentery.
The youngsters died suddenly after symptoms of body pains. Raymond and Roland died within a short time of each other and Roland was ordered rushed to hospital when a doctor was called.

Nepheline Syenite From Canada Hurts U. S. Industry Claim

Raleigh, N. C., May 19 —(AP)— A delegation from western North Carolina told Governor Clyde Hoey and Senator Robert Reynolds, yesterday that North Carolina's $1,000,000 — Feldspar Industry was paralyzed by the importation from Canada of nepheline syenite.

Senator Reynolds and the Governor promised to cooperate with feldspar interests in a movement to limit shipments of nepheline syenite under a reciprocal trade agreement or by a tariff.

Members of the delegation pointed out that a bill imposing a tariff of $6 a ton on the Canadian mineral was pending in the United States Congress. Nepheline syenite, like feldspar, is used in the glass industry. The Canadian substance can be mined cheaper than feldspar, members of the delegation said.

Young Thieves Use Toy Pistol

Toronto, May 19 —(CP)—Robert Davies, Toronto grocer, was held up and robbed of $15 last night by three youths who brandished what he believed to be a toy pistol.

Protecting workers' eyes in industry is worth while, considering that about 300,000 industrial eye accidents occur every year, causing a day or more of lost time and a financial loss of $50,000,000.

UNITED PARTY OF AFRICA IS HEADED FOR SWEEPING WIN

One Third of Seats Already Won by Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog

NATIONALISTS LOSE

Capetown, May 19 (CP-Reuters)—With more than a third of the parliamentary seats at stake already in the bag, Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog's United Party continued today to pile up an overwhelming majority over opposing parties.

The government's wide lead, gained in urban centres where the results were declared last night, was continued today as counting in rural areas began.

At 10 a.m. (4 a.m. E.D.T.) the standing was:

Government	54
Dominion Party	6
Labor	2
Independent	1
To come	86

At this hour the Nationalists led by Dr. D. F. Malan had elected not a single member on their platform calling for establishment of an independent Republic. But this party's strength lies almost entirely in the backveld areas, from which the returns will be slow.

Headed For Victory

The government appeared headed for a victory as smashing as that of five years ago—when the party led by General Hertzog and General Jan Smuts took 115 of 150 seats.

Three cabinet ministers—Oswald Pirow, defence; J. H. Hofmeyr, mines; and Richard Stuttaford, interior—were re-elected. Returns reflecting the other nine cabinet ministers have not been received.

The Dominion party, as radically pro-British as the Nationalists are anti-British—lost both its leader and deputy-leader—Col. C. F. Stallard and G.W.A. Coulter.

The government's most notable individual triumph so far was in capturing the working-class Vredorp Division of Johannesburg from the Nationalists.

W. B. Madeley, leader of the Labor party, which had six seats in the last parliament, was returned from the Benoni district.

FEDERAL DEFICIT $3,400,000,000

Result of Huge Spending-Lending Program Before Congress

Washington, May 19 (AP)— Informed officials tentatively forecast today a $3,400,000,000 Federal deficit in the fiscal year beginning July 1, as a result of the huge spending-lending program before United States Congress.

That would be slightly more than double the anticipated shortage for the current year, but would be below the deficits of 1934, 1935 and 1936. The peak peacetime deficit, swollen by bonus payments, was $4,763,843,000 in the year ended June 30, 1936.

Roughly, the next year's expenditures have been set at about $8,900,000,000 and receipts at about $5,500,000,000.

The tentative estimate it was learned, allowed for a $4,000,000 shrinkage in revenues and a $2,050,000,000 increase in expenditures compared with the preliminary figures submitted to Congress by the Presidents in January. The January estimates contemplated a $600,000,000 deficit.

The figures remain uncertain because relief needs cannot be predicted accurately at this time. The President has asked $1,250,000,000 to run WPA from July 1 to Feb. 1. A total of $900,000,000 has been estimated as a probable cost for the remaining five months of the year, developments between may alter the estimates.

BILL TO COMMONS AS PRIVATE ACT

Divorce Bill Passes Through Senate After Stormy Passage

Ottawa, May 19 (CP)—Parliament still sees little chance of the Senate measure broadening the grounds for divorce becoming law this session unless the government gives it special concessions in the House of Commons.

The bill, sponsored by Senator Lendrum McKeans (Con. Winnipeg), got through the Senate yesterday after a stormy passage. It now goes to the commons but as it is a private measure it must await its turn in the two hours a week devoted to such bills unless the government gives it some of its own time.

Even if it reaches the Commons it is likely the bill will meet strong opposition. Senator A. P. Molly (Lib. Provencher) told the Senate yesterday he did not think the Commons would pass it because the bill was not in the interest of the people.

Party lines were cut through as the measure was given third reading by a vote of 33 to 29. Eleven Liberals approved the bill and 12 were opposed. Twenty-two Conservatives favored it and 17 were opposed. Of those voting against it 35 were Roman Catholics, all of that religion in the House at the time. They were joined by four non-Catholics—Sir Allen Aylesworth (Lib. North York), William Duff (Lib. Lunenburg), George Gordon (Con. Nipissing) and J. H. King (Lib. Kootenay East).

Thirteen were would add to adultery the only grounds at present, desertion for six years, cruelty, incurable insanity for five years and extreme immorality on the part of the husband. It is modelled along the lines of the divorce Act passed by the British parliament last year.

ATTENDANCE AT EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Montreal, May 18.—(CP)— Early legal admission of children in Quebec Province to motion pictures of 'definitely educational value' was forecast last night before the annual convention of Quebec Provincial Association of Municipalities' Director Conan, Provincial Minister without Portfolio. Attendance at films of youngsters under sixteen years of age has been banned in Quebec for several years.

THAT QUESTION OF HOUSE CONSTRUCTION

The needs of new houses are felt not only in Canada but in the United States and other countries. So far in Canada there has not been as ready a response to the housing scheme as there has been to the British scheme which has helped to make that land prosperous. In the United States there is also complaint that individual construction industry remains pretty much in the doldrums.

The other day Americans were advised to do as is done in the British Housing scheme, "put to work idle millions or private capital now available" in a large scale housing plan.

Cities large and smaller, require new houses to replace some which have fallen into a state of disrepair and are not in accord with modern progress in building.

A glance at the British scheme points out this fact that in the past decade or so England and Wales have done more in reconstruction than in the past century or more. In fact, "it represents a social revolution unequalled in our annals," said Sir Harold Bellman, British Housing leader and manager of the Abbey Road Building Society.

Though at present the making of armaments will draw some labor from the construction program, Sir Harold says "While guns must have priority, this will not, I believe, unduly retard the working out of the housing policy."

Since the armistice, Sir Harold said that three and a half million homes have been built in England and Wales, increasing the available housing accommodations by nearly fifty per cent. Municipal authorities erected one million of these houses, private enterprises with government assistance built 400,000 while two million more were provided by private enterprises without subsidy. Some forty per cent of the municipal houses were let at weekly rents of $1.50 and $2.00 and more than sixty-five per cent had rents below $2, all rents being exclusive of the tax rate of 25 to 50 cents weekly rental on a two dollar rental for a house averaging four rooms.

What is the reason that building is lagging in the United States? As far as the United States is concerned Sir Harold said he had been impressed with "the absence of any effective method of town planning". He noted that labor costs were two and a half to three times what they were in England. In England too labor was assured of continuous work throughout the year and such gaps in employment in the U. S. might be a contributing factor to high wages. He suggested that a plan be worked out in the United States for security of tenure and more regularity in employment."

An explanation of the difference in the success of the housing plans in England and in the United States was seen by A. Rheinstein, New York City Housing Authority chairman in the fact that in England was now expert in building and the United States was still in the beginner class. Britain is successful in completing large programs for housing while their objective in the U.S. objective, Mr. Rheinstein stated had to accomplish that end housing developments must be on a large scale with long term financing. "Architects, engineers, manufacturers, distributors and tractors and labor will need to adopt new methods and make concessions if they are successfully to meet a new opportunity." He went on to say that "when labor sees that the great majority of its members will have steady employment, hourly rates of wages can be reduced, hours made uniform, restrictions relaxed and greater efficiency obtained.

Canada no doubt has many of the problems the United States has and has her own problems too. The United States is making renewed efforts in the building program and it is expected that Canada will do likewise and that a speeding-up of the construction will result.

VISIT OF AIR MISSION

Canada is hearing a great deal of talk of making of airplanes and of defence. There has been in the United States and this week in Canada an air mission from Great Britain. What the results will be, if any, in the way of orders for Britain's air defence program remains to be seen. Nothing definite has yet been stated.

There are several advantages of manufacture in Canada, first of all, the help it will provide in speeding up the rearmament, by Great Britain, the diffusion of the work of plane building, making it safer to manufacture here than to a possible war area in Europe.

Such will also stir up Canadian minds as to the defence problems of Canada herself.

How far the speeding up of plane building has gone, is indicated in a report on Monday that France was about to buy one hundred airplanes in the United States, Britain has been canvassing the field for planes and studying the whole situation in North America.

"AUTO ODDITIES" IS AN ADVERTISING FEATURE which has been running in this newspaper for some days, an advertising oddity which deserves special mention. These Auto Oddities are, as the name indicates, oddities in various parts of the world sufficiently interesting to deserve description and illustration in the press. Taking one number for example an illustration is given of a road sign at Margate, England, placed by the proprietor of Ye Olde Charles Inn, Margate, this road sign has the regulation arms pointing in various direction depicted in the following picture.

Another illustration shows a forest of curios, "Not a Tree, Not a Shrub", the Circo Forest which has no true branches like ordinary trees, no true leaves, and no real wood in its structure. Botanists classify it as a "desert dweller."

Another illustration depicts a rain of pumice in New Guinea from a volcano, hot pumice falling and forcing inhabitants to flee while motor cars were mired on the road.

Two-thirds interesting and newsy information and one-third advertising is comprised in this novel departure in advertising by the Shell gasoline organization. This "feature" advertising of "Auto Oddities" have been appearing daily on Page 5 of this Great Family Newspaper.

FURTHER REPRIEVE TO THE FINE JOB ACCOMPLISHED BY THE CITY COUNCIL in cleaning up fire hazards and enlarging the parking area on the Front street bank of the Moira river should emphasize the pains taken to make the parking places convenient and convenience sufficient. Electric lighting makes the parking places convenient for motorists and an efficient man in charge on Saturdays contributes to the smoothness of operation, so that as many more cars can be parked and in such manner as to get in and out without trouble. One important improvement contemplated has yet to be accomplished, that of placing a parapet or barricade along the river bank. Experience has taken from the piers of the old lower bridge now lying in a disorderly heap just south of Panter Park, near the C.P.R. bridge will be removed from that location to be utilized for the purpose of parapet or barricade along the river bank of the parking area. Thus an eyesore will be converted into an improvement. Traffic congestion would be materially lessened on Front street provided there were two parking areas, one north and south ends entering the special parking area. While to date permission has not been granted to cross into and out of these areas at the ends it is to be hoped that the necessary permission from the owners of the property in question will soon be obtained. It would seem to the Man on the Street that granting of this permission would mean material and monetary advantage to the property owners in question by increasing the value of the property involved. This parking place work has been carried forward under the supervision of Burton F. Jennings, Chairman of the Regional Planning Committee. Alderman Jennings has been assisted by the following members of the sub-committee appointed by the City Council, as follows: Aldermen Lewis, Barlow and Cushing.

Tops and Toys of Yesteryear

All the newspapers recently published a brief account of a marbles tournament in which the headmaster of a mid-western school had defeated the best of his pupils for the eighth consecutive year. This must have served to remind many middle-aged readers that the game of marbles, which was a stereotypical obstruction to pedestrian traffic every springtime for untold generations, is now almost never seen in the streets. A little pondering on this phenomenon will lead to mind a variety of other childhood sports that persisted for centuries among American and European children until a relatively few years ago, but which have since now fallen out of favor, in this part of the country at least, within the memory of all who are old enough to fret about thinning hair and crow's feet.

How often does one now see boys flying kites, spinning tops or whittling; or girls bouncing a small rubber ball and mastering jackstraws; or youngsters of either sex rolling hoops or playing hopscotch? Even pussy willows are rare specacle. Any one who thinks that the old spring fever must persist up back alleys because we breed vigorously into each old age that they can't die, need only make a round of the little stores near any public school, the easier to the penny trade and try to buy marbles, tops, kites or hoops. He will find the purchase of a top string almost as arduous a task as shopping for a bustle or a cowbell in Manhattan. Nowhere will he find the showcase next the candy case packed with such wares as he would have thirty years ago. In no other thirty years during the last five hundred has there been such a momentous change in childhood's traditions.

Hoops are being encouraged too spinning in ancient Greece and Rome. Neither the word nor the toy were known to Anglo-Saxon England, but both had been imported into Britain by the end of the fourteenth century, as Chaucer's contemporaries knew. Hoop rolling must be as old as the invention of barrel hoops. Fifty years ago the youngsters did not wreck barrels to get hoops. They found them in the cellar, and they used to guide them in any store that catered to their trade. But toy by toy one now! The word jacks is of course, short for jackstones, which is spelled and pronounced "chucksstones" in some English dialects and is "chuckiestanes" in Scottish. But even before the game was played with stones, any child in the childhood of the breed, it was played with the ankle bones of sheep, and was known as the game of dibs.

All these toys are old enough, in short, to have survived many revolutionary changes in the environment and manners of school. All antedate the steam engine, most of them the discovery of America and some the art of printing and the common use of gunpowder. But for one reason which we must ask the philosophers to point out and explain, there has been a change in our spiritual environment during the gas-engine era which has put its mark on childhood and has driven child-hood's time-honored institutions so swiftly into oblivion that we have come to regard hoops, tops and toothless crones giving excathedra biblions of marbles and jackstones as quaint and archaic matching before learned societies —probably for television broadcasts.—New York Herald Tribune.

Breathing Exercises Bring Satisfactory Results in Most Cases of Asthma.

In my student days the cause of asthma was unknown. That it seemed to "run in some families" and that it was difficult for the patient to give anyi nitrite during an attack was about the extent of our knowledge and treatment.

Today it is known that a computer of three ailments—hay fever, asthma and eczema—do run in some families, and the members of such families are predisposed or have likenes that are predisposed to one, two, hay fever, and eczema, if they come in contact with certain substances by breathing, eating or handling. Since this has become known many are now kept free of attacks by avoiding these substances or by having their "allergy" desensitized"—tiny amounts of the substance being injected under the skin.

In asthma there appear to be two conditions which seem to hide the cause of the attacks such as defects and irregularities in the nose and throat, so that even when pollens, foods, dust, dander, or other exciting causes have been found these tracks persist, often. It is believed, because of nervous disturbances. However and this is the important point, no matter what causes the asthma attacks, the inability of the asthma cases are helped by the breathing exercises developed by the Asthma Research Council of Great Britain.

I have mentioned and outlined these exercises before but any asthmatic can obtain the full book of instructions — "Breathing Exercises for Asthma" by sending to the Asthma Research Council, King's College, Strand, London, W.C. 2, England.

"There is no doubt that a large number who have suffered from Asthma for any length of time tend to develop a kind of nervous fear of breathing which interferes with the proper breathing of used air from the lungs. Exercises to promote proper breathing are therefore a most important part of any treatment to every asthmatic."

The Lord Lee Village Hospital Asthma Clinic the results of this exercise treatment for 1937 were as per cent of cases of asthma had either disappeared entirely or became so slight as to be of no inconvenience, in about 30 per cent the condition was much relieved, 20 per cent were remained 30 per-cent of failures. Of the 30 per cent of failures, half of these the clinic could not learn the correct method of breathing, the other half did not persevere despite the fact that they were breathing correcting.

MANFRED HAUPTMANN

A little boy named Manfred Hauptmann, aged 4 1-2 years, had been pursuing the more or less uneventful course of childhood, doing nothing which in any respect could be calculated to bring him to the attention of the world on Wednesday he had an accident. It was not a very important accident as far as things go, for a broken leg is no more serious than a broken leg and thousands of New York children every year. But because Manfred Hauptmann's father was Bruno Hauptmann the event became news. Manfred's leg was broken by reason of the knottiest of all the ethical problems which the law has had to grapple with. It is one of the canons of journalism that needless publicity should be given to honest persons; and yet in every account of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh's baby was mentioned. It would not have been necessary to mention it at all if it had decidedly new with it. Fortunately there appears to be no ground for feeling that the attitude of the public has undergone a change. That a little child through his life Manfred Hauptmann will have a little better than an even break. Many readers must have wondered if they felt a reminder of the father must harass this son forever—at his graduation, first job, first marriage and finally when he goes to his last reward in an honored grave. The question must be left, to the philosophers, and to the predictive workings of time, but we hope our optimists are right.—New York Herald Tribune.

TONS OF TIN

The United States, too, is laying in supplies in case of war. For the first time in many years the U S. War Department is quietly building up substantial stocks of tin. At the moment the metal, which is being stored temporarily in the Army warehouse in Brooklyn, N. Y., amounts to about 1,000 short tons, worth some $1,200,000. Reports are that after the new military appropriations go through the total may climb as high as 20,000 tons. Behind the move is this fact: practically all tin vital in munitions manufacture must be imported, and the U. S. is afraid an emergency might cut it off from supplies.—Sault Daily Star.

Shun Lavish Use of Cosmetics

"Sixty thousand secret police having first doped upon one another, and then having looked one another in the Homogenous Roman Musselinius held public games at the Colosseum for His delaiming the use of hired gladiators to impress the Nazi and the Roman populace, the Dux wrapped himself in his portfolio, and descended into the arena. Nor did the adulatory multitude forget also to extend their right fees in the gross-step salute in honor of Hilarius, who was fresh from his military triumph over the coffee shop keepers, the violinists, and the poets of Vienna."

"First striking ten attitudes and having them proclaim to the sands, Musselinius so thrust out his chin that a great scar appeared all the way to far-off Britannia, and knocked flat Neville, the court Chamberlain. After that the Dux performed a series of those mighty combats which literature rarely carry the prowess of Roman grandeur all the way to Rome."

"Armed with most primitive weapons, and contending against fearful odds, Musselinius girded himself with a snashing gun. A lash, and a sword lorry, and, after a desperate encounter, eliminated a lepton, and Nebulium tame house cats. Next, this incomparable warrior journeyed the scenic air in an airplane and, at formidable risk, dropped bomb after bomb upon a horde of Spanish and awfully arrayed. Descending then from the clouds all his own eloquence and accomplishments, the Dux wrestled with the Mess of those liberal Italian writers and professors, and finally threw these ideas into jail."

"All hail the magnificent spectacle was concluded by Hitlerus coming down into the arena and engaging Musselinius in a prolonged battle of ducks and drakes."—Chicago Daily News.

SPEEDING DOCTORS

While one will sympathize with a physician who finds himself mulct in a speeding, conviction for a traffic laws, to the bedside of a stricken patient, one must also be sympathize with the unsympathetic who finds himself in the position of having mandatorily to impose a $10 fine.

Were it otherwise, a very dangerous precedent would be established. There are several hundred physicians in Vancouver who drive cars, motorcycles and if they were permitted to break traffic laws in rush, a patient there very rapidly would be a tendency to make short cuts, acts a subscription on which to frivolously break such laws, in fact every time there was a sickness somebody would be speeding to and somebody.

If Magistrate Matheson permitted such an infraction there would be a good case for running through red lights and ignoring detour signs. This is a problem that has been solved in many of the main stem recently.

How many minutes on a city call would a doctor make by speeding? And in the meantime how many people is he likely to kill or maim?—Vancouver Sun.

INSANITY CENTER

In Ghent, Belgium, one person in five is said to be mad. The insane are everywhere. You meet them in the streets, in the train, in any public house. But they are not ostracized or regarded as in any way strange. This is not surprising because the town gets its principal source of income from them. Many come from all over the world to visit the asylum and the majority of Belgium nationality who are to poor to keep themselves are supported by the state. There is scarcely a family that does not have a mentally handicapped member rooming with it. The lives of the insane are closely and controlled by the municipal authorities—yet there is surprising freedom and lack of restraint. In many cases, perhaps, Napoleon may meet Washington, Caesar may seek a awkward situation as that is easily done peacefully settled over a glass of wine.—Detroit News.

MERCY KILLING

Gen. John Pershing's recent recovery and that of Pope Pius XI over a year ago should give pause to the advocates of euthanasia, or "mercy killing".

Both of these illustrious men are old and both have been so ill that all hope for their rallying again have been abandoned by the world.

According to the proponents of euthanasia, they should have been relieved of their sufferings by a "merciful" medical potion. Why "mercy killers" had not had their way these famous leaders would now be dead and buried.

The God who gave them life decreed otherwise—and by the application of expert physicians, Now both gentlemen are enjoying fairly good health. In fact, Gen. Pershing has done a tremendous amount of active service recently for a whole year since his recovery. His great service to mankind during the critical days when Europe must have been lost—if a Godless, brutal Hitler had been applied.—Michigan Catholic.

LOST FRONTIERS

One of the things which have made the depressions of the thirties different from all the rest is the lack of a frontier. Formerly, when times got hard, when employment vanished and people became desperate, it was always possible to look to the west, to go away to the West or the North and start over again. Now there is nowhere to go, no outlet, an incentive, and the long climb out of the depression must be taken, but today there is no frontier to which men can turn.—Vancouver Province.

WORTHY CITIZENS

A small mede of praise might not be amiss for the merchants in the town and vicinity who have been best to lead their community an attractive place and a centre of usefulness for the district. Merchants are judges where the merchants are uninteresting and sleepy the town's outlook never amounts to much. Even the farmers in the district get to be ashamed of them, and do not care to do their purchasing there. A town is just as good as its merchants, other things being equal. So it is desirable that the live merchants, other things being equal should always be on hand to encourage ready to improve conditions.—Brooks Bulletin.

GREETINGS

When we meet a friend we say, "How do you do?" or "How are you?" In other countries there are different kinds of greetings, some of which are quite startling.

In some parts of India the greeting is "Praise God, is your nose full?" In Arabia it is "Thank God, my nose is fat." After this the questioner says, "Then you live a thousand years."

In Persia when a person meets a friend he says, "May your shadow never grow less." In Egypt people say, "May you live forever!" The Chinese and Japanese remark is, "Have you had stomach? Have you eaten your rice?"

Russian people inquire "How are you, Brat?", in Poland the question is "How do you keep yourself." French people say, "How long have you carry yourself?" While in Holland a correct greeting would be, "How do you fare?" When Italians meet they say, "How do you stand?"

NOTIFY THE LAW

That Tweed man, who received an extortion note and threat, did the sensible thing when he immediately notified the police. Had he been weak enough to have submitted to the demands of the extortioner, that would have been only the beginning and more would have been repeated. Doing what the Tweed man did should be the course followed in the case of receives such threats. Notify the police and the police rather than wait until demands become impossible.—Niagara Falls Review.

HOW M. P. SPENDS TIME

As government has become more complex, Canada's average M. P. has worn out more shoe leather.

Whereas a generation ago activities have greatly increased demands on private members by their constituents, as a recent Gallup survey shows. Every new government activity, every government building, has lengthened the walk and the consultations M. P. on his daily beat to keep everyone at home happy. As he has walked he has talked and talked.

A day in the life of the average M. P. now includes:

Visiting departments, 45 minutes.

Listening to speeches, 5 hours; talking 10 minutes.

Reading and writing letters, two hours.

Committees, caucuses, one hour.

Receiving visitors, 30 minutes.

Dealing with job seekers, 15 minutes.—Financial Post.

They'll Do It Every Time :-: By Jimmy Hatlo

Rawdon

Rawdon—Springbrook Young People's Society under the leadership of their president, Miss Beatie McMullen, sponsored a four act play entitled "I can't afford it" by talent from Thomasburg and the Orange Hall was well filled with interested folks who enjoyed the presentation. The first act took place in Mark Farmer's corn patch, the second act in the home of Mr. Thomas Whyte, with act three in the village street. The grand climax was completed in the minister's home in the last act.

The characters were impersonated as follows: Mark Farmer, a farmer, Mr. Irvin Bateman; John Farmer, his son, Mr. Carlos Carter; Mrs. Farmer, his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Morton; Angelina Beaver, a young girl, Miss Lucille Herrington; Rev. Mr. Whyte, minister, Rev. H. B. Herrington; Mrs. Whyte, his wife, Miss Alice Heasman; Biddy McPhail, an Irish girl, Miss L. Herrington; Andrew Bonehead, a farmer, Mr. Gerald Blades; Mrs. Bonehead, his wife, Mrs. Clare Carter; Billy Bonehead, his son, Mr. Carter Mc-Taggart; Jim Coulson, farmer, Mr. Morton English; Harvey Coulson, his son, Mr. Ross McTaggart; Mirandoy Calvert, his wife, Miss Dorothy Clare; Jim Hartley, College friend of Minister, Mr. Fred Potter; Miss Crisp, an old maid, Miss May Lee.

Rev. H. B. Herrington introduced the cast and Mrs. Herrington assisted with the directing.

Between acts Mr. Fred Porter rendered two piano solos, Mr. Lorne McTaggart gave a humorous reading and Miss Lucille Herrington sang a vocal solo "Come to the Fair". The girls of Springbrook C.G.I.T. sold home made candy and realized two dollars. The proceeds of the play was over twenty two dollars. The play was well given and had a good moral with humour as well.

Rawdon Township Council held a special meeting with all members present. A short business meeting was held and several of the township roads were travelled.

The following accounts were ordered paid: Assessor's salaries Messrs Cook and Tanner each $50.00; Mr. James Osborne, Gearing stone in Cain's JIH 2.50; Mr. S. Mason, relief for A. Austin 5.40; Mr. M. Fitzgerald order on Messrs Galloway for cutting brush on roads 10.50; Mr. Charles Mason, work on road 2.10; Mr. John Andrews one day statute labour 1.50; Mr. Kenneth Thompson for 2781 feet of cedar at $24.00 per thousand; Mr. M. Fitzgerald, balance relief for C. Austin for April 15.00.

Morrison and Tanner put motion that clerk, Treasurer, deputy clerk draft a resolution in protest against closing Assizes at Belleville. Court of Revision will be held on May 30th.

Mrs. Emma Rowe spent quite a few days recently at the home of her brother-in-law, A. D. Runnalls.

On Wednesday evening about thirty five from Wellman's Improved to Hoards and the two societies entertained Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wellman, vice president, of Wellman's Y.P.S. Mr. Wellman charge and replied to the welcome. Interesting readings were given by Miss Evelyn Johnson and Miss Bernice Dunham. Miss Isobel Beckett gave a piano solo and Miss Mary E. Sharp read a letter of interest from her sister who is a missionary in China. Vocal numbers were given by Master Maurice Clancy, Miss Ruth Clancy, Miss Mina Dracup and Mr. Jim Watson. Brief addresses were contributed by Rev. J. E. Beckett and Rev. C. S. Reddick. After the recreation period the Hoards' young people served an appetizing lunch and votes of thanks were reciprocated.

Mr. and Mrs. William Montgomery, Marie and Maurice visited Mr. and Mrs. Edward Montgomery on Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Beckel entertained the members of the Belleville Ladies' Aid and their families at Rawdon parsonage with a good attendance.

Mrs. Harold Elliott, president, opened with Miss Laura Tucker at the piano and all sang a hymn. Mrs. Thomas McMullen read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Roy Welbourne read the minutes and several new members were enrolled. Mrs. Gummer and Mrs. R. Welbourne were appointed delegates to the convention in Pontiac.

The program was presided over by Rev. J. E. Beckel and opened with the theme song and God send us men. Several numbers of community singing were enjoyed.

Master Bobby Elliott rendered a piano solo "The Village Dance". Miss Vivian Welbourne recited "Cuckoo". Misses Irene and Shirley Preston sang a duet, Miss Doris Farrell sang with guitar accompaniment, "The old apple tree." Mrs. Harry Preston read a selection by "speedy drivers". Misses Vivian and Ruth Welbourne sang "Sunshine everywhere." Miss Mildred Morrison gave a piano solo "Merry Peasant". Master Bobby Elliott sang "Heigh-Ho" and Miss Lalu Hoover rendered "Dear Mother of Mine."

Brief addresses were given by Messrs John Farrell, H. V. Hoover, S. Gummer and Wesley Farrell. Miss Phyllis Beckel staged a musical contest with Miss Mae Currie as pianist. An appetizing lunch was served and the proceeds amounted to six dollars. At the close votes of thanks were tendered the host and hostess and all enjoyed a social time together.

Deseronto

Deseronto—Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church a delightful and successful tea was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss L. J. Warren, Main St. The home was suitably decorated for the present. Mrs. C. P. Dimmell in receiving guests, assisted by Mrs. Allen and Mrs. J. Douglas presided at the tea table which was adorned with a bowl of red tulips this color predominating in the dining room. The rooms were bright with spring flowers. Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. J. Smith and Miss McCullough. Other assistants in the tea room were Mrs. Topping, Mrs. Whitton and Mrs. Thompson. The proceeds from the tea were very gratifying.

Card Party

A delightful card party was held in the Parish Hall on Thursday night. There were several tables of bridge and euchre. Refreshments were served from small tables and a few hours of dancing were enjoyed. The prizes were awarded to the winners as follows: Martin Hart and A. Whalen for euchre and Joe Bagnell and Mrs. Hart for bridge.

Heinz goes twice as far!

• Good ketchup goes so far it pays to buy the best—and that's Heinz, the greatest ketchup bargain in the world.

To glorify simple foods, you need only a dash of Heinz Tomato Ketchup—rich, thick, undiluted—costing only a fraction of a cent—yet it gives you the simmered-down goodness of ripe-bred, vine-ripened tomatoes. With them are blended fragrant Oriental spices, winey vinegar, pure granulated sugar—the very spice of life for scores of different dishes. Be sure to ask for Heinz Tomato Ketchup—the greatest flavour value ever known. Get two bottles. Keep one handy in the kitchen for cooking. Cheer the family with the other at the dinner table.

Tulips and irises, with fern in the Star colours of blue, yellow, white, red and green, made a charming floral background for the tea held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Boyd, 260 Coleman Street, under the auspices of Belleville Chapter, No. 55, O.E.S. This decorative motif was carried out in the flowers which centred the tea table, most attractive with its lovely cut glass, cloth and silver appointments, and in the living room, with bowls of lilies of the valley added a fragrant note. A large number of members and friends of the Chapter took advantage of the ideal spring weather to attend this enjoyable function. They were received by Mrs. Boyd, and Mrs. W. M. Barker, Worthy Matron. Mrs. Everett Liddle invited the guests to the tea room, and Mrs. H. G. Buchanan and Mrs. J. W. Barlow presided at the tea table. Those who assisted in serving were Mrs. Clifford Bangay, Mrs. Edgar Buchanan, Mrs. M. Elliott, and Mrs. H. Varley. The popular home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. H. Lennon, while Mrs. M. B. Green acted as treasurer for the tea.

Miss Margaret Hayes, immediate past president of the Catholic Women's League entertained the members who formed the executive during her term of office, at a delightful dinner party at the Queens Hotel last evening followed by a bridge at her home, Catherine Street. Making of Spode Ware Described

In St. Andrew's Hall yesterday afternoon under the auspices of Mrs. K. S. Sills group, of the Guild a large number of ladies heard with interest a lecture on the manufacture of Spode and saw actual scenes of work at Staffordshire where the art of fashioning beautiful articles of bone china and earthenware has been carried on for over two hundred years. Mr. R. I. Davey, representing Copeland and Duncan, Toronto, Canadian distributors, was the speaker and in a most interesting manner described the various operations necessary for the production of the famous Spode ware.

The study of pottery, the speaker said, was unlimited. One could devote a lifetime to it, and still not touch all its phases. A few centuries ago people did not know the joy and beauty of finely dinnerware, pottery, yes, but not dinnerware. The development of pottery and porcelain from one man's discovery, but all peoples learned early the effect of fire on clay, in Egypt, the Egyptians, the Chinese, the Americas, Indians.

England had no outstanding name in pottery until the close of the seventeenth century, when the Elers brothers came over with William of Orange. Associated with pottery centre at Staffordshire which is still identified with this industry. Whilst the Elers brothers' apprentices learned valuable secrets from their masters which the young apprentices Josiah Spode was to become a great figure in this field. He died fifty years of a life of hard toil and frequent disappointments, before attaining success. His valuable contribution to this art which influences his work and that the earthenware and bone chinaware he manufactured. The speaker pointed out that the standards of perfection have been rigidly maintained throughout the centuries so that those who purchase at the self same plant are in keeping with traditions which are valued.

The motion picture illustrating the address took the audience on a trip through the old Staffordshire potteries in Staffordshire, now operated by W. T. Copeland and Sons. One of the main drive shafts is the original, put in by Spode himself. Scenes of operations in fashioning earthenware and bone china showed that although machinery was an aid for the greatest part of the work is done by hand. There are now one hundred thousand different patterns in Spode and none is ever discarded. A Spode set of three hundred years old can be matched, without the slightest variation in pattern. Each operation was carefully explained. The audience saw how glassware, vases, figurines, vases and jugs were materialized from hillside clay by master craftsmen and looked upon the examples on exhibition with new wonder and admiration.

Mr. Davey explained that Spode was handled in Belleville exclusively by Sills Book Store. He would have a special showing there on Thursday, to which they were welcome.

Following the lecture the ladies had an opportunity of examining the articles exhibited and to question the speaker.

In connection with the program yesterday there was a sale of home cooking which was also a splendid success.

Interesting Meeting Of Tabernacle Mission Circle

Tabernacle Mission Circle met last evening at the home of Miss Phyllis May. The programme was based on the subject of World Peace. Thelma Hodges conducted the devotional period, Edith Shannon read a portion from "Hidden Years". Miss Hazel Deniks sang "An Unclouded Day", accompanied by Miss Doris Kerr. A discussion of World Peace was conducted by Rachel Fox.

Mrs. C. Holmes gave a very interesting talk on Canada Matches and the part they have played in the building of the nations. Mention the mother of Augustine, Margaret, Ogilvie, the mother of J. M. Barrie, Susannah Wesley, the mother of John Wesley and Queen Elizabeth, the Royal Mother were given as examples of the importance of the influence of a Christian mother.

Lou Dougherty read the Busy Book Chapter dealing with the Life and Work of Dr. Jean Desy, an Ontario girl, who gave her life to the work in China.

The Poem "Peace" by John Oxenham was sung as a hymn.

Lunch was served and a vote of thanks moved to the hostesses for their hospitality.

German Potato Salad

Two pounds potatoes, one-fourth pound bacon, two tablespoons chopped onion, one-half cup vinegar, one-half cup bouillon or water, one-half teaspoon salt, dash pepper. Scrub potatoes and cook with skins on. Drain, peel and slice place to keep warm. Cut bacon into small pieces. Fryfry over a moderate heat until light yellow in color, add onions and fry a few minutes. Then add vinegar, bouillon or water and seasonings. Let come to boil, pour over warm potatoes and serve at once.

Morals of Students Improving, But Not Manners, Says College Dean

Dexter S. Kimball, Emeritus Dean of the College of Engineering, Cornell University, conferred a moss-covered smile on the students of that venerable institute of learning by saying in a lecture:

"The morals of students today are better than when I was in college—if the manners are not."

Three hundred women attending the Twelfth Annual Institute on Parent-Teacher Leaders at Cornell sat up like exclamation points, because they laughed! It was the other way around, that in the good old days, when Dr. Kimball was a student, morals were a long way ahead of manners.

The Dean then began to specify: "When youngsters come up to me on the lawn of the Dean of Women's house, I do not thinks it's good manners."

Mr. Kimball confessed that his sensibilities were offended by the sight of young and old women drinking in front of a bar drinking cocktails. But his crusher was:

"The students that ride along in a car and throws empty beer cans in the lawn of the Dean of Women has the right kind of manners."

Dr. Leslie Pitch, Dean of Women, admitted that there was a lot of truth thrown on her lawn.

To the foregoing, permit me to add some of the wails which come to this column.

"Why must these young savages burn holes in tablecloths, furniture, rugs, etc. with their cigarettes? And if they must have hard liquor, why won't they wipe the bottoms of their glasses before putting them on my polished furniture? I'm not keeping a tavern."

Another writes: "What's the matter with modern youth that it can't make up its feet before? I thought the floor was the place for feet but no nothing will do them but putting their feet up under them on chairs and furniture. Doubtless their flimsies accentuate their intrepanes. As for chair-tilting, bote acres are equally guilty.

Dean Brandolf's idea is that young people of both sexes actually know better. But a certain sheepy-like quality inherent in youth makes them follow their young people. The lack of manners among young people of today is another letter of my youth's bad manners. Dean Kimball says that their morals are better than when he was a young man and went to college.

Please tell me if this is in good form?

GOOD MANNERS

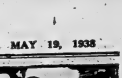
Leave-Taking

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,—

1—When taking leave of a group, some of whom you have just met, is it proper to say, "I am happy to have met you," to each man and woman alike? Or is it improper to tell a man that you are "happy to have met" him?



2—If a man says, "I'm happy to have met you," should one reply, "Thank you" or should the lady repeat his phrase, and say, "I'm also happy to have met you"?

3—When dining with friends, is it in bad taste to comment about the food—how good it is, and so forth? I have understood that it was bad form to do so, but it is so much more friendly. I always try to turn the conversation around. As a hostess I appreciate a guest's kindly remarks about the tastiness of this or that dish. It is so much more reassuring.

I think that perhaps your conclusion arises from the fact that it is not correct to think, when leaving, for the dinner . . . to say, "Thank you so much for a delicious dinner". One thanks for the hospitality. . . . "Thank you so much for such a happy evening."

Today's Garden-Graph

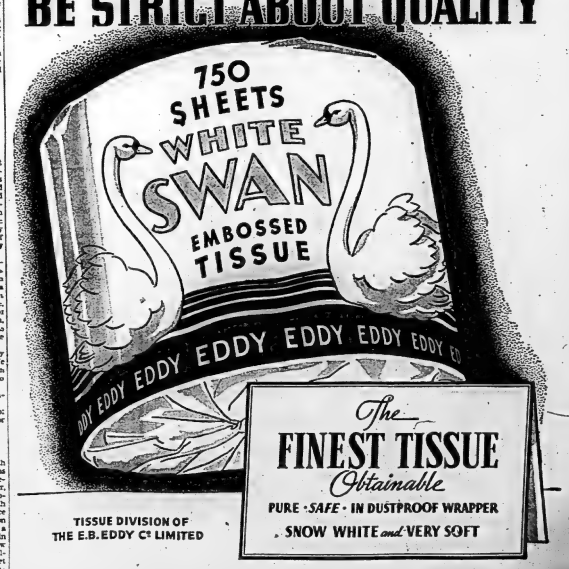
Encourage worms to eat up a housekeeper



Encourage worms to eat up a housekeeper

THE LITTLE house worm, with its cheery song, prefers to live in a single compartment home. People often put up a double worm house, but this is a mistake, for when Mrs. Worm gets up housekeeping she wants a house of her own.

This Garden-Graph illustrates a simple plan for a worm house of the type Mr. and Mrs. Worm prefer. The floor space should be 6½ inches on the inside. The house should be hung six to ten feet from the ground.

The important thing in making a worm house is to make the entrance opening no larger than seven-eighths inches in diameter. If it is made larger sparrows can get in the house or even take possession of it. Do not place a perch in front of the entrance or you will find the sparrows sitting on it and annoying the worms. The sparrows enjoy this sort of fighting, but the worms usually pack up and move away.

Fish Fried in Cornmeal Is Favorite at Resort

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Filet of Catfish
Hot Potato Chips Green Salad
Buttered Broccoli
Lemon Pie Coffee

You can try this manner of cooking catfish or any other fish. I know it is good. This particular recipe and those of "ham steak Dixie and southern fried chicken came from Frank Hurlimann, French Lick Springs hotel chef, and they are favorites, he says, with the turf notables who gather at that Indiana resort for the Churchill Downs races.

Today's Recipes
FILET OF CATFISH FRIED IN CORNMEAL. — Two pounds catfish fillets, three tablespoons flour, two well beaten eggs, one cup cornmeal, one level teaspoon salt. Salt the filets on both sides. Next dip them in flour, then in beaten eggs and last in the cornmeal. Heat cooking fat in frying pan and fry the fish to a golden brown. Drain the fat, dot the filets with small pieces of butter, and as soon as the butter turns brown the fish is ready to serve. Serve with lemon and tartar sauce.

HAM STEAK DIXIE—One ham steak, one-fourth inch thick; one sliced banana, one lump of butter, one teaspoon flour, two-thirds cup of milk. Fry the ham steak slightly on both sides in the butter. Place the sliced banana on top of the steak and bake in the oven for about 10 to 15 minutes. In the meantime add the flour to the drippings which are obtained by frying the steak, and last, add the milk. This will make the gravy. Cover a platter with the gravy and place the ham on it and serve immediately.

SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN — One two and one-half pound frying chicken, two tablespoons flour, one well beaten egg, one-half cup of milk, one-half cup beer or chicken broth, salt and pepper to taste, one lump of butter. Dispose frying and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Now roll the pieces in flour, then place some in batter made of the milk and egg. Drain and again roll in flour. Fry to a golden brown, pour off the fat and add a lump of butter; also the broth. Cover the casserole and finish in a slow fire, or better still in the oven.

OFTEN IN the [illegible] I have suggested ways [illegible]ems of dealing with the ang[illegible]hild when he has a temper [illegible]. But I have also [illegible] the older child rarely considers [illegible]ses a desire to or adult who [illegible]per.

As you know [illegible] have for several months been [illegible]ssing decussion [illegible]rums on family problems a[illegible] citizenship, at various places [illegible] the United States. In the regular evening in addition [illegible]ssfully conduct [illegible]orum, [illegible]ime once or several times a [illegible]; frequently with large groups [illegible] children and students from [illegible] fifth grade through college, every one of these levels. Pro[illegible] often from fifth or sixth children, has come this question: "How may I control my temper?" Perhaps the younger [illegible] says, "How can I keep from [illegible] awfully mad when someone bothers me?"

First of all, I warmly commend [illegible] questioner for wanting to correct this fault, reminding him that it will lose friends when he loses his temper, and will do and say things he will be ashamed of afterwards. I then try to show him that he can do most believers now and the next time he is likely to be very angry. I suggest that while calm and sensible he often says to himself, "Next time I feel I am getting angry I will remember to tell myself that I must not say anything but must keep my mouth shut. I must keep my hands and feet still. I must control myself well. If I get excited and do or say silly things others will make fun of me and I will lose my rights. If I am not sure I can control myself, I will go away where no one can see or hear me. I will never have things when I am angry or call any one ugly names."

Think What You Did

After your anger cools down, the next time you are vexed, think over how well you did. If you managed yourself just a little better than ever before, be proud of yourself and make up your mind to do still better next time. If that don't be too hard on yourself after you have lost your temper a little. The important thing is to improve. Then just keep struggling in this fashion, working on yourself while you are not angry so you might be able to control yourself next time you are.

This principle should work with anybody. The first step toward improvement is to want to improve.

Fashion Flashes

(By ALICE ALDEN)

Don't lose your head amidst the bewildering variety of hats, many of them too, too pretty for words. If you aren't sure, a simple, flat sailor of straw in your favorite most becoming color, with veil grazing or tries, is the best choice, since such a model goes with everything.

A good notion is to get a becoming pillbox hat and have for it a variety of trimmings, such as pique bows in various colors that can easily be removed and put on to some with blouses or frocks. These bows tack on so easily.

A cheerful walking companion is a suit of thin tweed in a lovely pale pink, worn with a violet sweater blouse.

NOT EVERY WOMAN CAN WEAR CHIN STRAP OR TIES, IS WARNING

Olympe Bradna.

Chin bow hat becoming

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

EVERY DAY you see more girls wearing hats with chin straps. No wonder, because they are both pretty and youthful, but beware of the strap if it will show a billowing of little double chins beneath it.

You really need to have a young, sculptured clean-cut chin and jaw line to flaunt a bow under your chin. So if you haven't got the line for it and long for one of these chapeaux—then the thing to do is to get to work and get a well chiseled jaw. There is nothing more pathetic and ridiculous than a jaunty bow hidden in folds of fat. It emphasizes the lady's chubbiness and ages her right before your eyes. As a matter of fact, double chins add more age to the face than anything else. So dashed or bedraggled you'll drop years from your looks if you'll make up your mind to settle for one chin and keep a clean contour.

The first thing to remember in getting proud, firm chin lines is to hold your head up. Lift your head out of that hanging position. It will immediately make you feel better about life and will add assurance and grace to your general appearance. Make a habit of holding your head high and you will have won half the battle.

A few exercises done daily will also hasten the reconstruction. First sit down and rest your elbows on a table. Hold a book in the palms of your hands, one end in the right palm, the other in the left. Put your chin on the book. Open your mouth and jaws as wide as you can and then press the body firmly against your chin. Count ten slowly, as you gradually permit your jaws to be forced shut, while resisting as hard as you can the upward pressure of the book. Now, with your jaws shut and the book in the same position, count ten slowly while you gradually try to force your jaws apart and open your mouth against the firm resistance of the book held in the palms of your hands.

Wear Chin Strap

With the next exercise you should wear a chin strap. Apply a little rich lubricating cream and then put on your chin strap over the cream. When you have done this you are ready for the exercise. Place your hands on your shoulders with the thumbs backed against your shoulder blades. Keep your elbows close to your body and slowly push them forward, at the same time opening your mouth against the resistance of the chin strap, and raising your head. Then thrust your head back as far as it will go until it rests on the top of the spine. Slowly lift as if to pull the top of your head to the ceiling, but keep you chin in. When you are raising your head, feel it lifting from the back of the ears, closing your mouth slowly. Repeat this ten times.

This routine will streamline your chin in record time and bring back that young sculptured look that's so necessary with this year's fashions.

Poems That Live

"THEY SPEAK O'WILES"

They speak o'wiles in woman's smiles,
An' ruin in her ee;
I ken they bring a pang at whiles
That's unco'sair to dree;

But mind ye this, the half-ta'en kiss,
The first fond fa'n tear,
In heaven kens, fu'sweet amends,
An' tints o'heaven here.

When two leal hearts in fondness meet,
Life's tempests howl in vain;
The very tears o'love are sweet
When paid with tears again.

Shall hapless prudence shake his poe?
Shall cauldcrife caution fear?
Oh, dinna, dinna drown the love
That lights a heaven here.

NEW WOOL SWIM SUITS EXCITING, FLATTERING

There Is Choice of One and Two-Piece and Dressmaker Types With Nautical Stripes, Stars and Anchors for Trim

By LISBETH

FOR THE well-dressed woman who loves her sea and sand, the wool bathing suit is usually first choice. Wool swim suits flatter the figure, and the new fabrics are interesting and decorative, with soft, subtle colorings.

This season's suits are exciting and very good looking, as you can see by casting your eye over those used to illustrate this article. They are offered in a variety of styles, from the one-piece classic for the active swimmer, to the dressmaker versions. They are accented by nautical stripes, appliqued stars, anchors, daisies, jacquered embroideries and other attractive whimsies.

Wool swim suits are highly absorbent, and therefore allow moisture to evaporate slowly.

Nautical styling is used in the two-piece swim suit shown left. It is a white knit wool with red and blue stripes at the neckline and down the sides of the shorts, and twisted red and blue cord tie belt, knotted casually at the front.

Skirts Flare

Dressmaker suits for general beachwear as well as swimming, also come in one and two-piece styles. The skirts show a tendency to flare this season, sometimes having tiny pleats to provide freedom and movement.

Important styles have flattering draped bodices or fitted uplift and molded hipline. Simple, well-cut styles developed in novelty stitches in raised, matelasse or paneled effects are new looking and smart, often simulating hand knits.

The damsel lounging in the sun, left, is wearing an embroidered wool jersey swim suit with gathered neckline fullness. Over it she wears a knee-length coat in white knit wool, with tuxedo revers belted with a cord tie and large composition anchor in navy to match the suit.

At right, a knee-length cape in honeycomb knit tops a dressmaker suit in green, gray and white striped knit sepbyr.

Matching outfits are favorites with those who are ensemble conscious. Trim little knitted wool maillots with companion boleros and calots are favored, as well as those with contrast.

Wedding Jewelry

Jewelry is always associated with weddings. Tradition has it that the bride and groom exchange gifts.

A necklace of real pearls is the loveliest gift a groom can give his bride, but if he cannot afford such a magnificent gift, there are plenty of other lovely ones. One or two clips or a brooch or bracelet are things she will always wear and cherish.

The bride's gift to the groom usually is a handsome cigaret case, but if she wants to be different and can afford it, a thin evening watch and chain, a tie pin and cuff links for his sark ette or jeweled studs will please him.

"Wind Around the Heart"'s Largely Psychological, Says Doctor Cendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE HUMBLE subject of "wind around the heart", which distresses so many patients, and which is likely to cause fretful among physicians, is the subject of part of the Harvey oration delivered this year by Sir Arthur Hurst, chief physician at Guy's hospital, London.

He says, "There is no physical basis for the wind which troubles most people who complain about it. It is on their brains and neither in their stomach nor around their hearts."

The symptom, however, is real to patients, and its mechanism can probably be explained in the following way:

It is known that the only thing which causes air sation in the stomach is a tension on the muscular coat. Anything which causes this, such as a full meal or irritation of some kind around the stomach, is ascribed to gas on the stomach which appears to press on the heart. The nervous patient under these circumstances feels as if he shoul drellieve himself of the gas by belching, and in order to do this he swallows air until he finally does have some wind on the stomach, gets it up and experiences great relief. The louder the noise he makes in getting it up, the more the relief.

Relief Partly Psychological

The relief is partly psychological and partly due to fall in tension of the stomach. The process can be seen under the X-ray.

The increase in stomach tension is usually due to spasms of the muscle at the outlet of the stomach —the pylirus. Under the X-ray, the patient can be seen to swallow air until a large air bubble appears at the top of the stomach. This increases pressure inside the stomach enough so that the outlet of the stomach opens and with the relaxation of the gas, complete relief is accomplished.

Nervous patients get so much satisfaction from this that they continue doing it over and over again.

The habit of swallowing air (aerophagy) can be cured by explaining the true cause of the flatulence in language suited to the patient's intelligence. He should be instructed to make no voluntary effort to belch, no matter how much he may desire to do so. When the functional dyspepsia, which is the original cause of the trouble, also treated, the whole condition improved.

Bright, Hot Sun Needed For Strawberry Sunshine

By MRS. MARY MORTON

DINNER:
Cold's Liver with Broiled Bacon

Asparagus Lettuce Salad
Chocolate Ice Cream
Coffee or Tea.

I am giving you a recipe for strawberry sunshine that I hope will turn out all right. It is taken from my friend, Helen Robertson's recipe, and the recipe is all right, only the time I tried to make this particular preserve a good many years ago I didn't have much luck, as the sun practically refused to shine for me. It would come out, I would put the berries out in it, and the sun would duck under a cloud. Then it would shower and I would dash and bring the berries in. We ate the resultant preserve but I never felt it was a distinct success. I'll give you the recipe I used, and you can try whichever one supposes most to you. And good luck!

Today's Recipes

STRAWBERRY SUNSHINE — Two pounds berries, two pounds sugar, one cup water. Select large, firm, perfect berries. Wash, drain well and hull. Make a syrup of sugar and water, bring it to the thread stage, 226 degrees Fahrenheit. Lower berries into the syrup and boil vigorously three minutes. Turn out onto a large platter, cover with a pane of glass, leaving some space between the glass and the platter to allow for evaporation. Place in the direct rays of the sun, bringing them in each night. When the mixture has a thick preserve consistency, turn into glasses or jars which have been washed in hot, soapy water, scalded and cooled. Seal with paraffin.

PRESERVING STRAWBERRIES IN GUN—Select dark red berries, stem, wash carefully and weigh. To each pound of berries allow a pound of sugar. Heat heavy platters of old-fashioned stoneware or heat-proof glass, until they are quite hot. Dust over with sugar, cover with layer of strawberries and then cover with the remaining sugar. Cover with glass, and stand in the hot sun. As soon as the sun goes down, before dampness begins, bring them in and put in warm room overnight. Put them out again in the morning. When the berries are soft, thoroughly saturated with sugar and cooked by sun, lift each carefully with a fork and put it into a glass. Boil syrup until it jellies, pour over berries in the glasses and stand aside to cool. Cover with paraffin and store.

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM — Three eggs separated, three-fourths cup confectioners' sugar, one ounce bitter chocolate, one and one-half cups whipping cream, one teaspoon vanilla, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Beat egg whites and salt until stiff. Add yolks and beat. Add sugar, a small amount at a time and beat as for meringue. Melt chocolate over hot water to make it creamy. Add to egg mixture. Whip cream and fold egg mixture and vanilla into it. Pour into tray and freeze in mechanical refrigerator without stirring. Maple syrup may be used instead of sugar and chocolate, or fresh strawberries may replace the chocolate.

Girl Told To Allow No Petting

Keep Your Own and Man's Respect Is Advice

By VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl 21 years old. I fell in love with a man who didn't know I existed until the other day. As he passes my house every day, we finally stopped to talk to me. He asked me for a date, but I refused the first time. Then he asked me again and I accepted.

"We went riding and I found out he was the 'leaving' type, so I asked to be taken home. I still secretly care for him, so should I submit to his advances if he dates me again? V. L."

Don't be a dumbell, dear girl. The fact that he attracts you should be all the more reason why you should refuse to allow any familiarities. If you girls only would absolutely refuse dates to the men who have this so-called "leaving" habit, it would do much to discourage it.

Don't cheapen yourself in your own or his eyes. Be a fine, self-respecting girl even if you lose the friendship of this youth. You'll never be sorry, while you will be sorry if you unhappy girl if you allow such liberties. Everything that takes you out to treat you as well as he would want other men to treat his sister. That is a safe rule.

I should think you would be so disappointed in this man that your budding love for him would be blighted.

A FRIEND: Does your father object to his girl having dates? After all at 20 you should be having boy friends. Have you told him about this boy with whom you went secretly? If not do so, as no good ever comes of a deception. He will be hurt by the fact that you kept the matter from him more than by the knowledge that you had a boy friend.

You can write to the boy after you have told your dad all about the matter, and tell him that he now is free to come to the house to meet your father. If he doesn't come, you will know that was not the reason he has stayed away. Honorable boys do not want to go with girls on the sly if they can help it.

Latest Shirtwaist Dresses Are Flattering to Figure

By Central Press.

THE SHIRTWAIST DRESS is as popular this year as last, it has changed somewhat, of course, as styles have a way of doing, but it is the same smart frock we have been delighted in (young and older women, alike) for the past several seasons.

A new dressmaker version of the shirtdress worn is pictured in light wine red sau georgette, with vertical bands of shirring alternating with the plain fabric.

The bands become box pleats in the gathered skirt, shirring a flattering long line for the figure, and making it especially suitable for those whose figure is no longer young.

Worn with it is a milan tuffed sailor with twin hat pins and a veil for trimming.

Style Whimsies

The straight silhouette with soft top for both coats and dresses is the accepted fall silhouette, say stylists.

Something new this season is a veil colored to match the blouse.

An entrancing evening gown is of white moussette de soie, trimmed with bands of black Chantilly lace, the lace making the sleeves.

The old-fashioned idea of bride and groom exchanging rings has been revived as a very sweet old custom.

Three out of five skirts the well dressed women are wearing in Paris (and elsewhere) are pleated. Paris style formula still is squared shoulders, slim waist, neat hips, flares below the hips.

Bark covered bird houses

Bark-covered bird houses

BOYS' WOODPECKERS and flickers prefer to make their nests at the bottom of a deep, dark hole in the trunk of a tree. If we want to coax these birds to nest in the garden we must put up just the right kind of a house.

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, a house intended for woodpeckers or flickers should be covered with bark. A wooden box can be made and covered with tips of bark, or better still, make a house from wood from which the bark has not been stripped. At the house is made place a half-of sawdust in the bottom of to facilitate the building of the nest.

A house intended for a red-head woodpecker should have a floor space six by six inches square. The entrance hole should be made two inches in diameter and drilled about inches above the floor. The hole should hang from 12 to 20 feet above the ground.

A flicker house should have a floor space six by seven inches square. The entrance hole should be two and one-half inches in diameter and 16 inches above the floor. Hang the house from 6 to 20 feet above the ground.

A good friend to a wardrobe of dresses is a jacket of chamois color wool openwork. It has a stand-up collar and four big flap patch pockets.

Crisp and fresh is a daytime frock of heavy sheer in navy blue. The skirt is tucked nearly to the hem and is held out by horsehair at the hemline. The collar and tucked vest are of white silk piqué.

DANGER IN THE MIST

By
Martha King Davis

Doly a few of us in the room heard that crash happening.

After the sheriff had shot Bunko he had dropped on his knees beside that other figure on the floor. Mac and Barny had rushed forward and he heard the sheriff say:

"She's dead. Call Sully, Mac."

Then he muttered to himself, "Keep Mrs. Caldwell out of the others out of here. Just tell 'em—Miss Lydia's hurt."

So I had gone back to Mrs. Caldwell's room where the Allen girls and Norma, having been joined by Grace Linnell, were breathlessly waiting. I told them the men had shot a monkey which had climbed in Miss Lydia's window and injured her, but none of them knew how serious that injury had been until now.

Norma cried out sharply: "Not—killed Pam! Oh—no!" and sank down and buried her face against Peter's shoulder.

She must have been standing at the side of the room with her back to the window," said the sheriff. "The monkey — quicker than lightning — must have leaped to her shoulders and caught her about the throat, and in the struggle her gun went off. Sully says she died instantly from heart failure. He left her back and I've sent a boy puff on his cigar, "now you get all think over your different frights and know it was just a bad mischievous monkey up to no good prank. You'll have to have been caught long ago if Biddy had got guarded like she ought to. For Biddy! Inspect you will have a time with Mrs. Caldwell when he wakes and finds his pet gone."

She shook her head. "I think how Biddy was beginning to feel a terrible responsibility for nearly ready to confess to me all about it. Oh—Understand it? Of many things now! But," a puzzled frown narrowed her eyes, "why—sheriff Whose was the monkey about Biddy?"

There was a tense silence.

Then the sheriff said slowly: "No, Bunko had nothing to do with that. I s'pose." He looked around the group, "now we're all here we might be well to get things straight. I know some of you think I've been a sober old fool, and I admit to that. Ill admit I've done some mighty stupid things, but although one may have a pretty strong hunch suspicion, it ain't so easy to prove," he added with a grimace. "The easiest piece to find in any puzzle are the least important, and when everything added so conclusively in this so Mrs. Caldwell, I knew right away that was the guilty party.

"When I found that Biddy had been dit that night—that he was acting sort of queer—that his own

TOO OLD AT FIFTY?

There are far too many men and women in the forties and fifties who think they're "beyond" enjoying work or play. They're mistaken! Just how you're old enough to know how to enjoy yourself, to give up because sluggishness and constipation. Please make you feel "not up to it"!

Take a look at wealthier people. Do the give in to middle-age? Not likely! They try to keep themselves in the pink of condition until advanced old age; those young minds abide.

How do they manage it? Many by taking the waters at famous Spas. But you don't have to go to Spas, you'll say. Ye don't have to, now. Similar benefits of the waters can come to you! The combination of the elements of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium in Fyanon Salts give you remedial effect similar to that with wealthy people go make to get from Spa waters. slater feared he might be involved — I gave that a good bit of thought. But after Barnes was shot, I knew Biddy didn't have the mind to do that. In fact—the shooting of Barnes greatly simplified the whole thing.

"People don't commit murder without motive. When the will was read there was a question about you, Miss Linnell, and whether you had nothing to do with it; but Grace Lhell's voice was almost continually in the house this summer principally because a friend of mine was to be at the Artists' Colony. I didn't have any love for the Caldwells and I was glad to know that Barnes wasn't coming to me. But—knows, I did not have a thing to do with that murder!"

The sheriff looked at her for a moment. "I never had much use for a blackmailer."

"Oh—but I was going to tell you—"

He put up his hand. "We won't say anything more about that just now."

I looked at Mac questioningly. What did the sheriff mean? But Mac shook his head.

"Although I knew the one who murdered Eliot Caldwell wanted to get the job on Mrs. Caldwell, I stupidly never thought that person would go to the length of actually attempt to murder her. This has been a hard case, for it's been almost impossible, to get real evidence. Not a thing has left around—none of the handkerchiefs, torn bits of clothing, footprints. In fact," the sheriff smiled at Parker, "our friend here will bear me out that there has been unfortunately ating finger-prints. No, Every thing was most carefully planned and carried out.

"They say," he lit a fresh cigar, how nobody say good—well, Bunko sure helped me on this. He dug out the evidence and clinched the murderer."

"Oooh!" cried Mac. "I get! Eliot Caldwell was murdered by—"

Detective Parker leaped to his feet. "Oh, it's true. I'll just what I've been thinking the last day or two. Mrs. Caldwell murdered her brother!"

"Lydia—murdered Eliot!" Norma Caldwell, excited voice rang out. "Why—that's impossible!"

The rest of us sat staring stupidly at the sheriff.

He bowed his head. "Yes—she did it, and she tried to murder you, Mrs. Caldwell."

"Me—Eliot!" Norma clasped her hands tightly together. "Lydia didn't like me, but she would never —never have tried to kill me. Oh Peter, sit a minute!"

Peter put his arm about her. "Hush, dear—listen to the sheriff."

"Lydia Caldwell went down to the boat-house that night with the express purpose of doing away with her brother. Way back when her father died and Eliot was given the place and the big income with the money, she was sore and jealous. But as long as he stayed a batch, and she kept the house for him she didn't mind so much. But when he married Mrs. Caldwell, and you and Biddy come to live with them, just was too much for her.

"She hated the both of you, and she grew to hate her brother. She hated him worse when she knew he'd willed most everything to you.

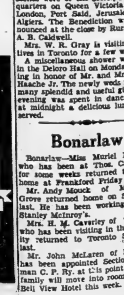
"Last summer she tried her best to push the affair between you and young Alec, but you wouldn't go far enough to make your husband willing to divorce you.

"Plan summer things worked a lot better. You played into her hands—you and Barnes, both. Probably the plan grew slowly. If Eliot could be done away with and the murder blamed on you, then she could get control of everything.

"The dinner that night was the climax. You were goaded to the utmost, Mrs. Caldwell. You left the table in anger. You went out that evening with your supposed lover. You went down to the boat-house and quarrelled with your husband. "Miss Lydia—everybody heard all this. She watched you from the outside as you went into the library that night—then she sneaked down to the boat-house.

"Probably Eliot never knew she shot him. He was in a drunken stupor. She left all the evidence of murder.

"She couldn't get back upstairs with you then in the library, Mrs. Caldwell—so she tried to get in the back way and run upstairs into Barnes, who was out looking around having heard some sort of disturbance. She made him promise under penalty of death that whatever happened he would never tell of having seen her. Then she hid in the butler's pantry, not daring to attempt either the front or the back stairs with you there in the hall and suddenly got an idea to pin your room.



"When you went out to find Biddy was her chance to get back. She didn't expect the murder to be discovered until the next morning. When it was found out and you all rushed in there, she must have been a surprised lady to find it all fixed up for suicide! If she hadn't immediately noticed that the revolver was in the right hand!

"Now—one more thing. His conscience troubled him and he was terribly afraid after your confession. Mrs. Caldwell, that you would be accused of the crime. He decided to tell me all he knew. Somehow, Miss Lydia found out he was about to spill the beans, so he had to be done away with, and in such a manner as to further involve her sister-in-law. So the gun was taken from your room, and used to silence him, and Sheriff gave a little chuckle—"it was too late! He'd had no chance to tell me, but he had told Zizzi" Rose here, and I went and understood now the meaning of her with that she "hadn't told the sheriff." I, too, had no wonder she had been so frightened after the murder of Barnes!

"I had a lot of pieces put together in my picture now—conclusion, Mrs. Sheriff, I needed a few more. I somehow didn't think Miss Lydia would go so far as to try and murder you, Mrs. Caldwell. Probably you were in the habit of talking the sleeping tablets. Which you were about that night, she fixed another envelope of morphine powder with other poison, and put it beside your bed. If you'd taken two, it would probably have killed you outright but as it was, if Judy hadn't been in the room and acted so promptly.

Frankford

Frankford—The Community Hall was filled to overflowing on Friday evening when Trinity Sunday School presented the operetta "Red Riding Hood."

The direction spent three months in getting the children practised for their various roles and all those who took part did exceedingly well. The woodland stage setting along with the pretty costumes made a pleasing picture indeed. The program was as follows:

Act I. Scene—Down in the woodland where the flower children are seen sleeping near the home of Red Riding Hood.

1 Dance of the Fairies.
2 Awake little flowers—Fairies.
3 Old is the oak—Woodmen
4 Morning song—Red Riding Hood and Fairies.
5 Alone she journeys—Mother and Fairies.

Act II. Scene—Midday in the forest beside a small house in the woodcutter's rendezvous.

1 See to the flowers—Fairies
2 "Come let us weave a garland"—Red Riding Hood and Fairies.
3 In the meadow—Red Riding Hood.
4 In the dim old forest—Fairies and woodmen.
5 Old is the oak—Woodmen.
6 Come with me—Fairies.

Act III. Scene—Interior of grandmother's cottage and surrounding woodland.

1 Song of the grandmother — Grandmother.
2 Charm of the Fairies—Fairies.
3 Grandmother's lament—Grandmother and Fairies.
4 Finale—Song of the Awakening —Entire cast.

Cast of characters:

Red Riding Hood Corinne Lawrence. The Wolf, Hugh Burkitt; Mother, Doris Saddlge; Grandmother, Helena Frost; John, Harry Mitt; Fairies, Joan Howard, Lucy Green, Marjorie Green, Betty Lawrence, Erma Smith, Marjorie Morris; Flower children, Jean Morris, Audrey Smith, Doreen Burkitt, Virginia Thompson, Valerie Thompson; Woodcutters, Douglas Lawrence, Clayton Howard, Donald Keller, Harold Ferguson, Winston Howard, Lorne Smith, Gerald Thompkins; Ushers, Betty Turner, Reta Burritt; Costumes, Mrs. Gerald Johnson, Lorna Cassidy, Mrs. Morris; Properties, Geo. Fashionable Hats Take Inspiration From Paintings

English Pictures Exhibited in the Paris Louvre Suggest Design and Trim for Season's Millinery

White toyo hat with grosgrain-covered brim in navy and veil.

Dip-front shantung sailor trimmed with English cowslyside flowers.

Style Whimsies

The old-fashioned large Milan in black, navy, brown and burnt is the hat for wear now with prints, with coat and with suits.

Navy is more popular than black in sheer materials. Other colors in demand are gray, royal blue, cornflower blue and Chinese turquoise.

The dark silk suit is a new and smart type of costume for the women who favors dark clothes for street wear at all seasons.

A gay red and white striped dimity blouse is a wise selection for wear at the moment with the navy wool suit, and later on with the white suit.

A very smart suit for the conservative woman is one of black faille with a short fitted cutaway jacket and worn with a frilly white blouse.

Frocks of eyelet embroidered cottons have such a summery look.

Blue denim, as well as striped denim, is favored for overalls by girl gardeners.

Russian Women Vote

Under the new Russian constitution King Carol has granted the vote to women. Also they will be permitted to sit in the two legislative assemblies and are eligible for the senate. This victory for women represents a 15-year struggle, and is announced by Princess Cantacuzene, president of the Russian Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Well-Dressed Small Girl Wears Washable Silk Frock

By Central Press

THE WELL DRESSED small girl often wears silk—and washable silk is most practical for this sub-sub-deb.

This yellow washable silk crepe dress has smocking and embroidery across a straight shoulder yoke and around the high waistline, puff sleeves and embroidered Peter Pan collar.

Notice the dainty, flower trimmed bonnet and the clever little gloves which make the picture complete.

Paintings Give Inspiration

Paintings of famous English masters are being displayed in the Louvre in Paris, and many milliners are gaining much inspiration for their models therefrom.

The lovely model shown right is strongly influenced by a Gainsborough portrait in this showing. Jeanne Orts also created this chapeau, a dip-front shantung sailor trimmed with typically English countryside flowers and ribbon.

For motoring, for the cruise and almost every other form of travel in summertime, the turban is comfortable and useful. Deftly draped fabric turbans were not so popular during the spring, when women were primarily interested in straws after a season of felts, furs and fabrics.

Now In Demand

But the summer turban in chiffon, foulard, sheer jerseys and ribbon are fresh and new looks as well as smart and practical and are much in demand.

Then there is the tubable toppie—made of linen and piques and other washable materials. Slide fasteners make some of the newest models practicable for pressing. They are shown in the brimmed, off-the-face styles that are the season's pets, with ribbon trims, frequently with long streamers.

How Homeopaths Treat Gall Bladder Disease

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I SAID YESTERDAY that I had been studying some articles in a homeopathic medical journal and found them very little different from those of the regular profession. Because of wide interest in it, I take the liberty of quoting from an article on the treatment of gall bladder disease.

It is said that 50 per cent of those in acute ill suffer with some trouble with the gall bladder, either mild inflammation or stones. Furthermore, it appears that these cases are probably increasing numerically. It is suggested that the change is due to giving up Dobbin's mare and the horse and buggy for the present day motor car. This lack of exercise and loss of daily walking is probably responsible for a sluggish digestive tract, which leads to gall bladder infection. Most of these patients are treated by diet and medicines rather than by operation.

Diet is considered to be very important. A patient with a mild gall bladder infection, just enough to give slight pain and slight dyspeptic symptoms, must be sitting for now and all time to eliminate such foods from his diet as are rich in fat—pork, nuts, cream, liver, eggs, ice cream, chocolate, sweetbreads, pastry, fat, fried fried foods and gravies. The patients themselves eventually learn that these foods disagree with them, but by that time the damage has taken place.

Exercise: Regular and reasonable exercise is used in all cases.

Helpful Medicines

In the way of medicines, it is recommended that a small amount, 30 grains, of salts, such as Glauber's sulphate and magnesium sulphate in water, should be taken before breakfast, as this has the effect of draining or emptying the gall bladder.

Bile itself is the best substance to cause the flow of bile, and there are a number of bile tablets which may be obtained which are taken in the morning or throughout the day.

The object of this treatment is, in the first place, to keep the intestines empty so that absorption of germs and poisons does not take place, because all the germs absorbed from the intestines are taken directly to the liver and excreted in the bile. If the germs are living and are allowed to remain in the gall bladder they will attach themselves to the mucous membrane of the wall and result in a catarrhal inflammation.

The second object of this treatment is to keep the gall bladder emptied so such stasis will not occur.

A very large number of mild cases of this kind do well on this routine and avoid operation.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

F. B.: "Will you kindly advise me whether there is any way to master the desire for alcohol by diet? And what could be substituted for alcohol?"

Answer: There is no diet which will have any effect on alcoholism and there is no substitute for alcohol. It is a psychological problem.

How Heroes Influence Young Folk

Jefferson Is Quoted on Effect of Fine Character

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

THOMAS JEFFERSON once wrote to his young grandson:

"When I recollect that at 14 years of age, the whole career and direction of myself was thrown on myself entirely, without a relation or friend qualified to advise or guide me, I recollect the various sorts of bad company with which I was associated from time to time, I am astonished that I did not turn off with some of them, and become as worthless to society as they were. I had the good fortune to have associated very dearly with some characters of very high standing, and to feel the incessant wish that I could become what they were. Under temptations and difficulties, I would ask myself what would Dr. Small, Mr. Wythe, Peyton Randolph do in this situation? What course in it will insure me there approbation? I am certain that this mode of deciding on my conduct tended more to its correctness than any reasoning powers I possessed. Knowing the even and dignified line they pursued, I could never doubt for a moment which of two courses would be in character for them."

Hundreds reading this column could testify, as did Thomas Jefferson, that they were helped to strive to do right and live worthily because of one or several persons whose ideals and habits they admired. Maybe it was one or both parents, a grandparent, uncle, aunt, teacher, club leader, friend. And that person or those persons most influential in the shaping of your moral life might have passed away long since. They live in you and you respond to them in your memory and imagination. When you were facing a trying moral decision you, like Thomas Jefferson, asked yourself what this or that person would do in your place. So it will happen with our children.

Emotion Is Guide

Notice that Thomas Jefferson—and his was one of the keenest minds of his time, about the most widely-read—said it was not reason so much as emotion by which his life in early youth was guided. It was the feelings associated with the few persons he looked up to and admired.

Several months ago I heard Dr. Bernard Clausen, that great preacher of Pittsburgh who has inspired so many young men and women to choose to strive to live on a loftier plane.

It is not reasoning about consequences, he said, but the vivid recall of the person or persons looked up to with all the emotions which accompany this recall that will help most in a moment of moral trial.

FAITHFUL EXERCISES WILL REMOVE UNDESIRABLE FAT FROM THE BODY

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

BEWARE THE vanishing waistline and the broad beam. They will make you look old before your time as nothing else can. Your arms may be lovely, your legs well proportioned, and you may not really weigh much more than you should to have a fine figure. But if those insidious pounds have settled on your diaphragm and buttocks you will look and feel too fat for comfort.

The thing to do is get rid of that extra fat the minute it appears. If you let yourself go for ages, then the reconstruction period will be longer, harder and much more drastic. So concentrate on getting rid of that fatty tissue while it is still in the flabby stage. When it gets to be hard, firm fat, it will be a real job to trim yourself down. Here is an exellent exercise for the diaphragm. And it won't leave you tuckered out, either. It is called the camel exercise, because you humpy your back. Hold your head up and humpy your back. Then sway your body forward with your chest low and leading. Next flatten your back with your chest following. Repeat this until it becomes all one continuous wave-like movement. It is also swell for getting the kinks out of your back and between the shoulder blades.

Go Across Room and Back

The exercise for the buttocks it just as beneficial as a good going over by a Swedish masseuse. Sit on the floor with your legs stretched out before you. Then start to progress across the room. "Walk" with your hands, flexing your body back and forth and from side to side. Keep upright while doing this by using your hands and arms as supports. This is rather difficult at first and won't feel too good, but it certainly hits the right spot.

Start out by going across the room and back. Then as you get a little more hardened to the exercise you can do it five times both ways.

If you feel that to really get in shape you should also do something about your stomach as well as your thighs and hips, here's a corker for a lying-down stomach flattener. Lie on your back, having first removed any tight clothes, girdle or corset. Put a big book, a large telephone directory or encyclopedia will do, on your tummy. If you want to be really theatrical you can get a bag of sand that weighs about five pounds. Lift the weight up and down with your stomach muscles. Push firmly and feel the weight rising and falling from your exertions. Start out by doing this about fifty times. You'll find that this is also very good for sluggish intestines. So you'll end by feeling as young as you look after following these exercises.

Just Thirty-Five Cents

By PEARL HOLLOWAY

Lena Burns recently appointed social service secretary, looked up with interest. It was unusual for anyone to knock on the door here.

It came again, a short, indecisive rap. Timidity was not customary in the town's workers. Curiously overcame her. "Come in," she called, wondering what type of appeal would be made this time.

The knob turned. A tiny crack resulted. Little by little the crack widened. A head appeared, a battered brown derby, tipped far back, revealed thin brown hair plastered over a low forehead. Faded blue eyes were almost hidden by thick glasses. Finally, a man limped into the room, removing his hat and toying with it nervously as he approached the desk. His glance wandered from the stenographer to the secretary. He bowed several times and cleared his throat. "Could I," he began tremulously, "could I—" and then with great effort, "could I borrow thirty-five cents?"

She smiled unofficially. "Such a request is out of the ordinary," she remarked, ignoring the stenographer. "Have you really your name?"

"Bill Sykes, ma'am" he answered, still twirling his hat and bowling. "and I ain't never had to ask for nothing before."

The stenographer coughed warningly. Lena reached for her own pause. Until that day she decided, handing her the change.

He bowed still more profoundly. "I don't know how to thank you, ma'am," he said. "I'll pay it back honest man, and I'll pay you back. I swear I will."

Some days later Bill Sykes put some grime on the secretary's desk with the cheerful announcement, "I brung back your money."

All Lena's kindly humanity showed in her smile, a faith that was intensified as he broke out with: "Could you—would you—do you know where I could get a job?

With her most professional manner she returned to the file, produced a card and gave minute directions for reaching the employment agency.

"Ye know were more like Bill Sykes," Lena said to herself some mornings later as she scrubbed the kitchen table preparatory to stocking it for the day's demands. "It would be easier to carry on."

Even Bill Sykes wasn't welcome at the employment office.

"Good morning," he apologized, "but thought I'd drop in and see—"

"What about the job?" she interrupted, but there was no answering powder and brush.

"Well, I'm on it," his glance fell. "Well, I—you see—" he floundered, "I only worked one day, ma'am Burns—"

"Well, what do you want now?" Steel was creeping into Lena's mildness.

He drew nearer. "Could you—could you lend thirty-five cents again?"

"Again?" Miss Burns faced him squarely. "Say, this isn't a 'loan office.' By this time she had lost her patience with Bill Sykes. "Get out!" she ordered. "Go on back to your bootlegger and stop loafing people money occasionally, but there's a limit to human endurance. She accompanied him, actually for a moment or so, and then she thought better of the decision. "All right," she said, "what do you need it for?" She looked around, but Bill Sykes had gone.

A week went by. Miss Burns was checking up on some of the people for whom she had found jobs.

"No," the clerk said. "Sykes don't work here any more. In fact, he don't work nowhere. He's dead. Got hit by a truck last Tuesday morning.

Say, your name don't happen to be Lena Burns, does it?

"Yes, I'm Miss Burns."

"Well, now! I'm right glad I thought to ask. I helped take Sykes to the hospital and on the way up he told me to have Lena Burns call Sunset 4600, whatever number that is. "No, ma'am, I don't know what for. Just got call that number, then when we got to the hospital I see he was dead."

Miss Burns dialled the number.

NEW TIRE SENSATION

REDUCES DANGER OF SKIDDING AS NEVER BEFORE... Here's the evidence.

DON'T LET THIS HAPPEN TO YOU.

READ THE REPORT—
from World's Largest Independent Testing Laboratory

BOTH regular, and also the gum-dipped tires of the six largest tire manufacturers were submitted to a series of exhaustive road tests made over a five months' period by us, to determine their resistance to skidding and wear, with the following results:

"ANTI-SKID.—The new Goodrich Silvertown with the Life-Saver Tread gave greater skid resistance than either tire tested, including those tires listed up to 40% higher in price.

"MILEAGE.—The Goodrich Silvertown gave more non-skid mileage than any of the other tires tested in its own price range—averaged 19.1% more miles before the tires were smooth."

NO ARCH OF STEEL BUT SPIRIT QUEST IN ARCH MASONRY

Col. W. N. Ponton in Review of Fraternal Correspondence Before Masonic Grand Chapter Speaks of Coverage Between God and Man and of Fraternal Relations of Races.

In the forward of his report to the Grand Chapter of Masonry, held at Kingston, Most Excellent Bro. Col. W. N. Ponton, chairman of the Committee on Fraternal Correspondence, Reviews and is Past Grand Z of the order, commented:

Ours is not an arch of steel composed of Companions with glistening happiness and no material adventure, but rather an organism, at once peaceful and spiritual, of men chosen of the true, who have faith in one another because they have faith in the great Covenant Maker, and who are bend upon the adventurous quest of a noble fidelity to God and men which is symbolized in the bow set in the cloud, Fides et Fiducia. "And God said, this is the token of the covenant which I make between Me and you and every living thing that is with you, for perpetual generations; I do set My bow in the cloud and it shall be for a token of a covenant between Me and the earth. And it shall come to pas when I bring a cloud over the earth that the bow shall be seen in the cloud."

Triumphal arch that fills the sky

When storms prepare to part,
I ask no proud philosophy
To teach me what does art.
Still room as to my childhood sight

Some midway station given.
For angel spirits to alight
Between the earth and Heaven.

But the Covenant is also a pledge of the Heavenly care and concern; so let us enjoy the assurance of this Holy Pledge, let us share the comfort of the Covenant and find strength and fellowship in eating together that bread promised in the token of the arch, that seed-time and harvest shall not cease," and in the strength of that bread let us affirm our resolution to stand together holding the line against the ravaging wreckers of our civilization.

"Herein 'shall thou come, but no further; and here shall thy proud wave be stayed."

In another place the Past Grand Z says:

In this year's journeying through the fertile fields of sister jurisdictions we have failed to reach a few of our colleagues and friends, but if spared to do so another year we will do our double duty within the Triangle and Square, and remember simply say that the Condition of Neighbor Masonry justifiable allows us all, in the fulness of our hearts, to say to one another "be of good cheer" may we not call to one another "Admis Fidelis," and wish to each other as linked Companions in good words, good will and good work the old wish and benediction of three thousand years ago heard from Alexander and the Nile.

"May God give you all good pure, sweet and pleasant things, the gifts of Heaven, the products of earth, stability, serenity, equanimity, health, strength, power, love and all joy of life."

Cubs Move Into Second Place; Feller Hurls Fifth Victory

DiMaggio and Medwick Class Of Their Respective Leagues When it Comes to Hitting Pill

Dimag Leads American With .431 And Ducky Tops National With .426

CUBS NOW SECOND

Hubbell of Giants Beaten For First Time This Season

(By Sid Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Joe DiMaggio and Ducky Medwick are on the warpath again and these days you get less and less argument over the merits of the Yankee Clipper and the Cub Slugger Gang's free wheeling wallop-er.

Both of them got away to slow starts this season, Ducky Wucky had a pain in his back. That was bombago. Joe had a pain in his pocketbook. That was a holdout. But now that they're back again the fireworks are popping.

Much is a complete dose of pitcher's poison all wrapped up and ready to go. And from the looks of things they've picked up right where they left off last year.

Somehow, it seems natural to see each leading his league in batting. DiMag with a neat .431 mark, and Ducky with a just-classy .426. And just like last year, you never can tell when either one of them is going to pick the next pitch to break up a ball game.

Yesterday the Yankees were having a tough time of it with the Louis Browns in the fifth frame, Knocked out of Buck Newsom's pet pitches out of the box, and the Yanks were away to first base. Tariff Gomez and Johnny Murphy couldn't hold the Brownies. So DiMag went in there again in the eighth, helped himself to another one of Brock's high hard ones with two mates on base, and parked it in the bleachers. Result: Yankees 21, Brownies 7.

Ducky Smote Homer

Meantime, Medwick was going to work in Brooklyn. He contributed a homer and scored four of the runs that gave the Cuc Hoosse a 12-4 decision for their fifth straight win. Don Gutteridge played the part of the No. 1 catcher, however, hitting a homer and a single to drive in five runs.

This boosted the Chatfield into the .300 class for the first time this season, deadlocked with Chicinnati Reds, who were rained out in Philadelphia, and Boston Bees, whose slim runner gave up a measly five hits in 14 innings to win a long distance 2-1 decision over Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pirates dropped to third place by this attack, and Chicago Cubs climbed back to second by topping the Giants 4-2. Carl Hubbell and Larry French hooked up in a tight pitching duel until the eighth when Mel Ott made a two-base error to allow Gabby Hartnett to score all the way from second. It was Hubbell's first setback of the year.

Cleveland's Bobby Feller slipped a six-hitter across on the Athletics and the Indians clicked for a 5-0 victory over Connie Mack's lowly outfit. Wes Ferrell not only pitched six-hit ball, but banged out a homer, himself, to pace the Senators to a 5-1 victory over the tottering Tigers. The Red Sox and White Sox were rained out in Chicago.

Sullivan Shutout Syracuse With Six Hits to Win 4-0

(By The Associated Press)

If their big guns don't start booming soon those Newark Bears are liable to find themselves right out of the International League lead.

The Bears, who are usually far in front of the field that you need a telescope to find the runner-ups, are just two games in front of Baltimore Orioles after having taken their third straight licking from Rochester Red Wings 1-0, yesterday.

Not only were they shut out but it was the fourth successive defeat for the champions—more games than they've won in a row in two seasons. The reason for all this woe is a sudden attack of the heavy artillery. After averaging eight runs a game for the first 14, the Bears have been able to get only slightly better than two a game in their last four.

The Orioles drubbed Montreal 9-4, as they swept the three-game series from the Royals. Orville Jorgens went the route for the Birds in the opener, allowing seven hits in the other games which saw Toronto Maple Leafs shut Syracuse 4-0, and Buffalo whip Jersey City 16-4.

Bobbyae Joe Sullivan stopped the Syracusans with six hits and fanned five in the second tussle. The Leafs took fifth place ahead of Jersey City.

Harris gave up eight hits, including a homer by long Tom Winsett, to register his fourth victory. Winsett, but his Bisons teammates reached Jersey Bumpus for only six hits handily. Woody Abernathy and Greg Mulleavy clouted four-baggers for the Bisons.

GRAND DAME IS SECOND CHOICE TO WIN GUINEAS

Hamilton Entry Right Behind Bunty Lawless in Favoritism

HAS EARLY FOOT

Started Six Times Last Year And Never Out of Money

By Foster Barclay
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 19 —(CP)— Despite the edge in class of fillies in the spring and back them to the fall, a black three-year-old —Grand Dame—ranks not far behind the public's choice in the $7,500 renewal of the King's Plate here Saturday.

Victories by fillies have been few since the classic was first run in 1860. Nineteen years ago Bunty Lawless' filly Gainsborough won Maternal Pride in 1934. She won the mile-and-a-quarter classic for H. S. Wilson and returned the largest prize ever offered for the Plate victor—$193.35 for $2.

The last filly to win came in 1923 when Sally Cruise carried home on top the famed black and yellow colors of T. P. Hodgson of Waterloo, Ont. Sally Ruler was a maiden before the race, yet she showed soundly the best colts and geldings eligible for the event.

Well Liked by Experts

Experts analyzing the speed and classics of Grand Dame, owned by C. H. Mentzie of Hamilton consider she can't be overlooked in Saturday's thoroughbred test. Shelby Lawless, Willie Morrissey's 2-1 favorite, she has proved herself necessary—speed, endurance, gameness. Pat Remillard, Canada's premier jockey, as her rider.

Grand Dame's two-year-old record was established when "Sally" in the post six times and did not run out of the money. In those six races, was second twice and third once. She failed, however, to win any of the juvenile fillies' events.

The filly displayed lots of early footing as she stole away over a route. In the Mrs. Orpen $5,000 Cup and Saucer, a 1937 preview of Saturday's King's Plate, Grand Dame finished 2nd, beaten by H. C. Blatch's Kingsmere, the first dispelled doubts she could hold out the mile distance.

No Brilliant Workouts

Railbirds scouting early morning performances of the fillies were startled by any brilliant workout times. That hasn't been the case as Grand Dame never has showed an inclination to flash. Her early conditioning was done at Hamilton and since Hendrie shifted his stable to Thorncliffe, trainer Harry McDonald has been content to send her out for mere breezes.

She was tested over three-quarters on a mile yesterday in 1:18. She showed a desire to run, but Pat Remillard subdued instructions and held her under wraps all the way. It was considered future workouts would be held to conditioning trials with an outside chance she would be tested in the Plate route before the race.

Chance in Sweeps Still 1000 to One For Canadian Holders

Toronto, May 19 (CP)—The 300,000-odd Canadians holding tickets realized may as well know what their chances are of taking down a cash prize next week in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes on the Epsom Derby. Each ticket-holder has more than one chance in 1,000.

Based on the assumption Canadians have invested more than $1,000,000 in the derby sweep, as they did last March in the Grand National Steeplechase gamble, it may be expected about that amount will return to Canada in prize money. But, 600,000 have invested and less than 300 will collect.

Statisticians who have studied the matter note further that the past performance charts show about half the lucky 300 with $500 consolation prizes, the other 100 draw terms, netting them $2,000 unless the horse finishes first, second or third in which case the winnings reach $150,000, $75,000 and $40,000.

Total world sale of Irish Sweep tickets in March was $13,720,010 and the prize money amounted to $6,057,500. Figures may be much higher by next week when the draw is made May 20th and finished at Dublin for the June 1 Derby—but the odds against you are the same—1,000 to 1.

Yesterday's Stars

Jim Turner, Bees—Held Pirates to five hits for 14 innings, fanning eight and walking only one for victory.

Joe DiMaggio, Yankees—Hit two homers and single, driving in five runs in 11-7 win over Browns.

Don Gutteridge, Cardinals —His homer and single drove in five runs in 12-4 victory over Dodgers.

Wes Ferrell, Senators—Held Tigers to six hits, fanning six, and hit homer for his win.

Charley Root, Cubs—Retired six batters in order in relief role to save 4-2 decision over Giants.

Only recently did I stress the importance of the left hand having a firm hold on the club with the left little finger.

I tried to point out the advantages in the way of power and accuracy, and more particularly control, that are to be had from this part of the grip. I even called it the "magic ring", a ring that will work wonders for any player.

And now through the mail comes a letter from a player who says that a very prominent golf adviser informs him, "If the fingers of the left hand maintain a firm hold, much length may be added to the back swing by allowing the fingers to open without losing control of the club." To me this statement is typical golf advice and it affords an insight into the source of many troubles. Just read it over a few times and try to get the meaning of it.

In the first place it is self-contradictory. In the second place it is contrary to fact, a fact that you can demonstrate yourself—a loosing of fingers to open without losing control of the club."

Here is how you can demonstrate the impracticability of loosening your fingers. Just place the closed hand on the floor and take a firm hold on the shaft with your left little fingers. Then loosen this grip and tighten it again. In almost every case there will be quite a change in the position of the clubhead. It takes only a degree or two of change to send the ball off line and by doing the same thing during your swing you change many degrees.

Scotty McDougall Wins Bout When Dunlop is Disqualified For Using Illegal Tactics

Previous to Abrupt Ending Both Wrestlers Had Won a Fall

HOLD BATTLE ROYAL

John Katan Failed to Put in Appearance For Main Bout

General bedlam broke with human pent-up fury as fans stormed the ring at the Hume Arena last evening in protest of the tactics employed by "Bunny" Dunlop, the Cleveland mat villain, who was ultimately disqualified in the main bout and the people's favourite, Scotty McDougall declared winner over the said murderous attacks ever seen in a local ring. To incite the ire of the fans, however, something new to the wrestling game in Canada was introduced in the absence of John Katan, when a "battle royal", with five wrestlers swinging with all they had, was fought to determine the finalists of the show. Dunlop and McDougall were declared the lucky winners of this general free-for-all, that had some 20 persons on it, and ended in a frenzied mood throughout.

In the final bout between Dunlop and McDougall, the former reverted to every illegal practice known to the wrestling game, including biting, kicking and finally applying strangle holds on McDougall's eyes, leaving the veteran Scot temporarily blind. But referee Cliff Paus finally held up his hand in token of victory after each had won a previous fall. The main bout opened with an irritated fan hurling a bottle into the ring, directed apparently at Dunlop, but barely missing the McDougall head. Dunlop continued unorthodox methods, of wrestling and until he managed to bind McDougall by rubbing tape over his eyes until Referee Bordeman was an easy victim for a press. Although Dunlop endeavoured to continue his operations, McDougall gained the aggressive hand with a series of flying mares, and finally won the second round with an inside figure four leglock, which left Dunlop helpless on the mat.

Dunlop Disqualified

In the third and final round fans repeatedly stamped their disapproval of such tactics as were employed by Dunlop and at one time an irritated fan approached the ring and tore Dunlop's trunks badly, As he endeavoured to expose the seclusion of the bodies for sign substance, that was being applied to McDougall's arms. After repeated warnings from referee Paus and as fans stormed into the ring and attacked Dunlop, the official declared Dunlop disqualified and awarded the match. Police formed a cordon around the ring and escorted Dunlop to the dressing room, as the disgruntled fans howled and voiced their displeasure.

In the semi-final bout Dunlop and Chief Lynx, the Native Sons Indian, an unmerciful beating, employing all of his most practised illegal tactics to ultimately win with an armlock and strangle hold. Indian Chief was literally beaten into submission. In the opening bout Otto Van Berg, ermany, had little trouble disposing of "Flash" Patterson.

The latter was still three is nothing new under the sun, but a new wrinkle" has introduced at the Arena last night when all five wrestlers to appear were tossed in a common ring in what is generally termed as a "battle royal" prior to the main bout. Generally speaking the grapplers gangled on one poor unfortunate, with Patterson being the first victim, when he was kicked bodily out of the ring by McDougall. Chief Lynx was the next victim, by McDougall and Dunlop gave the "reckkin" the works. Otto Van Berg, the little German, failed to evade his heavier opponents, but was hurled bodily from the seat of activities, leaving Dunlop and McDougall to meet in the final bout. The "battle royal" started with public favor as it was short, but packed plenty of action. Boxing will be featured on the Hume Arena on Friday night.

London, May 19.—(CP)—Chuck full of confidence and representing the greatest muster of talent and experience in years, the British Walker Cup team has gone into serious training for its test against the United States amateur golfers at St. Andrews June 3 and 4.

Though British teams have gone down to defeat with disheartening regularity since the competition was inaugurated in 1922, there is growing belief here the succession of failures is at an end.

Notwithstanding the reputed strength of the U.S. team, there isn't the semblance of the usual defeatist complex. Britain's forces will enter the cup matches rated even money choice where usually they have been on wrong end of odds as high as 5-1.

Most of the new-found confidence revolves around the discovery of 18-year-old Jimmy Bruen, the youthful Irishman whose achievements are being sung in the boldest superlatives. Some go as far as to compare the belting youth, almost six feet tall and weighing 185 pounds, with the famous Bobby Jones.

Bruen won his place on the team with a brilliant performance in the Walker Cup trials earlier this month. Playing with the coolness of a veteran the youngster gave Cecil Ambrose, Canadian champion, a beating 6 and 5.

Ambrose's county final has broken the hearts of many of the world's best—one of his worst lapses. He covered the 72-hole test in 282 and included a 68-round. Just a stroke off the all-time course record.

EIGHT BOUTS ON FEATURE CARD

Mark Storms, Local Boxer And Semple Will be in Main Bout

Eight sparkling bouts featuring a main attraction between Mark Storms, Belleville's hard-hitting, two time lightweight versus "Kidds" Semple, the pride of the Air Force, will open the fight season at the Hume arena on Friday night.

Storms needs no introduction to a local fight gallery, having fought his way to the top ranks of amateur ranks throughout Eastern Ontario, where he is ranked as the leading battler at his weight. Semple won the R. C. A. F. title at Ottawa and is a worthy opponent, however. The semi-final bout brings Johnny Ellis, Trenton, and Bob Houde, the outstanding Oshawa lightweight together, while two other Belleville boxers are included on the program, Shorty Fisher and Ross McKenna. There are eight bouts in all.

The complete card for Friday night includes:

126 lbs.—Ceo. Baker, Trenton vs. Bobb Syr, Oshawa.

126 lbs.—Jos Miller, Trenton vs. Chris Mason, Oshawa.

135 lbs.—Harry Mosher, Trenton, vs. Tom Bowler, Oshawa.

145 lbs.—Bob White, Trenton, vs. 'Shorty' Fisher, Belleville.

135 lbs.—Ross McKenna, Belleville vs. Ed Slater, Trenton.

135 lbs.—Bill Ross, Oshawa vs. Ross Brummell, Trenton.

Semi-final—Jonnny Ellis vs. Bob Houde.

Main bout—Mark Storms vs. Kidds Semple.

Referee—Henry Duganais, Ottawa.

Judges—Bert Wells and Dan Cowley.

Russia Stumbling Block

The Premier's declaration came as Italian efforts to break up France's alliance with Soviet Russia had imposed formidable obstacles to efforts for a Franco-Italian accord.

Conversations for such an agreement began in Rome before Chancellor Hitler's visit to Italy May 3, were suspended during that visit and have not been resumed.

Today Daladier uttered this warning:

"Whatever the circumstances France is capable of assuring alone the inviolability of her frontiers and that of her empire, of safeguarding the independence and integrity of her territory against all attempts at violence."

Won't Meet Concessions

Political informants said that in the face of French efforts to reassure the Rome talks Italy is demanding concessions which are not likely to make.

The direct cause of the break in the government conversations is said to shipment of arms through France to government Spain. Storm of diplomatic technicalities, Italy seems to have demanded that France choose between Italy and Russia.

Russia has added pressure for permission to send Russian arms through France into government Spain. Diplomatic sources say she had threatened to cut the Anglo-French bloc in European politics unless such permission is granted.

Should France choose friendship with Russia and thereby cause a breakdown in the Italo-French phase of the plan for a general European settlement, Great Britain might have to proceed independently.

There then would be open a path for Great Britain alone to reach an agreement with Germany. So far the Franco-Russian alliance has been a particular barrier to British efforts to get Germany into a peace accord.

Russia May Pull Out

Should France renounce the Russian alliance, it would mean Soviet absence from western European affairs and possibly bring about an Italian-German - British - French pact.

Some observers pointed out, however, a simultaneous move by Premier Daladier to increase Italian influence in French Tunisia might cause any such wish to fail, by strengthening Anglo-French consideration for protection of their Mediterranean communications.

French circles suggested that in exchange for Italian support in the annexation of Austria and future action in Czechoslovakia, Hitler had promised to back Mussolini's desires for a north African empire.

France's centers yesterday redoubled her native North African troops were considered a strategic counter-move. It is thought possible that, as a result, Mussolini might feel it necessary to raise native troops himself, breaking a promise he made in the recent Anglo-Italian agreement.

Statement Given

In what appeared to be an allusion to reported German and Italian efforts to separate France and Great Britain over the Spanish question, Daladier declared:

"The London conversations (of April 28-29) reinforced the Franco-British entente—an entente which threatens nobody, which on the contrary is a menace toward European peace.

"For several days rumors, not at all disinterested, have been propagated across our country." Here he obviously referred to the arrest yesterday of nine bourse operators accused of spreading rumors of an impending international crisis which were blamed for a slump in French government bonds.

"I thought the government's duty was to accomplish silently its task of defending the fatherland and peace," Daladier continued. "But things are happening as if someone wished to start an offensive of false news in our country.

"First it was announced such and such a country had fortified a demilitarized zone which was false. Then it was insinuated that France had received an ultimatum—which also was false."

He said the government sought to spare French public opinion from such disturbances and those who serve obscure, unadmitted interests will be struck by law."

a large part of the city in hand-to-hand street fighting and had possession of both the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow Railway Stations.

Chaos Before Defeat

With reinforcements arriving hourly, the Japanese forecast that the entire city would be theirs before dawn. Chinese dispatches reported spreading to the south suburbs, here Chinese "dare to die" units were concentrated in their efforts to enable the main Chinese forces to withdraw southward and escape annihilation.

Japanese troops advancing northward along the Tientsin-Pukow railway still were 25 miles south of Suchow, leaving a wide gap through which the Chinese might escape.

'Divine' Wind Blows.

Japanese forces attacking Chihshan, a fortified hill northwest of Suchow, reported a "divine wind" blowing in the direction of the Chinese forces helped the Nipponese advance. The wind blew sand in the faces of the defenders, making it almost impossible for them to aim accurately, the Japanese said.

portant territories in the country. It would adversely affect its freight and steamship business through the closing of stations and the transfer of all passenger business to the Canadian National.

Conflicting Interests

Mr. Armstrong told the committee that distinct and conflicting interests of the two railways make for delay when they attempt to co-operate in effecting economies. He insisted, however, that the Canadian Pacific had done everything in its power to carry out the provisions of the Act of 1933 which directed the railways to co-operate.

Senator Lorden, Lorand (Con., La Salle), a former director of the Canadian National, asked the C.P.R. official whether the Canadian National had not entered loading arrangements from Quebec to Montreal and Montreal to Toronto on the understanding they would be extended west of Toronto.

Agrees C.N.R. Gave Up More.

The senator said in these agreements the C. N. gave up more than it received and withdrew from Quebec City entirely.

Mr. Armstrong said that was a fair statement of the C. N. position. But he added that in exchange for the C. N. withdrawals from Quebec the C.P.R. had withdrawn all its passenger business between Ottawa, near Toronto, and Glen Tay, near Smith's Falls, Ont. There were no C.P.R. passenger trains now operating through Oshawa, Bowmanville, Trenton and Belleville.

TAXING INCOME

comparatively little revenue in New Brunswick and he was in favor of the Dominion collecting it, even though he felt the Dominion had invaded the jurisdiction of the provinces.

J. M. Stewart, commission counsel, suggested the Dominion was still actually paying out about as much in war debt charges and was pensions as it was received from the income tax.

He noted, too, that the Dominion's own expenditures on duties assigned it under the British North America Act had increased at least proportionately to those of the provinces.

Commissioner John W. Defoe suggested the Dominion would be less able to absorb any more of the cost of social services, as suggested, if it turned over part of the income tax now. The great wealth concentrated in Ontario and Quebec could only be reached through application of the income tax, he said. Mr. Jones emphasized New Brunswick was not coming before the commission as a bankrupt, but it had been able to carry on only through its frugality, in denying its people services provided in the other provinces.

Realizes Dream of Years In Returning to Belleville

Mr. Gordon Robertson, Lawyer of London Will Practise His Profession Here

Former member of Crerar, Bells, Robertson and Harrison, one of Western Ontario's outstanding legal firms, Mr. Gordon Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Robertson of this city, has returned to his native city, where he has taken up residence at 91 George Street.

Dream is Realized

"I have now realized a dream I have long cherished," Mr. Robertson stated today. "For a number of years I have thought of the day when I would return to my native city of Belleville, and practise my profession among the people with whom I grew up. This came to pass in real realization last November when arrangements for my withdrawal from my firm in London were made."

Formal announcement of definite plans for arrangement for the practice of law here will be made in the near future, Mr. Robertson added, "although in all probability it will be early autumn before I am definitely settled."

Mr. Robertson is, as was said before, a son of Mr. Stewart Robertson, remaining member of the old established Belleville firm of Quick and Robertson, whose name for the past forty years has been a household one in this city and its environs.

Robertson also gained a valuable insight into the workings of English legal machinery, during his tenure of connection with them.

With Mrs. Robertson, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Young, Windsor, Ont., and children, Catherine Ann and James Stewart, the popular former Belleville boy has moved to his native city, where he has taken up residence at 91 George Street.

A wise man once said there are two ways to save money: "Increase your income, or cut down your outgo."

Much as we'd like to, few of us can regulate the amount of money we take in each week... But all of us have control over what we spend. And many a family bank account has been made possible by CAREFUL SPENDING.

That's why it will pay you to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Day after day they show you where to get the things you need . . . where to get the fullest dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

A careful reading of the advertisements . . . today, tomorrow, and every day after . . . will help you to do something that we'd all like to do:

BUY WHAT YOU WANT — AND HAVE MONEY LEFT OVER!

To the Victors, the Spoils

Playing grand golf in a heavy rain on his last tour of the course, Jimmy Hines won the annual Metropolitan open golf championship in New York by posting a 72-hole score of 287. It was prize giving time when the photographer snapped this picture of the champion walked in on the scenes and caught Sam Snead, who finished second, casting an anxious eye over the Hines' shoulder at the winner's cheque. LEFT to RIGHT, Snead, Hines, Ralph Guldahl, who took third money, and Stewart Mack, chairman of the committee in charge.

Two-Ton Tony Lands One

Here's how Tony Galento, quaint character of the ring, looks in action. Tony's fighting style is to weave in, giving and taking blows, and "may the best man last the longest." Walla Mann, a supposedly promising heavyweight, is his opponent and recipient of a crushing left to the chin here. He lasted two minutes and a half of the second round against the Jersey elbow-bender.

King of the Speedways

We present the man who will be driving car No. 1 around the Indianapolis Speedway, May 30, when America's leading automobile racers risk their necks against one another for fame, glory and cash. Wilbur Shaw is his name and he's ranked first in the country by the Automobile Association of America. Shaw is another of the team of quite as void of backing as the local ball club has been for some considerable time, but still some thoughtful person smiles along with a better semblance, we'll cling to the name "Orfens".

FAMOUS GRID STAR DIES

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—Hugh Cull, 56, one of Canada's most famous footballers in pre-war years, died in the General Hospital today after being stricken with pneumonia.

Cull was captain of the University of Toronto football team of 1910 that won the Dominion championship against the Tigers at Hamilton.

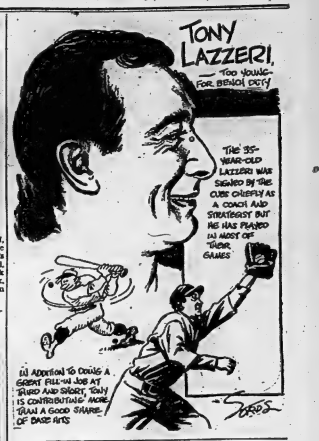
He was an engineer and factory superintendent, and served overseas in the Great War.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Prescott, Ont., May 19 (CP) — Death of three-year-old Robert Gastabury, triplet son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Gastabore of Prescott, was accidental, a coroner's jury decided here yesterday. The child was struck by an automobile May 10 and died a few hours later in a Brockville, Ont., hospital.

BLOOD DONOR RECEIVES CALL FROM PHILADELPHIA

Brantford, Ont., May 19 (CP)—Brantford's noted blood donor Ernest Vanzickle, who recovered from streptococcus viridans, received another call for his services today on behalf of one of the deadly diseases, this time in Philadelphia.



KI-Y Softball

Three games of softball were played in the Juvenile section of the Ki-Y Saturday evening resulting in the Warbirds playing a tie with the West End at, Q.A.S. grounds. At Q.V.S. grounds, however, "Snow White" Bill Bateman and his cigar "Dwarfs" proved much too strong for Jack Durand's St. Mike's boys winning by a 12 to 5 score. At the O.S.D. grounds, however, the "Tuf Benders" did not prove any too tough for Frank Cunningham's O.S.D. Dukes and lost 18 to 12. The game was productive of plenty of free hitting, however, before the "Tuf Benders" were returned victors.

The results of the Ki-Y games played the night previous in the midget series at Q.A.S. grounds the Athletics 12 beat the 11 in a closely contested match while at the Q.M.S. grounds, also in the midget series, the Bluebirds triumphed over the All Babas 14 to 12 in one of the keenest games of the current season.

Perhaps one of the busiest men in this county today is none other than is R. "Sam" Currie, editor and publisher of the Tweed News. Sam is in charge of all sports to be included in the forthcoming Tweed Old Boys' Reunion, the first week in July. Sam tells us he is having two of the senior girls' softball clubs from Toronto appearing at Tweed on July 2, the local Memorial Club will stage motor-bike races to thrill the fans, while the Picton Yacht Club will stage power boat races over the smooth waters of Stoco Lake. Three classes of power boats will race, the 225, 210 and 150 classes. In all Sam is planning a complete coverage of sports to be included each day during the progress of the civic reunion.

Coach Alex Weir's intermediate baseball squad is beginning to take form and somewhat resembles the combine of what a ball club should possess. On the second last night when Lady Weeks, Red Wright and Phil Loft, while the latter saw several new faces with Nick Reid, Tom Collins, Charlie Armitage, Red Johnson, Harold Reid, Cecil Beech and a couple of new comers. The entire garden was rounded up, and the game will play the juniors a practice game tonight.

Just how a boxing card that only provides three local milisters on an eight card bout will appeal to the baseball-crazing patrons is hard to prognosticate. Of course the local promoters had an eye for talent, rather than to include too many local boxers, who are unproven in their ranks of finticuffs. The promoters went far enough afield to complete their Friday night's card at the Rome Arena, bringing five boxers from Ottawa, several from Trenton, the R.C.A.F., and Mark Sierra, Belleville self-punishing, two-fisted fighter, who is rapidly forging to the front as a ranking boxer, although only seventeen years of age. Sierra meets a set-up opponent in "Kiddo" Semple, the pride of the Air Force in the main battle, Shorty Fisher and Ron McKenna are the two other local milisters. The majority of the bouts include either lightweights or welterweights.

Ernie Whelpton, the energetic head of tennis activities up around the Bay of Quinte Country Club, is bringing several ranking tennis players to Belleville from Toronto and Hamilton on the holiday. These players are to give tennis exhibitions at the Country Club for the general edification of those paramountly interested in improving their individual game. Such outstanding and ranking players as Bill Pigott, indoor and intercollegiate champion, Grant "Pinkey" McLean, who played Fred Perry as an amateur a few seasons ago and Maurice Magesson, another

Do you remember when SUNDAY baseball was inaugurated at Washington 20 years ago today. More than 30,000 persons turned out to see the Senators snatch a 12-inning 1-0 decision over Cleveland, the American League entry. Despite tightness of the game, each team made six errors.

There is nothing that will ultimately prove more detrimental to a sporting event than that of overbooking, or perhaps we should say the assignment of sports officials, who read in their assignments. Despite the fact last night's events did not come the ire of the fans and one pound-up feelings rose to a pitch of general boiling, the fact that John Kaiser failed to fulfill his advertised appearance locally actually did real rub way too well with the regular fans. M. is understood Kaiser wrestled in Rochester on Tuesday and then failed to return to Canada in time for engagement in Belleville. The local promoters may not be responsible, as a matter of fact in this kind—they were not, but the failure of these ring celebrities to make their appearance is no way reflects credit before the eyes of the paying public.

Even in the absence of Kaiser the patrons were given to a rare wrestling show, we refer to the "battle royal" that saw five wrestlers battling for existence in the same ring. There wasn't much science to this added attraction, but it packed a wallop. As for the main bout it was regretted to see Al Dunlop employ such pugnacious and unorthodoxy practices. He should not have only been disqualified, but the mentors of the game would have being justified to have withheld his purse. There is no excuse for clowning, but Dunlop overstepped the mark last night.

"Love, Honor and Behave"
"Wise Girl"

A new and attractive team of youngsters makes it appearance today at the Belle Theatre, in "Love, Honor and Behave", the newest Warner Bros. comedy-drama.

The boy is the tall, young ingenue of "Kid Galahad" . . . Wayne Morris. The girl is small and dainty . . . Priscilla Lane whom Warner Bros. enticed away from Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians after her performance in the recent musical hit "Varsity Show". "Love, Honor and Behave" is the story of a boy brought up by a doting mother to become her impressions of a gentleman.

This was not the idea of the girl who had always loved him. She cured him of the fault in an unusual way . . . by calling him names literally with a little barrage. The big scene of the picture is a battle between Wayne and Priscilla at the end of which each has a black eye. But it is more complete understanding of the other. Others in the cast include Dick Foran, Thomas Mitchell, John Litel, Barbara O'Neill, Dickie Moore and Moca Barrie.

Miss Hopkins again proves her remarkable versatility in a brilliant comedy-dramatic portrayal reminiscent of her former hit "Woman Chases Man", while Ray Milland, famed for his debonair characterizations, offers one of his finest performances in this novel and tangled romance of Greenwich village and Park Avenue.

A unique type of romance between a determined young heiress and a poor artist, whom, with the best intentions in the world, she tries to double-cross, serves as the basis of this fast-moving story.

When the girl's wealthy father fails in his efforts to secure custody of his orphaned grand-daughter who lives with the young artist, the girl decides to accomplish the feat by trying to deprive the unsuspecting hero of his slender means of livelihood at various odd jobs. However, she falls in love with him, which complicates matters considerably and leads to the exciting, lively conclusion. Walter Abel and Henry Stephenson are seen in leading roles.

Piles Go Quick

With Dr. Leonhardt's Prescription

Many sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have found out that quick relief can be had with an internal medicine.

The stagnation of blood in the lower bowel is the cause of piles. The veins are congested and flabby, the bowel walls weak. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used. HEM-ROID stimulates the circulation, relieves the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who spent several years of his professional life in finding the cause of piles and the medicine that would remove them. His medicine succeeds because it tends to correct the cause.

No matter what kind of piles you have or how long you have had them, get a box of HEM-ROID, you have our promise to give you back your money if you do not find quick and satisfying relief, after using just one bottle. Sold by druggists or any druggist can supply you.

"IS THAT SO?" ASKS COURT
NEWSPAPERMAN, MAY 19 ONLY
Three business men were arraigned here in a drive against punchboards.

"Your Honor," said a defence attorney, "some distributors might be led to believe gambling devices legal because the Federal government decided to collect taxes on them as amusement tax."

"Is that so?" replied Judge Clifford McLaughlin. "Case dismissed."

IN MUSIC WORLD

When Randmaster Fred Johnson raises his baton at St. Michael's School tonight, the massed instruments of the Belleville Municipal Band and St. Michael's Junior Band will ring out the notes of "Salute to St. Michaels", a composition specially written by Belleville's well known bandmaster, and dedicated to the school in which it will be played first.

Unique in its presentation the concert will establish a precedent in local musical circles, in that it will be the first occasion that a boys' band will play in conjunction with an organization that is rated as one of the finest of its kind in Eastern Ontario.

Rated an organization with splendid possibilities, St. Michael's Junior Band has forged ahead with remarkable strides during the past few months. The program for the concert being held tonight will be a fund to provide new instruments for the youthful musicians. The program:

March—"Wise Girls", arr. St. Michaels—"Johnson"
Overture — Golden Dragon — "King"
Belleville Octette—Selected
St. Michaels Band—A.—Officer of the day, B.—Sweet Duet—John Gardner and Edward Sandwell
Intermezzo — In a Monastery Garden—Ketelbey
Comic Tattoo—Musicians Strike —"Meyrelles"

INTERMISSION

Swinging the Blue Danube —"Hinchey"
St. Michaels Band — A.—Saxophone Solo —"Bobby Young" B.—Popular Number "Cry Baby Cry"
Belleville Octette—Selected
Selection—Hunting Scene—"Buccolosso"
Selection — Musical Switch, — "Alford"

QUIT PATCHING SAYS MAYOR BONE TO GOVERNMENTS

Public Opinion Changing, He Tells Property Owners' Association

At the regular monthly meeting of the executive of the Belleville Property Owners' Association held last evening, it was decided that these meetings would be discontinued during the year so that any local or other legislation affecting the property owners of Belleville could be considered and acted upon if necessary.

It was felt that the various discussions and ideas, as well as resolutions which have been passed by the local association, in connection with those of the Ontario Association had received consideration sufficient, and the actions had been forcibly drawn to the attention of the various governments concerned when he at present located. Carleton '66' Install sales records in the annual election of the company found Mr. Adams given this responsibility, that time he has been in charge of the Trade Publications Department of the Canadian Bridge Company, Limited, Peterborough.

Married in July, 1915, to Miss Winnifred Tucker of Montreal, Mr. Adams has two children, a daughter Joan Adams and a son, Richard Adams, son. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Adams, formerly prominent agriculturist of Ameliasburgh Township, Prince Edward County, and an active member of Wesley United Church, Notre Dame-de-Grace, Montreal.

FARM LAD RISES TO HIGH POSITION

Bruce Adams, Native of Consecon, 25 Years With C. I. L.

The rise of a humble country boy who first saw the light of day on his father's farm near Consecon, Ont., to a high executive position with the Canadian Industries Ltd., is graphically told in the "C.I.L. Contact", periodical of the firm in one of its recent editions.

In early April Mr. Bruce Adams, head of the Trade Analysis of the Canadian Industries Ltd. completed his 25th year with his company, and received a gold watch and diamond pin in appreciation of a quarter century of service. From executive and fellow employees of the firm at Montreal.

A graduate of the Ontario Business College, young Adams worked in a Chicago exporter's office, the Grand Trunk Railway, and other firms before joining the Canadian Explosives Limited in April, 1913. Since that time he has served his company in various capacities at Cobalt, Hamilton, Sudbury and Montreal where he is at present located.

Obituary

EDMUND M. CARLETON
(Toronto)

Toronto, May 19—Widely known as an Anglican churchman and in advertising and Masonic circles, Edmund M. Carleton died yesterday morning at his home, 96 Tyrrel Avenue. He had been in poor health for several years.

Mr. Carleton had been associated with the Davis-Patterson, Ltd., advertising agency, for the past twenty-five years. Previously he was with the advertising department of The Montreal Star for fifteen years and on several occasions represented the paper in British Columbia.

Born in Moosejaw, Hastings County, he came to Toronto more than fifty years ago. He graduated from the Toronto Business College, Belleville. He was a Past District Deputy of the Grand Lodge; a Past Master of Wilson Lodge; A.F. and A.M., a 33rd degree Mason and a member of the Royal Order of Scotland, A.F. & A.M. Also a Past Grand Superintendent of the Royal Arch Masons of Province of Ontario. He was a member of the Board of Governors, Wycliffe College.

For more than half a century Mr. Carleton had been a member of St. Clement's Eglinton, serving as a sidesman, on the Finance Committee and as a member of the Bible Class. He was also a member of the Empire Club and the Canadian Club of Toronto.

He is survived by his widow, Florence Millie Carleton.

He was a brother of the late John W. Carleton, well known Hungerford Township farmer who passed away suddenly last year, while visiting the late Dr. R. A. Carleton of Stirling, Ont. He was also a member of the Orange Order.

The funeral will be held from the late residence on Saturday at 2.30 p.m.

DATE OF VISIT TO BE CHANGED

Owing to a change in the itinerary of Ambassador T. Gilbert Balfour, Canadian Minister, he will visit Belleville on Tuesday, June 7th.

This change is made on account of the Ambassador visiting the United States.

Last evening the Toronto Twilight League game was cancelled by weather conditions. Manager Wilson Hurdle announced that they would arrange for same.

The Belleville Rotary Club entertained some "A Small Boys' Week" guests at luncheon today.

Mayor Wills welcomed the Ambassador to Belleville and the Ambassador responded in a few words.

SCOTTS SCRAP BOOK — By R. J. SCOTT

Mr. and Mrs.— By Briggs

Pop— Reminiscences of Youth — By J. Millar Watt

Little Benny's Note Book

After school I went around to the firehouse to talk to Mr. Riley the hookon ladder driver, and he asked me how I was and I told him I was all rite except I got a splinter in my finger, and he said, Well a little hardship is a good thing. People born with a silver spoon in their mouth dont always have such an easy time of it. Take Percy Rickrets for example, he said.

Who was he? I said, and Mr. Riley said, He was a young fellow born to the lap of luxury, with more spending money than places to spend it, but like all true believers all over the world, he was ambitious to be a fireman, and he asked old Captain nookrn to take him on as an apprentice without pay, claiming he didn't need the money so it would be a good ban gain for Captain nookern. Well Captain nookrn figured he couldn't lose nything by it, so he told Percy to come along, and so he did, and his French callet Alphonse with him, Mr. Riley said.

O, what for, I said, and Mr. Riley said, O, to keep his hoots polished and his uniform pressed and take orders in French. Well Percy and Alphonse arrived one night, and the following morning about 8 o'clock an alarm came in, and we woke Percy up but he told us he never got up before 10 and he knew he wouldn't be any good at a fire with his eyes only half open, but he said he'd be delighted to come along if anyother alarm came in around noon, and sure enough one did, Mr. Riley said.

And did Percy go? I said, and Mr. Riley said, O yes, he slipped on my hookern ladder with his hook gleaming and his uniform pressed in the fanciest creases you ever saw, but it wasn't long before he started to complain that he wasn't used to being pulled about like that, and he asked if it would be all rite for him to get off and take a taxy to the fire. Well that was just a little too much for Captain nookern, so he told him he could go to blazes in his taxy, but not to our blazes, It was a kind of a joke, but Percy took it, and now I've got a little polishing to do, Mr. Riley said.

Meaning good by.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 19—(AP)—Selling in pivotal issues put the stock market on the defensive today after an early rally attempt met with scant support.

A little faster pace on the offering side in the fourth hour repeated the volume somewhat similar yesterday's diminutive aggregate. Transfers were about 500,000 shares.

While urgent selling was again absent in today's dealings, the leading issues tipped the scales to moderately lower levels. The list got off to a sedate start, with quotations shifting a shade either way. A sluggish backward drift, however, carried prices down fractions to a point or so. There was a handful of gainers near the fourth hour.

Inclined to give ground were Anaconda, Case, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, International Harvester, Westinghouse and General Electric.

Most Canadian issues were strongly inclined. Prices of minor fractions were turned in by Canadian Pacific, McIntyre Porcupine and Lake Shore, while Dome resisted the trend for a small gain.

Contesting the downward swerve were Sperry Corp., Canada Dry, American Telephone and Boxing.

TORONTO STOCKS

(Closing)

Toronto May 19 (CP)—The Toronto market registered a moderate decline in the late afternoon today and trading dwindled to small volume in the final stage. Wallace Amulet pushed up to a new high for the movement in the first hour at 2.45 but failed to hold under profit-taking and the change showed a net loss of a few cents. All index groups were down moderately at the close. Aggregate turnover was small at a half million shares.

Senior oils held up and the banks, foods, and steels were steady while the utilities weakened moderately. Western oils, including Royalite, Anglo-Canadian and Calmont paid out minor loses.

Golds and Base Metals were nicked for losses of 5 to 10 cents. International Nickel took a loss of half a point and Noranda had a similar set-back. Ventures, Pend Oreille and Chromium slipped narrowly.

Senior golds, including Dome and Lake Shore, closed fairly firm in fractional gains.

Industrial Petroleum turned definitely heavy in the late trade and registered a drop of ¼ of a point or more.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford by Ross S. Salisbury.

The considerable amount of publicity being given in the press to the British Air Ministry delegation that is now in Canada is finding reflection in those securities that stand to benefit by the orders that are expected to be placed eventually for war materials, particularly aeroplanes. This should benefit all about a dozen companies directly and many more indirectly and may be the spark needed to bring about an improvement in business generally.

It should also be remembered that as the year progresses, the newsprint industry is steadily improving its position and that the surplus stocks in the hands of American publishers are being steadily used up. Some time this fall, it is expected the Canadian newsprint industry will be operating on a normal basis, but in the interval the securities in this group may move forward, thus discounting the anticipated betterment. Some quarters in the Street are again bullish on the newsprint stocks, whereas a few months ago this was a class of security bad few friends.

MAYOR BONE ASKS EMERGENCY MEET ON TAX PROBLEM

Premier Hepburn Suggests Waiting Till Rowell Commission Reports

In response to a request by Mayor Bone that he and his Cabinet should immediately call an emergency meeting of Mayors of the Ontario municipalities toward the object of having a complete and revision of a permanent nature effected, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn has sent the following communication to Mayor Jamieson Bone.

Dated at Toronto, May 17th

"Dear Mayor Bone:

"On my return to the office I find your letter of May 5th awaiting me.

"At the present time the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations is studying the very problem you propose to discuss.

"I would suggest our best interests would be served by awaiting the report of the Commission itself.

"With kindest regards, I remain, "Yours sincerely,

"That letter is very nice, but after all, the Rowell Commission will continue its sitting until the end of the year. In the meantime what are we and the other municipalities to do," bluntly commented the Mayor.

Marlbank Merchant Charged with Offence

Albert Whiteman, Marlbank merchant, was arrested in his home by Chief C. J Hayes of Tweed charged with a serious offence laid under section 292 of the Canadian Criminal Code yesterday, Whiteman appeared before the Justice of the Peace and remanded to the custody of the County jail at Belleville, bail not having been offered.

According to Chief Hayes the arrest was made following reports and statements received from the parents of children in the village of Marlbank protesting to the alleged activities of Whiteman in the village of a recent date. Whiteman will appear in County Police Court at Tweed one week from today.

HERTZOG'S PARTY

Mines, and Richard Stuttaford, Interior.

Nationalists Lose.

The government needed 38 of the remaining 59 seats to equal the 115 it held in the last parliament. Up to a late hour the Nationalists led by Dr. D. F. Malan on a platform demanding the establishment of an independent republic and abroad but three members as against a strength of 20 in the last House. Their position is likely to improve, however, as returns arrive from the outlying back-veld areas, where the principal strength lies.

The Dominion Party increased its strength from six to seven but lost its leader, Colonel C. F. Stallard and his chief lieutenant, The Dominion Party campaigned on a program of closer ties with the United Kingdom.

The Labor Party, with but three members elected as compared with six in the last parliament, appeared to have failed in its ambition to become the chief opposition party. Its leader, W. B. Madeley, was elected in the Benoni district.

C.P.R. SINCE 1932

He believed there were economies still to be obtained by corporation if satisfactory arrangements for dividing burden and advantage between the two systems could be worked out. Failure to devise such arrangements had made it impossible, so far, to agree on the pooling of passenger services west of Toronto and between Montreal and Winnipeg.

Correspondence between S. J. Hungerford, President of the Canadian National Railways, and Grant Hall, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, regarding cooperation was read into the committee records.

Senator Morand said he was a director of the C.N.R. and pooling between Quebec and Montreal and Montreal and Toronto was discussed in the fall of 1932. The C.N.R. did not proceed with it then because it wished pooling west of Toronto to go ahead at the same time. It was only after the Board of Directors was replaced by the Board of Trustees that the pooling was entered, and he suggested the Canadian National had at least hoped pooling west of Toronto would be taken up.

One Abandoned by C.P.R.

The C.P.R. took all its trains out of Quebec and practically all its trains out of Montreal-Toronto service and the C.P.R. abandoned only one daily train between Montreal and Toronto, said Senator Hugessen.

"I put it to you," he said, "was it not up to the C.P.R. to do something to equalize the burden and advantage?"

Mr. Armstrong said the C. P. R. had more miles of lines greater than the C.N.R. Its fast afternoon train between Toronto and Montreal operating over C. N. lines from Toronto to Montreal, Mr. Hugessen said, there was no disadvantage in that because the train left from and arrived at the C. P. R. station in Montreal.

C.P.R. "Hot" by Pooling

"The Canadian Pacific does not feel it is anything broad in this pooling. It feels it is," the chief witness said.

"In my judgment the C.P.R. got the better of this pool if anyone did. I would rather be on the C. P. R. side of this agreement," said Senator George P. Graham (Lib. Brockville), Joint chairman.

Mr. Armstrong said the C. P. had given up its day trade between Ginty, Ont., and Agincourt, Ont. That left it out of the passenger picture in the Ontario area between Belleville, Trenton and Bowmanville. Senator Graham said that was scarcely comparable to the through service from Montreal to Toronto.

The pooling had cut off 972,000 train miles per year, he told Senator Ross (Lib. Moose Jaw, Sask.).

The estimated annual saving was $972,000 or $1 per train mile.

GRAIN EXPORT TRADE BOOMING

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—Revival of the United States' lucrative grain export trade was estimated by merchants here today to have put approximately $125,000,000 in the American pocketbook since last summer.

They forecast $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 more would serve to farmers, grain dealers, railroads and shippers by the end of the summer as a result of the booming export trade now under way.

SPANISH PROBLEM

It is these fresh infringements of non-intervention which have occasioned British anxiety. Even the Anglo-Italian agreement hangs on a settlement of the Spanish question. Until the Spanish question is settled—and this, in the Italian view, implies a substantial withdrawal of volunteers—the Anglo-Italian agreement does not become operative.

Duce Wants Quick End

Premier Mussolini, too, wants the Spanish war brought to a quick end.

His blunt statement at Genoa about, France and Italy being "on the opposite side of the barricades in Spain" arises from a belief that France is supplying the Barcelona government with large quantities of munitions, thus prolonging the war in Spain.

Attacks on France are appearing in the Italian press. Paris papers hold the view that the hitch in the Franco-Italian talks threatens the Anglo-Italian agreement.

"A rupture of negotiations between Rome and Paris, declares Le Figaro (Rightist) "would be a formal confirmation of the Anglo-Italian protocol." Le Jour (Independent) goes so far as to predict that if no agreement is reached between Italy and France, the Italo-British entente will be shattered at once.

The Train of Troubles

"This rupture," Le Jour adds, "would bring in its train the fall of the Chamberlain government and a rout of the Conservative majority which supports it and accentuation of the growing ardor of the Socialist party and the young Conservatives grouped round Anthony Eden who have not stomached his disgrace. Dissolution of parliament then appears inevitable, with every chance of Socialism coming into power."

While the government prepared for newly announced military manoeuvres, Italy and France, at the French Tunisian frontier, the Paris-Rome press blamed France for the hitch in negotiations for an agreement with France similar to that with Britain.

The press also made new charges that France was assisting the Spanish government forces in the Spanish civil war.

The Anglo-Italian accord is not to become effective until all Italian combatants have been withdrawn from Spain, and, the press charged, the French government had in its conduct in "delaying solution" of the Spanish situation is "imperilling" European peace.

Indian is Held For Questioning in Slaying Year Ago

Simcoe, Ont., May 19—(CP)— While watching a softball game at Wellington Park, George Adams, an Indian claiming to reside at the Six Nations Reserve, was arrested by Chief Constable George Ashley and Constable Charles Robinson and is being held here for questioning in connection with the murder of Martin O'Brien at Mimico a year ago.

The officers were attending the game and noted Adams in the crowd. In the Chief's opinion, he answered the description given of the wanted man and the arrest was made. Mimico police being notified. Adams told the officers that he had been on the road since 1930.

O'Brien was shot on May 4, 1937, by a man thought to be an Indian, his death following four days later. A reward of $1,000 is standing for the capture of the killer.

Adams was arrested Tuesday night on a normal vagrancy charge, but no official announcement was made until late yesterday. Authorities had communicated with the police at Mimico.

It is feared that a Mimico officer, together with a man said to have witnessed the shooting, will visit Simcoe today.

Calls 'Crooning' Vocal Disease; 'Sax' An Ill Wind

Halifax, May 19—(CP)—Arthur Collingwood, Dean of the Faculty of Music at University of Saskatchewan, and adjudicator of Nova Scotia's fourth annual inter-provincial festival stated last night his feelings regarding jazz.

He has nothing but horror for what he termed "Dr. Bing Crosby's School of Crooning. Crooning, says Collingwood, "isn't singing, it's a vocal disease."

Second to quail before his wrath is the saxophone, which sounds anaemic, bing-pin of swing. Disclaiming any love for definitions, but claiming it sums up the whole situation, he terms the sax "an ill wind that nobody blows good."

SERVED HUNGRY PROSPECTORS

Juneau, Alaska, May 19 (CP)— Peter Jelich, 84, who served meals to gold-hungry prospectors at Dawson, Y.T., during the Klondyke gold rush of '98, died yesterday.

"He gave away more money than lots of men ever make," Territorial Governor John Troy said of his passing.

Powerful Short-Wave Station Suggested for CBC in Report

WOULD INTERPRET AND ADVERTISE CANADA ABROAD

Suggestion of Possible Reduction in Fees For Additional Sets

APPROVE CBC POLICIES

Proposed Short Wave Station Should be National Project

Ottawa, May 20.—(CP)—Early establishment of a high-power, short-wave broadcasting station by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was suggested in the report of the radio committee submitted to the House of Commons today by Chairman Arthur Beaubien (Lib. Provencher).

The committee recommended that the incidence of the application of the radio license fee, recently raised from $2 to $2.50, should be carefully reviewed in the light of this year's experience with a view to effecting a reduction.

Additional Fees

It is understood a majority of the members had in view particularly the provision that calls for the payment of the cost of additional wiring set a licensee possesses. Some reduction might be made in this connection.

A short wave station, the committee believed, would be of value in interpreting and advertising Canada abroad. It should be "established as a national project, operated and controlled by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation."

CBC Policies Approved

The report was signed by all members of the committee who took part in the final discussions, Hon. J. Earl Lawson, T. Vert Dawson, withdrew from the committee when he objected to a majority decision to call no witnesses other than officials of the Corporation. Other members of the body of Governors. Consequently he took no part in drafting the report and did not

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Rain-making Mirzai Yensen people believe that the coming of rain rests with a mythical bird, "Girador," that must touch one or tree, and whose young are hatched from eggs in mid-air. Because it to rain a woman places an inverted earthen pan on her head. Then she fills it with water and washes it as in a bath until it is nearly drowned. Heavy rain is sure to follow! To stop rain those people simply recite the following:

"Stop, oh the stem of the Meranti tree rocks to and fro, Let the rain now be as thin as possible,

That rain and tempes; may come to naught."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 20.—(CP)—Synopsis:A moderate disturbance centred this morning over Glace Bay, has a shallow trough extending southwestward to Texas while pressure is high over the western Provinces and northward. Mild temperate to heavy showers and thunderstorms have occurred in many parts of Ontario though in other districts the weather has been fair with a little higher temperatures in the west.

Lake Superior: Moderate to fresh northerly winds; partly cloudy tonight and Saturday, becoming a little warmer.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan: Fair today and Saturday, becoming a little warmer.

Fairy Storyteller's Third Part Owned by Hersholt

Autobiography Owned by Hersholt

Hollywood, May 20.—(AP)—Jean Hersholt said today he had acquired the manuscript of the third part of the autobiography of Hans Christian Anderson.

The actor who depicted the character of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, Callander, Ont., country doctor, in talkies featuring the Dionne quintuplets, claims he has the world's largest collection of the Danish author's manuscripts and letters. He is translating and editing 38 letters written by Anderson, which he will soon publish privately next fall.

"The first part of Anderson's autobiography, 'My Life's Fairy Tale,' recounting his life from 1605 to 1845, was published in Germany," Hersholt said. "The second part, from 1845 to 1855, was published in Danish. These manuscripts are in the Royal Library in Copenhagen.

"The original of the third part, his life from 1855 to 1868, was printed in the United States, in English. Many persons have tried to locate the manuscript, which I learned from some of his letters was owned by a family in Boston."

Hersholt declined to say what he paid for the manuscript.

SIXTEEN NAMED FOR 79TH RUNNING OF KING'S PLATE

Harry Hatch Seeks 3rd Victory in Row With Suffern, Carsonie

PURSE $7,500

Toronto, May 20—(CP)—Headed by his favorite, Bunny Lawless, 16 horses were named today to start in the 79th running of the King's Plate at Woodbine Park tomorrow.

Seeking his third straight victory in the historic race, H. R. Hatch of Toronto entered Suffern and Carsonie. Hatch won the race last year with Goldhurn and was victorious in 1936 with Monaweep.

Suffern, a mile-and-a-furlong, carries a $7,500 added purse and 80 guineas donated by the King's Grand Dame, a three-year-old chestnut filly, was named to carry the brown and yellow colors of Mrs. Hendrie of Hamilton. Aldwych, another favored filly, was entered by R. S. Cowie of Toronto.

Horses entered and owners follow: Girsh and Day, J. E. Smith, man. London; Wicklow, Riverdale Stable; Suffern and Carsonie, Harry Hatch, Toronto; Troublemark and Talmark, J. G. Fair, Brantford; Tabbing, Seagram, Waterloo, Ont.; Bunty Lawless, W. F. Morrisey, Toronto; Kelson Reich, Cosgrave Stable, Toronto, Red Pirate and Bushareel, R. S. Mclaughlin, Oshawa; Grand Dame, O. M. Hendrie, Hamilton; Thirty Below, R. H. New, Toronto; Chief Cal, H. Giddings, Toronto; Aldwych, R. W. R. Cowie, Toronto.

F. P. Salter, 79 Contractor, Dies At Ottumwa, Iowa

(From Ottumwa Courier)

Francis P. Salter, 79, veteran Ottumwa contractor, died Friday at 2:15 p.m. at the home of his son, W. H. Salter, 1125 Church.

Mr. Salter was in the building business here for forty-seven years. He constructed the Elks' club and addition on Alba Road in 1922. Death came to him as he was at a house built in that section.

He is the last son of William and Jane Salter and was born at Gaspe Bay, Quebec, Canada, September 15, 1858. He was an honorary life member of the Masonic lodge at Belleville, Ontario.

He was preceded in death by his first wife, Phoebe M. Salter, March 3, 1930. They had celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary September 20, 1928. He also was preceded in death by a son, John F. Salter, associated with his father, in the contracting business for many years.

Brother and Sister are Reunited After 41 Years Separation

Yarmouth, N. S., May 20—(CP)—A brother and sister rejoiced today after a reunion that ended 41 years separation. Although Mrs. J. W. Hatfield of Carrollton, Yarmouth County, knew her brother was in action with a simple "it was quite a surprise to me," she was excited enough on receipt of a telegram that came to her door introduced himself as George Hall.

Since 1912 she had believed he was drowned when the liner Titanic struck an iceberg off Newfoundland and foundered with the loss of more than 1,500 of her passengers and crew.

No word ever came to the village he actually was among the passengers drowned, but less of all trace of his movements coincided with the disaster. It was known that just previous to the Titanic's departure, he

Commissioner May Take Several Weeks to Prepare Report

Toronto, May 20—(CP)—The detention in the Homewood Sanitarium at Guelph, Ont., of Angus McIntosh of Montreal and the financial affairs of that institution featured the argument of counsel as the final phase of the enquiry into the sanitariums opened here today.

F. H. Barlow, K.B., Master of the Supreme Court, royal commissioner appointed by the Ontario government last March to inquire into affairs of the Homewood Sanitarium, today heard the final arguments of Cecil Snyder, K.C., counsel for Mrs. Ada, of T. L. Wen, K.C., of Montreal, associated with Mr. Snyder and himself particularly concerned with prosecuting the inquiry on behalf of Mr. McIntosh.

HERZOG PARTY CARRIES S. AFRICA WITH 111 SEATS

Nationalist Party Gains 6 Members, Dominion Party Wins Three

LABOR DROPS 3

Cape Town, May 20.—(CP) Cable—When South Africa's next parliament meets Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog's government will have at least a working majority over all ministerial benches than in the old parliament.

With the exception of one outlying constituency, returns from Wednesday's general election were completed today, with the following results:

Government 111; Nationalists 76; Dominion Party 6; Labor 7; Socialists 1; to come 1; total 190.

Opposition 79.

The principal change in the political line-up as a result of the polling was the increase in the members in the strength of Dr. D. F. Malan's Nationalists, who want South Africa to declare itself an independent republic.

The other party to increase its representation in parliament was Col. Cliff Dennis' Dominion party, which elected eight members as against three in the last Parliament, but at the same time lost both its leader, Colonel C. F. Stallard, and his deputy, Boshemah.

Gen'l. Majority 78

The issues were the United (government) party and the Labor parties. The government, however, could well afford to lose a little, and in the new parliament will have a majority over all other groups of at least 72. One member of the cabinet, A. P. Fourie, Minister of Commerce, was defeated.

The Labor party went into the campaign with the hope of returning to parliament as the official opposition party, but its present strength was cut from six to three.

Work to Start on New Niagara Bridge

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 20 (CP) —Announcement was made today that construction of a bridge spanning the International Railway Company's power canal, on both sides of the Niagara River for foundations for the Falls View bridge. The contract for the construction has been let Co., Niagara Falls and Wright and Kennedy, Niagara Falls, N.Y. Work began today on the Canadian side and will be completed in fourteen days. The new abutments will be built 100 feet farther from the edge of the river, on both sides, and twenty feet higher up the wall of the gorge. A portion of the wrecked bridge clinging to the United States shore will be removed within the next two weeks and excavating will start.

PAPA DIONNE AGREES

Father of Famous Babies to Have More Authority

North Bay, May 20—(CP)—Oliva Dionne's dream has come true. His famous quintuplet daughters will be united with their parents and their seven brothers and sisters next September. They will live together in a home built for the purpose, not far away from the city.

The happy ending to years of controversy between Dionne and the government - appointed guardians of the quints, who will be five years old on May 28, came yesterday when Dionne won a sweeping victory.

Since Sept. 22, 1934, when the quints were taken from the humble home where they were born to the newly-built Dafoe Nursery, Dionne has fought to have them returned to him. Recently he asked Attorney-General Conacher of Ontario for a judicial investigation of quint affairs. It was refused.

But his battle came in North Bay yesterday when a meeting of the guardians with Dionne, Duncan

British Asks Germany For Assurance Troops Not Moving to Frontier

Paris, May 20 (CP) — A Havas News Agency dispatch from Berlin tonight said Great Britain had called the German government's attention to rumors of German troop movements toward the frontiers and had asked re-assurance that the rumors are without basis.

The dispatch said the British representations were made by Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson to Baron Ernst von Weizsaecker, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in the absence of Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

The Baron, Havas said, was believed to have referred the matter to General Wilhelm Keitel, Chief of Staff of the Supreme Command of Germany's armed forces, whereupon General Keitel was reported to have assured the Wilhelmstrasse there had been no abnormal troop movements.

Von Weizsaecker is understood to have passed on this assurance to the British Ambassador.

JAPANESE ARMY ENTERS SUCHOW

Troops Closing in on 35,000 Chinese Trapped in Vicinity

Shanghai, May 20—(AP)— Commanders of the Japanese army made it triumphal entry into Suchow today as their army mopped up Chinese forces around the strategic city.

The vital rail junction was completely occupied, the Japanese announced, and their army was closing in on 35,000 Chinese troops said to be trapped in the Suchow area.

Seven thousand Chinese already have been killed in the Suchow area, the Japanese estimated. They said Chinese forces were retreating toward Siuyi, 15 miles to the south, Chuian, 16 miles to the southeast, and Linhwai, 70 miles to the south-east.

Although in number of casualties Suchow was not one of the big engagements of the war it was capture of the city was strategically more important to the Japanese in their occupation of Nanking, China's capital.

The fall of Suchow was the climax of a five-month campaign which started after Nanking was captured. In the drive the Japanese suffered their first real defeat in modern times at Taierhchwang April 6.

The main body of General Chiang Kai-shek's troops, which withdrew from Suchow before the attack started, were reported preparing to make a second stand 30 miles west of the captured city.

LEAVES LARGE ESTATE

Hamilton, May 19 (CP)—Probate of the will of the late Charles G. Thomson, insurance broker, who died at Miami Beach, Florida, on March 23 has been filed by the executors, Edith G. Thomson and the National Trust Company, Ltd. The papers filed disclose a gross estate of $431,310.27.

DUEL FAILS TO SETTLE QUARREL

Director of Opera Wounded in Right Arm in an "Affair of Honor"

Paris, May 20—(AP)—Edouard Bourdet, director of La Comedie Francaise, was wounded in the right arm today by Henry Bernstein, veteran playwright and duelist, in an "affair of honor" that failed to settle their quarrel.

The principals left the dueling field without reconciliation. The seconds declared the honor of the wounded was not serious.

The duel, with dull-edged but needle-pointed epees took place on an estate at suburban Neuilly and consisted of two two-minute rounds of fighting for which Bernstein, adjudged the injured party, chose the weapons.

It was Bourdet's first duel; Bernstein's fifth.

At the end of the second two-minute period the referee sighted blood trickling from Bourdet's right arm and the examination, declared the contest ended.

Despite the protests of Bourdet and his seconds, the referee called Dr. Thierry De Martel from the audience to the field to attend with iodine. The referee was Jean Joseph Renaud, himself the veteran of many a clash at arms.

Bernstein then stripped off his shirt to show that his body was not touched by his opponent's blade and that the "honor" engagement was over and his party into the house on the estate.

PAIR IN STOLEN CAR HUNTED AT MEAFORD

Meaford, Ont., May 20.—(CP)—Police of Meaford, Thornbury, Collingwood and Stayner scoured the Georgian Bay District today for two men believed travelling in a stolen automobile.

The pair is sought in connection with half a dozen break-ins in the past two days.

Germans' Greatest and Last Raid By Air Over London 20 Years Ago

By GUY ELIOADES

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 20—(CP) Cable)—Twenty years ago today London counted the dead—195 wounded in the last and biggest German air raid of the Great War. Over 1,000 buildings were damaged to the extent of £130,000 ($650,000).

Thirteen enemy bombers reached London of 49 which took off from near Ostend. Seven of the 13 bombers were shot down, including three forced landing. Anti-aircraft guns fired 20,000 rounds. Among three and three were brought down by 84 British pursuit planes.

The population of the darkened city dwelt in horror for almost three hours. The sky was cut by searchlight beams and sprayed by the flashes of bursting shells. Thirty-six bombs crashed in Essex and 46 in Kent.

Defenders' guns caused part of the casualties and damage but the government claimed the defence barage was successful and raids ceased thereafter. But experts now say the raids achieved their purpose, keeping several thousand men, much ammunition, and many planes at home and away from the fighting front.

RICHARD D. WAUGH SAAR BD. MEMBER DIES IN WINNIPEG

Was in Charge of Reconstruction of Blast-Torn Halifax

BORN IN SCOTLAND

Winnipeg, May 20 (CP)—Richard Deans Waugh, 70, British Empire Representative of the Saar Commission in 1920, and three Mayor of Winnipeg, died here today.

Mr. Waugh was chief commissioner of the Manitoba Liquor Commission and his death was just four days after a fellow commissioner, W. J. Bulman, noted Winnipeg printer, died.

Mr. Waugh, a genial Scotsman will long be remembered for his civic leadership in Winnipeg between 1908 and 1915, and as head of a commission which had charge of constructing the explosion-torn district of Halifax in 1917.

Born in Melrose, Scotland.

Mr. Waugh, born in Melrose, Scotland, March 23, 1868, came to Winnipeg at the age of 12, received his education in the city and after experience in a law office he entered real estate business in the rapidly growing city.

He became president of the Winnipeg Real Estate Exchange, a leading civic body, a director and for prominent in curling and horticultural circles.

City Controller of Winnipeg.

His first political venture was in 1904 when he became city controller and four years later the city's mayor. He was named mayor for 1915 and 1916.

During his 96-mile aqueduct carrying Winnipeg's fresh water from Shoal Lake, Lake of the Woods region, was built between 1913 and 1920 when Mr. Waugh was chairman of the Greater Winnipeg Water District.

On Saar Commission.

In March 1920 Sir Robert Borden, then prime minister of Canada, offered Mr. Waugh the post of British citizenship, at the request of the British government, and it was accepted.

Mr. Waugh was a member of the Saar administration, declared that the administration had no more right to be pro-French or pro-German or anti-British and as a result of the plebiscite, it was Germany's minority of one, as I thought it my duty to cast the first ballot for Versailles was carried out to the very letter by both French and Germans.

His Work in the Saar.

For three and one-half years, Mr. Waugh strove to justify the great German population in the fertile mining valley. But in 1922 the Saar Commission moved to impose confines afid imprisonment upon unfortunate people who criticized the tactless Treaty or any administration. After three years' work he decided to move, Mr. Waugh resigned in August and came back to Winnipeg.

Mr. Waugh was a bachelor. And in 1932 he married Harriet Logan, a daughter of Alexander Logan, then mayor of Winnipeg.

Mrs. Waugh died in July, 1921, and in August, 1932, Mr. Waugh married Catherine Lewis of Winnipeg. Six children survive.

All Stamps Taken From Letters As They May Hide Dope

Sudbury, May 20—(CP)—Control of the narcotics traffic at Burwash Industrial Farm is the greatest problem of officials at the institution, Col. W. H. Powell, superintendent, told members of the Canadian Legion branch here today.

"Now that I first went to Burwash I was surprised to find they can hide dope under postage stamps," Col. Powell said. "We have a man there now who talks all the stamps off before the mail is delivered to prisoners.

"I have a set of dominoes in my office that was once used to smuggle dope into the institution. We became curious why they had been sent in and one of the officials broke one in half. It was found to be hollowed out and filled with a white powder."

FRANCO-ITALIAN PACT SQUARELY UP TO MUSSOLINI

France is Assured of Britain's Support in Crisis

BRITAIN MEDIATOR

Welter of Reports Circulate But Few Have Any Foundation

Paris, May 20—(AP)—France's non-aggression pact today concentrated off Bizerta, naval base of French Tunisia, which adjoins Italian Libya, amid European tension over suspension of Franco-Italian friendship negotiations.

(King Victorio Emanuele sailed from Sicily for Libya to attend Italian army manoeuvres near the Tunisian border.)

Seven cruisers and 18 destroyers dropped anchor in Bizerta harbor Wednesday for unannounced night war games with air forces. Officials said they were only "normal manoeuvres."

Paris, May 20—(AP)—France, reporting on her conversations with Great Britain, has put the question squarely up to Italy privately up to Premier Mussolini.

Political informants made it clear today that negotiations had reached since May 11, will have to be resumed by that date.

France seemed to have found both formulas she hoped would check, state alleged Italian efforts to use the Spanish civil war as an excuse for military occupation of, with Russia.

French acceptance of a British plan for ending intervention in the Spanish war assured her of Britain's support in her undoubted refuse to negotiate an agreement with France on that basis, Britain could not hold France responsible.

At the same time, France apparently had found herself free of offending Russia, as the British plan

Three Third Charges

Brockville, Ont., May 20 —(CP) When Roy Littlejohn, Oxford Township, was tried in court here today on charges of drunken driving and reckless driving arising out of a collision non No. 2 Highway at Maitland on May 8 in which three were injured, he was remanded until June 17, bail of $1,000 fixed. Littlejohn now faces a third charge of criminal negligence.

GOVT RETAINS AYLESBURY SEAT

Sir Stanley Reed Victorious in Three-Cornered Contest

London, May 20—(AP)—The government today checked the trend of Parliamentary by-elections by retaining the Aylesbury division of Buckinghamshire by a margin of nearly 11,000 votes.

Results in yesterday's polling gave Sir Stanley Reed, candidate Sir Stanley Reed, 21,696; T. Atholl Robertson, Liberal, 9,734; and Reginald Grove, Labor, 7,566.

The government's majority was only slightly smaller than in the general election of 1935. Labor, which had made some successful seats from the government, increased its total by 2,000 votes at the expense of the Liberal party.

Sir Stanley Reed, a former editor of the Times of India, campaigned on behalf of the government's foreign policy, attacked by the other two candidates.

The by-election was held to fill a seat caused by the resignation of M. W. Beaumont, Conservative.

16 FROM P. E. COUNTY TO GRADUATE FROM NORMAL SCHOOLS

Sixteen embryonic Prince Edward County school teachers, the largest number to represent that county in two decades will graduate from the Normal Schools of the province this year, according to a statement issued yesterday by Dr. C. E. Hodgetts, Inspector of Schools for the southern county.

With only a few vacancies reported in the county to be filled for the fall term, a number of the new "schoolmarms" will be forced to look farther afield for their little red schoolhouses, it was added.

SHOULD BE 35 CENTS NOT TWENTY-FIVE

Bridge, euchre and dancing will feature the annual get-together social evening of Belleville Conservatives to be held in Johnstone's Academy, this (Friday) evening. Music by Bud Haines' Commodores, a special door prize with a value of five dollars and refreshments will be entertaining features. Admission will be thirty-five cents, not twenty-five cents as mistakenly reported in Thursday's Ontario Intelligencer.

APPLE ORCHARDS IN FULL BLOOM THIS WEEKEND

Delayed by the cool damp weather of the past few days, pink and white apple blossoms are expected to burst into full bloom this week-end into a veritable fairyland of bloom over the county week-end.

Although somewhat disappointed last Sunday by the rain-dispersal of the majority of apple-blossoms, lovers of this form of natural beauty were consoled by the beauty of cherry and other small fruit orchards.

At present apple orchards are breaking in the full beauty of bloom and Sunday no doubt will see scores of motorists journey through the district to view the scenes of beauty that once a year transforms drab orchards into things of sparkling beauty.

SAFETY DIKES AROUND GASOLINE STORAGE TANKS TO BE BUILT

In keeping with certain clauses of the Gasoline Act, local representatives of large gasoline companies will commence operations on the building of dikes around the many bulletins of gasoline storage tanks in the city, in the near future.

The dikes, which may be constructed of earth or cement must be of sufficient height as to accommodate in the enclosure formed, the full capacity of the largest tank in the battery. In the event of accident or leakage the dikes will confine the gasoline within their area, thus minimizing the possibility of a dangerous conflagration should fire break out.

Building of the dikes is a result of an inspection made last autumn by representatives of the Fire Marshal's Department, Toronto. Companies now already started on dikes surrounding the tanks of the Supertest Co.

AGREEMENT SIGNED

Culminating seven months of negotiations, Picton Local 494 Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, freight handlers, engineers and station employees, secured ratification of an agreement with the Canada Steamship Lines company to use union labor only in loading cargo at the Picton docks.

The signed agreement with the steamship company was presented to the local union by J. O. Clark, Montreal organizer at a special meeting called for the purpose.

With the secretary of the local branch of the steamship company under instructions to hire union labor only, the agreement will go into effect upon the arrival of the next freighter.

Similar negotiations are under way with the Trent Line Steamship Company, whose boats call at Picton during the summer season. It was announced by Secretary Morris of the local union.

CITY INSURANCE MEN AT ANNUAL CONGRESS

One hundred life insurance underwriters from Williamsburg on the east to Trenton on the west, including representatives from Belleville and Trenton, gathered in Kingston for the annual sales and educational congress of the Life Underwriters' Association on Wednesday. The congress was opened with luncheon at the hotel ball room at which community singing was led by Bandy Burrows of this city.

STIRLING RESIDENT SIGHTS LARGE DEER

Deer continue to be sighted in the southern townships this spring. Mr. J. L. Good, principal of Stirling High School on his way to Belleville to report seeing a large red deer while driving on the Stirling-Marmora highway this week. The deer ran along the side of the road with the car for a short distance then jumped the wire fence and disappeared.

STIRLING RESIDENTS FAVOR BUILDING SCHOOL ADDITION

The result of the canvass by members of the Stirling Board of Education to ascertain the feeling of residents of the village in respect to the building of an addition to the Stirling High School showed 174 in favor of building. A petition for its erection has been forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board.

NO JOBS OPEN SAY BELLEVILLE SEEKERS

Three or four Belleville men have returned to the city from Gananoque earlier this week attracted to that town by the news that several factory job following reports that the firm of Parmenter and Bailey had received an order from the Department of National Defence for the manufacture of 20,000 aerial bombs. They were unsuccessful in their quest.

It was reported today by one of the local men that work had not been invaded during the past few days by scores of jobless all seeking work in this plant. But refusal has greeted all their requests.

"We have too many men now to handle, and too many on the waiting list for us to take on more just now," the Belleville man said he had been told.

Shows How Rain Revives Fungus To Original Form

Ten or twelve days ago Mr. G. A. Britton, College street, picked from a cedar a fungus and placed it in a tin box where it lay in the sunlight and withered.

Yesterday, after night's rain it was fully revived with all its most delicate tracery restored to its proper colors. The rain had revived it in a few hours.

Mr. Britton who is a naturalist and lover of nature has had much experience and an experience he had not long ago, when a friend asked him how long it was since Mr. Britton had grafted a pear tree on a thorn. She was surprised to be informed that it was fifty years before. Now the pear tree had been cut down.

Citizens remember that last year Mr. Britton had a rosebush which produced a very large number of blooms.

Obituary

JOSEPHINE H. SWETMAN (Picton)

Following an illness that had extended over a period for some time past, the death of Miss Josephine Swetman, Picton, occurred at this Picton General Hospital early on Friday morning, May 21st.

Born the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Swetman, well known early pioneers of Prince Edward County, 85 years ago in Murray Township, the late Miss Swetman had spent almost her entire life in that county where she had made a wide circle of friends through her kindly generous nature, an adherent of the United Church, Miss Swetman had been a keen and active worker in the interests of her church.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Milton DeLong of Belleville and one brother, Alfred N. Swetman of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

The date of the funeral appears elsewhere in this issue.

LATE FRANK B. DAY

The funeral of Frank Boice Day took place from the family residence, 2nd. Concession of Thurlow Township on Thursday, afternoon, May 19th. Service in the home was conducted by Rev. L. S. Wight and interment took place in Bellevue Cemetery.

The large number of friends and neighbors who attended the funeral testified the esteem in which the deceased was held in the community.

The bearers who were all members of the original 34th Battery and comrades of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada who are listed in August 1914 were Samuel Pointer, Charles Ostrum, William McKenna, William Black, Ernest Harris, Carl Kiser.

Many veterans of the Army and Navy in Canada also attended the funeral in a body.

There were many floral tributes.

Utilities Commissioners May Receive Remuneration

Proposed to Pay Chairman $400 And Members $300 Per Year

GARBAGE CONTRACT

At last evening's committee meeting of city council it was recommended that the report of the special committee on Moira Street siding be received by council at its Monday evening meeting and that it be accepted and given effect.

The report pointed out: "Your special committee of Aldermen J. W. Barlow; C. Baragar; A. Kennedy, M. Haig and L. Lewis, met Messrs. Hallam, Harris and Harris, ratepayers, accompanied by their solicitor, R. A. Pringle, in the office of the city solicitor, and at the ratepayers' request, it was suggested that the ratepayers might present their case for consideration of the local Court of Revision to be held some time before the treasurer's annual tax sale. And that the city clerk arrange said sittings. It is understood that any decision by the local Court of Revision is subject to appeal to the County Judge," the report adds.

Under other recommendations passed, city council will be asked to accept the tender of D. W. Kedey for garbage collection for one year at $4,100 on the express condition, that the agreement which it proposes to use meets with the approval of the city engineer and chairman of Public Works, and chairman of Market and City Property. That the Ontario Municipal Board finds that if the performance or this contractor proves satisfactory, succeeding councils carry on this contract for a further term of two years.

Another recommendation would authorize a letter prepared by the city solicitor, authorizing the remuneration of the Public Utility Commissioners to the extent of $400 for the chairman and $300 for the other two commissioners "subject to by-law to be in effect for the current year".

It was recommended that the tender of Isaac Stephenson for the painting of three overhead signs at a price of $33.50 each be accepted, and that the south-west corner sign at the post office turn be set back so that motor vehicles may pass more easily be seen by the council.

Yoke of Oxen Owned By Hungerford Farmer

One of the sights of the present season in North Hungerford is a team of yoke of oxen owned by Russel Grills in Hungerford Township, used by him for domestic work around his farm. He has a photographic novelty for the many tourists who annually visit this section. TWO ARRESTED NEAR KALADAR

Both Charged With Being Intoxicated in Charge of Car

Two men who provincial police authorities say are Floyd Woods of Belleville and Kempton Vance of Frankford were arrested near Kaladar yesterday on charges of being intoxicated while in charge of an automobile. The pair were apprehended by Provincial Constable A. Dymond of Madoc.

When Dymond arrived in Belleville with his prisoners, who had been remanded to the custody of the County Jail, he discovered the automobile in which Woods and Vance were found in possession, had been stolen in Belleville Wednesday night. The motor car in question was the property of Malcolm Wallridge, Huff's Island, and had been stolen in this city. The property of Mr. Wallbridge's motor car was the third automobile to have been recovered by the police after having been stolen off city streets during the past week.

While the recovery of Mr. Wallridge's automobile was the only one interest, Brigdon police informed the local authorities that a Ford coupe Hudson automobile had been stolen from that village yesterday. The vehicle was the property of Ontario license plates number 60-W-16.

The Belleville constabulary no arrests were necessary in Belleville yesterday, leaving the cell block available for eight transients who sought shelter there last night. The marked decrease in the numbers of transients seeking shelter at the police station in Belleville during the past week.

INVENTOR IS ENCOURAGED

Meets Prominent Authority And Has Inquiry From United States

Ald. B. F. Jennings inventor of the "impact ignition breaker" a device which Mr. Jennings feels has a future in many industrial mechanics this week met an official of the firm who are now using instruments in connection with their work, which is somewhat like the ignition breaker has value. Mr. Jennings who was accompanied by Mr. Ben Smith, of the Belleville radiotrician and electrical mechanic, who had much to do with the development of Mr. Jennings' idea, was given valuable suggestions as to the application of the device and as to practical tests. Mr. Jennings left the engineer indicated, "Proof of the interest taken in the announcement of the patents secured on the invention, was when the inventor on his return he received a long distance telephone call from a firm which is one of the largest United States organizations, which is now contemplating some changes in mechanical equipment used by their lines. From the conversation over the telephone Mr. Jennings was led to understand that the company, having under immediate consideration the changes, based on the invention of the Belleville inventor, and at once got in touch with Mr. Jennings as the patent attorney, and full particulars as if it might fit the need. Drawings were sent by Mr. Jennings to this company.

"We are greatly encouraged by the interest which has been manifested by these men and others in the device," commented Mr. Jennings.

Mother's Quick Action Saves Young Child From Serious Injury

Prompt action on the part of the mother of three-year-old Russell Fralick, Sandy street, averted serious injury to the youngster the other day when she pulled the connecting cord of an electric washing machine from the socket, stopping the motion of the rubber rollers of the wringer into which the hand and arm of her son had been drawn.

As it was, the youngster suffered painful injuries that necessitated medical attention.

MUNICIPAL BAND GIVES CONCERT FOR JUNIOR BAND

Diminutive Barbara Forhan Conducts Older Band in Number

VARIED PROGRAM

Belleville Municipal Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Fred Jobson demonstrated their interest in the St. Michael's Junior Band, when they presented last evening a splendid concert in the Academy Auditorium. Selections of outstanding musical merit, popular swing tunes, and interesting medleys were offered by this prominent band and the high standard of artistry achieved proved the group to be one of the finest in Ontario. Among the many novel features of the evening which concluded in effect with the St. Michael's musicians, playing in public for the first time of Mr. Jobson's composition, "Salute to St. Michael's", and the fact that the Municipal Concert Band played for the youngest guest conductor, diminutive Barbara Forhan, certainly the first feminine director of the Municipal Band of any local band. Little Miss Forhan is conductor of St. Michael's Junior Band and after their number "Officer of the Day" in which the senior band assisted, Barbara was invited by Bandmaster Jobson to conduct the Municipal Band in the number. This she accomplished most nonchalantly and efficiently.

H. Barrett Chairman.

Belleville Municipal Band was introduced last evening by Mr. Harold Barrett who acted as chairman for the occasion. Mr. Barrett in a few pleasure it gave all to have the privilege of hearing this famous band. He sincerely thanked the Municipal Band by volunteering to come and assist their efforts in promoting this concert. He then introduced Bandmaster Fred Jobson.

The march "Salute to St. Michael's" was an interesting number and showed the bandmaster had unusual talents as a composer as well as conductor. It was followed by the overture "Golden Crown" (King), a selection in fraternal effect, splendidly interpreted. Proving that the Municipal Band "can swing it" with the best of them, "Reigbo" was played with much zest and in rippling rhythm tempo.

For their first offering the Junior Band, conducted by Barbara Forhan played "Office of the Day" in keeping with appreciative applause by the audience. John Briand and Edward Bonisteel played a cornet duo "Memories", played in such fine style that one forgot that only two fellows they were. "Home Sweet Home" a saxophone solo by Bobby Young was given with smooth, rich tone and the final number of the band "Cry, Baby, Cry" was admirably rendered. The group of tiny musicians certainly might be given one of the largest United States organizations, which is now contemplating some changes in mechanical equipment used by their lines. From the conversation over the telephone Mr. Jennings was led to understand that the company, having under immediate consideration the changes, based on the invention of the Belleville inventor, and at once got in touch with Mr. Jennings as the patent attorney, and full particulars as if it might fit the need. Drawings were sent by Mr. Jennings to this company.

"We are greatly encouraged by the interest which has been manifested by these men and others in the device," commented Mr. Jennings.

Tweed

Tweed, May 20.—Sunday, May 15, was a red letter day in the history of the local Salvation Army Corps. Captain Bonar in charge of Tweed Corps made all the arrangements for the day. Brigadier Riches, Major Parsons and Major Urquart of the divisional headquarters, Toronto, were present to take part in the ans, who took his place, gave an excellent address at the United Church on Sunday morning and also on Sunday evening at a mass meeting held in the auditorium.

The hall was well filled as Tweed Citizens' Band opened the program with several band selections followed by "Onward, Christian Soldiers". After prayer and a Scripture reading by Brigadier Riches, Captain Bonar handed the program over to Reeve W. H. Sayers who referred to the great work which the Salvation Army is carrying on in all parts of the world, a work which deserves the support of everyone.

A chief feature of the program was the musical characterization of Major Thomas Urquart, the musical wizard of the Salvation Army who has travelled more than 100,000 miles, and who plays on thirty-six different instruments. Assisting in the program were Rev. H. H. Nicholson, Tweed United Church; L. A. MacDougall, K.C., Tweed I.O.O.F.; A. A. Nicholson, Master, Tweed L. O. L., and Mr. C. Ed Way.

The following program was given: Musical duet by Major Urquart; solo, "In the Shadow of His Wings" by Mrs. H. Orler; March by Tweed Band; solo, "The Rolling Pin" by Major Urquart; trio, "Hark, Hark, My Soul" by Mesdames Dales, Connors and Grier; selection, "The Pump" by Major Urquart; address by Major Parsons; selection by the Tweed Band; trio, "Saviour, Breathe An Evening Blessing" by Mesdames Dales, Connors and Grier; musical saw solo by Major Urquart; remarks by C. Ed Way; instrumental, "The Bells", by Major Urquart; God Save the King; Benediction by Rev. R. H. Nicholson.

Major Parsons gave an interesting account of the work of the Salvation Army. He had spent 34 years as an active field officer, a considerable part of which was in connection with the men's social service in the slums area of Montreal where he was engaged in the work of salvaging human derelicts and enabling them to once again assume a useful place in society. The funds raised by the annual self-denial campaign were largely used for this purpose.

Rev. R. H. Nicholson spoke most sympathetically of the work of the Salvation Army and was glad to cooperate with them whenever possible.

Mr. C. E. Way also spoke briefly.

Read

Read, May 20.—The Forty Hours devotions were held at Read Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. These devotions opened after High Mass on Sunday with the Litany of the Saints sung by the choir followed by the procession of the Blessed Sacrament. It was very edifying to behold the large crowd that attended the ceremonies during those three days. The priests from the surrounding parishes gave their assistance. The sermons preached on each of the three evenings were a source of inspiration to all. At the closing exercises there was a procession of the Blessed Sacrament, the Litany of the Saints and Te Deum were ably chanted by the choir.

Mr. Frank Hannifan of Detroit spent a few days under the parental roof.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Cassidy and Miss Genneth were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas V. Corrigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas V. Corrigan.

Miss Agnes McWilliams of Belleville is spending a few days at the home here.

Mrs. Leo Quinn of Belleville is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Callaghan.

Mr. George English and a number of men are doing road work in this vicinity.

Rawdon

Rawdon—Mount Pleasant Rawdon Mission Band held their May meeting at the church Sunday morning with a good attendance. The service opened with a hymn, music by Miss Marion Ross and the president Miss Marion Phillips gave the call to worship. All joined in a hymn of consecration and Misses Gladys Sharp and Gladys May offered prayer. The president read psalm 91 and the leader Mrs. Cyrus Summers outlined the worship story entitled "The Bravery of Doris" and later she synopsized the study story dealing with "Missionary Work in India." The Treasurer reported $15.36 for the first four Sundays in May monthly. The collection entitled "Dhaniya, a little Indian boy." Miss Marion Ross gave a piano solo and Mrs. Cyrus Summers and brother Eric sang a duet. John Ellis and Clara Phillips gathered the offering which amounted to eighty cents. The service closed with the rendition of "God Loves the Little Things" and Mrs. John Phillips offered prayer.
